Franks lauds Civil Service reform

A major Civil Service reform measure designed to promote productivity and efficiency in government has been approved by the Assembly and signed into law by Gov. Thomas Keane. The new law, sponsored by Assemblyman Anthony Villano Jr., replaces the Department of Civil Service with a new Department of Personnel run by a commissioner and a Merit System Board. "The passage of this bill represents one of the major accomplishments of the Keane Administration," said Assemblyman Bob Franks who represents Mountaineer in the N.J. General Assembly. "I strongly supported this bill since it was introduced and, as majority conference leader of the Assembly, worked hard to ensure its passage."

At the library Flagler biography is topic

By ROSE F. SIMON Florida's Benefactor One day in 1889, a well which drilled beside Oil Creek, Pa., changed the flowered meadows into fields of derelict and black silt. Surveying the scene was the young handsome Henry Flagler, who, with John D. Rockefeller, established the Standard Oil Company - America's first industrial giant. By 1895, the company controlled more than 90 percent of the refining capacity in the world - an awesome achievement. Born in Hopewell, N.J. (1839) into a large family, Henry worked at odd jobs before joining his company in Ohio, where he went into the distillery business. Two important people entered his life: Mary Harkness, whom he married, and John D. Rockefeller - a successful grain merchant for whom he worked for a time. Flagler bought his way out of the Civil War - a common practice then and lost all the money in the salt business before finally becoming Rockefeller's partner in Standard Oil. He, not Rockefeller, was the wily one whose ideas were influential in making advantageous deals and absorbing smaller competitors. Both were ambitious, pressing on to monopolize the refineries in the East. Their critics made them uneasy, but using some wily business maneuvers, Standard Oil survived and the "robber barons" became noted millionaires. During those years, Flagler, whose life was Standard Oil, spent very little time at home where he would have been. He tried to take his wife to New York City, but she felt the need to return home to New York City. Mary's illness and loneliness continued until her death in 1881. Then, a new Flagler appeared: a bon vivant, partygoer, theater buff, he soon married his wife's ex-mistress, Ida Alice. Now feeling financially secure, he distanced himself from the oil business and was ready to explore new fields. This time he would visit Florida with a new purpose. Some say that his development of Florida's East coast - a monumental achievement, was his most noteworthy accomplishment. Yet his modesty never permitted his name to be used in remembrance of his efforts. The author recounts in detail the results of his vision. He used his own wealth to create an efficient railroad down to Key West, attractive sandy beaches, beautiful hotels - the first - the Ponce de Leon - lovely town, a productive agricultural county, with a self-supporting population out of an unmanageable wilderness and noxious marshes. As he grew older, Flagler became very frail. An accident in his Florida home was responsible for his death in 1918. Celebrated he was during his life. Henry Flagler was scarcely remembered outside of Florida, this being only his second biography.

Koldorf art in East Brunswick show

During October, the East Brunswick Public Library is presenting a unique exhibit of the works of sculptor Irene Koldorf and portrait artist Lawrence Koldorf, both of Springfield, Md. Koldorf was artist-in-residence at The Library in February 1985 as part of a project sponsored by the artists' League of Central New Jersey. Her wood, stone and metal sculptures have been seen in numerous shows including the Short Hills Mall and the Summit Art Center annual juried show and the Washington Square Annual Outdoor show where she has won six awards. About her own work, Mrs. Koldorf says, "To me the excitement of sculpture is in trying to create a movement or feeling in stationary materials. I am most interested in people, in their variety of expressions, stances, movements and shapes. The vitality is never ending and I try to catch an instant in time and invitational shows throughout the state and he has completed numerous commissions for private collectors in the New York-New Jersey region. The library is located in the Civic Center complex off Eglers Lane in East Brunswick. Exhibit hours are Mondays-Thursdays from 9 a.m.-5 p.m., Fridays from 9 a.m.-3 p.m., Saturdays from 10 a.m.-5 p.m., and Sundays from 1-5 p.m.

Bills to improve foster child care

The Senate Children Services Committee has released two bills, sponsored by Sen. Donald T. DiFranco, R-22, which are aimed at improving the quality of care children receive in foster homes. "One of my bills would establish a mandatory ongoing training program for all foster parents. The additional skills learned through in-service training would help stabilize placements and reduce the number of foster home failures." "These are the children of broken homes. They are the victims of physical or sexual abuse or severe neglect. They are infants born addicted to alcohol or drugs. Some of them have AIDS. The parents who take these children in under foster care receive only mandated pre-service training and orientation. This training just is not enough to ensure that the foster parents are prepared to deal with the magnitude of behavioral problems they will be facing."

Dayton notes Poetry Week

The observation was launched on Monday in English classes with the reading of the proclamation signed by Governor Thomas H. Kean declaring this week to be Poetry Week. Free advertising?

Every year around this time we are bombarded with campaign releases from candidates for public office. These releases always pose the same questions: Just how much space should be allotted to them? How much time should staff members spend checking, confirming and clarifying charges made by the candidates? Do our readers depend on these articles when deciding for whom to vote? Do our readers view our campaign columns as a community service or a waste of space?

This year, like many before, we have been faced with cases in which we believe the candidates have "manipulated" us into turning campaign releases into news stories which make them look good; we have been accused of giving certain candidates larger headlines than others, and we have been charged with failing to use certain press releases in favor of others.

Rather than go on and on, we have come up with a policy on campaign releases which will enforce during the remaining weeks before Election Day. This policy is a compromise between not running the releases at all or doing what three Oklahoma newspapers are doing: charging candidates for space used!

While the news value of a political campaign cannot be disputed, political press releases also qualify as free advertising.

As in the past, all press releases must be in our Union office by noon Monday in order to appear in that week's issue of the paper. Next week's issue, Oct. 16, will be the last issue in which candidates may make charges that warrant a response from an opponent. On Oct. 23, candidates may make their final statements, answering charges they believe must be answered before Election Day, but making no new allegations.

On the following Thursday, Oct. 30, this newspaper will publish interviews with candidates for local office. That issue also will carry our endorsements for local office.

To avoid confusion, Campaign Corner will be labeled as such. It will be noted that statements are those of the candidates, not the staff members of this newspaper. To avoid giving one candidate a bigger headline than another, only the candidate's name will appear at the top of the statement. Only one press release per candidate per week will be published. Releases should be no longer than two typed pages, double spaced. We reserve the right to edit all copy.

