Rent rate cuts sought Ordinance to be introduced

By MARK YABLONSKY
 For the first time in several years, Springfield tenants appear to have a reduction in rental rates in store for them.

Feeling the current rent leveling ordinance that permits landlords to increase rents as much as 7 1/2 percent each year is "much too high now," the Township Committee will have a tentative ordinance in regard to a reduction ready for discussion at its regular meeting next week.

Although he did not wish to disclose the exact figure, Township Attorney Howard Schwartz said the new rent leveling ordinance he has drafted contains an annual rate increase that is "considerably less" than the present 7 1/2 percent.

In a decision that led to political fallout at the time, the Township Committee in June of 1980 passed into being an amendment to the rent control ordinance that allowed landlords an annual rent increase of 6 1/2 percent, as opposed to the 2 1/2 percent maximum that had existed until then. The amendment was designed to curtail the process of condominium conversion, in which those who cannot buy their previously-rented apartments are forced to move elsewhere. At the time, Springfield reportedly had one of the highest condominium conversion rates statewide.

The rent leveling rates were increased to 7 1/2 percent in 1983.

According to estimates, there are roughly 1,800 apartments in Springfield today, about a third of which are now condominiums. One complex, the Troy Village Apartments, has already been fully converted to condominium use. A six-year legal battle between the owners and some of the tenants, however, is still in focus over that issue.

Under a state law — known as the Senior Citizens and Disabled Protective Tenants Act — anyone over 62 years of age who has lived in a building for two years and makes less than three times the county average cost of income, can remain there for a period of 40 years. The law also prohibits any costs as a result of conversion from being passed on to tenants via rent.

The Troy Village owners, who are officially known as East Coast Condo Tech, Inc., have been contesting that law and have sought to pass the assessment costs of their converted property on to these tenants. The case, after a brief interval, was expected to have resumed this week.

Other tenants in town, meanwhile, have already publicly complained to the township committee that the present 7 1/2 percent annual rental increase is "really exorbitant and completely unfair," and that the current rates have impacted hard on those with fixed incomes.

At heart in the matter is the economic theory, suggesting that while stringent rent control carries favorable short term benefits to renters, landlords will make fewer repairs and render fewer services, thus leading to property deterioration over a period of time, eventually affecting the surrounding neighborhood as well.

National figures have also shown that rent control encourages landlords to convert their buildings into condominiums or cooperatives.

"We do have to worry about that," said Mayor Edward Fanning. "We have to worry that if we change it too much, it will be unfair the other way. And we don't want to force that!"

Fanning explained that when the township rent leveling ordinance was amended to allow for higher rental rates, interest rates were much higher than they are now. But now, he said, current rent leveling rates are much more favorable to landlords and building owners as a result of lower inflation, a point that many agree with.

"Inflation is not what it was when the 7 1/2 percent rates were adopted," stated William Gold, an attorney representing the Troy Village Tenants Association. "To force the tenants to pay a 7 1/2 percent increase is unfair. The costs to landlords are stable, and the tenants should not be forced to pay far above what the inflation rate is."

Can an "equitable balance" be achieved?

"As nearly as we can do it," Fanning said. "I mean nobody's Solomon, but we can try."

Girl Scout leaders prepare for 75th birthday

By MARK YABLONSKY
 When Juliette Gordon Low began the Girl Scouts of America in Savannah, Ga., 75 years ago next week, the country, like the world itself, was vastly different than it is now. And through the years, the famed organization has changed with the times. But there is one thing that has remained unchanged: the group's commitment toward helping others.

It is that commitment and spirit that Cindy Matta of Springfield and Tom Price of Kenilworth feel is the most vital aspect of the organization. As Community Association Chairpersons for their respective towns, both women are members of the Washington Rock Girl Scout Council, which encompasses 22 communities in three counties, including Union and Essex.

Both devote countless hours of time in attending to the troops within their respective communities, and not all of that time is without at least some tension, due to the large amount of responsibility that is heaped on them. Still, Scouting is partly what makes them tick, so to speak.

"It's a chance to keep growing," explained Matta, who first joined the Springfield Girl Scouts as a Brownie during her youth. "You learn with the children, no matter how old you are. You always learn. You never become stagnant. It's like their curiosity is part of you. It's an opportunity for kids to do things they wouldn't ordinarily do with their parents."

"Actually, it opened up a whole new world for me," said Price, who did not have the benefit of a local Girl Scout organization while growing up in central Brooklyn, N.Y. "I said, 'I want to get in there and get involved, because I love children.' It's really been a wonderful nine years."

As early as kindergarten, girls are able to become members of troops that span four different age categories, beginning with Brownies, from ages 7 to 9, and ending with Seniors, who are between the ages of 16 and 18. Once they are out of high school, these Scouts are eligible to become leaders, which a certain number do, Matta and Price say, even after they have returned from college.

But even if these girls relocate later on in life, they will be accepted as leaders anywhere in the nation — or in the world, for that matter. Interestingly, Low, who by the age of 52 was widowed and somewhat ill, first learned of the Girl Scouts during a visit to England and her friend Lord Batten Powell, under whom the concept of the Boys Scouts began. Inevitably, Low began the Girl Scouts of America.

In foreign countries, however, members go under the name of Girl Guides, as opposed to Girl Scouts. Some countries which have Girl Guide organizations include China, Germany, Switzerland, and, of course, England.

Surprisingly, many leaders today are men who have daughters involved in Scouting. They, too, are known as registered Girl Scouts.

In commemoration of that day in Savannah on March 12, 1912, Girl Scout Councils and troops alike nationwide will join together in a circle at exactly 4 p.m. next Thursday and say a Scout promise. Due to the obvious difference in time zones, though, these ceremonies will occur at different times, unlike last year's "Hands Across America" event, in which people lined up in a human chain from coast to coast at exactly the same time.

"It's a quick ceremony, but it's still a ceremony," said Matta, who, like Price in Kenilworth, is planning year-long events for her town in commemoration of the organization's 75th anniversary. "It doesn't take that long to do, but it has a significance."

While Springfield will not be conducting a promise circle on March 12, each of the various councils nationwide will be sending representatives to Washington for a bigger version of the event.

Both leaders are adamant when it comes to how Scouting has changed, and what it now involves itself in. Some 30 years ago and more, both women maintain, Girl Scouts were involved with various small service projects, such as babysitting and helping the wives of servicemen who were away at war. In some instances, Girl Scouts actually stepped in for these women who had to go to work, and took over chores such as baking and cleaning.

But, they say, times have changed. Girl Scouts are now as interested in ecology and in aiding senior citizens as they are in selling cookies.

"We're hoping with the 75th anniversary to educate the public that we're more than cookies and crafts and camping," explained Matta. "We do a lot more than the average person sees."

One of those things included a toy drive by Springfield Scouts last year for orphans, as well as a soup drive, in which the admission to a Halloween Party was a can of soup. In turn, the item was taken to a soup kitchen in Elizabeth, which feeds the homeless. Kenilworth troops, each Christmas, donate items from their Mitten Tree — which is decorated with knitted items — and send them to the Battered Women and Children of the county in Elizabeth.

"A lot of people don't see this," Matta says. "They think all we do are cookies and crafts. We do a lot more than crafts."

Kenilworth Scouts conduct a soup drive as well, but in May and not October, as Springfield does.

In April, the Washington Rock Council will be conducting a blood drive through all 22 of its communities, in which the objective is to raise 750 pints of blood. The drive will last until April of next year. In addressing an obvious fear by many of acquiring AIDS, both insist the disease cannot be caught by donating blood, but only from receiving it.

The yearly cookie drive for both towns has been under way since last week and will continue until March 16. For safety purposes, Matta and Price explain, boxes are not resealable — and if any package has already been opened, it will be easily discernable.

Much of the cost for each box, the leaders say, is tax-deductible as well.

OUTSTANDING TEACHER—Linda Duke, Social Studies teacher at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield, is honored at a recent Union County Regional High School board meeting after being selected as the outstanding teacher of the school. From left are Natalie R. Waldi, board member representing Springfield, Duke, Anne Romano, principal, and Board Member David M. Hart, representing Mountainside, Duke, selected by a district panel in accordance with the Governor's Teacher Recognition Program, has taught at Jonathan Dayton for 13 years. A $1,000 grant will be awarded to the school in her name to be used as she determines.

