Warns parents on summer's freedom

When raising adolescents, "I've been doing what you need, not what they want," according to Dr. Miller Newton, an expert who has worked with thousands of troubled teenagers and their families.

"The parents' job is to keep their kids safe during the crucial years from 11-23," Newton says. "And with summer here, the game is to determine how much freedom adolescents can handle and where to put the fences. Parents need to supervise, to see that their youngsters are kept constructively busy," he says, "and to know who are the other adults in their children's lives."

Newton is founder and clinical director of KIDS in Hackensack, a rehabilitation center for youngsters with drug, alcohol, eating disorders and compulsive behavioral problems. The residential program, now in its fourth year, relies on family involvement and peer pressure, and according to Newton, provides a structure that helps to bring stability to lives which have fallen apart.

KIDS serves families from New York, New Jersey and neighboring states, but many families come from greater distances.

Newton warns parents about the possible danger of too much free time for adolescents this summer. He spoke of crack as the new temptation in the summer drug scene.

"Every day," Newton says, "thousands join the thousands who are abusing alcohol and drugs. Summer is a very tempting time for these kids to become involved. If they are hanging around a lot and coming in at irregular hours," he notes, "parents frequently don't notice the warning signs."

"When it comes to trust, Newton says that teenagers are risk takers. He trusts "teen-agers to be teenagers; to learn by experimentation and trial and error."

"A few beers" is no big deal, Newton says, but parents are lulled by the idea that all their kids are into a few beers. But, says Newton, in many cases, beer is used as a drug for a quick high. The kids don't trip, they chug-a-lug," he says.

He recommends that parents do everything possible to keep adolescents involved this summer with jobs, courses, athletics, volunteer work and other activities. Free activities with other kids are fine, too, he believes, if there's a parent in the background.

Adolescence is a period of seeking role models, Newton notes, and youngsters will often identify with aunts, uncles, and other relatives who are younger than their parents, with coaches, movie heroes and others. Parents should be tuned in to who these other adults in their kids' lives are, Newton believes.

"You can't always depend on the youngster to find his own job and activities," he says. "You may need to get on the phone and investigate opportunities. Even if it's a no-pay situation, it can be valuable for growth," he notes.

"Growing up is no longer happy days," Newton says. If your kid is angered and frustrated by your supervision, Newton recommends suggesting the answer. "Know your role," he says. "You don't have to be their buddy. If you do what they want, you may hurt them," he says.

As for keeping kids safe, Newton points out that every age group in America with the exception of teens, has a declining death rate, and that there are 100,000 single car accidents every year involving adolescents, many of whom were intoxicated.

Voc-ed goals to raise standards

The New Jersey State Board of Education has proposed a resolution that would establish two major goals for secondary vocational education in New Jersey.

The goals, if adopted by the board this month, would form the basis of a comprehensive planning effort for secondary vocational education in the state. They are:

1. All secondary vocational education students will attain the same level of basic skills as non-vocational students in New Jersey; and

2. Secondary vocational education occupational training programs should result in the student obtaining a job in the occupation for which he or she was trained, or in a related job.

"These are not new goals - they reflect our existing expectations for secondary vocational education," said Commissioner of Education Saul Cooperman. "In proposing this resolution, the state board is acting to affirm its support for these longstanding goals.

"As the state's economy becomes more complex, all students will need higher order thinking skills to compete successfully in the job market," the commissioner said. "New Jersey must have a vocational education system that combines training in academics, employability skills and occupational skills if our students are to succeed and if our economy is to remain strong."

"Therefore, I am recommending that the state board adopt these goals for vocational education, which will form the basis of a comprehensive planning effort for secondary vocational education," Dr. Cooperman said.

"Last year, 34 percent of all New Jersey high school graduates completed employment preparation programs and 47 percent of the Class of 1986 took at least one vocational education course," said Gordon Ascher, assistant commissioner for vocational education.

"Whether vocational students enter the work place immediately after graduation or pursue higher education, they must be able to read, write, compute and think critically," said Ascher. "Job skills without academic skills cannot prepare students for the future. To earn diplomas, all students must be able to pass the High School Proficiency Test and meet the core graduation requirements."