Coverage of local elections is an important part of our service to the community. As a community newspaper we have a responsibility to give our readers a fair and objective presentation of candidates for public office, but we will not be forced into giving more time and space to political news than the public wants.

We urge readers to let us know just what they'd like to read about — at election time and any other time of the year. We believe this policy concerning political releases will result in a fair presentation of the campaign.

Readers — let us know your opinion.

Candidates — we'll gladly publish your releases, if you follow our guidelines.

Letters to the editor

Massler, Fink backed as 'qualified'

I read with interest the Democratic campaign blurb in your Oct. 2 issue. The Democrats implied that Howard Massler and Stanley Fink were indebted to a local builder who they went in to develop the Walton School property into apartments. Massler and Fink have gone on record as being in favor of the existing deed restriction on the Walton School property for public school, athletic, recreation and accessory public use.

They told the League of Women Voters that "it is neither the function nor the purpose of the Township Committee to bail out private business parties because of their disadvantageous business decisions."

I remember full well Massler being the first — and I believe only — owner on his block who sued this builder. The law suit got a great deal of press in the Springfield Leader because the Masslers, not content with filing suit, posed with signs which announced their dissatisfaction.

I have known Mr. Massler for many years. Our town couldn't find a more qualified candidate with more integrity. Those of us who know him personally know that he is running for election because the Republicans sought out the best candidate they could find, not somebody to be influenced by outgoing committee members. Stan Fink is president of the Short Hills Village Tenants' Association. He has fought for the rights of tenants all his life. His independence is equally documented by his qualifications and experience.

As far as I'm concerned, Massler and Fink are the only two candidates with the qualifications and experience to put this town on the right track and to protect us from any improper land use.

Frequent revaluations 'terrible idea'

Last week Township Committeeman Jeff Katz proposed more frequent property revaluations for tax purposes. What a terrible idea for the residents of Springfield!

Finance facts

Investors in many equity-mutual funds find themselves in the pleasant position of having substantial "paper" capital gains that have grown over past years. Constantly changing market conditions, however, often cause some investors to wonder whether they should sell and realize their profits, rather than risk seeing those gains disappear.

Less fortunate are investors who consider selling because they are actually losing. In fact, they are actually dividing when the fund's net asset value is less than the average price you paid for the shares. Whatever your situation, think about several things before you sell:

First, why did you buy this fund? Presumably it met an investment goal — to provide current income, say, or to produce significant capital growth over the years. If it has been serving that purpose, a cyclical downturn should not be cause for alarm. Moreover, if you've diversified your portfolio, only a portion of your assets are in equity mutual funds. Your other investments — such as CDs, bonds or real estate — were intended to cushion you against a stock market decline.

Keep in mind that a mutual fund investor should be a long-term investor. The average holding period of a fund is seven years. If you are not prepared to invest for at least one full up-and-down market cycle — two to three years, on average — you probably should not be in equity mutual funds. More liquid investments, such as money-market funds or short-term CDs, are a better choice for you.

The most important consideration is the fund's management. If you bought a fund with a good track record in both bull and bear markets, that is evidence that the fund managers weathered previous storms. If you believe the managers can do so again, stay in the fund. You may look upon them as a good opportunity to put more money into it, thus lowering your average price per share. What you should not do is stand pat.

To help yourself make a decision about selling:

Review your investment objectives and goals. If they have been met or if they have changed, you may want to consider selling or exchanging to another fund.

Compare your fund's performance to that of similar funds. You'll find performance rankings in Forbes and Money every few months, or ask your financial consultant, who has access to more frequent rankings. If, for instance, you've invested in an international fund and all international funds are declining at about the same rate, that's less cause for concern than if your fund is dropping much faster.

If your fund has a diversified stock portfolio, compare its performance to the broad market indexes, such as the S&P 500 and the NYSE Composite. If it underperforms the averages frequently, that's a warning signal.

Check your fund's net asset value regularly, but not every day. Checking the price quotations daily is appropriate for someone trading stocks, but not for a mutual fund investor. It's better to look at the price every month or quarter.

Set some "loss limits." If the fund retreats 25 percent from its high, either sell — or be very clear about why you're holding on. Remember, a positive decision to hold on means you should consider buying additional shares at the lower price. Once a fund declines 10-25 percent, start keeping fairly close tabs on it.

check its performance against other funds and the overall market, and begin to think about an alternative investment.

If you decide to sell all or some of your shares in a fund, the easiest way is to switch into a related fund. This is one of the strongest arguments for choosing a "family" of funds, which gives you maximum flexibility to move into other funds with no additional sales charge.

Yom Kippur Message

Of Rosh Hashanah, our prayerbook says: "Today is the birthday of the world. Today all creations are judged." But the truth is, this birthday begins not on the first month of the Jewish year, but on the seventh month. In the middle of the year. A fact that the ancients did not miss when they assigned "scales" as the Zodiac sign for this season of judgment.

There's much to judge this year. Racism and violence in South Africa, the drug epidemic in this country, the specter of nuclear catastrophe which became a reality in Chernobyl, the homelessness and hunger that haunts our affluent streets, and now the renewed passion for terrorism as reflected by the outrages in the Istanbul's largest synagogue. And closer to home, there are the marriages in trouble, the broken families, the loneliness, emptiness, all the broken fragments of our lives — and all the cups which overflow with sweetness.

Everything needs to be judged. For the judging of the Days of Awe provides perspective. It allows us to gain the critical balance we require to make sense and blessing out of our lives. That's why the ancients set this New Year in the middle of the year. Wisely, they choose to do a midway calculation so that they could achieve a mid-course correction. That's our challenge as well.

May 5747 be a year of healing for our troubled world, and of rich fulfillment for all of us.

Howard Massler and Stanley Fink

Howard Massler and Stanley Fink, Republican candidates for Springfield Township Committee, have detailed the "sound management" plank of their 1986 campaign platform. In addition, Massler and Fink jointly called upon the voters of Springfield to elect them so that "the Katz-Pleper platform overwhelmingly endorsed by the voters of Springfield last year can be put into action with our votes."

