Maguire ready in new post

By MARK YABLONSKY
 As Township Clerk, Helen Maguire has always been involved in township business, though largely in a recording role. Now, as Springfield's first-ever Township Administrator, she will have a much stronger hand in township government.

In more exact words, according to the ordinance behind the newly-created position, Maguire "shall under the supervision and control of the Township Committee, serve as the principal administrative officer representing the Township Committee." In a nutshell, Maguire is going to be around to handle business when the part-time governing body isn't.

While the question of whether or not the town should have a full-time administrator first arose some 12 years ago when the Springfield League of Women Voters lent support to the idea, until now it had always been rejected. Until now. Or more precisely, until New Year's Day when Mayor Edward Fanning announced that he was changing his opposition to the idea and was prepared to "introduce legislation" later on to create the position.

Fanning said the "continuously increasing complexity" of municipal government left a part-time governing body unable to "properly address the day-to-day operations of a township or other municipal government."

Former Committee member and Mayor Phillip Feintuch had more recently called for the creation of the position using similar arguments.

Maguire has been the Township Clerk since August of 1984, and she replaced Arthur Sweeney, who retired after 20 years in the office. Prior to that time, she had been deputy clerk.

"I'm honored," said Maguire, who returned to Springfield for good in 1986, after having attended school in town years earlier. "It's something you strive for. As a clerk, you really do the dual role because everybody comes to you, but now you have a little authority. I like the challenge, which I'm sure it's going to be."

"I think that the town will be run better with someone there full-time," said Fanning, who has maintained that paying Maguire a dual salary for the two positions will save the town money, as opposed to hiring another person to fill the new post. "Especially Helen, who gets along well with all of the department heads."

Other nearby towns, including Union and Mountainside, have had business administrators for some time. In Union, administrator Thomas Strapp holds dual roles, serving as the Township Engineer as well. With some differences, the ordinances of Springfield and Union in regard to the administrator's position are similar.

"You have the administrative problems now," Maguire continued. "You're still going to go to the Township Committee. You're not going to act without telling them what you're doing. It's going to be a challenge. I like challenges."

Feintuch, while still praising the decision to create the position, however, has in one way brought about a challenge.

"If she's going to do both, how could you possibly do two full-time jobs in eight hours?" questioned the former mayor.

"They obviously don't know what the hell a business administrator is."

"I have no axe to grind with Helen," he continued. "This is not personal in nature. She's done more than an adequate job as township clerk. But you need a professional administrator. They haven't given her any authority and they haven't given her any time to do it."

"I feel that appointing Helen to the position is reasonable under the current budget constraints, and it gives us the opportunity to see if Helen can handle both positions," answered Committee member Jeffrey Katz. "I agree with Phil that it's difficult to wear both hats. But she deserves the chance. We're going to find out whether or not he's right. In any event, it was very important to get the position in the books."

Under the new ordinance, Maguire will also be called upon to "supervise the business administration of all departments and offices, subject to supervision and direction of the respective committee chairpersons." While no salary for her new role has been agreed upon yet, it will, when decided, be retroactive to March 10, the night of her official appointment.

BOE approves budget

By MARK YABLONSKY
 In its final meeting prior to the April 7 election, the Springfield Board of Education gave final approval to its proposed 1987-88 district budget and changed the calendar of the upcoming school year Monday night.

By a near-unanimous margin, the board voted to send the $5,645,500 package on to the public, which will render its decision on Election Day April 7. The biggest increase in the budget falls under instruction, which includes the salaries of principals, teachers and textbooks. The $278,660 hike has been attributed largely to pay raises awarded to teachers during contract negotiations last fall that gave district instructors increases of 8.8 and 9 percent, respectively, over the next two years, including the current one.

While the budget represents an 11.8 percent increase over the current package of $5,049,398, the tax increase will be only 3.4 percent. Based on a $152,800 home assessment rate, each average homeowner will pay an increase of $90 over last year's tax levy. For an assessment rate of $229,200, homeowners will pay $108 more than last year, while property owners with assessment rates of $395,600 will pay an extra $180.

With six board members voting on the package — the current expense and capital outlay sections were decided upon separately — five affirmative votes were cast, while Pietro Petino abstained. Petino, who was one of two board members to vote against the current budget a year ago, cited a "high amount" for legal costs as "just one area" of discontent.

"I'm not happy with the budget the way it's presently constituted," Petino said. "I believe in majority rule, but I expressed my objection."

Administration costs — under which legal expenses lay, along with salaries of administrators and board members' expenses — have increased by $9,726 for next year's package.

With the change to the 1987-88 school calendar, classes will now begin on Sept. 8, the day after Labor Day, and will end on the following June 22. Under terms of the previous calendar that had been approved on Feb. 23, classes would have begun on Sept. 2, five days before Labor Day, and would have ended on June 17.

Superintendent Gary Friedland indicated the prospect of beginning school prior to the last holiday weekend of summer did not please some people within the district.

"You had three or four different groups that were interested in starting after Labor Day because of contractual or parent preference," he said.

"A lot of people go away the last week in August," said parent Dale Gordon of the first calendar, "so it's difficult to make vacation plans. I imagine the teachers weren't too happy, either."

With the exception of the altered starting and closing dates, the school calendar will still parallel that of the Union County Regional High School District, something the board had strived for, in order to avoid "splitting" families with children both in grammar and high school.

Team targets hazardous fires

By STEVEN LIEBMAN
 Fire officials around Union County are attempting to get the Hazardous Material Response Team on its feet and ready for action by the summer of 1987.

The HMRT is a group of volunteer fire, health and industrial personnel who specialize in hazardous material emergencies. The team would be trained to provide support to the local fire departments in the handling of incidents involving hazardous materials.

The team would not be staffed by full-time employees, but the personnel would be on an on-call basis. Tony Peters, secretary of the HMRT committee and Kentworth firefighter, says.

In June 1985 a committee was formed to address the need in Union County to have personnel prepared to respond to hazardous material incidents. Presently, the Middlesex County Department of Health has a contract with Union County to respond to such incidents.

Last year the group received $25,000 from the county as seed money to begin training and to purchase some basic equipment.

This year the group approached the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders asking for funds. This type of group is a necessity, Ken Rau, chair of the committee and Springfield firefighter says.

According to Peters, there are funds available from the state but because there is no central health organization these funds can not be obtained.

First responders at the scene of an uncontrolled release of hazardous material, local fire service personnel typically have the responsibility to identify the product involved, determine hazard posed by release, notify the proper agencies, mobilize the required resources to monitor, contain, mitigate and control the release, conduct fire prevention or suppression measures and recommend action to be taken, such as evacuation, the report states.

Many of the fire departments in the county do not know the proper procedures to take. The HMRT would be able to advise these departments, Peters says.

John Ballantyne, vice chairman of the committee, used Mountainside as an example. If a truck on Route 22 overturned and a canister fell on the roadway, the team would respond and be able to advise the volunteer fire department as to whether it would be safe to move the canister or whether to alert the residents and the surrounding areas.

The main concern would be if Route 22 should be closed. This could cause serious consequences to Mountainside, Ballantyne says.

According to Peters, the members of this group would be able to respond faster than an outside county department and being local would be familiar with the areas.

"Due to the diverse geographic and economic make-up of the county, its firefighters must be prepared to respond to incidents that vary from heavy industrialized to rural pasture and wooded areas; from congested city streets to bedroom communities; from sea level to the Watching Mountains."

"It is not feasible or practical for every local fire, police and emergency service organization to be fully equipped and staffed to respond to every conceivable hazardous materials emergency," the report states.

In the last year, the 30-member team has spent approximately 1800 hours training, drew up a Standard Operation Procedure, purchased reference manuals and text books and a portable computer.

According to the report, training will remain the number one priority of the team.

Schneider film airs over HBO

By MARK YABLONSKY
 You see them all the time. Those normal, everyday, innocent-looking characters on television who are supposed to be an accurate depiction of real-life situations as they go about trying to sell anything from toothpaste to a new blender. But as saturated as you may be with these incessant, oft-repeated messages known to be advertising, have you ever wondered what it would be like if people talked in real life just like they do in commercials?

Well, Mindy Schneider, of Springfield has. So much so, in fact, that she has written and directed a short little skit in which three members of a household appear to have watched a few television commercials too many. You can see it tomorrow at 4 p.m., Monday at 9:30 a.m., and twice more on Tuesday, March 31. In all, the film is scheduled to air some 25 to 30 times between March of this year and March of 1988.