Regional school tax adopted

By PAUL PEYTON
 The Regional Board of Education approved a resolution Tuesday adopting its 1987-88 budget. The budget total of $22,096,394 represents only current expenses and no capital outlay.

Board secretary Harold Burdge said that the proposed budget represents an increase of 5.82 percent. He said the taxpayers would see an increase in the tax levy of 4.97 percent.

"I think we've done a reasonably good job," said Burdge. "There is not too much room to maneuver."

He said the three areas which represent the largest amounts of money in the budget were staff salaries, maintenance and fixed charges. The total for instructional purposes adds up to $13,327,150. This includes teacher and administrative salaries. This represents an increase of 5.68 percent.

The total expense included for maintenance cost is $1,361,000. This represents an increase of $270,000 or a 24.75 percent hike.

Burdge said building expenses for the district's four regional high schools were the major reason for this increase. He said an old burner for Governor Livingston High School in Berkeley Heights will cost the district $125,000 and roofing repairs to Jonathan Dayton High School will cost about $100,000.

The board secretary said

$3,362,858 of the budget would be devoted toward fixed expenses. This amount is an increase of 17.78 percent over the 1986-87 budget. It includes $630,000 for the employee retirement fund; and $2,170,400 for the district's insurance policy.

"We're rather proud of this budget," said Burdge. "It's generally favorable compared to other districts' budgets."

Superintendent Dr. Donald Morachnik said the board "carefully considered the many needs of the students of the six communities as well as the burden any budget might place upon our taxpayers."

The superintendent said approval of the budget by voters April 7, "will ensure a continuation of quality education plus varied opportunities for individual student growth via many activities and programs."

Surplus milk distribution set

The township of Springfield has announced that the government surplus cheese and skim milk distribution program will be held on Tuesday, March 12, and on Friday, March 13 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the former Raymond Chisholm School.

In order to qualify, a single person must earn $9,916 per year or less, while a couple must earn $13,394 or less annually.

More information can be obtained by calling 376-5800.

Arson suspect charged

A 41-year-old Union man, who was arrested two days in a row last week, is being held in the Union County Jail in Elizabeth on charges of arson, criminal mischief, resisting arrest, assault on a police officer and criminal trespass. According to Springfield police, one of his off-duty patrolmen, Steven Stocky, was leaving the back door of his Springfield residence last Thursday afternoon when he spotted Thomas Karcher of Seymour Avenue, Union, standing in the backyard nearby. When asked what he was doing, police said, Karcher responded that he wanted to call the Secret Service. At this point, Karcher fled with Stocky in "close pursuit," police said. The suspect was finally subdued a short distance away after having thrown a chair at the officer, who suffered bruises, but was not seriously injured. Karcher was then taken to police headquarters, where he was charged with assault on a police officer, resisting arrest, and criminal mischief. He was later released. A day later, however, Karcher was spotted by Patrolman John Rowley and a member of the Union County police "wandering aimlessly" in the middle of Meisel Avenue, wearing only his pants, police report. A check showed he was wanted in Union for a possible arson and damaging a house. He was turned over to the Union police department, which then charged him with arson and criminal mischief. After being held by Union police over the weekend, Karcher was sent to the county jail in Elizabeth.

News briefs

The Home School Association of the St. James School in Springfield will be host for a dinner and fashion show titled "Elegant Eighties," on March 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the Town and Campus restaurant in Union. More information may be obtained by calling 687-9405.

The Mountaineer Active Retirees March 10 meeting will feature a talk by the organization's tax consultant. The consultant will talk about the "1986-87 I.R.S. Tax Guidelines for Seniors." The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. in Borough Hall.

The Kenilworth Garden Club will hold its regular monthly meeting in the meeting room of the public library March 11 at 1 p.m. Program coordinator Judi Higgins announced that a demonstration of transplanting into a hanging wire basket will be presented. She will describe how to line the basket with sphagnum moss and enclose clippings of rabbit foot fern which become an elegant planter year round.

The members of the team are Kenneth Peng and Andrea Stein of Springfield and Ted Roth and Eric Weinstein of Mountaineer. Mary Shanahan, Science Department supervisor, is advisor to the Science League competitive teams.

BOE backs 'drug free town'

A drug awareness plan that will incorporate all elements of the township toward "working hand in hand" in promoting a "drug free town," appears to have already won the endorsement of the Springfield Board of Education. The plan, which is an "outgrowth" of a recent Substance Abuse and Awareness Advisory Committee meeting, was presented to the board by school superintendent Gary Friedland Monday night. According to board president Kenneth Falgenbaum, the plan will be on the board's March 18 agenda, at which time it is expected to receive board endorsement. The 17-member committee, which includes Union County Prosecutor John Stamler, Florence M. Gaudioleer school principal Richard Brockel and township recreation director Kathleen Zetts, was formed by Friedland after earlier discussions by the board in regard to the problem of substance abuse nationwide, and what the community can do to help combat it. As a result of the Feb. 11 meeting, the committee identified a list of "major concerns," including avoidance of the "head in the sand attitude," and focused in on "strategies" to combat what has long been regarded as a major crisis nationwide. Among the "immediate" steps the committee agreed on are parental awareness programs throughout the spring and fall, and the training of school nurses and administrators in identification and legal procedures. A provision seeking "support and cooperation" from law enforcement officials was listed as well. The development of a stronger curriculum to emphasize the "philosophy" of "Just Saying No" to drugs is among a list of seven long-term programs and activities the committee adopted.

BALLOONS FOR SALE—David Brearley High School, Kenilworth, will kick-off Foreign Language Week with a balloon launch today at noon. Balloons purchased by teachers and students will be released. The event is sponsored by the National Spanish Honor Society. From left are students Stacie Court and Susan Buchner.

THE ENTRANTS—These Springfield students from both the Caldwell, above, and Sandmeier Schools are among approximately 5,000 children in the tri-state area to enter this year's ninth annual Students' Art Festival, which is sponsored by WNET-TV in New York. From these initial entrants, a panel of prominent art personalities will select between 120 and 150 finalists, whose work will be exhibited at key tri-state area sites between April and December. In addition, some 150 pieces will be selected for international exhibits.

In the schools

The Mountaineer Board of Education has announced that Edwin Sjonell, Deerfield School's guidance counselor, has been chosen as the recipient of the 1986-87 Governor Teacher Recognition award. Sjonell will be invited to attend the Governor's Convocation on Excellence in Teaching this spring. In addition, he will receive $1,000 from the state to be used for an educational purpose of his choice. The nomination panel consisted of board members Linda Esenplare, Dorothy Unchester, and Teachers David Fogle, Oliver Deane, who was last year's recipient, and Janice Vreeland. In addition, three members of the community including two parents, served as panel members. The board will hold a public hearing on the proposed 1987-88 budget at its March 10 meeting. The meeting will take place at 8 p.m. in the cafeteria of Deerfield School. The board approved a tentative budget of $3,074,280 at its Feb. 3 meeting. The last two budgets have been rejected by borough voters. The budget represents a 6 percent increase over last year's budget of $2,895,580.

Retiring library directed to be feted

Some guidelines

Last fall, we used this space to set policy concerning municipal elections. While school elections don't always generate as much attention as those involving municipal government, we believe it is important for us to set guidelines for school board candidates to follow.

All press releases and letters to the editor concerning the school board elections must be in our Union offices by 9 a.m. Monday to appear in that week's issue of the paper. On March 26, candidates may make their final statements, answering any charges they believe must be answered before Election Day, but making no new allegations; any charges made against a candidate either by an opponent or in a letter to the editor will be deleted for the March 26 issue, since there will not be an opportunity to answer the charges on April 2 issue.

All press releases will be included in a column labeled Campaign Corner. It will be noted that statements are those of the candidates, not the staff of this newspaper. To avoid giving one candidate a bigger headline than another, only the candidate's name will appear at the top of the statement. Only one press release per candidate per week will be published. Releases should be no longer than two typed pages, double spaced. We reserve the right to edit all copy.

We will not accept unsigned letters to the editor or releases and we will not print statements we deem to be libelous.

On April 2, we will carry profiles of candidates for the local school board. That issue will also carry our endorsements.

We'd like to repeat our sincere desire to give our readers the best coverage of local events as possible. Covering local elections is an important part of our service to the community. As a community newspaper we have a responsibility to give our readers a fair and objective presentation of candidates for public office.

Candidates or readers with questions concerning this policy are urged to call us at 686-7700.