Massler explained, "Unless we get elected, everything Katz and Pleper were elected to do will be to no avail because they cannot, with only two out of five votes, implement our platform."

Fink stated, "Our first priority if elected will be to put into action sound management practice." Fink cited as an example the proposed expansion of City Hall.

"We all agree we need additional space for the proper functioning of the Police and Fire departments. That is why," Fink said, "Katz and Pleper demanded a written project plan, a project timetable and a cost schedule. Unfortunately," Fink continued, "the Democratic majority did not do their homework and Katz and Pleper refused to give them a blank check." Fink said, "We must expect our Township Committee to do their homework or we pay for their mistakes with our tax dollars."

Fink also warned the voters against what he termed "voting for the personality and not the ability of the candidate." Fink explained "The Township Committee bears the ultimate responsibility for management of Springfield; however, because the members of the Committee have full-time occupations, they only serve as part-time managers." Fink continued, "If a part-time manager does not have the right qualifications, the job will be bungled and mismanagement will result. There is no time for on-the-job training as with other public service activities."

"Only Massler and I," Fink added, "have the background, ability and experience to join the Township Committee and be productive from day one." Fink concluded by stressing that "our qualifications as compared to the Democratic candidates is one of the key issues in this campaign."

Implementing "sound management practice," Massler noted, "starts at the top with the candidates whom the voters put into office." And we," Massler continued, "have already shown the Township what Stan, myself, Jeff and Jo-Anne as a team can do with our initiative and ability." Massler pointed to "our securing on Aug. 7 a commitment from the Republican majority of the Board of Freeholders that no garbage dump or amphitheater would come to Springfield." Massler continued, "After that commitment became law, we went to our state legislators to secure their support." Massler cited the "widely-reported stand by Hardwick, Genova and Bassano reported in last week's Springfield Leader keeping our town free of garbage." Massler continued, "If we can accomplish all this now with only two out of five seats on the Township Committee, think what we can do with a Republican majority."

Massler explained what would be implemented by a Republican majority after the Nov. 4 election. "We will prepare job descriptions for every position of municipal employment. We will prepare performance evaluation programs for all positions. We will manage by objective all Township departments."

Massler and Fink jointly called upon all the voters to examine with care the experience and qualifications of the candidates. "We are nice guys, but to manage the town takes proven ability."

Sy Mullman and Bill Welsh

Sy Mullman and Bill Welsh, Democratic candidates for the Township Committee, have examined the state of Springfield's recreation department and its programs. Welsh pointed out that the recreation department has been under the direction of Republican Township Committee people for the past seven years.

"I was Bill Russo's department, then Joanne Tedesco's and most recently, Joanne Pleper has been in charge of recreation," Welsh said. "During that time we have had a steady decline of properly planned programs."

Mullman, who has a degree in managing municipal recreation programs and experience as the former superintendent of recreation in California and led to Proposition 13.

He can't be serious, you say? But he is. He tells us he and Republican Committeewoman Joanne Pleper are going to Trenton to try to persuade our legislators that frequent revaluations are a good idea. Indeed, frequent revaluation may be good for the real estate interests — which landlord Fink is and who lawyer Massler represents — but it isn't good for the homeowner. Katz especially singles out senior citizens as particular beneficiaries of this constant pocket-picking by the tax collector. Amazing.

To add insult to injury, Mr. Katz then takes the Democrats to task for saving him all that money between 1974 and 1986 by not revaluing. He complains in his letter that "Democrat dominated township committees had ample opportunity to lessen the effect of revaluation by conducting one or more revaluations since 1973. They didn't."

To which the residents of Springfield should utter a heartfelt, "Thank God."

PRE-TEEN IN TRENTON—Assembly Speaker—Chuck Hardwick, R-Union, welcomes this year's Miss New Jersey Pre-Teen, Kim Suchak of Middlesex, during a recent visit to the General Assembly in Trenton.

Information on housing available

Free housing information is available for Union County residents through the CHISS, Consumer Housing Information Service for Seniors, a program jointly sponsored by the American Association of Retired Persons and the Union County Division on Aging. Volunteers trained by AARP are available to meet individually with older consumers and their families to discuss ways to solve their housing problems. Philip Pearlman, director of the Union County Division on Aging, said the service is designed to help older persons understand the various housing options and services available in the community. "Our housing information volunteers have been specially trained and provided with specific information on solutions older renters and homeowners can use to solve housing issues," Pearlman said. According to Pearlman, past experience has indicated that many older persons are unaware of the range of housing options available or services that can help a person remain in their own home. Some

Hospital sets Food Day TV

The Union Hospital will participate in the 1986 World Food Day Teleconference Oct. 15, according to Neil Hudes, hospital director of Educational Services. The teleconference, which will be held in the hospital's Classroom A from noon to 3 p.m., will be open free to the general public. The three-hour teleconference will include three cable television-broadcast segments, Hudes said. The first one-hour segment will be a discussion on world hunger reported by an international panel of experts. The discussion will be followed by a one-half hour presentation by Gov. Thomas Kean, who is scheduled to make public the most recent findings from the New Jersey Commission on Hunger. A look at local hunger problems in Union County will follow Kean's report. The final hour will be an open segment during which the international panel of experts will take questions from the general public.

The teleconference is a great chance for the community to increase its awareness of hunger, not only on a worldwide scale but also as to what is happening in our own backyard," Hudes said. "We must realize that over 500 million people in our world are categorized as 'severely undernourished.'" To participate in the World Food Day Teleconference at Union Hospital, one can contact Hudes by calling 687-1900, ext. 2219. It was requested that response should be made as quickly as possible, and that seating is limited.