Addressing the second proposed goal for vocational education, Ascher said, "Students should be able to expect that vocational education programs will prepare them for entry-level jobs. All programs should be sensitive to the requirements of the job market."

Four types of schools provide vocational education in New Jersey: full-time county vocational schools, shared-time county vocational schools, local area vocational school districts, and comprehensive high schools.

As for keeping kids safe, Newton points out that every age group in America with the exception of teens, has a declining death rate, and that there are 100,000 single car accidents every year involving adolescents, many of whom were intoxicated.

County 4-H to hold fair

Members of 4-H clubs from throughout Union County will display their projects on July 25 at the annual 4-H Fair, to be held at the Trailside Nature & Science Center, Coles Avenue and New Providence Road, Mountainside. The fair is open to the public and admission is free. The fair exhibits will open to the public at 10 a.m. with a ribbon-cutting ceremony presided by Freeholder Michael J. Lapolla. Small animal judging will also begin at that time. Fair visitors can view the many 4-H project entries made, grown, and raised by Union County 4-H members. These entries will be judged on July 25 by judges using the Danish system of evaluation, which means that each entry will be judged against a standard for that product. Each judge will be asked to choose a "Best in Division" for entries in clothing, food-nutrition, crafts, veterinary science, swimming, photography, gardening, small animal and more. Entries in the 4-H Prep Division, for children between the ages of 7 and 12, will be awarded participation ribbons only. There will be many featured events held throughout the day. Children can enjoy a hayride or pony ride, buy a 4-H balloon, watch a Planetarium show, play games, watch demonstrations with Seeing Eye dogs, dog obedience, and K-9 dogs. They may bring their pet to the Open Pet Show. Refreshments will be sold by the 4-H Association. At 4 p.m., there will be a sheep shearing.

To-auction bikes

Some 77 unclaimed bicycles in the possession of the Elizabeth Police Department will go on the auction block on July 20 at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chambers. Persons interested in bidding are invited to view the items from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, July 18, at police headquarters.

County moves closer to museum site choice

By JOHN A. GAVIN
Union County is one step closer to having a permanent county museum site. Last week the county Board of Freeholders, during an agenda session, gave its informal consent for county officials to arrange to lease the Andrew Hampton-St. John's Parsonage, a 200-year-old house overlooking the Elizabeth River. If approved, the parsonage, which is located adjacent to Elizabeth High School on Pearl Street, would become home for the county's Office of Cultural and Heritage Affairs. That office is now housed in the county's Westfield annex.

"A formal resolution to continue negotiations over a leasing agreement is expected to be approved at tonight's regular freeholder meeting," Freeholder Michael Lapolla, a proponent for utilizing the historic building as a home for such a museum said. "We've talked about establishing a county museum. The parsonage is vacant and the foundation would like to see someone use it and make it available to the public." The building, which was originally built in 1897 by Andrew Hampton, a Scotch Quaker, is one of several landmarks owned by the Elizabethtown Historical Foundation and is listed on the state and national Registers of Historic Landmarks. A cornerstone still bears the date and the builder's initials. The building was later purchased as a parsonage for St. John's Church in 1748. A one-story wing, which is intact today, was added in 1795. "There are not many buildings in the entire country that are this old and in this good shape," Lapolla added. "The location is ideal. It's right in the middle of the Septimier site, where we have thousands of people visit for the county's fall fair." The Elizabethtown foundation no longer has the financial resources to operate the building and has offered it to the county to serve as a museum and a home to the county's Cultural and Heritage Commission. Lapolla said that the building has remained unused because the foundation cannot afford the cost of maintenance. A freeholder committee was established several months ago to consider various sites for a county museum, and the board withheld making a formal commitment on any site until now. The freeholders agreed to move ahead with leasing the facility for $10,000 a year. Freeholder Chairman Alan Augustine said, "I think we should ensure that the building is preserved for posterity."