Laws combat 'drug plague'

Assembly Speaker Chuck Hardwick hails the adoption of a bipartisan package of eight bills to strengthen law enforcement's fight against drugs by the New Jersey Assembly Feb. 19.

"With the passage of these bills, an important step has been taken toward the goal of eradicating our neighborhoods of the drug plague," the Speaker says. "This package delivers a knock-out punch to drug dealers by doing out much tougher punishment to the most dangerous offenders."

The law enforcement bills represent the first phase of the Assembly's three-pronged attack on drugs, according to Hardwick. Subsequent phases of the drug initiative will concentrate on education and treatment aspects of the issue.

The all-out offensive taken against the drug problem by the Assembly Thursday is principally due to the fine work of the Assembly Coordinating and Planning Panel on Drug Abuse," the speaker says. The special drug committee was formed by Hardwick last fall to develop a comprehensive approach to the drug problem by screening more than 90 narcotics bills pending in the Legislature.

One of the most important bills contained in the package passed Thursday would increase penalties for the distribution or manufacture of drugs and add a number of new categories of offenses aimed at punishing the most dangerous drug offenders.

The bill would make it a crime to conspire as a financier, supervisor, manager or organizer in a profit-making scheme to manufacture or distribute any of the most seriously addictive drugs. Individuals convicted on this offense would face mandatory life terms and be excluded from parole consideration for at least 25 years.

This bill was linked to a bond issue sponsored by Hardwick to provide additional prison space. Other components of the adopted drug package include bills to:

- Provide minimum ball guidelines for certain drug offenses.
- Require pre-sentence evaluation to determine if an individual convicted was using or dependent on drugs.
- Establish an Attorney General's task force to investigate and prosecute drug offenders.
- Prohibit certain methods of concealing the proceeds of a drug-related crime.
- Encourage law enforcement officials to establish policies to refrain from plea bargaining and to seek maximum sentences for convicted drug dealers.

The Assembly also approved separate measures providing $13.5 million for drug enforcement and education programs.

State readies for U.S. bicentennial

The second meeting of the United States Bicentennial Bicentennial Commission of New Jersey was held in January, says Secretary of State Jano Burgo, chairwoman of the commission.

At the meeting, reports were submitted by Barbara Friedman, chairman of the Public Programs Committee; Dean Elizabeth Defels of Seton Hall Law School, on behalf of the Education Committee; and Vice Chairman Joseph P. Miele, commissioner of the New Jersey Highway Authority, in behalf of the Media Committee.

It was recommended that the commission commemorate the 200th anniversary of the Constitution throughout all of 1987 by encouraging the production of plays, films and public exhibits to arouse public awareness. It was also suggested that the New Jersey Legislature hold a special Bicentennial session.

Details of education committee curriculum materials for schools throughout the state with primary focus on Grades 6 through 12. Essay and poster contests would be distributed by Governor Thomas H. Kean after the winners had been selected by representatives of the State Department of Education who would be coordinating these events.

A highlight of the meeting, according to one commission member, was the Merrill Lynch proposal to sponsor a Constitutional Ball in New Jersey, on Dec. 18, which is the 200th anniversary of New Jersey's ratification of the Constitution. Merrill Lynch, which will work in conjunction with the commission in planning this event, will finance the bulk of the Constitutional Ball.

Legal 'medical' rights explained

By LEE S. GOLDSMITH
Over the last 50 years the nature of the practice of medicine has changed. The kindly general practitioner so beautifully pictured by Norman Rockwell has been replaced by an efficient, high-powered specialist surrounded by patients and staff. The specialist has little time left in his schedule to spend listening to a patient's problems, answering questions and providing explanations for the physician makes the decision for the patient, forgetting that the patient has always had the absolute right to full knowledge and is the only individual with the right to make the final decision.

A patient deciding to undergo a medical procedure is giving his consent to that procedure. That consent can only be given if the patient is fully informed with the appropriate information. That information must be given to the physician.

The type of information given to a patient will obviously be different for each procedure and each patient. However, in all cases, the information should include certain basics.

Are there alternatives to the procedure? For example, a woman has a breast mass that may be malignant. If it is malignant, should the lump be removed and the breast untouched, should the breast be removed or should the breast, underlying muscles and lymph nodes be removed?

As another example, a woman is pregnant, and it is a high-risk pregnancy. Among the alternatives available would be choice of hospital delivery. Is the physician's hospital appropriate or should the patient consider going to a university center where special equipment is available?

In each and every instance there is an alternative. In some cases that alternative may well be to disregard the recommended treatment and take the consequences. That is an alternative that is also the patient's right even though friends and family may disagree.

A patient has the right to know the expected benefits of the proposed treatment and the benefits that could be expected of the available alternatives. No treatment should be recommended unless it will provide a benefit for the patient.

The expectant mother is considering whether to deliver her child at the local hospital or travel to the university hospital. Among the advantages that would be considered would be the likelihood that either she or the child would be in need of the specialized services at the university hospital, the skill and experience of the local staff, the ease of transport to the university hospital if a problem did arise.

The patient with breast cancer will naturally be reluctant to lose her breast. However, whether a simple or more complex procedure should be performed has to be based on information relating to the size of the tumor, its location, the nature of the particular cancer, whether or not it has possibly spread, etc.

The patient is entitled to know the risks associated with the proposed procedure and the differences between the risks associated with the possible alternatives.

For the pregnant mother, a potential risk of not delivering at the local hospital may well be that it would take two hours for transport to be accomplished to a university hospital.

For the patient with the breast cancer, failing to undergo a more radical procedure with her particular condition may well mean a decreased likelihood of survival due to the malignancy.

There are times when the physician is not required to obtain consent from the patient. It is important for both the patient and the physician to know that such times do exist.

If the situation is an emergency and failing to treat the patient would lead to an injury to the patient. For example, if a patient were brought into an emergency room, unconscious and bleeding, the physician would not stand and watch the patient bleed while awaiting the patient to wake up and consent to treatment. In an emergency, when a consent is not available, the physician may act.

If the patient is a minor, the parent can consent to treatment. No physician will worry about a 2-year-old consenting to have its appendix removed. Either parent can consent under such circumstances.

However, if a sibling brings a brother or sister to an emergency room and it is not an emergency, the physician should wait until receiving parental consent to treat.

A physician cannot obtain an informed consent from an incompetent. However, consent in non-emergency situations should be obtained from a guardian.

If the patient clearly indicates that he does not wish any information, then a patient can consent to treatment even though it is an uninformed consent. The same patient who has the right to decline treatment may also accept treatment without knowing the relevant facts.

A patient has the right to complete control over what is done to his body. The decision can only be made if the patient has the knowledge necessary to make the decision.

A physician violates his duty to his patient and subjects himself to liability if he withholds any facts which are necessary to form the basis of an intelligent consent.

Letters to the editor

376-0400 still in operation!

I would like to make a correction in a letter to the editor in the Feb. 26 edition of the Springfield Leader by Mr. Lou Monaco. His point is well taken.

In his appeal for needed help on the First Aid Squad, my correction is that the phone number 376-0400 is that of the Police Department's desk and has not been disconnected.

Obviously, Mr. Monaco utilized this statement to illustrate his point in the township's need for more volunteers. For those people who contacted me, I wish to emphasize that the phone number has not been disconnected to the department and we will maintain our foremost efforts to obtain medical assistance for our citizens and visitors.

Banks thanked for displaying art

The James Caldwell School PTA would like to thank the local banks for their kind support of our annual art show. Under the guidance of Marilyn Schneider, art teacher, the students depicted their favorite story. During the month of February, the banks displayed the colorful paintings of 56 students in Grades 2-4.

The works of the first-grade students will be on display during March.

CUA slot is filled

By STEVEN LIEBERMAN
The Board of Chosen Freeholders appointed Westfield resident, Garland Boothe to the Union County Utilities Authority on Feb. 25, despite the fact that Rahway residents have repeatedly asked the board to appoint someone from their city to the authority.

Rahway residents have been urging freeholders to appoint a third Rahway citizen to the authority ever since Freeholder James J. Fulcomer, a Rahway resident, announced he was not going to seek reappointment.

The freeholders sought to find the person most qualified for that position and decided on Boothe, a Westfield resident. His term will last until Dec. 31, 1989.

Fulcomer had proposed a resolution appointing Rahway resident Harry McDowell to the authority, but withdrew it after finding the board would not support him. "I think a person from Rahway is the right way to go," Fulcomer said before abstaining from the vote.