Last Thursday, Schneider attended a screening of her film, "Morning Becomes Electric," at HBO headquarters in New York, along with 100 invited guests, including six other students who made similar films as well. Note that the title differs only slightly from the Eugene O'Neill melodrama, "Morning Becomes Electric."

The skit was aired twice by HBO that same day.

"It's kind of the modern family sabotaged by TV," explains Schneider, who arrived at the idea after wondering what the home life of the actor in the "Crazy Eddie" ads would be like. "It's your typical American family, but their lives have been sabotaged by typical TV sales pitches. Little kids go around quoting commercials and they don't even know what they mean. But when you become aware of it, it becomes funny. I think."

Funny includes the father singing to his son, "you've been missing too many TV shows lately, why strive for As and Bs, when you can have Cs instantly!"

Since her pre-teen years, the Skylark Road resident knew she wanted to write — and only for television. She has "no interest" in doing anything else. But there's one problem. Breaking in to the ultra-competitive world of television and/or entertainment, is nothing less than "next-to-impossible," regardless of talent. Still, Schneider has not given up.

After graduating from Brandeis University in 1982, she went on to earn a M.S. in telecommunications from Syracuse University just six months later. She is presently known as A.B.D. — all but dissertation — at Columbia University in New York, where she plans on obtaining a directing degree within the next two years.

In between, she managed to work on the set of the CBS hit, "The Equalizer," starring Edward Woodward. Presently, she is employed at a New York-based magazine, doing her best to break into the writing trade, but on the low end of the totem pole. While being called a production assistant, she "makes Xeroxes," a fate that countless others before her have come to know all too well.

It was at Columbia last fall that Schneider saw an announcement on a message board that said HBO was looking for short, 2-5 minute films, and that students were free to enter. Since she had already written "Morning Becomes Electric" two months earlier, all that was necessary was to submit the script, which she did, giving it to an HBO official in charge of on-air programming. Ten days later, she found her selection was one of seven chosen from a field of 100 Columbia and NYU students.

After being asked to provide budgetary estimates for her script, Schneider, with the help of a friend working professionally as a "second assistant director," was able to get the use of a studio — along with some of the appliances used for the production — on East 48th Street, where the project was filmed on Sunday, Jan. 18. Camera, lighting and "grip" equipment was provided by another company. The project took 15 hours to film, with the first three hours alone being set aside for lighting arrangements.

While some of the other accompanying mini-projects carry big names such as Jerry Suller and John Heard, Schneider's film was performed by lesser-known, but equally as talented actors. Barry Tubbs, who portrays the son, is currently appearing with Mary Tyler Moore and Lynn Redgrave on the Broadway production of "Sweet Sue," while Jerry Bamman, who portrays the father, is in an upcoming Michael J. Fox movie, "The Secret of My Success."

Kelly Bishop, a former Tony winner from "A Chorus Line," portrays the mother. Each of the performers was suggested by HBO.

"In this case, I'm just lucky that a lot of my friends had very specific talents," Schneider said. "Even friends of mine who hadn't been working in film helped out."

The Springfield resident presently owns the film, which will be aired as the middle of three skits at one time. While HBO has exclusive rights to it for one year, Schneider can begin collecting profits from the film after that time, if it is bought by someone else. But whatever becomes of the film, she is sure of one thing: she is tired of "paying her dues."

"What I need is some good nepotism," explained Schneider. "I guess in the long run, it's good for a writer to have gone through some horrible jobs. I don't want to spend the next four years still making Xeroxes."

From Trenton

Assemblywoman Ogden

A recent study proving the positive effects of alcohol and drug prevention and intervention efforts among high school students has been applauded by Assemblywoman Maureen Ogden, Representative of the 22nd District. Ogden has long been an advocate of prevention and intervention techniques.

"The survey shows that 50 percent of students admit they have used drugs and that 90 percent admit to using alcohol," the Assemblywoman said. "Obviously, these numbers are too high."

Assemblywoman Ogden noted that the survey indicates one of every four students will begin using drugs by the 8th grade. She said the statistics prove the value of education programs "because our young people make very important decisions that can affect the remainder of their lives."

The Assemblywoman noted that the Assembly Education Committee has released a bill package which she calls "a major step toward reducing the numbers of young people who regularly use alcohol and/or drugs."

The package includes bills that would require teachers to be trained to recognize drug and alcohol abuse, that all instances of such abuse in schools be reported and that local school boards adopt policies for treating students who abuse drugs and alcohol.

Ogden said the "heart" of the package is legislation that would establish education programs for teachers, parents, the public and all students from kindergarten through high school.

"Other bills in the package would create uniform reporting systems for abuse problems, policies regarding evaluation, referral and treatment of pupils showing abuse symptoms and inter-service programs for teacher training to identify symptoms through behavioral patterns," Mrs. Ogden added. "Another bill would provide immunity from civil suits to school and medical staffs who report incidents of suspected abuse among pupils."

Ogden said another bill would enable the parents or legal guardians of non-public school students to obtain all educational materials through the local board of election.

"Children are the key to our future," Mrs. Ogden said. "I will support this legislation including the bill to establish a statewide public education campaign through the use of television, radio and the print media."

Assemblyman Franks

Assemblyman Bob Franks (R-Union/East) sponsored legislation to create a bi-state Statue of Liberty Trust Fund to aid homeless people in New Jersey and New York was approved by the General Assembly last week and now goes to the Governor for his signature.

"Far too many depressing stories abound of people, through no fault of their own, losing their homes due to fire, unemployment, medical problems and unforeseen accidents. Many others must face the further hardship of having their family assets lost. Parents must watch as their children go hungry and become ill from exposure to the elements, and ultimately, must suffer the heartache of losing custody," Franks said. "This bill would help keep families together and make provisions for their welfare as they try to get back on their feet."

"No one wants to be without a home, and we must therefore do whatever we can to keep families together to provide strength and hope. Unfortunately circumstances occur all too frequently, and we must be prepared to catch those who fall on hard times."

Revenues from the fund would be distributed to private and public agencies in both states to provide food, clothing, shelter and employment services to the homeless.

The bill is a result of an agreement made between Governor Keane and New York Governor Mario Cuomo to use revenues generated from Liberty and Ellis Islands to aid the homeless in both states.

"Whether the islands actually belong to New Jersey or New York is a dispute that will never be resolved to everyone's satisfaction," Franks said. "However, with the establishment of a bi-state Statue of Liberty Trust Fund, we have the opportunity to have our states join hands in a collective, more coordinated effort to help the homeless in the metropolitan area."

Senator Bassano

Senator C. Louis Bassano, R-Union, has been appointed a member of the Governor's Council on New Jersey's Outdoors.

"Our parks and recreational facilities are a necessary part of our lives in the State of New Jersey," said Senator Bassano. "We have spent the last two decades acquiring land for parks and recreational facilities. Now, we want to make sure that those lands and resources are being used to their full potential and in the best manner. That will be the responsibility of this council."

"The availability and use of recreational outlets and parks has had a positive effect on our state, and then they will make recommendations to the Governor, on the use of these resources and how to implement the proposals made in the Governor's Conference on Recreational Resources report."

"With wise planning through the year 2000, our state's forests, parks, wildlife areas, lakes and shores will be guaranteed a healthy and bright future."

In other business, Bassano called for the Senate to take quick action on comprehensive auto insurance legislation recently passed by the Assembly "so we in New Jersey will no longer have the dubious distinction of having the highest auto insurance rates in the country."

Bassano says, "According to recent published reports, this is the fifth consecutive year that our state leads the nation when it comes to high insurance rates." The average car insurance rate is $602, which is an annual 10 percent increase. This figure represents a nearly 50 percent increase since insurance rankings were first published five years ago.

"By comparison, the average premium in New York is $489, Pennsylvania is $464, and Massachusetts is $509," Bassano notes.

Assemblyman Genova

A bill sponsored by Assemblyman Peter J. Genova, R-31, that would establish a pilot program to provide home health care services for elderly and disabled veterans, was approved by the General Assembly last month.

According to Genova, Assembly bill 3285 is designed to provide Veterans with health services that could prevent them from being prematurely placed in nursing homes.