Parade scheduled

The 16th Annual Columbus Day Parade, sponsored by the American-Italian Cultural Society of Union County, is scheduled for Sunday at 10 a.m. It was announced by Mike Guarino, parade chairman. This year's grand marshal, Joey Giardello, former world middleweight boxing champion, will lead the parade that will commence at Elizabeth High School located on Pearl Street at the bridge. Cherry Hill resident Giardello, now employed by the State of New Jersey, held the world championship from 1963 to 1965. He dethroned Dick Tiger of Nigeria, and at that time brought the title back to the United States of America. Giardello defended his title successfully against Paterson's Reuben "Hurricane" Carter, winning a unanimous 15-round decision. He also defeated former champion Sugar Ray Robinson and Ralph "Tiger" Jones. Giardello, born Carmine Tilielli in Brooklyn, N. Y., fought out of Philadelphia most of his career. In 1964, Giardello started the Special Olympics for retarded and handicapped children with the assistance of President John F. Kennedy's aide, Sergeant Stricker. That year Giardello, then the middleweight champ of the world, fought Gil Diaz in a 10-round non-title fight and donated the entire purse, his entire share, to help begin St. John of God School for the retarded in Westville, Groves. The school began, under Father Damian of Ireland, with 19 children, and now has 120. In 1968, Giardello and many former fighters staged another benefit for the children. This event took place in the Spectrum in Philadelphia. Most of the fighters were now retired like Giardello, but before the regular bouts, they staged "The Ole Good Time Fights." Jake LaMotta, Rocky Graziano, Billy Graham, Charlie Fusari, Jersey Joe Walcott, Chico Vejar, Fred Russo and Fred Ernie Durando all were on the boxing card. Giardello has a son that suffers from Downs Syndrome and has dedicated a portion of his life to the retarded and handicapped children.

DMV assists motorists

To assist motorists in resolving suspension and insurance surcharge problems, the New Jersey Division of Motor Vehicles will continue to offer extra hours of service at its Trenton headquarters this month. The first floor visitors' area at 25 S. Montgomery St. will be open from 8:30 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, except for Columbus Day, Oct. 13, when all DMV offices will be closed. In addition, it will be open Saturday mornings from 8:30 a.m. until noon, with the exception of this Saturday, when the office will be closed. Any motorist arriving by 6 p.m. Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday or by noon on Saturday will be assisted, no matter how long it takes, said DMV Director Glenn R. Paulsen. The DMV will continue to maintain normal hours for resolving these problems on Thursdays and Fridays. These hours are 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. The extra telephone hours previously offered in August and September have also been extended through October. Motorists can contact the Division for help with a suspension or insurance surcharge problem by calling (609) 292-7600, Monday through Wednesday from 8:30 a.m. until 6 p.m., Thursday and Friday from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. and on Saturday from 8:30 a.m. until noon, Paulsen said.

"Why do I want a health plan that limits my choice of doctors!?"

Because it gives you unlimited confidence in choosing your doctor. And that's important, because how satisfied you are with your personal physician plays a very big part in determining how happy you are with a health plan. And how healthy you'll stay with that plan. The Rutgers Community Health Plan (RCHP) is a special kind of health plan: a group practice HMO. Our multi-specialty physician group gives you the security of knowing you and your family are receiving high quality care. Here's why. At RCHP, our doctors examine your doctors, before they examine you. Our physicians examine hundreds of doctors, put them through a rigorous selection process, and carefully evaluate both their medical qualifications and their "bedside manner". A handful of the most highly-qualified finalists are invited to join the Group. So you can choose your own personal physician with unlimited confidence.

The professional setting that attracts our doctors benefits you. RCHP offers you the exclusive advantages of our affiliated Central New Jersey Medical Group's high medical standards, ongoing peer review of doctors, ease of consultation and continuing medical education. Our doctors admit RCHP members to some of the area's finest hospitals and many are on the teaching staff of the Robert Wood Johnson Medical School. It's just one part of our total plan to care for you. Over ten years ago, RCHP created a plan to care for your health and your budget—with comprehensive coverage, reasonable premiums, no claim forms or confusing paperwork, and no deductibles. And we care for your personal convenience, by maintaining our doctors' offices in modern, centrally-located health centers throughout Central and Northern New Jersey. Our plan even cares for you when you're well. RCHP Wellness Works™ programs help keep our members healthier, wealthier and wiser. It all adds up to truly exceptional and personal health care.

See for yourself. Call 1-800-233-RCHP to schedule a special Health Screen at absolutely no charge.* Experience our care firsthand, before you choose a health care plan. Visit one of our health centers, meet our staff and discover just how much better our plan can care for you. *This limited diagnostic exam is available only to non-RCHP members in participating member groups whose enhanced periods take place during the month of October 1986 through January 1987. Current RCHP members are eligible for the complete Health Screen.

Computers in classes

The New Jersey State Department of Education has completed a statewide technology plan, Educational Technology in New Jersey: A Plan for Action, in order to assist school districts in effectively using educational technology in the classroom. "The age of the computer as a classroom tool has arrived. Nearly every New Jersey school district offers students educational experience with computers," said Commissioner of Education Saul Cooperman. "It is important that these tools be used effectively," the commissioner added. "The Department of Education has written this plan for local districts to use as they develop, or expand, their own technology plans and programs." The plan provides the rationale for technology use in the classroom as well as a review of current practices and research on computers, instructional television and emerging technologies. The plan focuses primarily on computers and instructional television because these are the forms of educational technology most widely used in New Jersey classrooms.

NJEA intervention

The New Jersey Education Association (NJEA) has reported that it has long recognized the state's responsibility to make sure each child receives a thorough and efficient education. That responsibility, part of the New Jersey Constitution, is what led NJEA to support the landmark Robinson versus Cahill school finance lawsuit. "We believe the state must do everything in its power to make sure a thorough and efficient education is offered to every student in New Jersey's schools," says NJEA President Dennis Giordano. "NJEA does not believe legislation is necessary. The authority to intervene in local school districts has already been vested in the State Board and Department of Education. However, the commissioner has asked for clarification of the law to prevent long and costly legal challenges, and some argue that this legislation will help develop a broad-based consensus validating the state's right and need to intervene. The NJEA can accept such clarification and consensus-building as valid goals," says Giordano. "The NJEA is aware that certain school districts have not met the state's standards. Many of these districts are in our poorest urban centers. The causes are many. A principal cause is that the state has not lived up to its responsibilities to ensure a thorough and efficient education for all our children. A key example is the financial neglect shown these districts by the state as well as local ability to raise revenues diminished through the years. Cutting budgets to save tax rates and applying increases in education support to reductions of municipal tax rates are further examples. "Finally, the declining socioeconomic status of many urban population centers, combined with all the other negative influences of poverty, have accelerated the decline of some urban school districts. NJEA recognizes that a "state district superintendent" as called for in the plan needs broad powers. "But to give that one person the power to hire and fire, make all decisions, set all salaries, and tax the local community, is to create a dictatorship controlling the schools, all school personnel, and to a large measure, the entire community. That is simply too much power in a single pair of hands. The disenfranchisement of the teaching and supportive staffs from even an advisory capacity, and the abrogation of employee rights by abolition of positions and termination make the power vested in the "state district superintendent" a move to complete authoritarianism, Giordano indicated. "It establishes something close to martial law in the schools and community. Yes, strong action is needed to protect the rights of our children. No, the state must not be permitted to simply cancel, law, contracts, due process rights, and the citizenry's ability to govern and tax itself. These powers must be tempered if the state intervention plan is to be supported or to succeed," said Giordano.