Residents from Rahway, voiced concerns that a Rahway resident on the board would help to insure that Rahway receive considerations when it comes to air pollution, emitted from the resource recovery facility, into the area and truck traffic.

If the Rahway resident would be concerned with pollution problems, then the whole county will benefit, because the small carries, the citizens argued.

Boothe said that he is concerned with the needs of Rahway and the entire county. This is a solid waste crisis. "I am a Union County resident who happens to live in Westfield," he said.

The fact that Boothe does not live in the community will not detract from his input into the authority.

"He is an expert in the field," Freeholder Brian Fabey said.

Boothe has previously visited eight resource recovery facilities around the country and has been involved with Westfield's Solid Waste Action Committee. He said that the particular mass-burn field erected waterwall steam generating system is basically "off the shelf established technology," Boothe said.

The board approved a settlement between the state to place a cap at the overpopulated jail to 480 inmates.

The settlement took seven months to negotiate among the county, state Department of Corrections, the state Attorney General's Office and the State Office of the Inmate Advocate.

The solution is considered short term until the new $45 million jail in Elizabeth. The new jail is expected to hold 500 prisoners and is opened in the spring of 1989.

According to the agreement, methods to reduce the number of inmates include lowering bail for suspects and holding prisoners in municipal lockups should the inmate population at the county jail go beyond the 480 limit.

Speakers talk on rape crisis

The Union County Department of Human Services, Division of Planning operates a Rape Crisis Center in Westfield providing medical, legal, and psychological services as well as agency referrals to victims of sexual assault on a countywide basis.

Statistics compiled by the Union County Prosecutor's office have shown that incidences of sexual assault have increased dramatically in the county in recent years.

As a result, a speakers bureau has been established under the auspices of the department's Division of Planning and the Rape Crisis Center.

Dorothy Lomenzo, director of the division, states that speakers are currently available to all schools and agencies within the county on the following subjects: personal safety for children; sexual abuse of children including incestual relationships; rape prevention; date rape/acquaintance rape; medical attention, legal services and psychological support services for rape victims; and staff training programs for volunteers.

Further information and requests for speakers may be directed to the Rape Crisis Center at 233-RAPE.

"Why do I want a health plan that will spend money on me when I'm well!?"

Because it's the best way to save money on your health care. The reason is simple: The Rutgers Community Health Plan (RCHP) is a different kind of health plan: a group practice HMO. As a Health Maintenance Organization, we're committed to keeping you healthy. Even if it means giving you extra care when you're well.

RCHP members may actually pay less and get better care. That's because RCHP covers more with none of the deductibles or copayments you pay with traditional insurance.

Perhaps for the first time, your health plan will cover annual physicals, routine OB/GYN exams, well-baby visits, allergy shots, and other preventive measures.

You'll also be invited to participate in dozens of our exclusive RCHP Wellness Works programs from Weight-Away to Smokingend. And our plan includes much more than Wellness programs.

Our plan cares for you, in sickness and in health. If you do get sick, or need emergency treatment, you'll be in the best of care.

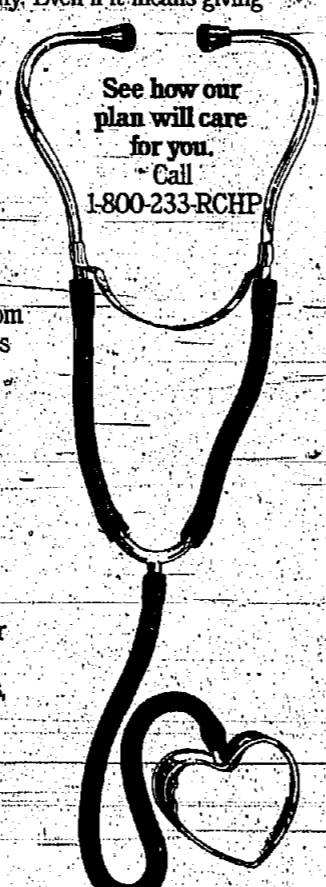

Every RCHP doctor is a member of the distinguished Central New Jersey Medical Group, P.A., one of New Jersey's largest and most highly-respected multi-specialty physician groups.

It's all part of our total plan to care for you. Over ten years ago, RCHP created a plan to care for your health and your budget — with comprehensive coverage, reasonable premiums, and no claim forms, deductibles or emergency room fees.

We also care for your personal convenience. Virtually all your care is provided under one roof at our modern, well-equipped health centers throughout Central and Northern New Jersey. See for yourself. Call 1-800-233-RCHP and discover just how much better our plan can care for you.

You'll find RCHP Health Centers located in: New Brunswick, Somerset, Edison, Princeton, Lawrenceville, Union, Mountainside.

in conjunction with National Children's Dental Health Month, the children of Union County were invited to participate in a county-wide dental poster contest sponsored by the Union County Dental Society.

The contest was open to all fourth grade students. The following grammar schools participated: School Number 8 in Linden; Caldwell and Saddlemead Schools in Springfield; Sherman School in Roselle Park; Coalinga Park, Hamilton, Livingston, Battle Hill, and Washington Schools in Union; and Deerfield School in Mountaineers.

The fourth graders in each of these schools, working with their art teachers and school nurses, created posters and slogans related to proper dental care and good diet.

From each school one first prize and one second prize winner was selected.

The selected children were invited to the monthly meeting of the Union County Dental Society at the Tower South House, where they received their awards and gift certificates in a special presentation. From all the school winners, one child in the county was selected as the grand prize winner. Each of the school winners and runner-ups received gift certificates, sponsored by the Union County Dental Society and Masco Sporting Goods.

The grand prize winner, Christine Beye of Hamilton School in Union, was awarded a $100 savings bond. Her poster has as its theme, "Clean teeth are healthy teeth, and that's the tooth!"

The first prize winners were: Amy Gauthaite, Dana Poindexter, Lisa Wolstein, Andrea Lynn Watkins, Anne Marie Douvan, Kristine deWolke, David Christerson, Barbara Della Sella, Danny Albanese, and Lindsey Braunstein.

The second prize winners were: Robert Nelson, Stacey Katz, Michelle Saunders, Tina Miller, Michael Genovese, Calogera LaRocca, Diana Davis, Cara Ellison, Larison Clarka, David Kraus, and Angela Correlli.

This was the third consecutive year that the Union County Dental Society has sponsored this poster contest. It is through this type of participation by the children that improved awareness of proper dental care results. The state-wide smile contest sponsored by the New Jersey Dental Association and the voluntary visits by local dentists into the schools giving educational presentations to the children have improved dental health as their goal," said Dr. Lee Kestner of Springfield and Dr. Douglas Chester of Union, co-chairman of Union County Children's Dental Health Month. Both agree that this year has been extremely successful in reaching the children.

Holiday services announced

The First Congregational Church (United Church of Christ), 1340 Burnet Ave., Union, will hold Lenten devotional services to be followed by a Lenten book study on Friday at 10:30 a.m. through April 10. It was announced by the Rev. Nancy E. Forsberg, pastor of the church, that musical presentations will be given by Clifford Welch, Mary Lecrone, Ernest Nauert, Paul Krauter and Eunice Kammerer. The worship period and lunch will be held from noon to 1 p.m. It was announced that for those who can stay after the meal, a Bible study will be led by Nancy Miller and "Rev. Nancy."

Religious events

James Cafone will discuss "The Crucified Lord" and on March 24, he will present a sequel on "Redemption Suffering." Cafone received a doctorate degree in religious administration and supervisor from Seton Hall University in 1967 and a doctorate degree from Catholic University in moral and spiritual theology. He had served as spiritual director of the college seminary at Seton Hall and in 1985 was appointed director of formation to the major seminary. He is the vicar general.

On March 31 at 7:30 p.m., the Rev. George Kelly, spiritual director of the seminary at Seton Hall, will give a talk on "A Conitric Heart." Kelly is president of the Eastern Association of Spiritual Directors, a board member of the National Association of Spiritual Directors. In addition to 20 years of parochial ministry, Kelly has served as retreat director for priests, seminarians and lay and direct. 30 day Ignition retreats.

On April 7 at 7:30 p.m., the Rev. Ronald Tomiak, newly-appointed pastor of St. Michael's Parish, will lead a communal penance service with the sacrament administered individually. Tomiak served as pastor at a young age in Edgewater and held the position of executive director for pastoral offices for the Archdiocese of Newark for two years. The whole parish community under the pastership of Tomiak "is looking forward to an inspirational and devotional experience of Lent especially due to this series being a doctorate degree from Tubingen, Germany, will lead off.