"Those men and women who risked their lives for our safety certainly deserve to be provided with health care attention," Genova said. "A good many of the veterans that would benefit under this measure were disabled in battle, fighting on our behalf. I cannot imagine turning them aside at a time when they need us most," the assemblyman added.

Under the measure, qualified veterans would receive home care, chore, nutritional and personal care services in addition to physical, speech and occupational therapy.

The state Division of Veterans' Programs and Special Services would be responsible for establishing the two-year pilot program, which would be administered by health care agencies approved by the division.

Genova said the bill would direct the agencies to perform a comprehensive medical, social and financial assessment of each applicant before accepting him or her into the program. These veterans who meet financial requirements established by the division, who are at risk of premature placement in a nursing home, and whose health care costs would not exceed 70 percent of the average cost of regular nursing home care would qualify for participation in the program, Genova said.

The bill would require the Division of Veterans' Programs and Special Services to establish a sliding-fee scale based upon the veteran's ability to pay for the services. No veterans would have to pay more than 50 percent of the cost of services, the assemblyman said.

Language in the bill stipulates that other state or federal programs or insurance contracts that would cover the cost of the services would be used to pay for the programs before monies allocated under this bill could be used.

The measure would appropriate $1 million to establish the program. Of the state's 900,000 veterans, about 47,000 could be eligible for the program, Genova said.

The bill was approved by a vote of 69-1 and sent to the Senate for further consideration.

Mountainside BOE

Pat Knodel this week opened her campaign for re-election to the Mountainside Board of Education with a pledge to continue to press for "quality education at a reasonable cost."

Knodel — a veteran of a 14 years on the Board — emphasized that she "does not equate quality with the quantity of dollars spent. As a former teacher and mother of eight children who have been educated in our local system, I am well aware of the importance of a quality education," she declared.

"However, I also believe that members of the school board have a responsibility to the taxpayers who finance our system. This is why during my 14 years as a board member — I consistently fought for programs that would substantially improve the type of education given to our children, while opposing wasteful spending that does not truly help youngsters learn better."

Acknowledging that her pro-taxpayer stands has at times placed her in opposition to the board majority, Mrs. Knodel said she thought "both the students and the people of Mountainside were better off for my having been there."

Knodel said her efforts resulted in hiring teachers with more experience, improved curriculum in Language Arts, and improved transportation for handicapped pupils. In addition, my watchdog approach to the budget saved taxpayers thousands of dollars in such areas as secretarial staff, administration, handicapped transportation and purchasing," she continued. "We need someone who's going to watch out for the students as well as the taxpayer. I can fulfill that critical function, while serving as a conscientious and responsible board member."

Housing mediators lay out the laws

Under the Council on Affordable Housing's substantive certification approval process, several municipalities that met the council's Jan. 5 deadline for housing elements/fair share plans will be going through mediation.

A total of 47 municipalities have already petitioned for substantive certification either automatically by being court-transferred or by voluntarily filing, according to Douglas V. Opalka, executive director.

When there is a dispute between a municipality and another party - individual, special interest group, developer, neighborhood organization, another municipality - the council on affordable housing will meet with the municipality and the objectors in an attempt to mediate a resolution of the issue. The staff has undergone an intensive training in mediation so staff members can be designated as the council's mediators; other professionals may also be asked to mediate.

The council will become involved in a mediation and review process in the following situations: where an objection to the municipality's petition for substantive certification is filed with the council within 45 days of publication of the notice of a municipality's petition in a newspaper of general circulation within the municipality and the county or if a request for mediation and review is made by a person legally challenging a municipality's zoning ordinance with respect to the opportunity to provide for low and moderate income housing.

Within 10 days after a matter is referred for mediation, the council or its designee will establish a mediation schedule - with representatives of the municipality and the objectors. The mediator will meet as often as determined necessary and may impose any necessary deadlines for submission of information, reports, studies or other documentation.

During the course of any mediation, the mediator may, upon notice to the parties, rely upon or use interim adjudications previously entered by a trial court in the matter, or - any stipulations previously entered into by the parties in any such litigation.

During the mediation, the council may decide to review any issue which may facilitate a satisfactory conclusion to the mediation process or refer the issue to the Office of Administrative Law. This review will be conducted as an adjudication complying with all applicable due process requirements.

Mediation before the council may be conducted for a period of not more than 60 days after the time for the receipt of objections to a petition for substantive certification has expired. However, if dissatisfaction with the progress of the mediation proceedings or the parties have reached an impasse and mediation cannot resolve the dispute, the council may declare an end to the mediation process and refer the matter to OAL for adjudication as a contested case as provided in N.J.A.C. 5:91-8.

OAL will expedite its hearing process as much as practicable in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:2D-315(c). A written transcript of all oral testimony and copies of all exhibits introduced into evidence shall be submitted by OAL to the council simultaneously with a copy of the initial decision. The cost of the transcript will be shared equally by the municipality and the objectors.

Within 45 days after the issuance of an initial decision from OAL, the council will, upon review of the record submitted by the administrative law judge, adopt, reject or modify the recommended report and decision. Unless the council modifies or rejects the initial decision within this period of time, the decision of the administrative law judge will be deemed adopted.

Before the conclusion of the 60-day mediation period by the council, the mediator will prepare a report and recommendation to the council detailing the progress of the mediation proceedings; the issue in dispute between the parties; the stipulations or other agreements between the parties; a recommendation; and reasons for the council to either grant, deny or conditionally deny substantive certification or a recommendation that the matter be referred to OAL for adjudication as a contested case.

The council then will determine whether to grant, deny or conditionally deny substantive certification or to refer the matter to OAL. If the matter is referred to OAL, the parties will be bound by any agreements entered into during the mediation.

"A municipality in any extraordinary zoning law suit transferred by the courts to the council shall be deemed to have filed a petition for substantive certification upon the timely submission of the municipality's housing element and fair share plan as required in N.J.A.C. 5:91-8.2." However, the transferred municipality must publish notice of this petition

Jewish vets plan plea

Irving Rader, New Jersey State commander of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States of America, announced a special program which will send a Passover message to the Soviet Union. The Jewish War Veterans is organizing an effort in which it is anticipated that more than a quarter of a million boxes of matzah will be sent to the Soviet Embassy before the first Passover seder.

Rader is appealing to all concerned Americans, in and out of the Jewish community, to participate in this program. "The message of Passover is freedom and we want the Jews of the Soviet Union to someday rejoice in the same freedom in which Moses and the Jews of Egypt enjoyed," said commander Rader. "The Jewish War Veterans hope that by flooding the Soviet Embassy with matzah, a message will be sent that Americans have not forgotten the human rights violations being carried out in the Soviet Union."

This program is designed to be implemented on a national scale with participation coming from various sectors of the community. Commander Rader requested that the boxes be marked, "Enclosed is the Matzah of Hope, a taste of freedom." The matzah should be addressed to: Ambassador Yuri Dubinin, Embassy of USSR, 125 16th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20038. To ensure that the greatest number of boxes will arrive at the same time, the matzah should be mailed from April 9-11 and by first class mail only.

The Jewish War Veterans of the USA is the nation's oldest active veterans organization and has a long standing record of concern for Soviet Jewry and on-going programs with Rethusals. The Jewish War Veterans is a congressionally chartered veterans organization.

Bid made for dumping DEP's trash deadline

Legislation that would require Hackensack Meadowslands and Edgemoor landfills to accept until the end of the year the solid waste of those counties that currently use the two dump sites, has been introduced by Assemblymen Peter J. Genova and George Hudak.

Genova says that the state Department of Environmental Protection has directed all counties that use the solid waste facilities to dump their trash out of state after July 31.

"It is unfair to ask our municipalities to increase their local budgets to provide the additional revenues for out-of-state tipping fees," says Genova, R-Union. "In New Jersey, the approximate tipping fee is $30 per ton. Out-of-state tipping will cost municipalities an estimated $80 per ton. The state is unjustly demanding our financially burdened municipalities to absorb the $50-per-ton difference."

"I would hope that the DEP accepts this bipartisan legislative plea to extend the dumping at the Meadowslands and Edgemoor landfills until the end of the year," says Hudak, D-Union, Middlesex. "The DEP must realize that a viable alternative must be in place prior to holding our municipalities hostage to this solid waste dilemma," he says.