Occupational therapy aide is needed

The Westfield Foundation, a community foundation, has furnished a grant of $1,250 to Children's Specialized Hospital for an occupational therapy aide, who turned out to be so good that the hospital staff wishes it could keep her.

Ranjini Vernegal, an 18-year-old 1985 Westfield High School graduate, headed for Duke University this fall to study biology. She assisted the occupational therapist at the hospital, according to occupational therapy director Claire Daffner, "that it will take some adjusting to get used to not having her here any longer."

Daffner described Ranjini as "a very mature person who fit in and worked well with the older staff members." She said the summer aide "would do very well in the occupational therapy if that's the career she chooses." Hospital President Richard B. Ahlfeld noted that Daffner has recently received the distinction of her professional association as a Fellow, and that "her guidance was a rare opportunity for a Westfield youth to experience." Ranjini worked under the direct supervision of assistant director of occupational therapy, Sadako Vargas, and assisted the other occupational therapists who are connected with how each patient performs tasks that the environment demands and identifying deficits in sub-skills necessary to perform these life-task skills, various tasks of every day life, to each patient's fullest potential. The goal of occupational therapy is to produce readiness for the demands of school, social readiness and emotional stability in the patient.

She assisted the occupational therapists by performing various clerical duties, keeping the activity areas clean, and participating, when appropriate, in patient treatment sessions under Vargas' direct supervision.

"Ranjini has stamina, the ability to learn things very quickly and good organizational skills. She adjusted very quickly to the fast pace of the department and helped the therapists keep on schedule and find more time for therapy planning and evaluation," Daffner said.

"The teenager monitored file drawers for completeness of all supplies of photocopied materials and testing protocols, filed and organized materials as requested and assisted the therapists in organizing and maintaining the treatment rooms. Upon the therapists' request she transported patients back and forth between their rooms and activity areas, worked together sections of rehabilitation aids and devices and worked on a computer."

"I learned about pediatric occupational therapy principles and approaches as well as testing materials and their purpose."

ANOTHER SCORE for Union in its 55-0 win over Plainfield Friday. The victory brings the Farmers' streak to 24.

Booters boost record to 3-4-1

The Union soccer team bounced back from its 1-1 tie with Plainfield last week with a 5-0 victory due to a forfeit by Eastside of Newark and a tie to New Providence. The New Providence game was like a chess match as Union, 3-4-1, controlled the ball well throughout the game. Mike Floria, who shared goalie duties for the day, played his usual tough game throughout the first quarter and saved three shots on goal, as both teams went scoreless. In the second quarter New Providence did manage to record a goal with an attempted shot from 20 feet away that oddly sneaked past Floria to give Providence a 1-0 lead. Union would not be denied this day, having won scoreless in their previous two outings, as they matched the Providence goal with their own. Attacking from the left side of the field, Mike Shaw dribbled behind the Providence defenders and spotted teammate Eric Kruszner, who also cleared defenders. Receiving the ball from Shaw, Kruszner fired on goal to score his first goal of the season to knot the score at one-

In the second half Shaw took over at goalie and shut the New Providence team down. Unfortunately, Union was unable to score again. In the Eastside game Union was awarded a 1-0 victory due to a no-show. Union will go to Union Catholic on Friday and then to Pingry on Tuesday.

Officials sought

The Springfield Recreation Department is looking for persons interested in officiating soccer games. The skill level is grades 3-4-5 and games are played on weekend afternoons. The pay schedule is $10 per game. Interested persons should call Mark Silance, recreation director, at 376-8884.

Girls run record to 3-1

On Sept. 30, the Union High School girls' cross-country team brought its dual meet record to 3-1 by defeating Irvington 15-50 and Plainfield 22-38 at Irvington Park. Alicia Hennessy won the race in 21:47, her personal best. Senior captain Annie Kilton was the key performer for Union, as she passed three opponents during the second half of the race to finish third in 23:32. Sophomore Gina Calleo finished seventh 28:05, in her first varsity start. Manisha Desai, 28:33 and Gretchen Behrens, 28:25 were fourth and fifth for Union. Anne Ledo, 27:31 and Jiganasa Parikh, 28:26 rounded out the scoring for Union. "I was very happy with the girls' performances. They ran very competitively and their times are improving. This was the first time we ever beat Plainfield." On Oct. 4, the team finished 11th out of 18 teams at the Stewart Memorial Cross-Country Meet at Warinanco Park. Union's top performers were Hennessy, who set a junior class record by finishing 39th in 23:24, and Calleo, 66th place in 24:27.

Other standout defensive players included Victor Worthington, Joe Picchi, Gordon Morrison, Ryan Driscoll, David Crosby, and Jim Pedersen. The offense, led by quarterback Dave Nitolo, had numerous opportunities but failed to connect for yardage in critical third down situations. Offensive linemen Matt Polcare, Oscar Lima, Brian Greenspoon, Anthony Masi, and Jimmy Miller, along with split end Brian Costello, were up against strong pressure all day from a tough Berkeley Heights defense. Minutemen Defensive Backs Chris Colatruglio, Brad Mullman, Phil Marchetti, Vinny Costa and Wally Brown were kept busy by the Berkeley Heights passing attack.

Travel artifacts date to Middle Ages

By DAVID M. MAXFIELD
SMITHSONIAN NEWS SERVICE

"Carry-on" has become the travel catchword of the '80s. But what a change today's under-the-seat totes and synthetic satchels signal in the history of travel. Just consider this: In 1715, the third Earl of Burlington reportedly returned to England after less than a year abroad, with 878 pieces of luggage.