On March 17 at 7:30 p.m., the Rev. Stations of the Cross" Additional information can be obtained by calling the rectory at 688-1232.

TEMPLE BETH AMM, Springfield, will be host to a special speaker during Sabbath services tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. Mrs. Firster, the wife of a Baptist clergyman, "is deeply committed to interfaith and interdenominational work." Along with women from Catholic, Jewish and Protestant communities, she sponsored and participated in the Women's Interfaith Dialogue on the Middle East. The members met regularly "to discuss the many complicated issues in the Middle East as well as anti-Semitism and the Holocaust." Mrs. Firster served on the Women's Interfaith Committee on Soviet Jewry of greater Philadelphia and for five years prepared the program used to commemorate Human Rights Day. Other activities in behalf of the prisoners of conscience included participation in demonstrations and vigils, letter writing, personal visits to federal legislators and participation in seminars. She often addressed groups on the problems of Soviet Jews and immigration. Along with her husband, Dr. Richard Firster, Mrs. Firster was the recipient of the Community Service award of the National Council of Jewish Women in 1979. In addition, she has received citations, plaques and certificates on behalf of her efforts to further dialogue, understanding and cooperation with Christians and Jews. She resides in Paterson and is a member of and participant in the Metro-West Women's Interfaith Plea for Soviet Jewry. Mrs. Firster's topic will be "Soviet Jewry - A Christian Perspective."

THE HOME AID SCHOOL, Association of Our Lady of Lourdes, Mountainside, will sponsor its annual art auction Saturday beginning at 7 p.m. with a champagne preview of the works to be auctioned. The auction, featuring lithographs, etchings, watercolors, original oil sculptures, and mixed media by known artists, will begin at 8 p.m. All works of art are framed. A free lithograph suitable for framing will be given to each person or couple attending the auction. Hot and cold hors d'oeuvres will be available throughout the evening. ## Dawgs romp over Verona in 1st round

By MARK YABLONSKY

Three players scored in double figures as a solid shooting and rebounding game enabled the Jonathan Dayton Regional High School boys' basketball team to pull away to a convincing 73-53 victory over Verona in the opening round of the North Jersey Group 2 Section 2 playoffs Tuesday night in Springfield.

The eighth-seeded Bulldogs, who had absorbed a crushing defeat to Elizabeth two weeks ago in the quarterfinal round of the Union County Tournament, overcame a sluggish first quarter to eliminate the visiting Hillbillies, who were seeded ninth in state playoff action.

Dayton took to the road tonight at 7:30 against top-seeded Jefferson in the quarterfinal round. After falling behind by three points after one quarter of play, Dayton exploded for a 16-4 spurt in the first 8:52 of the following period to leave Verona behind for good.

Every followed Fusco's 10-foot shot with a jumper of his own to regain the lead for Dayton with 6:22 to play in the second quarter. After Verona forward John Baumgard hit a foul shot to force a 17-17 tie, Fusco and Everly scored again to give Dayton a four-point edge. Forward Greg Kahn, who grabbed a game-high 10 rebounds, then banked in the rebound of a missed shot, and Chadwick connected on a short jumper to give Dayton a 25-17 lead with 2:21 to play.

Williams, who contributed 15 points, later added a field goal, and Everly sank two free throws after a technical foul was assessed to Verona coach Doug Gaffney. Chadwick, who had 17 points on the night, had scored the first two baskets of the night earlier to give the Bulldogs a 4-0 lead.

In all, the Bulldogs connected on 25 of 63 attempts from the floor for a 55 percent mark, while Verona could hit only 42 percent of its field goal tries. In addition to holding an edge at the free throw line, Dayton pulled down a total of 28 rebounds, 20 of which came off the defensive boards.

"In the second quarter we made a good matchup with better defense," explained Bulldog skipper Ray Yanchus, whose club switched from a "basic zone" setup after the first eight minutes of play. "Tonight the defense really was the key because they were shooting the eyes out of the basket in the first quarter. Plus, I thought our own offense pretty good. We controlled the tempo and got the shots we wanted."

Baumgard led the Hillbillies with 14 points.

OUTLAPED!—Dayton's Dwayne Chadwick, left, and Mark Williams are beaten to a rebound by Elizabeth's Lester Ayala during last week's quarterfinal round action in the Union County Tournament in Elizabeth. The Bulldogs fell by a solid margin to the club that eventually won a record setting fourth consecutive tournament.

Offers shelter to county's homeless

By BEA SMITH
What happens to average individuals or families who have lost their jobs, who are unable to maintain their homes, high rental levels on apartments and who cannot even provide food and shelter for their loved ones? Where do they go for help, for sustenance, for the very reason for existence?

If they are from Union County, there is an Interfaith Council for the Homeless of Union County at 10 West End Ave., Summit. Within the council, there is a Congregation Hospitality Network, in which 11 host churches or congregations are involved including those from Cranford, Westfield, Summit, New Providence, and Union.

In Union, St. Luke and All Saints Episcopal Church on Chestnut Street is a host church, and the church and its pastor, the Rev. Paul A. Burrows, are assisted by other congregations including Holy Spirit Roman Catholic Church, its pastor, the Rev. William Crum, and its volunteer members including Jody Martielli and Cathy Hoffman. St. Luke's has been providing shelter and is scheduled to provide additional shelter next week, again in May and again in July.

Sub-congregations include Temple Sha'arey Shalom, Springfield, where John Schlager, social action chairman of the temple, has been supervising a monthly soup kitchen for the indigent over the past year. More than 50 temple members work on a regular basis to feed the hungry in Union County. The program is in conjunction with the Interfaith Council.

Hot meals are served on a regular basis at locations in Elizabeth, it was reported by the temple, which also reports that "it is estimated that there are over 2,000 homeless people, mostly families in the Union County area."

Temple Sha'arey Shalom assists in providing clothing, blankets and sheets for the 40-bed shelter maintained in conjunction with the Hospitality Network. Funds for the program are raised through private contributions and temple support. Rabbi Joshua Goldstein, Schlager or Matthew Zucker, youth committee chairman, can be contacted for further information through the temple office at 379-5387.

Anne K. Parker, coordinator of the Interfaith Council for the Homeless of Union County, is a young woman from Summit, whose husband works for AT&T in Morristown, and she works part-time as a technical editor and part-time from home for the Congregation Hospitality Network. She has two young children at home, Nathaniel, 4, and Abigail, 14 months. The baby, in competition with this interviewer, cooed and cried, laughed and gurgled, shouted, chatted and finally fell asleep.

"As coordinator," she says, "it is my job to make the program work. The Interfaith Council was founded two years ago by Karen A. Olson, now president. She had worked in New York with the homeless and became a focus of learning about the people. She had been working with the coalition in Plainfield and Elizabeth.

But the idea for the network became the realization of temples and churches. It was discovered that the congregations have large buildings which are not used during certain parts of the day and the evenings. They found many churches and congregations that care and want to do something to help the people. The hospitality network began last Oct. 2.

"Eleven congregations decided to be part of the and to be helped in seeking jobs."

Parker explains that guests work with social workers at the Elizabeth Coalition to House the Homeless. "Guests work with the staff to find housing for themselves. Social workers can help guests with a kind of subsidy or to find out what welfare guests might be entitled to. School-age children of our guests can be enrolled in an after-

...the people we provide shelter for are just regular people — not bums or down and outs — but people like you and me. Through no fault of their own, they are without homes, and they have children. They find themselves in a position to either stay in hotels or hostels, which are not really suitable for children, for long periods of time," says the Rev. Paul A. Burrows.

network. And what we do is take 14 guests at one time, homeless people who have signed papers to be in the network and take them into a host church or temple for one week. Our guests are put up in a church or temple up until Sunday. Then after breakfast, they board a van that seats 14 people and go to another congregation for another week.

"The congregations," says Parker, "offer overnight hospitality. It's an all voluntary effort at each congregation. People will arrive at 5:30 or 6 p.m., and the congregation prepares dinner for them. The congregations also have volunteer hosts in the evenings and companionship. They provide costs and linens, 14 beds for guests and two beds for voluntary hosts, who will stay overnight to provide a form of security. Other people have a responsibility to shut out the lights, lock the doors.