New program to help abused kids

Union County will implement a model program that will represent the best interests of abused and/or neglected children, including those for whom home placement is being determined in Family Court, according to Linda Jeter, coordinator of the County Appointed Special Advocate Program. This program will utilize the existing "Child Placement Review Board" as a screening mechanism for assigning a CASA to a case, with the CASA acting as a neutral-fact finder. However, the presiding Family Court Judge will make the final decision in appointing a CASA to a case. "A Court Appointed Special Advocate is a trained volunteer who is appointed to represent the best interests of a child, who is usually a victim of abuse and/or neglect," Jeter says. "Many of the children are also having home placement determined in Family Court." CASA volunteers investigate cases by talking with the child, parents, family members, social workers, school officials, health providers and others to learn about the child's history. They also review all the child's records, including school, medical and case worker reports. This crucial background check provides valuable information that assists in the decision made pertaining to the child, and as an independent appointee of the court can make a recommendation to the court that is also independent of state agency restrictions.

Fahey appointed chairman

Union County Freeholder Brian W. Fahey of Westfield has been appointed to serve as chairman of the Committee on Resolutions of the Democratic State Committee's Platform Committee. The Committee on Resolutions will be responsible for making the final determinations regarding the Democratic platform for the 1987 election. In late August the committee will be submitting its report to the State Democratic Committee for adoption. The process will involve convening various task forces and holding hearings throughout the state on issues. The Democratic Party believes to be of prime importance to the residents of New Jersey. "I am very proud to have been appointed to this committee because it will allow me to have a direct impact on some of the issues and ideals which the Democratic Party will be proposing to the citizens of this great state," Fahey said.

Council conducts campaign

As summertime approaches the Union County Council on Alcoholism Inc. is seeking area residents to party in a responsible manner. The council is conducting a public information and awareness campaign called S.O.B.E.R. - Slow on the Bottle, Enjoy the Road, for adults; and Stay off the Bottle, Enjoy the Road for young people. The campaign is designed to alert people to the dangers of drinking and driving. Alcohol-related highway deaths are the number one killer of 15-24 year olds. Drivers 16-24 years old represent 20 percent of the licensed drivers and less than 20 percent of total miles driven and yet account for 42 percent of all fatal alcohol-related crashes. In 1984 there were 44,241 highway deaths in the nation; 929 in New Jersey, and according to the National Highway Safety Administration, 23,500 or 53 percent were alcohol-related. Nationally, 50 out of every 100 persons will be involved in an alcohol-related crash during their lifetime. Individuals interested in receiving their free copy of Party with Perrier, Drinks on Us... a pamphlet of non-alcoholic beverages recipes, can stop by the council office, 300 North Ave., East Westfield, 07090, Monday-Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. or send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Council requesting the pamphlet.

TESTING WINDOWS—Max Schwartz of B & M Aluminum on Morris Avenue, Union, demonstrates some of his quality merchandise.

The place for windows and doors

Having been in business for 32 years installing replacement windows, sliding storm windows, doors and so forth, B & M Aluminum, 2064 Morris Ave., Union, has gotten a pretty good idea of what its customers want. "We offer expert installation, service and guarantee and reliability," said owner Max Schwartz. "We have been serving the public 32 years on Morris Avenue. We must be doing something right." Inspired to enter the business 32 years ago when he needed to replace storm windows in his own home, Schwartz gives his customers quality work. Selling two types of window and door frame products at reasonable prices, Schwartz likes to give his customers throughout the Union County area an honest and efficient job for their money. "We start and finish a job," he said. "The time element is between four and seven days approximately for sliding." For replacement windows, most jobs take one day or less, he said, and all merchandise is guaranteed. "Our supplier guarantees the products to B & M and we, in turn, guarantee them to the homeowner," said Schwartz. And, once a particular job is started, the customer gets the best in punctual and professional service. "Each one of our installers knows his job very well," Schwartz explained. Over the past 32 years, that kind of attitude has built B & M a steady clientele, with customers coming not only from Union and nearby Kenilworth, but from other further-away municipalities like West Orange and Bloomfield. Almost all of B & M's business comes from referrals. With that clientele, Schwartz maintains a personal relationship, somewhat of a novelty in an age when hi-tech is the byword for many businesses. B & M uses no answering machines, instead preferring to deal with each customer directly and personally to determine what each wants and needs. "The customer is buying the quality of the dealer here," he said. "We have no machines or phone answering equipment. We're the place of business and people rely on that." As such, B & M installs nearly 100 percent of all the merchandise it sells. B & M Aluminum is open Monday through Saturday from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Springfield, Union settle for two-night split

By MARK YABLONSKY
It certainly wasn't the most memorable doubleheader that's ever been played in American Legion competition. And because of fierce thunderstorms the previous two nights, it very nearly wasn't played at all. But in the end, both Springfield and Union were able to walk away with a split of their two-night doubleheader last Thursday at Rabkin Field in Union.