In our own century, news photographs periodically pictured the Duke and Duchess of Windsor waiting on some dock beside a pile of 20 or 30 trunks, each reading, in beautiful white capital letters with serifs, THE DUKE OF WINDSOR. Their contemporary, playwright Noel Coward, once summed up changing travel styles in some telling dialogue: "How was your flight?" "Well," came the reply, "aeronautically, it was a great success. Socially, it left quite a bit to be desired."

As one wag points out, many species carry food for survival, but the human is the only animal that packs for a trip. And in a sense, to paraphrase the contemporary adage, "You are what you pack."

Whereas today's airline passenger often stores weeks' worth of travel needs in that collapsible carry-on, Victorians made do with a tally of trunks — not to mention birdcages, footstools, rugs, portable bathtubs, bedrolls, water bottles and food baskets aplenty.

"Luggage styles over the centuries have accurately expressed both changing social realities and changing modes of transportation," author-educator Paul Fussell comments. From these styles, he says, "a future archaeologist can infer something like the social history of the past two centuries."

Recently, in fact, the Cooper-Hewitt Museum, the Smithsonian's national museum of design in New York City, exhibited several hundred travel "artifacts" dating back to the Middle Ages. In the history of travel, Director Lisa Taylor says, such a study "has been strangely neglected."

Part of the reason, exhibit curator Deborah Shinn explains, is availability. "This project did require a lot of looking around," she says, since many "travel" items were never considered valuable and have simply vanished. "It was hard to find objects to illustrate early sea voyages," she notes, adding that even examples of once ubiquitous molded Samsonite in dreamed-for '60s hot pink now appear to be lost luggage.

But there were wonderful discoveries, many found in the collections of local historical societies. A conestoga wagon trunk made by Mark Cross about 1860 turned up, as did carpet bags, a portable sundial, a traveling inkstand owned by Charles Dickens, a traveling bed and a combined walking stick and violin. From our era came such eclectic specimens as a lunar sample container, a portable computer and a wicker picnic basket.

For sheer pizzazz, however, honors must go to the extraordinary collapsible trolley carriage owned by a finicky woman who toured Persia early in the century. Except for the wheels, the whole thing fits snugly into three Chinese-red trunks.

These were designed by Louis Vuitton, the prestige luggage-maker whose heirs sponsored the museum's exhibit and catalog. In that connection, the firm supplied a ransom of items fit for kings and mere mortals. Among the goods: luggage for a hot-air balloon (c.1905); an astonishingly elegant traveling case crafted of snakeskin, sealskin, silver, brass and glass for the famed Polish pianist and statesman Ignace Paderewski, and a shoe trunk with slide-out, labeled drawers for 30 pairs of shoes.

Travelers come in many varieties: bindle-carrying hobos, campers bearing back-packs, astronauts swathed in life-sustaining space suits, high society members followed by monogrammed matched luggage and holiday-goers equipped with cameras and guidebooks. For nomads, travel is a way of life that has endured for millennia, while for emigrants, a single voyage can mean a fresh start. Yet it's hard to pin travelers down — to define them — since they may be on their way to work or headed for the moon.

"British travel author H.G. Links points out that "traveling" in terms of sightseeing is a concept less than three centuries old. Before then, scarcely anyone took trips who did not have to do so. Ancient Romans journeyed widely, on diplomatic missions and military campaigns. Medieval Christians made long pilgrimages from Europe to the Holy Land, and for political purposes Renaissance princes frequently moved their courts from palace to palace.

"The impulse to travel solely out of curiosity took hold only when 18th-century English gentlemen completed their educations with a "grand tour" on the continent. Leaving London in 1739, writer Horace Walpole and poet Thomas Gray followed their own tastes. "Except for pictures and statues," Walpole confessed, "we are not very fond of sights."

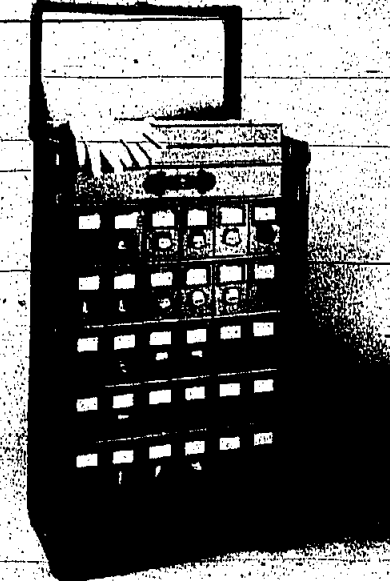

But what to pack? As one seasoned traveler, who acknowledges an addiction to browsing for luggage, remarks, "It is surprising how hard it is to decide what to pack and what to pack it in." Portability — and protection, however, have always remained constants for people on the go. For centuries leather has been used because it is impervious to wind, rain and snow. But as the critic Brendan Gill recently noted in commenting on the "great revolution of our day — light luggage," leather "weights almost as much empty as it does full." While fine cases of iron, leather and wood protected precious 15th-century books, today's business people carry their documents and yogurt containers in briefcases with individualized combination locks.

Changes in luggage design have come with the whims of fashion and advances in transportation technology. As curator Shinn observes, the advent of train travel in the 19th century altered earlier shapes that were crafted to fit the contours of horse-drawn coaches. Dome-topped trunks that deflected the elements when stacked on top of carriages gave way to large trunks with straight sides and metal reinforcing mounts that could be stacked in baggage cars. The heyday of oceanliner called for large steamer trunks designed to serve as closets or dressing tables or even as writing desks in passengers' staterooms.

The trend in luggage design since the early 1900s has "progressed" from heavy to lightweight, from complex to simple, from elegant to plain. There are many reasons for this, according to Fussell. Not long ago, the motto was "Dress Up." Even in second- and third-class hotels and pensions, women "dressed for dinner." Women required dresses for sightseeing, afternoon dresses for tea and, of course, gowns for evening. Also to be packed,

Fussell adds, were "lots of beads, handbags, gloves, scarves, together with hats, hats, hats."