Both assemblymen agree that the enactment of the proposal would provide municipalities with the necessary breathing room pending the completion of county transfer

A new statewide hotline for victims of domestic violence and their families has been established by the state Department of Community Affairs' Division on Women.

Community Affairs Commissioner Leonard S. Coleman Jr. says the hotline will operate 24 hours a day, seven days a week. It is bilingual for the Spanish speaking population and TTY/TDD equipped for the hearing impaired.

The number is 1-800-572-SAFE.

Police receive grants

Governor Thomas H. Keane announced the award of new state Law Enforcement Planning Agency grants for juvenile/criminal justice improvement projects in Middlesex, Salem and Union counties and the department of Law and Public Safety, Public Advocates and the Juvenile Delinquency Disposition Commission. The awards were made from the following sources: $6,100 in federal Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act funds; $32,050 in federal Justice Assistance Act funds; and $47,505 in Speedy Trial and match funds which are appropriated to SLEPA in the state budget.

Continuation of the Union County Speedy Trial Program will be possible with a $28,710 award to the county and $40,378 to the regional Public Defender's office. This project is made up of a Central Judicial Processing program and a Pre-indictment Disposition Conference program which are used to reduce the indictment rate facilitate a streamlining of post-indictment procedures by early involvement of all parties within the criminal justice system. Approximately 68 percent of the 269 cases per month which are processed through the system, are disposed of pre-indictment while only 32 percent are referred to the grand jury. Prior to the implementation of the grant, 68 percent were presented to the grand jury. Recent statistics have indicated that the pre-indictment disposition rate had improved even more.

Two training courses will be developed for in-service police officers as a result of a $24,100 award to the Division of Criminal Justice in the Department of Law and Public Safety. The first will be aimed at police chiefs and supervisory personnel following the principles in the Integrated Criminal Apprehension Program developed by the U.S. Department of Justice. A second course will expand on the crime analysis portion of the ICAP program to develop a full course for the crime analysis specialist using computers. "Grant personnel" will work with the NJ Association of Chiefs of Police, the crime prevention advisory committee, the state police uniform crime reporting unit and staff in the Division of Criminal Justice.

Daffodils herald hope

Even though there has been a first touch of spring, the season does not start until the daffodil blooms. The daffodil is the first flower of spring, and the American Cancer Society's symbol of hope for the cancer patient.

The Union County Unit of the American Cancer Society will be sponsoring its annual Daffodil Festival March 23 to 29. Volunteers from the society will deliver orders and sell flowers throughout Union County.

With the coming of warm weather it is also time to get in shape. What a better opportunity than a 5,000 meter running race and a One Mile Fun Run. The Daffodil Race, "A Run For Hope" will be held March 29, at Warman Park in Roselle at 8 a.m. As an incentive for pre-registration, the first 200 applicants will receive a T-shirt.

Members of Elizabeth and Westfield Towns Benevolent Association will be challenging each other. Other members of local PBAs and Freeman Mutual Benevolent Association will also be competing.

Another aspect of the Daffodil Festival is "Your Auto Care" where for the fourth consecutive year the Union County Automobile Dealers Association will donate $50 for every car they sell on March 28. "It is a nice gesture to have over 30 car dealers to take part in it this year," says Mitch Friedman co-owner of New Morris Chevrolet and Chairman of Crusade Committee for the Union County Unit American Cancer Society.

The Daffodil drive is also supported by area businesses, who buy the flowers to give to their employees or for distribution in nursing homes and hospitals. The organizers of the event hope to top last year's total of over $30,000.

To place an order for flowers or to register for the Daffodil Run, call the American Cancer Society, at 354-7373.

Frail adult care is topic

The Adult Day Care Consortium of Union County will present a part of its monthly program of information and support for the care-givers and families of the frail elderly, a program entitled "Depression or Dementia."

Joseph Klein, clinical chief, geropsychiatric services, Elizabeth General Medical Center, Elizabeth will discuss diagnostic assessment in determining whether a person is depressed or suffering from dementia. The presence of depression, apathy and complaints of difficulty in concentration or memory loss, make dementia difficult to distinguish from a major depressive episode occurring in the elderly.

The program will be presented March 26 from 7:30 - 9 p.m. at the Elizabethtown Gas Company.

Spotlight on Union County

Police officers get kudos

Elmer M. Erie II, a member of the Roselle Police Department, and Edward R. Orlando of the Union County Police Department, won first and second place academic achievement awards presented by the Union County Police Chiefs' Association in commencement exercises held on March 8 for graduates of the Union County Police Training Academy at Union County College.

Chris D. La Fragola of the Springfield Police Department earned two awards: the Merit Award, presented to the class member most likely to succeed in the police profession, and a physical training award.

The Police Academy is operated jointly by the College's Cranford Campus, the Union Prosecutor's Office, Operated on the College's Cranford Campus; the academy provides basic training for new recruits in law enforcement agencies, as well as in-service training for experienced law enforcement officers.

County rate down; taxes up

By STEVEN LIEBMAN

The residents of Union County will be asked to place their hands in their pockets and come out with $1,067,500 in taxes for the government if the present county budget passes.

The Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders introduced the $145,527,576 budget on March 12 in a 92-vote tie. Two Democrats on the board claimed there can be further reductions in the budget.

The 1987 tax levy of $102,087,506 is actually an increase of $7,866,962 over last year. The budget reflects a tax rate of 48.8¢ per $100 of assessed value, a reduction of 10 percent from last year's tax rate and which is the lowest county tax rate since 1975.

The 10 percent reduction is due to the growth of ratables received because of re-evaluation and the overall improvement of the economy in the county, a statement released by the freeholders said.

A homeowner may pay more in taxes this year even though the rate is lower, because their home may be evaluated at a higher rate, according to the statement.

"The budget we have introduced includes a $1 million reduction in county appropriations from the proposed Executive Budget and a similar reduction in state and federal grants," said Alan M. Augustine, freeholder chairman.

The two Democrats on the board introduced further cuts totaling $2.3 million which would bring the tax levy down to $99,732,600.

"We are losing over $3 million in Federal Revenue Sharing funds and over half the budget is made up of costs that are mandated by the state, which we have no control of at all," Augustine said.

"If we had received our fair share of Federal Revenue Sharing funds the tax levy would have only been 5 percent higher than last year, not the 8.3 percent increase we now have," Freeholder William Eldridge, chairman of the finance committee, said.

Other contributing factors to the budget include $1.3 million in increased costs and the loss of state revenues for the county, $1.1 million for new construction and almost $800,000 for welfare, Augustine said.

The biggest problem, according to Augustine, is providing funding for mandated and non-controllable costs. These costs account for $72,205,511 of the budget. An increase of 6.05 percent over last year.

The Democrats on the board proposed reductions in five of the controllable areas: jobs, health benefits, insurance, Union County jail and buildings and grounds.

The proposed budget includes the creation of 37 new positions. Currently there are 165 vacancies in the county. "In order to control the growth of Union County government we propose that vacant positions, 37 in total or the financial equivalent of $783,987 be eliminated from the budget," Freeholder Brian Fahey said.

The budget proposes $5.3 million for group health care. Last year's presentation was for $4.8 million when the county switched from Blue Cross Blue Shield to Aetna. The Democrats suggested that if the $5.3 million is needed than no financial benefits were gained by switching insurance companies.

County squad tracks arson incidents

By ROBERT O'LEARY

The formation of the Union County Arson Investigation Unit can be traced back to a series of fires that occurred in our county during the year 1977 and early 1978. Faced with a problem that had not been previously addressed, Prosecutor John H. Stampler met with municipal police and fire chiefs. The result of this meeting was to form a task force comprised of Prosecutor's office personnel, municipal firefighters and municipal police.

Meeting for the first time in December of 1978, at the Plainfield Fire Headquarters, a group of 18 municipal personnel and three county investigators began their training. This training required all members to complete the National Fire Academy course on arson investigation.

January of 1979 saw the new unit go operational, and by February Prosecutor Stampler established a full-time Arson Investigation Unit within the office.

The unit received a SLEPA grant in the amount of $45,000 in 1980 for the purchase of special equipment.

Through clear guidelines issued by the prosecutor to all departments, the question of who investigates arsons was resolved. The result of this interdisciplinary approach first introduced in Union County, was recognized in the 1981 Governor's Arson Task Force Report: "We believe that the Arson Investigation Task Force is perhaps the finest and most efficient way to develop an adequate investigation response to the crime of arson."