Springfield, a 12-6 team that is recognized as one of the strongest competitors in Union County League play, awoke from its trance in the opener and erased a 4-0 deficit to capture a 5-4 win against Angel Martinez, who had successfully held the Post 228 team in check for the first five innings of play. In the nightcap, Union, behind a two-hitter from Chris Shaw, gained revenge in a 5-1 decision.

The twin bill itself did not begin until just before 6:30 p.m., due to the combined effects of both clubs to restore the field to playing capacity. Thanks to a mixture of rakes, wheelbarrows, kitty litter, newspapers, buckets and plain old elbow grease from players and coaches on both sides, the Rabkin playing surface was ready for play, although one very wet spot on the grass infield near the pitcher's mound that had been completely under water earlier was never quite up to par all night long.

With Union serving as the visiting club in the opener — since the postponement of the originally scheduled June 21 meeting between these teams in Springfield was the reason for the twin bill — it was Springfield that soon found its play not quite up to par. A run-scoring triple by A.J. DiGiovanni and an RBI single from Eric Maroyka gave Union a quick 2-0 lead in the first inning against Ned Elsner, who, aided by two double play balls in the second and fourth innings, hung on gamely through what would be a complete game, nine-hit effort.

In the meantime, Martinez, who walked three and struck out six, was able to fool Springfield batters with an assortment consisting largely of off-speed pitches. In between, a missed Springfield suicide squeeze play in the second inning and a sensational diving catch by DiGiovanni to rob Mike Gallaro of a run-scoring hit in the third, only made things worse for the Post 228 club, which could manage just two hits off Martinez until the sixth inning.

And after a throwing error by first baseman Frank Quinn had given Union a 4-0 lead an inning earlier, that's when Springfield finally was able to go to work. Interestingly, with Gallaro at bat with one out in the home sixth, and the count at 3-2, play suddenly stopped when the home plate umpire asked to examine the ball, following numerous Springfield complaints that Martinez had been "going to his mouth" while still on the mound. It was at that point when the tempo of the game changed.

Gallaro worked out a walk and advanced to third when Todd Richter lined the second of his two doubles down the right field line. Dave Lissy, lofted another double to deep right-center field for one run, and when Quinn reached first safely after rapping a grounder to second, it was now a 4-2 game. Quinn, who was safe on a dropped throw by first baseman Shaw, eventually scored the tying run when Elsner beat out a bunt for a run-scoring hit.

Then in the bottom of the seventh, Springfield struck for the game-winning tally. Lissy, who had scored his team's third run just after Quinn swept second base, was hit by a pitch and soon reached third on a hit-and-run effort with Quinn, who bounced a single up the middle and made it into second after a sliding run. Union added an unearned run in the fourth inning against starter and loser Frank Leonardis, however, a mishap at first base in the fifth led to a delay of nearly 25 minutes and appeared to cause serious injury to Quinn. With Richter at first and nobody out, left fielder Steve Mavrakas laid down a bunt that rolled to that saturated area near the pitcher's mound. Leonardis, who encountered difficulty with his footing on the play, flipped a low, somewhat off-line throw to first, forcing Quinn to reach for it, just as Mavrakas was reaching the bag.

The collision that ensued left Quinn on the ground in great pain with what appeared to be a hyperextended elbow. But somewhat miraculously, Quinn — who had to be carried off the field by stretcher — felt better the following morning and returned to throw a five-hit shutout against Berkeley Heights that night at Ruby Field in Springfield.

Another error and a short two-run single to right by Maroyka later in the inning capped Union's scoring. As has been the case for much of the season, Springfield gave it another go in their final at-bat, and took advantage of two walks and two hit batters to cut Union's lead to 5-1, still with the bases loaded and only one out. But Shaw reached back and whiffed Richter and Lissy to end the game.

"I'm thankful that we were able to walk out of there with a split," said Springfield coach Harry Weimerman, who strongly discounted the possibility that a soggy field could have rendered a negative effect on his team. "We could never have been as flat as we were, and to walk out of there with a win was lucky."