"Usually, at 7 in the mornings, the van picks people up at the congregation and brings them to the YMCA in Elizabeth for a day program. Arrangements have been made with the Elizabeth-YMCA for adult guests to be able to shower, relax in the lounge at the Y, school program at the Y. There are recreation, sports, tutoring...it's not just a baby-sitting service. We are trying to establish a day care center for the pre-schoolers."

"On weekends," she says, "we have volunteers. Guests can go back to Elizabeth, or if they choose not to, we have a day program with volunteers from the other congregations. We have weekend programs for laundering, homework, going to the movies or museums. We're allowed to use a room at the Scotch Plains-Fanwood YMCA on Grant Street as a shelter for people.

"Our guests must be single women, women with children and men only as part of a family group. No single men are allowed in our program. There are other programs for them. We also have other criteria. We have no people with alcohol or drug abuse problems, no people with psychiatric problems."

"We look for people who don't get emergency assistance," Parker explains. "People who have fallen through the cracks of life. We have a number of the working poor, who have jobs that don't pay enough for an apartment. Obviously, these are people who need help. We also have people on welfare who can't afford to keep an apartment, and we try to help them."

"We keep our guests up to 30 days, but we will be flexible," she says. "The coalition will try to work with people — to find temporary housing — put people up in hotels. It's better than being out in the cold."

How do some of the guests get into the program?

"The Elizabeth Coalition screens them and refers them to us," says Parker. "We work with other agencies as well, such as the Salvation Army in Elizabeth, and we've gotten referrals from services in Summit. We work with different groups in Eastern Union County, including Linden, Roselle, Roselle Park, Plainfield, Summit and Elizabeth."

"We tell the Elizabeth Coalition and Salvation Army what our criteria will be and to call me, and I tell them how many we have. My job," says Parker, "is partly to notify the Y. We get our referrals through the Y and Coalition."

"It seems so immense — why, in New Jersey alone, there are so many homeless people — that it's overwhelming to try to deal with it. I can deal with one family at a time, on a small scale. It is not a solution, but to work with homeless people on a referral level is challenging. I get discouraged, however, about the housing situation and the lack of low-income housing. The land is expensive, and the rents are high."

Father Burrows, in his personal involvement with the coalition, explains that the Union Township Clergy Association, which meets once a month, discussed the program not too long ago.

"Father Bill Crum of Holy Spirit Church has been involved with Interfaith," he says. "He works together with the coalition two days a week. He brought us some of the ideas. One scheme was to provide relief for the families. He introduced the hospitality network in congregations in Union County which would entail a church to provide a room in which up to 14 people could sleep for one week. The church could provide food in the evening and a light breakfast before they left in the morning to another congregation."

"We held a meeting here at St. Luke's with Karen Olson, the founder," explains the Episcopal priest. "She pointed out a room which would be ideal. Other churches had volunteers but no room. And this room could be a shelter but there were no volunteers."

"So, we provided the room and background support," he says, "and Holy Spirit provided the coordination and many of the volunteers. And then other churches provided people who could cook and provide the church shelter."

"We started in the first week in December. We had seven children and two adults for one week, and an enormous number of volunteers from about five congregations in town to help with the projects. It was a wonderful experience for all of us," says Burrows.

"We expect to have the network here next week, again in May and again in July. It's a wonderful thing to raise people's awareness of the project. And the people we provide shelter for are just regular people — not bums or down and outs — but people like you and me. Through no fault of their own, they are without homes, and they have children. They find themselves in a position to either stay in hotels or hostels, which are not really suitable for children, for long periods of time."

"This project," he says, "provides them with a great deal of support while looking for something more permanent. They have someplace to go when they go home in the evening. At least it's home, which is very important to them."

"Certainly, the project is growing. Right now, it's only happening in Union County," says the priest, "but it's going to double in size. By the fall, there will be 22 congregations. The congregations in our county are very interested. Other counties in the state are looking with a great deal of interest."

"In fact," says Burrows, "the Episcopal Diocese and the bishop have shown a great deal of interest."

"Certainly, I can foresee the project becoming a state-wide program."

"Nationwide? Who knows?"

Garden varieties seen at flower show

Garden enthusiasts who can't wait for the upcoming season are invited to get an early taste of spring at the 1987 New Jersey Flower and Garden Show.

"It's a Garden Party" is the theme for this year's show, now underway through March 8 at the National Guard Armory in Morristown.

In keeping with that theme, the show features more than 15 full-sized gardens — many of them geared toward outdoor entertaining and socializing by the inclusion of decks, patios, gazebos and hot tubs.

In addition to the gardens, there are many educational exhibits, and lectures to benefit the home gardener.

A sophisticated cocktail party in an atrium-style courtyard by the New Jersey Association of Nurserymen is a walk-through exhibit featuring a bluestone patio with a fountain in the center, surrounded by a stucco wall with wrought iron gates.

A different type of entertaining — in a Japanese garden — is the focal point of the hillside garden's Japanese tea house next to a rock garden with bonsai trees. A brook crossed by a bamboo bridge flows into a small pond with water lilies and lotus blossoms.

Garden parties don't always have to involve a large number of guests. A garden incorporating a hot tub shows that socializing can be done on a smaller, more intimate scale.

A glass-enclosed sun room looking out onto a brick patio and early spring garden was planned by students in the architecture technology program at the County College of Morris. Bursts of color are provided by a witch hazel bush, early blooming azaleas and rhododendrons, and spring bulbs.

Another group of students, those at Morris County Vocational-Technical School, gave their garden party a British touch: The facade of a Tudor-style house serves as the backdrop to a wooden deck leading to a patio. A sunken English garden surrounded by a moss-covered rock wall, brims over with bright spring flowers.

"A garden party with a different look, how about a patio surrounded by cacti and succulents?"

Another exhibit features more than 50 varieties of succulents, ranging in size from 6 inches to 6 feet. Unusual terra cotta containers and a set of wrought iron outdoor furniture accent the cactus garden.

Going to the opposite climate, another garden features exotic plants in a tropical rain forest.

Flowering orchids hang off a 14 to 16 foot cliff, overlooking a small reflecting pool. Adding to the graceful setting are birds of paradise, heart-shaped anthuriums, bougainvillea and ficus trees.

A rock garden featuring low-maintenance dwarf plants was created. Two park benches offer views of a pond and waterfall surrounded by a dwarf hickory, cypress and dwarf pines, spruces, azaleas and rhododendrons.

A redwood gazebo is the focal point of a rustic-look exhibit, with stone walls which surround a garden containing white azaleas, blue spruces and pin oaks.

Another naturalistic garden shows how to update an overgrown garden using new plant materials. A waterfall cascading into a pool is bordered by ferns, pastel-colored bulbs and annuals, and a tall Japanese white pine.

A spring garden with a raised wooden deck has trellis work around part of the deck leading to a wooden

4-H to hold dance

The Union County 4-H Youth Development Program will hold a dance for the handicapped sponsored by the 4-H Teen Council.

The dance will be held tomorrow, 7 to 9:30 p.m. at the Union County Administration and Service Building, 300 North Ave., East, Westfield.

Parents and chaperones are encouraged to attend with their children or individual groups. There will be a small cover charge of $2 per person, excluding parents and chaperones.

More information can be obtained by contacting Molly Wells, 4-H program assistant, at 233-8366, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

To celebrate winter carnival

To celebrate the snow which has made this winter such a great ski season, Vernon Valley/Great Gorge will hold its 24th annual Winter Carnival on March 7.

Filling up the day will be such activities as ski races, tug-of-war, a "Mr. and Mrs. Joe Skier" contest, a Hawaiian Luau and Pig-Roast, ice-berging, and special children's races.

In the evening, the carnival will include a torchlight ski run down the slopes and a 15-minute fireworks display from the top of the mountain.

Immediately following the fireworks the annual All Night Ski Party begins. This night of skiing entertainment includes live bands, food and plenty of dancing. The All Night Ski Party officially runs from 6:30 p.m. until 2 a.m. Ski lift passes are $12 for the night and are available in advance or at the ski area the night of the Winter Carnival.

More information on the Vernon Valley/Great Gorge Winter Carnival and the All Night Ski Party can be obtained by contacting 627-2900, Ext. 231.

Visual arts co-op classes offered

With the current 1987 winter term, New Jersey Center for Visual Arts now offers a cooperative program for classes for college credit through Rutgers University. The program now includes accredited classes in drawing and design with the hope of providing additional accredited classes in subsequent semesters.