The trend now, as Fussell puts it, is to "conspicuously show up in both men's and women's carry-ons. The round case, a stiff-sided collar case, a stiff-sided detachable shirt collar, and essential part of a gentleman's luggage early in the century, is now ancient history. Its place is taken by the backpack and the hanging garment bag, not as elegant perhaps, but well suited for today's informality and great change in travel customs. Bon Voyage!

Y seniors plan trip

A trip to Hyde Park to see the Vanderbilt mansion and FDR's home is being planned by the YM-YWHA Older Adult Department in Green Lane, Union, for Wednesday "at the height of the fall foliage season."

The full-day trip will include admissions, lunch, snack and transportation.

Reservations for this and other outings and extended trips can be made with Min Douglas at 289-8112. A complete monthly schedule of clubs, classes, and trips is included in the senior newsletter, available by request at the Y or by calling 289-8112.

Rebecca's forecast

For week of Oct. 9 through Oct. 15
ARIES (3/21-4/20) Rather ho-hum trends prevail early in this period. Emphasis remains on key relationships and further stabilizing of these ties may be in order. Later, unsettling news may not be reliable, restricting financial trends of the past two years begin to recede and new avenues of employment emerge.

Parents: read to youngsters

By BETH GIORDANO and FRANK SULLIVAN
Q. You have often referred to the role of parents in their child's education. Quite honestly, all the parents I know want their kids to do well in school, but all they ever really do is help with the homework and ask what the child did in school everyday. What things should parents be doing to help children get A's and eventually get accepted at good colleges?

MRS. L.G. A. It's a mystery to us, as it is to most teachers, why so many parents truly believe that when they deposit their child in a school at age 5, he or she will come out at age 18 with a string of honors, all ready for Yale. Helping with homework, attending "Parent's Night" once a year and asking "what did you do in school today?" while rushing to get dinner together isn't going to do it. Neither will threats if marks are bad.

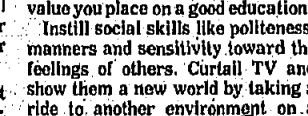

If you want to have smart children, here's a place to start: Read to them. If you can't, ask others to do it. When they know how to read, encourage them to read on their own — there's many ways you can accomplish this — ask your child's teacher or ask us. Meet with teachers if you can to make sure homework is being done. Give children space to work in, as well as Finally, set a super example. Please be aware that volumes have been written on this subject. In upcoming weeks we'll print a few excellent recommendations.

Q. My mother says my 8-year-old son watches too much TV. He watches after dinner, from around 5:30 till he goes to bed around 9 or 8:30. He does his homework when he gets home from school. Some shows are educational even the sitcoms nowadays. I think it's good for him to see these various situations. I think he learns a lot. TV isn't what it used to be years ago. What is your opinion?

RONI L. A. If he watches TV from 5:30 to 8:30 on weeknights, that's 15 hours. If he watches five hours of cartoons or sitcoms on weekends, that's 20 hours a week altogether. And that's entirely too much.

materials, and tell them not once but a million times about the immense value you place on a good education. Instill social skills like politeness, manners and sensitivity toward the feelings of others. Curtail TV and show them a new world by taking a ride to another environment on a Sunday. Listen to them and offer encouragement and praise so they'll develop confidence and self esteem.

Steel's latest novel a winning tale

By BEA SMITH
Millions of Danielle Steel readers will be delighted to know that the writer's latest book, "Wanderlust," is a winner.

This, Steel's 18th novel, was published this year by Doubleday in New York, and to a non-follower of Steel stories, the reviewer nevertheless feels that the book reaches over and beyond the stories in the soap.

Unlike some of Steel's tomes, at least those that this reader has read, which vie for the drama in the afternoon and evening soap operas on television, "Wanderlust" is filled with interesting, but somehow two-dimensional people. There is Audrey Driscoll, a sensible, sensitive, unfulfilled woman, who, orphaned as a child, is forced to take care of an eccentric, selfish, millionaire uncle, Edward Driscoll, who is 81 years old at the start of the story, and a beautiful, completely spoiled-sister, Annabelle, with whom she lives in a huge house in San Francisco.

It seems that Audrey's parents were killed while traveling, and the girls' father, with his wanderlust, could never stay in one place long enough to relax. Now Audrey's grandfather, who loves to complain about his soft boiled eggs in the morning and polices — the setting is the early 1930s — is starting to worry about Audrey's carelessness. He fears that she has inherited a wanderlust from her father and will leave him as his son once did.

And she does. But not before her grandfather, her sister and her sister's new husband put her through the ringer. Ultimately, the long-suffering "old maid" takes off for a life of grand adventure. Aboard the luxurious Queen Mary bound for England, Audrey mingles with the high society international set of artists and expatriates. She is introduced to Charles Parker-Scott, a writer of international affairs, and before long, finds herself traveling with him on the Orient Express to China. Conflicts arise when he proposes to her, she turns him down because she still feels obligated to return to her selfish family.

The novel, if somewhat reminiscent of some of the more intriguing, it appears Steel knows the countries about which she writes, and she's a fine storyteller. Her characters are appealing, if not wholly recognizable, for she does not delve too deeply into their souls. Still, they do make a reader care about what happens to them.

"Wanderlust" may not be one of Danielle Steel's greatest novels, but it has enough to keep plenty of women interested enough to wait for and wonder what the next one will be all about.

Two popular talents have come together in director Rob Reiner's latest film, "Stand By Me," which is an adaptation of horror master Stephen King's novella "The Body."

The story is a notable departure for the modern master of unspeakable horror, and as King admits in a recent interview, it has a decidedly autobiographical angle to it.

Four 12-year-old boys, growing up in the 1950s, embark on an odyssey to find the body of another 12-year-old who has been struck by a train and killed. But their morbid quest for the body is not really the heart of the story.

Instead, it is the lessons they learn about life and death, growing up, and each other, that is the focal point.

One of the characters, Gordon LaChance, is an aspiring storyteller and he narrates their adventure from his perspective as an adult, a small part by actor Richard Dreyfuss.

The ensemble of four young actors are all excellent, displaying none of the phony cuteness that is typical of child and teen actors. There is also some excellent pop music tunes from the 1950s, which should bring back memories for some members of the audience. "Stand By Me" is one of the best films so far in a year with a lot of cinematic turkeys.

This film is rated R, mostly for language.

Computer Expo slated

If you're a chess buff, how would you like to play against a computer? Or watch two computers play chess against each other?