The unit, because of its structure, has grown and developed into one of the most successful arson units in our state. One of the key factors contributing to this success has been the commitment and dedication of the 23 municipal members.

Throughout our seven-year history these men have responded with enthusiasm to face the task at hand.

The goals and objectives established in 1979 continued to be met. Some of these are: a public awareness program was put in place in conjunction with the Independent Insurance Brokers who set up a poster program and advertising an Arson Hot Line available 24 hours a day.

The conviction rate for arrested arsonists in 1978 was between 2 percent and 9 percent. In Union County since January 1979, over 200 arson arrests have been made. Our conviction rate is over 87 percent.

The arson unit today continues to meet the needs of our county in combating arson. Immediate response to a scene anytime of day or night enables us to deal with any type of fire.

The cases investigated by the unit have shown that arson is a crime unrestricted by social or economic environment. Arson is a tool used by those seeking revenge, such as the defendant who set off a device at his girl friend's house. When it exploded, the girl's mother was severely burned.

Another type of arson is the profit motive. In 1983, a store owner facing bankruptcy set his building on fire for the purpose of collecting insurance. This defendant was tried and found guilty. Investigating incases such as these and many others have proven that arson is a crime that can be solved.

The Union County Arson Investigation Unit continues to be responsible for the investigation of all arson-related fires. The unit is comprised of one assistant prosecutor, one lieutenant of county investigators, five county investigators, one secretary and 31 municipal police and/or fire personnel.

The arson unit maintains its status of a team on-call at all times. The initial response by the unit is precipitated by a request from either the municipal fire department or police department.

The team is comprised of two members from the municipal departments and one investigator from the Prosecutor's office. The responding law enforcement personnel must attend a certified school approved by the Division of Criminal Justice and continue to receive training through advanced arson courses provided by the Department of Criminal Justice.

The unit members are required to attend weekly meetings where critiques are conducted of those incidents that have occurred during the previous week. The on-going training conducted at weekly meetings was expanded to include a review of previous causes and the introduction of new material. This program enables the Unit members to stay abreast of new investigative techniques and to familiarize themselves with those related to fire/arson investigation.

A review of the 1986 statistics showed the Arson Unit responded to 185 requests. Of the 185 requests our unit determined 124 of those fires were deliberately set. These figures show that 64 percent of all fires the Arson Unit responds to were arsons. The 64 percent figure reflects admirably on the quality of decision to call made by the municipal departments.

The 124 fires determined to be arson in 1986 show a slight decrease from 1985. Significant to note that during the year 1986 revised guidelines were issued to all departments concerning utilization of the arson unit. Each case is reviewed and a solvability factor is determined. The purpose of this is to direct follow-up investigative work towards those cases that show a potential for positive results.

An example of this would be as follows:

A small fire is discovered on the outside of an abandoned house. The fire is quickly suppressed with no damage to the house. Although the fire is an arson, the possibility of solving it is minimal.

Utilizing this concept 73 investigations were initiated in 1986. Of the 73 remaining determined arsons, 29 were categorized either as malicious damage or vandalism and 22 were abandoned car fires. The 73 investigations resulted in 20 arrests being made showing a 27 percent arrest ratio.

The arrest factor does not include those cases currently under investigation nor those currently pending grand jury action.

The year 1986 brought home the tragic impact of fire. The unit was called to investigate 19 fires that resulted in 21 fatalities. All the fires were determined by the unit to be accidental. However, 21 fire fatalities in 1986 is the highest in our county in recent years.

Arson Unit Investigative personnel continue to be called on to conduct both training sessions and lectures for civic groups, other law enforcement agencies and fire department personnel.

Opportunities such as these allow us to continue to bring the message to the public that arson is still America's costliest crime.

Take time to check garages, sheds and basements for dangerous substances. Place them out of the way of harm.

Unionite heads to Miami
Casale signs with Dolphins

By DAN BLACKWELL
Mark Casale of Union recently signed a two-year contract with the National Football League's Miami Dolphins. Casale's agent and cousin, Mike Casale, came to terms with the team after Mark traveled down to the Miami training camp and impressed Dolphins Head Coach Don Shula with his accuracy and aggressiveness. "I went down and threw some strong passes," said Casale. "Coach Shula was impressed and he invited me to try out with the team." He will leave for Miami on Sunday and settle in before off-season training begins March 27 which is only mandatory for quarterbacks and receivers, in order to allow them to loosen up and learn plays before the July 15 training camp begins for the entire team. Casale, a 1980 graduate of Union High School, played collegiate ball at Montclair State College, a Division III school, where he broke 17 passing records. One level he reached was becoming the all-time leading passer in New Jersey, with 6,200 total yards in his collegiate career. After competing his collegiate football career in 1984, he became the only Division III player drafted to the pros. He was drafted by the Chicago Bears and the New Jersey

Casale declares that he is ready for the Miami tryout and will go all out to make the team in what he says is "my last shot" at the pro ranks. "I'm ready to kick ... kooza. Casale." I'm going down there and give it all I've got. Just be a wild-man. Try out for special teams along with quarterbacks and show coach Shula that I really want to play football.

Ladies out in numbers

By MARK YABLONSKY

During the recent winter months, Arthur Krupp never had much of a problem deciding on playing time for members of his girls' basketball team, and for a very good reason: he had only six players to work with. This spring, however, his softball team apparently will not have that problem.

No less than 37 players have been participating in pre-season hitting, fielding and throwing drills indoors, and just as soon as it warms up a little more and the Lady Bulldogs are able to stay outside full-time, Krupp will have the luxury of deciding who will start, and who will substitute coming off the bench.

"We've got a lot of players," said the first-year coach, who is replacing Howard Cashmir, last year's skipper. "Last year 1986, we can do and hopefully, we'll have a competitive year and build for the future at the same time."

For the immediate future, Krupp will be looking to senior co-captains Jeannie Perrotta and Colleen Delaney for leadership on a team that will try to improve on the 8-14 record of a year ago. Perrotta, who roomed in center field last year, is expected to remain at that position

More punch sought by Bears

By MARK YABLONSKY

Ralph LaConte is affable, good-natured and a fan of the game of baseball. The new head coach of the Brearley Regional baseball team also likes to score runs in bunches. Considering that the Bears had trouble doing that last year, 1986, should prove to be an interesting season, indeed.

Despite an impressive team earned run average of 2.83, the Bears last year could do no better than a .715 overall mark, primarily because of an anemic 229 team batting average. While hustling and effort were never far removed from Ed Ward's faithful, the offensive numbers simply weren't there, even when Mike Chalenski and his 39 strikeouts left an indelible mark on opposing hitters.

"That's okay," said LaConte. "I didn't score many runs my first year at Belleville. I can't speak more highly about these kids. I've been received very highly."

With Brearley's pitching not considered "to pose much of a problem," LaConte simply put, will work on improving this club's offense by the time the season begins on April 2 at New Providence, and throughout the spring schedule as well. The new coach, however, has some insight to a fact not everyone is always aware of.

"Because of the weather conditions, I think you go out there the first month where the hitters have the advantage," LaConte explained. "But good pitching gets better. The pitchers generally get stronger as the season goes on."

Harding wins 2 to end year

The Harding Hawks boys' basketball team recently completed their season with two victories against Winfield Park and against Hillside Avenue of Cranford. The Hawks also played teams from Orange Avenue of Cranford, Roselle Park, Mountaineer, Garwood, and St. Theresa.

Eighth-grader Patrick Cook led the team for half the season with averages of 17 points and four steals per game. Other team leaders for the season were eighth-graders Chad Radwin, with ten points and four steals per game; and Thomas Szaro, with seven points, seven rebounds and three steals per game.

Donald Sammel added five points a game and Peter Accampando provided offense and aggressive defense.

Seventh-graders Jon Chango, Michael Basta, Matthew Voorhes, and Christopher Hogan contributed many points and rebounds to help the Hawk attack and came away with numerous steals and rebounds on defense.

Coach Jeffrey Kallreider feels that with many returning sixth- and seventh graders, the prospects for next season look promising for the Hawks.