The Art Center's school has grown steadily through the years and now offers approximately 60 classes per semester, seven days a week, 36 weeks annually, to over 2,000 enrollees. The accredited classes program is consistent with the center's goal of providing a visual arts education resource.

With the newly accredited courses, the Art Center also announces a name change. In December the Art Center membership voted to change the center's name, effective Feb. 15, to the New Jersey Center for Visual Arts.

The name was chosen because it more accurately describes the geographical area of the cultural community served by its many educational programs. The new name is also consistent with the direction established by the center's recently initiated outreach program.

Geographically, members reside in 13 of New Jersey's 21 counties and 20 of the state's 531 towns and townships. While over 55 percent of the center's members are from New Jersey, only 20 percent of the membership is from Summit.

Faculty members reside in New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania. Artists exhibiting at the Art Center during 1986 came from throughout the United States, with the largest concentration coming from the tri-state area. The annual Juried Show attracted competing artists from eight foreign countries. Visitors to the center's exhibitions come primarily from throughout New Jersey and the eastern United States.

The 1987 winter semester also marks the beginning of a new, career-oriented graphic design program. The program began with the recent purchase of a graphic arts camera, made possible by a generous contribution from the Merck Company Inc., the addition of a professional graphic designer to the teaching staff, and a Design Workshop, filled to capacity in December. The new component will continue this term with a 12-session class, "Graphic Design," which will include instruction in all design processes, from design-concept to production.

The Long Range Planning Committee has targeted the Art Center's outreach program as a major area for "development." In addition to bringing school and adult groups to the Art Center, plans are underway to design programs for other agencies and communities throughout the State.

New Jersey Center for Visual Arts is open to the public seven days a week free of charge. For information about classes, exhibitions or any other Art Center programs, call 273-9121. The center is located at 68 Elm St., Summit.

Garden spots

Saving holiday plants

It happens every year. The holidays end, and suddenly a multitude of poinsettias are put up for adoption — unwanted by owners no longer in the holiday spirit. These orphaned plants are left to their own demise. This shouldn't be the case. With a little regard the perennial poinsettia will reward us with many more years of growth and color.

Thanks to improved varieties, today's Christmas Star will keep its color long after the holidays. Gradually, however, its leaves will start to drop off. Don't panic. The plant isn't dying. It's just preparing for a necessary period of dormancy. As soon as this leaf shedding begins, the plant should be moved to a cool, low-light spot such as a north window. Water only once every two weeks.

Eventually all the poinsettia leaves will fall off. The stems, now sitting there naked to the bark, can each be cut back to about 6 inches from the rim of the pot. This encourages an attractive, bushy plant to regrow.

While a poinsettia is dormant it needs to be kept cool, between 45 and 60 degrees. This encourages the poinsettia to rest and build up energy for spring growth. Not that chilly in your window? Even if you have to move the plant into a dark spot, find a cool place for it. Also, be sure to water the plant lightly only once a month to prevent the roots from drying out totally.

As soon as new growth appears on your Mexican Flame Leaf, six to eight weeks after going dormant, move it to as sunny a spot as you can find. Once moved, report your poison into a container one size larger than its present home. This will give it a chance to catch its roots and wiggle its toes. Regular watering and fertilizing should also begin again. Whenever the soil surface feels very dry to the touch, water thoroughly.

Left in a sunny window, a poinsettia will grow through the summer into a large attractive houseplant. However, if you wish it to grow to an even larger size, it can be moved outdoors at the end of May. Poinsettias thrive in the open air, especially in a semi-sunny spot. They add a touch of the tropics to the yard. To prevent the plant from drying excessively while outdoors, the whole pot can be sunk into the ground to the rim. Be sure to give the pot a quarter turn every now and then to prevent its roots from growing into the soil.

If your poinsettia spends the summer outdoors, it should be brought in before the end of September to avoid any frost. Check it over carefully for insects before shifting it back inside to a sunny window.

Getting your poinsettia to sport its red flowers again is a matter of meticulous routine. Each day from Oct. 1 to Thanksgiving Day the plant has to be kept in complete darkness — closed or unlighted room — from 6 p.m. to 7 a.m. About 7 a.m. the plant should be moved back to its sunny window. At night if the plant receives more than a few minutes of light, the poinsettia will not flower.

This may seem like much special care, but you'll be well rewarded, watching the plant put forth its red blooms again.

In honor of Women's History Month, the New Jersey Historical Society has organized a photographic exhibition for the main lobby of AT&T's Newark office at Two Gateway Center.

"Women at Work: A New Jersey Resource" is a selection of photographs, drawn mainly from the Historical Society's extensive collection, that document the changing face of women's professional lives in the past, from 19th century mills and stores through the W.P.A. of the 1930s Depression to World War II production lines.

The exhibition, which is sponsored by AT&T, will be on view at Two Gateway Center from March 5 to May 22. It will then move to the New Jersey Historical Society's headquarters at 220 Broadway, Newark, from June 9 through the month of August. After that time "Women at Work: A New Jersey Resource" will be available for exhibition at other locations in the state.

Visitors can reach the AT&T lobby from the Two Gateway Center entrance on Market Street near McCarter Highway or from the Gateway Complex Concourse, from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. More information can be obtained by calling 468-7749.

Cheerleaders to compete

The Eastern States Cheerleading Championships will be held by United Cheerleading Camp on March 21 at William Paterson College in Wayne.

All age-level teams are invited to participate with entries in cheer, pom-pom, dance/drift, single and double.

This is the largest competition of its kind in the United States and welcomes teams from Florida to Maine. Competition is professionally judged and admission for spectators is $4 for the day.

Registration information can be obtained by contacting Judi Murphy, director, 573-8948 or write UCC at 115 Spring Valley Road, Park Ridge, 07656.

'Dance party' remix album

By MILT HAMMER
Pick of the LPs "Dance Party" by The Untouchables (Sire/MCA Records).
The new, specially-priced LP is sure to satisfy the Untouchables' dedicated fans with two shining live performances, and three extended re-mixes of proven favorites. In addition, the LP features a new mix of the funk-thumping "Freak in the Street." Re-mixed by Don and Eric Was of Was (Not Was), "Freak" will be bouncing across dance floors and the airwaves in time to cure the back-to-school blues.

Since the release of the "Wild Child" LP, The Untouchables have added Anthony "Fat Top" Brewster on keyboards and vocals. The rest of the line-up remains intact: Chuck Askernese and Jerry Miller sharing lead vocal duties, Clyde Grimes, guitar; Caine Carruthers, bass; and Glenn Symmonds on drums.

Clyde, Chuck and Jerry first formed The Untouchables in South Central Los Angeles in 1981. They quickly moved from the Reggae/Ska hot spot, the O.N. Klub, to a weekly house band position at the Roxy on the Sunset Strip. They packed the house for six independent singles and an LP, which contained the propulsive "Free Yourself."

London-based Sire records signed the band to a worldwide deal. "Free Yourself" was released in the U.K. and soared into the Top 30. "I Spy for the FBI" was their next U.K. single, and appears here with "Free Yourself" in extended re-mixes.

The Untouchables are at their absolute best in concert and have been likened to the Star/Valk Review on vacation in Jamaica. The live tracks on "Dance Party" capture all the blistering energy and full throttle fun the band generates in their live performances. Recorded at a sold-out show in Daytona Beach during Spring Break, "Hey, Uts" makes its vinyl debut here on "Dance Party."

SCENE FROM 'THE CRUCIBLE'—Kean College of New Jersey students rehearse a scene from Arthur Miller's play in Zella Fry Theater, Vaughn-Earnes Hall, Union. They are, clockwise, Marc Molara; Donna Lipton of Union, Jeff Caplan of Linden, Leonard Grabelsky and Sally Green, and center, Wendy Battalo of Union. The play will run Wednesday, March 12, 13, 14, 18, 19, 20, 21, 25, 26, 27, 28 at 8 p.m., and March 15, 22 and 19 at 3 p.m.

Concert to be held Sunday

Clarinetist Gergervase De Peyer will be the featured guest soloist at the "Mostly Music" chamber music concert to be presented Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at Union County College's Cranford Campus Center Theater. The concert will be the fourth in a series of five Mostly Music concerts presented throughout the 1986-87 academic year by the College's Cultural Arts Festival. The fifth and final concert of the year is scheduled for May 3. The Mostly Music series "started in 1979 as an intimate chamber music series for 35 friends. And, although the program has grown to include a wider audience, the concerts have kept their special, informal and intimate quality." Pre-concert talks introduce guest artists and compositions to the audience, and post-concert receptions "give the audiences and artists a chance to meet, and exchange ideas." Reservations or information can be obtained by calling 276-2800, Ext. 286.