You can do both — and more — at the Campus Expo '86 at Union County College in Cranford, Saturday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Whether experts or novices, visitors will have an opportunity to pit their skills against Sargon III or Pilon Chess on a micro computer.

Dave Lazarus, a programmer/analyst in UCC's Computer Center, who holds a master's rating in the U.S. Chess Federation, will coordinate the "chess challenge" of people with-and-against-computers.

Players will be able to see the game on a screen in front of them in three-dimensional graphic displays. A number of multiple micro computers will be set up so that six to eight people may participate at the same time. Lazarus will be on hand all day to help visitors enjoy their favorite game with the added excitement of high technology equipment.

Favors and refreshments will be available throughout the day.

Bonds. It will be held Oct. 20 at 11 a.m. in Temple Beth Shalom, Livingston. Elaine Halper, chairman of the luncheon, has announced that the chairmen of the fashion show will be Marilyn Kuskin of South Orange and Shirley Lieberman of Springfield. Mrs. Lieberman is a past chairman of the Metropolitan New Jersey Women's Division and is active in community organizations.

The show will be composed of the designs of 13 Israeli manufacturers and designers. In addition, sportswear-related separates by American designer Liz Claiborne, which are manufactured in Israel, are included in the show, another "first" for Israel Bonds. Some of the designers are sabras—others are immigrants from more than 72 countries, who have settled in Israel since its independence. Rita Moreno is honorary national chairman of the fashion show. Participants will include Ready-to-Wear by Adam & Eve, Biba, Gershon Bram, Claireborne, Gintette, Gettex, couture by Tamar Jones, Gideon Oberson and Nilly Tvig. Sister Rose Thering will be the featured speaker of the day, and Lura Kaufman will be guest of honor. Admission to the event is by purchase of a minimum $1,000 Israel Bond. "Since 1951, the Israel Bond Organization has sold more than $8 billion in bonds. The fashion show and luncheon are part of the 135th anniversary celebration and a national effort to help Israel's economy through the sale of Israel bonds." Ballet starts series

The New Jersey Ballet will start the new dance season with plans to premiere two new works this month and in November, and another two in the spring. Carolyn Clark, executive artistic director of the company, has announced that she is discussing works with such choreographers as Robert North-Norbert Vosak, resident choreographer George Tomal and Agnes DeMille and plans to add two Balanchine ballets to the company repertoire.

Clark also has announced that Eleanor D'Antuono, international dance star and former American Ballet Theater principal dancer, will join New Jersey Ballet Co. staff and appear as guest artist in concerts during the season.

For its 1986-87 season, the ballet company will offer two subscription series, with six concerts at the John Harms Center, Englewood, and five concerts at the Wilkins Theater, Kean College of New Jersey, Union. The opening concert for the season will be Saturday at the John Harms Center and will premiere a new work, and the Kean College season will open Oct. 18.

A pre-holiday fund raiser, the company's third annual ball, will be held Nov. 22 at Beneficial Management headquarters in Pennsauken. The theme will be "Safari Night," and the event will be highlighted by a company performance and an auction of animal prints by wildlife artist Guy Coleachi.

The ballet company's annual presentation of the "Nutcracker" will begin with performances at John Harms Center on Dec. 11, 12 and 13, and will open at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, the following week, Dec. 13 through Dec. 23, and again Dec. 26 to 28, with two performances daily. It will have a cast of more than 70 members, and music by members of the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra.

Foreign films planned

"Amacord," the first in a series of foreign films, all part of Union County College's Cultural Arts Festival, will be presented at the college tomorrow.

The films will be shown during this month, February and April on Friday evenings at 8 o'clock in the Campus Theater on the Cranford campus.

The showing of "Amacord," the Italian Academy Award-winner, based on Federico Fellini's recollections of his youth in pre-war

Italy, will initiate the Cultural Arts Festival's third "Foreign Film Festival" season. The story centers around a man who longs for the freedom of adulthood. Fellini celebrates the kinship that exists in his town, yet is aware of its shortcomings that paved the way for fascism.

"Autum Sonata," the Swedish film, directed by Ingmar Bergman, casts Liv Ullmann and Ingrid Bergman as daughter and mother. The movie will be presented Oct. 17.

Of all the reasons to choose Schlott Realtors, it's the little ones that count the most.

Those little extras add up to a lot. That's why we're known as the Schlott Extra-Effort People. We know that settling into a new area can be confusing, so we take the extra time to consider how even the smallest member of your family will react to leaving one home and adjusting to another.

Schlott's warm, caring way of doing business is as important to our clients—and to us—as our complete real-estate services and convenient network of over 100 offices.

And because we make you and your family so important, we are the fastest growing, privately owned residential Realtor in America.*

Whether you're looking for a residential property, newly-constructed home, condominium, co-op or even a rental, Schlott Realtors can help.

We know that caring is no small thing.

And it's the goal of Schlott Realtors to keep on caring about your real estate needs...for generations to come.

For all your real estate needs, call your local Schlott office.

*Based on a 1985 study of the fastest growing, private companies in the nation conducted by INC. Magazine.

cookingstudio®

Our November/December 1986 Schedule Includes 55 New Classes.

Dear Cookingstudent,

'Tis the season for holiday gatherings large and small!

And with an eye for inspirations old and new, our Cookingstudio teachers offer an array of exciting menus, creative decorations and timeless traditions.

Our schedule includes everything from do-ahead gifts and do-it-yourself wreaths and centerpieces to boneless birds, Biblical vegetables, Christmas cookies, chocolate desserts and a Holiday House for kids.

In addition, you'll find a world of cooking styles including Southern, French, Belgian, Italian and Japanese and a host of ideas for hors d'oeuvres, winter vegetables, side dishes, seafoods and savory stews, not to mention festive parties and holiday buffets.

So take a few moments to read the impressive biographical sketches of our teachers, including Sharon Adamski, Bette Alexander, Eileen Burke, Alain DeCoster, Phyllis Glazer, Osvaldo Gutierrez, Peggy Hayes, Richard Lord, Steven Philips and Danièle Delpuech from France — all of whom are with us for the first time. And by all means make a point of selecting your classes before they fill up.

We're looking forward to seeing you!