Storyteller pens familial tale

By BEA SMITH

June Flamm Singer, one of America's finest storytellers, is in the enviable position of having gotten there first — in utilizing the wonderful stories told by a European-born parent by turning them into an excitingly provocative book, now in paperback, called "The Markoff Women." How many of us had listened to stories told by our parents or grandparents and found a wealth of material in their tales for us to write? Singer, only to procrastinate in sitting down to take notes, ask questions...and write that book! This reviewer also kept putting off that moment, knowing that there were several prospective books in the wonderful stories told by Papa and Mama — and kept saying, "I'll get to it soon," until it was too late to "get to it" at all.

Well, Singer, in her marvelous style, has wiped away all the guilt feelings by integrating all the Papa and Mama stories into the novel that is "The Markoff Women," published by Pocket Books, New York, a division of Simon and Schuster, a last year.

Most of the characters in her book are quite recognizable as types taken from family stories of yesteryear, but others have been added that are nowhere to be found in those remembrances.

Singer's story of the Jewish inhabitants of the small village of Slobodka in Russia is told in four parts, all having to do with the indomitable women in her book. The story begins with Eve, a red-haired, 17-year-old Jewish beauty, who comes from a gentile; but extremely poor, Talmudic Orthodox family called the Brodskins. The young girl is innocently taken to wife by the youngest of Chalm Markoff's five powerfully strong sons, David. It is the year 1890. The awkward, love-struck bridegroom, who has chosen his bride without benefit of a matchmaker or a dowry, sweeps the terrified girl into the Markoff home, where the four other wives of the enormous brothers reside with their children.

On the shelf

"They attempt to comfort and care for Eve, but they and their husbands are terrified of the wrath of Chalm, an unkempt, filthy-mouthed patriarch, whose iron fist is the law of the Markoff home."

When Eve finally makes up her mind to adjust to her new life, she discovers that David's awkward meek attentiveness and love enable her to reach her goal of independence. She then settles in to regain the other Markoff women to become independent. The book sometimes reads like a women's liberation movement in the Russia of the late 19th century. It is like pulling teeth to tear these women from their miserable existences — and she succeeds in part.

"Part Two of the Singer book deals with Yitzhak, Eve and David's only child, who is sent to America by his parents to avoid a murder charge. It is set in 1896 to 1900, and tells of Yitzhak's strange arrival in Milwaukee, Wis., his association with the Germans he had met on the boat and his involvement with his English teacher and lover, Jennie. His unfortunate marriage to Anne, a German girl, is covered in Part Three, and Part Four is about Yitzhak's red-haired, indomitable daughter, Eva."

"The Markoff Women" is an exceptional piece of work — any book lover's true delight. It gives an especially clear insight into the various classes of Jews in the small village in Russia, telling of their passions, loves, fears and dreams. It also presents an excellent picture of life in America at the turn of the century.

And readers, Singer is so fantastic a writer that she doesn't allow one to put the book down at any time. One is tempted to peruse page after page, chapter after chapter, part after part in one reading.

It is possible to digest "The Markoff Women" after one huge gulp? This clearly-eyed reviewer nods affirmatively.

America's folk art in quilts

A new exhibition, Folk Art to Fine Art: American Quilts, 1785-1986, opened at the Newark Museum on March 14. The show will be on view in the museum's second floor gallery through April 19.

Most of the 13 quilts in the exhibition, which were selected by Curator of Decorative Arts Ulysses G. Dietz, have never been seen by the public before. The oldest is an 18th-century block-printed "one piece" quilt of fine-cotton chintz. Colonial quilts were highly practical and decoration was limited to the choice of fabric and background design.

The advent of "pieced" quilts came at the end of the American Revolution, although few have survived. An extremely rare example in this show is an unfinished hexagonal-block quilt top, made by the Springer family of Newcastle, Del., whose descendants donated it to the Museum in 1964. Hundreds of glazed chintz blocks were basted on to pieces of newspaper, dating from 1792 to 1803, making this quilt one of the earliest known. The newspaper was used to stiffen the soft fabric and would have been removed once the top was completed.

Several mid-19th-century pieces are also new to the collection. The most spectacular is an 1865 silk and velvet medallion quilt made by Mrs. C.S. Conover of New York, a quilt which is a veritable catalogue of high-quality dress fabrics. Trained in colonial quilting traditions, Mrs. Conover worked in an old-fashioned design, updated by her use of fancy silk and velvet fabrics.

More typical of the mid-1800s is an album quilt made in Elizabeth. Each of its 121 blocks bears the name of a different parishioner of the First Presbyterian (now Greystone) Church. Another handsome album quilt was made in 1864 by Mary Pater of Pottersville, with the help of her friends.

A rare anonymous chintz applique quilt, from between 1831 to 1842, uses the bright, polished cotton appliques made for quilters by commercial textile printers, which appear on the finest early 19th-century examples.

From the museum's wide assortment of "crazy" quilts, Curator Dietz has selected an example which may be the most splendid and ornate of its type ever made. The carefully planned abstract design of this small quilt is reminiscent in silk and velvet with fancy silk embroidery. Also on view is a souvenir-quilt, made in 1876 as a vivid memento of the Philadelphia World's Fair.

Two modern historical quilts are also featured: A large, colorful album-type quilt was produced by the advanced quilting class of the museum's arts workshop to celebrate Newark's heritage during the 1976 Bicentennial. New Jersey Barbara Schaffler donated an Essex County "Fenceposters" quilt, which she made in 1983.

Two abstract, modern quilts cross from the traditional realm of folk art into fine art. "Interruptions," made in 1980 by New Jersey resident Joy Saville, combines a strip and Seminole patchwork in a vibrant, swirling design. "Color/Rhythm: Spanish Dance," by nationally known quilter Michael James, was made for the museum in 1985 under grant from the Louis Comfort Tiffany Foundation. Its extraordinary sense of color and light is closely related to contemporary abstract painting.

The quilting series will examine general techniques used in quilting and motifs found in the quilt exhibition. Each program begins at 2 p.m. in the second-floor gallery.

On April 12, Sue Rodgers of Mountain Lakes will demonstrate and talk about specific attributes of quilts in the museum collection. On May 17, Joy Saville of Princeton, whose quilt is on view in the exhibition, will discuss strip piecing and explain how to use this particular technique in an unconventional way. She will also discuss applique and machine quilting.

The Newark Museum is located at 49 Washington St. in downtown Newark. The museum is open Tuesday through Sunday, from noon to 5 p.m. Admission is free. Parking is available in the Museum Penny Lane lot at the corner of Central and University avenues. Further information can be obtained by calling the Museum at 596-6550.

Antique autos on display

Turtle Back Zoo, 360 Northfield Ave., West Orange, and the Antique Automobile Club of America, New Jersey Region, are sponsoring the Annual Antique Car Show in the Zoo parking lot, on March 28, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Rain date is April 4.

Over 50 antique cars will be on display this year and the show is free to the public.

'Haven' seen in slide show

"Haven in Summit," the Reeves-Reed Arboretum's professionally produced sound-slide documentary, is available to be shown at area meetings of organizations, clubs, business and civic groups, senior citizen centers and the like.

Together with photographs by Anne Ross of Summit, whose work in color photography has been exhibited in galleries and is part of corporate and private collections, the slide show features a script by freelance writer-botanist Lu Rose of New Providence, the Arboretum's executive director; and narration by Paul Springle, professional announcer from Yardley, Pa.

The overall production, incorporating music and sound effects was synchronized by David Barr, owner of Recording-Duplicating Services Inc., Summit.

While the natural beauty of the Reeves-Reed Arboretum's 12.5 acres of woodlands and formal gardens in all seasons is the focus of "Haven in Summit," additional scenes provide a geological and social history of the area, dating back to Revolutionary times. How the property almost became a subdivision is detailed. Also depicted are educational opportunities for children and adults, volunteer activities, fund-raiser's, artists at work, casual visitors and more.

The Arboretum will arrange to show "Haven in Summit," a 20-minute program, by reservation free of charge to area organizations. Those who would like to make a reservation should call the Arboretum office, 273-8787, Monday, Tuesday, or Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Museum plans spring tours

The Newark Museum's "Spring Caravan" tour schedule of guided day and weekend trips via chartered motor coach will visit a selection of artistic and historic sites and museums from Connecticut to Virginia.

Newark Museum curators, experts in their fields, will act as guides for special viewings of galleries, exhibits, displays and art collections.