Dapper Dans to held rehearsals

The Dapper Dans of Harmony Chorus will hold rehearsals at headquarters in the Memorial Park Recreation Building near Livingston High School, Livingston, Mondays at 8 p.m. Interested singers are invited to attend. The chorus, led by Don Reckenbell, offers songs from turn-of-the-century Americana to contemporary sounds. Additional information can be obtained by calling 897-3770.

Search on for Mr. America

The search is on for the second annual Mr. New Jersey—Male America Pageant.

This pageant is an event where today's male can be discovered by a panel of judges which includes modeling agents and local casting directors. Not a body-building contest, the men are judged on personal interview, swim wear and formal wear of their choice.

The winner of the New Jersey state pageant goes on to compete for the national title of Mr. Male America. This pageant is devoted to showcasing the talents and physical attributes of the contemporary male.

Deadline date for entry is March 30. Men interested in entering the State Pageant must be 18 years of age or older, married, single, divorced or a widower, a resident of New Jersey for at least six months, a high school graduate and a U.S. Citizen.

Applicants should mail a current photo and typed biography to: Mr. New Jersey Male America Pageant, State Headquarters, P.O. Box 7608, East Rutherford, 07073.

Rebecca's forecast

For week of Mar. 6

ARIES (3/21-4/20) You and your mate are embroiled in a disagreement over money. Instead of insisting upon getting your own way, think of compromising. Perhaps you could find a way to spend money which will still enable you to save. Harmony is at hand come the weekend.

Taurus (4/21-5/21) You're digging your heels in once again in typical fashion. Perhaps you should think about the distinction between being stubborn and being determined. You will be able to make a fresh start if you're willing to put some of that ego aside.

GEMINI (5/22-6/21) Co-workers are in a disagreeable mood this week, so ignore it. You'll accomplish more if you simply strike out on your own and complete projects by yourself. You may want to do this by working at home rather than going to the office, if at all possible.

CANCER (6/22-7/23) You will find yourself having a set-to with a close friend who just doesn't see through the Reeves-Reed Arboretum's Horticultural Therapy Outreach Program conducted for SAGE Spend-a-Day.

LEO (7/24-8/23) Although you are super-motivated when it comes to your career, your biggest strength seems to be your ability to really tune into what others are really saying. Spend some time this weekend socializing, but don't neglect the chores which have to be done at home.

VIRGO (8/24-9/23) It's time to sit down with your mate and make some vacation plans. You just might find you have a little extra money which will enable both of you to take that dream vacation. Friends who drop in may touch on sensitive subjects, but don't get on your soapbox.

LIBRA (9/24-10/23) For some reason, people have been very resistant to your ideas. Rely on your natural diplomatic and mediating skills to communicate and everything will turn out fine. An unexpected windfall will have you and your mate at odds wondering what to do with it.

SCORPIO (10/24-11/22) There will be some petty annoyances to overcome this week at work, but you'll rise above it and continue to excel. A loved one is not clear as to what you've been saying because you've been ambiguous. Clear this up now, and speak your mind honestly.

SAGITTARIUS (11/23-12/21) This week will find you closer than ever to achieving your career goals. This, in turn, will motivate you to give that extra effort which is needed. Be sure, however, not to neglect kith and kin in the process due to working too-long hours.

CAPRICORN (12/22-1/20) You will be quite aggressive in matters of the heart. However, this will be tempered by your sensitivity which will enable you to get what you want. Ease up this weekend and spend time enjoying your leisure by delving into a creative effort.

AQUARIUS (1/21-2/19) Things at home are topsy-turvy this week. It will be up to you to straighten the situation out, since loved ones are relying on you. Shopping expeditions are lucky for you. You might even find that special antique you've been wanting at a good price.

PISCES (2/20-3/20) You're very direct this week, but have the good sense to allow others the time to make up their own minds. While you might be tempted to be demanding, stop short of this. It might have an alienating effect.

Arboretum needs helpers

Volunteers are needed now to help bring gardening activities to senior citizens through the Reeves-Reed Arboretum's Horticultural Therapy Outreach Program conducted for SAGE Spend-a-Day.

Many who thought they could no longer participate in gardening have had this pleasure restored to them through horticultural therapy, which provides easier methods and modified tools for working with plants and plant materials.

The volunteer commitment is a one-hour planning session and a one-hour presentation each month, with volunteers working in a group. The first SAGE session began Feb. 11 and continues through July, resuming in September and into the late fall. Programs are presented at SAGE Spend-a-Day in New Providence during winter months and at the arboretum during the months when participants can walk to the gardens.

Arboretum volunteers Michiko Lavert of Summit and Betty Beardsley of Berkeley Heights found the program. Those interested in assisting may call Slaver, 522-0638, or Beardsley, 464-4792.

Entertainment for seniors

The Union County Arts Center, located in the Railway Theater, has announced plans "to provide affordable entertainment for senior citizens." Executive Director Donald Strelberg has observed that "the landmark Irving Street facility, having recently celebrated its own 50th birthday, recognizes that the lack of programming for seniors, together with escalating ticket prices, excludes a large segment of the community.

Therefore, starting Saturday at 8 p.m., the Arts Center will present the first in its senior programming series with Terry Waldo and the Gotham City Jazz Band."

"The dancers, the singers, the band recreate the wonderful era of America that gave us the charleston, ragtime, jazz, and an unswerving faith in America's dreams," Strelberg says. There will be special senior citizen ticket prices.

"Seniors need no longer be neglected in their entertainment needs," says Strelberg. The Arts Center box office at 1601 Irving Street can answer any questions on ticket information or future programming by calling 499-8226.

The Union County Arts Center, located in the Railway Theater, has announced plans "to provide affordable entertainment for senior citizens."

Up to one third of the apartments will be rented to handicapped adults and the remaining units for the general public. For more information, contact Martha DeNoble at 354-3040.

County office has best year.

Union County Register of Deeds and Mortgages, Joanne Rajoppi announced an end-of-the-year report on Jan. 30 which has resulted in a historic revenue record for the County of Union and State of New Jersey in 1986 for her office.

Rajoppi reports that 1986 revenues generated by her office totaled $6,481,568.49, an increase of more than 40 percent from the previous year. Revenue generated for the county in 1986 resulted in $2,916,922.24, while revenues transferred to the state treasury totaled $3,514,683.25.

By law, a portion of all realty transfer fees is returned to the state for general revenue use, while the remaining portion is transferred to the county treasurer. All recording fee revenues are retained by the county.

The Office of Register records, preserves and files all land transactions within the county including mortgages, deeds, liens, cancellations, and others.

For 1985, most of this increase is due to the tremendous increase in volume the office experienced in 1985 and is continuing to experience in 1986. In terms of volume, there has been a 16 percent increase in deeds and a 44 percent increase in mortgage recordings, she says.

Rajoppi adds the volume increase is due to the lowered mortgage interest rates which spurred a tremendous demand in home refinancing and purchases by young families who deferred buying homes at higher rates. She says that she expects 1987 will exceed the 1986 revenue record due to the decreasing mortgage interest rates and the increased attractiveness of home equity loans.

"It is obvious that our revenues are correlated to the health of the general economy," Rajoppi says.

Rajoppi also reports that she is continuing to upgrade and automate the register's office in order to streamline procedures. In 1986, a computerized accounts receivable program was inaugurated. She expects to introduce a computerized in-house indexing program in the first quarter of 1987 which will greatly contribute to the efficiency of the recording process.

"The new computerized program will pay for itself within one year," she says.

Among other innovations introduced in 1986, Rajoppi established a Law Student Internship Program between her office and Rutgers and Seton Hall Universities Law Schools to allow first and second-year law students to work on a two to four-month internship basis in her office.

"This internship program," Rajoppi says, "is a short-term response to assist the office in its critical need for qualified help. In addition, it provides law students with practical real estate experience."

"In the past three years this office has emerged and moved from the 19th century into the 20th through upgrading and modernization of procedures and equipment," Rajoppi says. "We are looking forward to 1987 as a year of additional streamlining of procedures and greater efficiency of services to the residents of Union County."