The season's first excursion on March 28, "The Complete Winterthur," will explore the Winterthur Museum, one of the country's largest and most comprehensive collections of American decorative arts. Particularly noteworthy are holdings in American furniture; a two-hour tour interprets rooms dating from 1640-1840. The fee is $45.

On Thursday, April 2, "Behind the Scenes at Carnegie Hall and The Met" will allow groups to see the beautifully restored Carnegie Hall. After lunch, the tour visits the Metropolitan Opera. The fee is $35.

Collectors of "Americana" consider the Philadelphia Antique Show outstanding. The Newark Museum will visit the show on April 6, enabling tour members to view over 50 separate exhibits, as well as a special exhibit saluting the signing of the Constitution. The $42 fee includes a gourmet lunch.

Capture the splendor of springtime in Virginia on the museum's "Garden Week in Historic Virginia" tour of legendary homes, gardens and museums in Richmond and Williamsburg, from April 20, through April 24. Stops will also be made at the DeWitt Wallace Decorative Arts Gallery and the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts, as well as the azalea display at the National Arboretum. The inclusive tour fee is $475.

Gardens are again the subject of two "Spring Garden Series" outings. On April 23, enjoy the beauty of Pennsbury Manor, William Penn's reconstructed home and gardens, then journey to neighboring Bowman's Hill Wildflower Preserve, a sanctuary in Pennsylvania's Bucks County which should be at peak flowering. On May 20, visit the many gardens within the Brooklyn Botanic Garden, including the research herbarium, which is not usually open to the public. The two-tour package, which includes box lunches, costs $56; individual tours are $30 each.

A day trip will visit two remarkable Philadelphia collections, Barnes and Arnsberg, on May 2. The Barnes Foundation has outstanding collections of Impressionist and Post-Impressionist art. After lunch at Frankie's Trattoria, visit the Philadelphia Museum of Art to see the Waller and Louise Arnsberg Collection of early 20th-century European and American art. The $44 fee includes lunch.

The tour, "New York Mansions Uptown and Down," on May 27, starts with a visit to Gracie Mansion, the Federal-style country house that serves as the mayor's residence. Next, tour the Cooper-Hewitt Museum, housed in Andrew Carnegie's mansion, to see the exhibitions, "Folding Fans" and "Louis Sullivan: The Function of Ornament." Enjoy a private luncheon at the National Arts Club, then a journey to neighboring Belmont's Hill Wildflower Preserve, a sanctuary in Pennsylvania's Bucks County which should be at peak flowering. On May 20, visit the many gardens within the Brooklyn Botanic Garden, including the research herbarium, which is not usually open to the public. The two-tour package, which includes box lunches, costs $56; individual tours are $30 each.

"Glass of the Caesars," the most important exhibition of Roman glass ever assembled, is the focus of a two-day trip to the Corning Museum and Corning Glass Center in New York State on June 3 and 4. A private after-hours "banquet" featuring authentic Roman recipes, guided tours, overnight accommodations at the Corning Hilton Inn, box lunch en route and dinner at a country inn all make this a perfect late-spring ramble. The fee is $101.

Feminine look in Traditional styles are what's "new" in spring formal wear this year. The looks are distinctively feminine, and colors are soft and pretty.

Ruffles, puffs, lace and bows all lend excitement to simple bodices, while back details, such as deep V cuts, add interest. According to Susan Thompson, dress buyer for Susie's, a national chain of women's apparel stores, there are "increasing trends" in tea lengths, which are cut just below the calf.

Pink continues to reign in the No. 1 position on the color chart, while pale yellow, aqua, peach, blue and lavender also remain popular. In addition, some jewel tones, such as red, royal and teal, are being shown.

Lace gloves, pearl jewelry and fancy hair ornaments all add feminine touches, while mid-to-high-heeled pumps complete the look.

According to Bill Wyatt, women's dress shoe buyer for Kinney Shoes, shoe styles "are starting to open up a little," with lots of cutouts and open toes. Lace, satin and peau de sole are excellent choices since the materials can easily be dyed to match the dress.

I kept gaining and losing the same 20 pounds. Then I said, this time it's going to be different.

I tried every pill, every gimmick to lose weight. Only to feel miserable when I gained it all back. Equally I said no, never again—this time I'm going to Diet Center. I lost the weight, without hunger. And I'm keeping it off.

My only regret? Not going sooner!

Trio's new album

BY MILT HAMMER

Best of The New Albums... Gold Castle Records presents its new digitally recorded album by Peter, Paul and Mary, "No Easy Walk To Freedom."

This LP contains all new songs beautifully sung with the same energy and enthusiasm that we have come to expect from these three living American legends, Peter, Paul and Mary.

Twenty-five years ago, three young folk singers combined talents and made their debut at Greenwich Village's Bitter End coffee house. The rest has literally been history for Peter, Paul and Mary. Perhaps no other performing group has been as involved in the struggles for country and what you have is easily the best collection of Peter, Paul and Mary songs in many years.

Peter feels, "Events are on the move. We see an energy on the campuses once more. There are important musicians writing political songs again. And there are events like Live Aid and Farm Aid." So for Peter, Paul and Mary, there is not so much a sense of full circle as there is of continuity.

A quarter of a century later, P.P.M. remains a vital, contemporary force committed to the classical values of peace, equality and justice.

The Art Center's school has grown through the years and now offers approximately 60 classes each semester, seven days a week, 36 weeks annually, to more than 2,800 students. The accredited classes program is consistent with the center's goal for providing visual arts education.

With the newly-accredited courses, the Art Center also has announced a name change. In December the Art Center membership voted to change the center's name to the New Jersey Center for Visual Arts. The name change was effective on Feb. 18.

The name, New Jersey Center for Visual Arts, was chosen because it more accurately describes the geographical area of the cultural community served by its many educational programs. The new name is also consistent with the direction established by the center's recently initiated outreach program.

Geographically, members reside in 13 of New Jersey's counties and 20 of the state's 211 towns and townships. It was reported—while more than 95 percent of the center's members are from New Jersey, only 20 percent of the membership is from Summit. Faculty members reside in New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania. Artists exhibiting at the Art Center during 1986 came from all over the United States, with the largest concentration coming from the tri-state area. The annual Juried Show "attracted competing artists from eight foreign countries." Visitors to the center's exhibitions are primarily from New Jersey and the eastern United States.

The 1987 winter semester also marks the beginning of a new, career-oriented graphic design program. The program began with the recent purchase of a graphic arts camera, "made possible by a generous contribution from Merck & Co. Inc.," the addition of a professional graphic designer to the teaching staff and a design workshop filled to capacity in December. This new component will continue this term with a 12-session class, "Graphic Design," which will include instruction in all design processes, from design concept to production.

The long-range planning committee has targeted the Art Center's outreach program as a major area for development. In addition to bringing school and adult groups to the Art Center, plans are underway to design programs for other agencies and communities throughout the state.

New Jersey Center for Visual Arts is open to the public seven days a week free of charge. Additional information can be obtained by calling 273-9121.

Keimach aids youths

Maestro Brad Keimach, music director of the Westfield Symphony Orchestra, last week presented 45-minute workshops in Westfield and Mountainside elementary schools.

"This is the latest activity in our continuing aesthetic education program which has already included workshops on such elements as form and dynamics," says Keimach.

The workshops are part of a month-long program which will culminate with a "Young Peoples' Open Rehearsal" with the symphony on March 28 at The Presbyterian Church in Westfield.

This season alone, more than 2,500 kids in the two communities will be reached by the Symphony's educational programs which are being sponsored by the Frank and Lydia Bergen Foundation, First Fidelity Bank, Trustee, based in Morristown.

The multi-faceted program is being tapped by the Audio-Visual Department of the Westfield Schools and will be aired on public access TV.

The "Young Peoples' Open Rehearsal" begins at 4 p.m. and is free. Students must be accompanied by a parent. Tickets are required.

Mancini set for concert

Henry Mancini, famous composer and musical arranger, will perform a benefit concert for the Consolata Society for Foreign Missions, Wednesday, at the new Marriott Hotel in Hanover. Mancini will be accompanied by the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra during the performance.

Mancini, who has written "Moon River," "Days of Wine and Roses," "Victor/Victoria" and many others for Hollywood films, is a four-time Oscar winner and has received 20 Grammy awards. He will conduct selections from his famous works for the audience.

Mancini has played for the Queen of England, several United States presidents and heads of state and dignitaries. For his $250,000 plus in scholarships and grants—benefiting budding musicians, he is "one of but six to be named an honorary alumnus of UCLA" and has been mentioned in the Congressional Record of the United States. He has received four honorary doctorates of music. During the 1960s he scored music for motion pictures and TV themes.

The "Mancini touch" will lead the Consolata Fathers and the Consolata Sisters of the Hospital Relief to provide a new Leprosy Hospital and Center "for the destitute of Ethiopia."

Corporate and individual donors are being sought to contribute to this charity by purchasing tickets or a table of 10 for the Mancini concert and banquet; it was announced. Additional information can be obtained by calling Brother Mario Petriano, director of the Committee for Gambro Hospital Relief, at Consolata Missions, 297-9191.

Exhibitions at hospital

Oil and watercolor paintings by members of the Westfield Art Association are on exhibit "in the local on-going loan shows this winter." The paintings at Children's Specialized Hospital, Mountainside, were created by Marga Blaser, Thomas Bradley, Violet Brennan, Mildred Dawson, Joan Watterson, Dorothy Wilkinson, Etke Sanderson, Marga Voegele, Dorothy Weiss and Joan Mund.

A percentage of each sale will be donated to the hospital by the artist, it was announced. The show is open to the public during daytime hours through tomorrow. Arrangements to see the exhibit can be made by contacting Shirley Biegler, hospital community resources coordinator. Paintings on exhibit in Midland Park, Westfield, are by Diane Tower, Heidi Hyman and Patricia Bollinger. Works in oil in The Little Shop, Westfield, are painted by Dorothy Skrba.

Rehearsals have begun for cantorum

Rehearsals have begun for the 25th season of New Jersey Schola Cantorum. New singers are invited to rehearse at Wilson Memorial Church, 7 Valley Road, Walchung.

Singers in all voice parts will be welcomed. More information can be obtained by calling 755-0654.

Your Horoscope

For week of Mar. 19

ARIES (3/21-4/19) This is your week for surprises, but take them in stride. All will work out to your advantage. You've been experiencing some negative jealous feelings in your relationship, but if you're willing to put this aside, romance will be favored as well this week.

Taurus (4/20-5/20) Although you bring a great deal of yourself to your work, be careful not to mix business with pleasure this week. It won't be beneficial. Someone close to you has been acting quite strangely lately. Try to reach out and find out what's going on. You can be of some help.

GEMINI (5/21-6/20) You want to do things your own way, but this won't go over too well at work. Look for a way to achieve mutual cooperation. Your low life is definitely on a high this week. This might be the time to consider a proposal.

MOON CHILDREN (6/21-7/22) Pay close attention to your appointment book. You've been missing up when it comes to getting to meetings on time. This weekend would be a good time to tackle some redecorating chores at home. You'll like what you accomplish.

LEO (7/23-8/22) Stop trying to be one-up on your partner. You're not in competition. Although things are not going as well as you'd like, this period will soon pass. Family life is favored this week, so relax and enjoy the harmony.

VRGO (8/23-9/22) Unfortunately, those at home aren't quite pleased with the changes you've been making. Don't worry. They'll soon come around to your way of thinking. Be wary of a jealous co-worker this week.

LIBRA (9/23-10/22) You are at your creative best this week. However, don't let this flow be interrupted if something unexpected happens. Take this in stride. Your lover seems to be in a cantankerous mood, but avoid the temptation to fight. Remember to stick to your budget this weekend.

CAPRICORN (12/22-1/20) You will receive some startling news which might cause you to rearrange your plans right now. However, things are happening in which you're not aware which will give your career that added boost. Avoid spending too much this weekend.

AQUARIUS (1/21-2/19) All is not well at home this week, so do your best to appease ruffled family members. You will receive some good news from a friend who lives far away, prompting you to want to visit. Think this through. It might be a good idea.

SCORPIO (10/23-11/21) Someone is going to approach you with a "sure bet." Don't be taken in by this. If you do give in, you'll wind up a very sad loser. Find some time to be alone and think about what your future plans should be. Be sure to give some attention to loved ones as well.

SAGITTARIUS (11/22-12/21) Family members will express their concern over your recent unconventional behavior. Try to listen to what they're saying. They have some good advice. Friends, on the other hand, will express their approval, causing more confusion.

Anniversary bash planned

Wade Knowles, vice president of the Manor, has announced that a gourmet reception and chef's table is planned for the week of Nov. 15 to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the founding of Thomas A. Edison's laboratory in West Orange. "1987 is the year of anniversaries. The Manor's 50th and Edison's 100th anniversary of his affiliation with the town of West Orange. It's our pleasure to join in honoring the creative genius of Edison with a magnificent dinner that will include re-creation of displays, inventions and foods from the era. Our staff has been spending months researching the archives of the county and the museum so that the dinner will be as authentic as possible."

Anyone interested in receiving further information regarding this event should contact The Manor, Special Edison Events Department, 111 Prospect Ave., West Orange 07082.

County agency offers radon information for homeowners

In recent months, a great deal of attention has been focused on the possible health hazards of radon gas. What is radon? More importantly, is it really something to worry about or just another "scare" that will soon be forgotten? According to Stephen Bachelder, county agricultural agent, "Radon gas is a naturally occurring element that is produced as uranium undergoes its normal process of decay." Thus, radon can be found wherever uranium exists. Although a few serious problems have been associated with industrial wastes from uranium processing operations, health officials are mainly concerned about natural deposits of uranium.

Health officials are concerned about radon because exposure to high concentrations of this has been associated with lung cancer in uranium miners. In recent years, a few houses among the many thousands surveyed have been found to have extremely high levels of radon that actually exceeded the concentrations seen in mines. Such high levels of radon pose a considerable risk to occupants' health and need to be identified as soon as possible. For houses with lower levels of radon, risks are thought to become progressively lower as well. The Environmental Protection Agency has provided guidelines for the urgency of dealing with different radon concentrations. Readings below 4 picocuries per liter probably require nothing more than a few confirmatory measurements. Extremely high levels, 200 pCi/l or above, require immediate action and the home may need to be temporarily vacated. If high readings are obtained, local health department officials will usually have confirmatory tests done at no charge. Testing is easily done with relatively inexpensive kits that are exposed in the home for a few days or weeks and then returned to the laboratory for confidential analysis. For a listing of some firms that offer radon tests kits, contact the Rutgers Cooperative Extension of Union County office, 306 North Avenue, East, Westfield, 07090.

"Large portions of central and northern New Jersey have the sort of geologic structure associated with uranium, which has, in fact, been discovered in some areas. Unfortunately though, we do not presently have a map that can tell

New Peugeot site:
Westfield Peugeot, one of the largest foreign and used car retailers in New Jersey, will open its fourth location on Routes 1 & 2 at South Elmora Avenue, Elizabeth, as a result of a transaction negotiated by the Archie Schwartz Company. The Schwartz team involved in the transaction included sales representative, Allan Gallagher, vice president, Daniel Enculescu, and senior vice president, Harvey Fern. "Westfield Peugeot had been looking for a prime real estate location for months and we were able to select a high-visibility site on the Bay Way traffic circle," says Enculescu. Westfield's other locations are in Roselle, Westfield and South Broad Street, Elizabeth. The company was represented in the transaction by its president, Joseph Gayer. The property was purchased from Edward A. Cantor and Leo Masin, New Jersey real estate investors and developers.

Realtor honors
"Eagles do not flock. You find them one by one" was the theme of Burgdorff Realtors' Awards Dinner March 1. Jean Burgdorff, company president, invited 568 sales and support staff and spouses in dinner and dancing. Burgdorff dedicated the evening to Burgdorff's "sales force" and honored the company "eagles" - top producers - for exceptional accomplishments.

Burgdorff's top 10 producers were thanked with a gift of Steuben eagles. The 1986 Top Producer of Burgdorff's 250 associates was Mary Frey of the Mendham office, with nearly $16 million in her credit. Judy Corney of Burgdorff's relocation also received a Steuben eagle, exceptional achievement in corporate account management. Three "Extra Mile Awards" were given to support staff members for service above and beyond. The Burgdorff company participated in the Great American Smoke-Out and those who quit smoking were each awarded four Broadway theater tickets.