"I know we felt that we should have come away with two wins," said Union coach George Harris, who arrived at the field nearly 4½ hours prior to game time in order to work on improving the quality of the playing surface. "I think our defense is real good, and I hope our offense will come around. Because we're definitely a better team than our record will show."

With wins over Berkeley Heights, Westfield and Kenilworth, Springfield improved its mark to 12-5 by Sunday night, before losing at Elizabeth on Monday in a game that the Post 228 team finished under protest. Union beat Kenilworth the following evening to make the Rams 8-4 on the year.

After Union added an unearned run in the fourth inning against starter and loser Frank Leonardis, however, a mishap at first base in the fifth led to a delay of nearly 25 minutes and appeared to cause serious injury to Quinn. With Richter at first and nobody out, left fielder Steve Mavrakas laid down a bunt that rolled to that saturated area near the pitcher's mound. Linden's Sean Conte slides in safely to home plate for a first-inning run during Monday's game with Roselle at Memorial Park, after a single to center field by Jim Smith. Giants vs. Browns

The New York Giants will host the Cleveland Browns on Aug. 22 in an NFL pre-season fund-raiser to fight cancer and to provide scholarships and training by the New Jersey Press Foundation.

The defending Super Bowl champs will donate net proceeds from this game to the John V. Mara Memorial Fund for cancer research and the New Jersey Press Association's scholarship fund.

The Football Classic is the only cooperative effort between a sports organization and a state press association. Since 1977, more than $350,000 has been raised for journalism scholarships and educational programs.

Game proceeds have been used toward scholarships for college journalism students and newspaper carriers. The proceeds also benefit the Hugh N. Boyd Memorial Journalism Workshop, a two-week summer program for high-achieving students, New Jersey Press Institute seminars, Newspapers in Education, fellowships for journalism professors, and the Journalism Resources Institute of Rutgers University.

The Giants also contribute game proceeds to the Mara fund for cancer research. The late John V. Mara, who served as president of the Giants until his death in 1965, was the son of Giants founder, Timothy J. Mara.

Tickets are available at Giants Stadium and local ticket outlets.

Springfield awaits taut finish

By MARK YABLONSKY
With only eight games to play on its 1987 American Legion Union County — baseball — schedule, Springfield finds itself directly in the midst of what appears to be another multi-team dogfight for one of four available state playoff spots that may well last to the final out of the final game sometime next weekend.

As of Tuesday morning, there was just an 18-point spread among the first six teams in the standings, with Springfield alone in fifth place, just a point behind Westfield. By way of victories over Westfield and Kenilworth on Sunday, in fact, the Post 228 team improved its point total to 24, entering a week that is likely to be a strong determinant in deciding which teams will be in a position to enter the playoffs in the leads or leapfrog past other clubs in the standings.

It's becoming that close.

"We're playing very, very well," said Springfield coach Harry Weimerman, whose team has rebounded from a sluggish performance in a two-night doubleheader at Union last Thursday, in which a five-run rally during the final two innings of play in the opener salvaged a 5-4 win and a split of the twin bill. "Some of the guys who had been struggling at the plate are starting to come back. We're in the hunt. We're right here now. We have our destiny in our own hands."

Indeed they do. Just three points behind second place Clark, the Post 228 squad, following a disputed 9-5 loss at Elizabeth on Monday, had a home-and-home set — slated with Rahway for Tuesday night and Kenilworth for Wednesday night — which is expected to be a home contest with Hillside today at 5:45 p.m.

The one disappointment for Springfield came when the club lost a 5-4 decision in the bottom of the seventh inning at Williams Field on Monday night. An angry Weimerman, after seeing Dave Lissy permitted just three warmup losses in relief of brother Ken, who had designated hitter Earl Smith — informed the umpire that he was finishing the game under protest. Elizabeth's Juan Delgado later hit a grand slam home run to break a 5-5 deadlock in the rapidly approaching darkness.

The loss dropped Springfield's county league record to 12-6, with a final outcome on the protest expected to come shortly.

After tomorrow night's game with Kenilworth at Ruby Field, Springfield will host one other at-home game on Sunday morning at 10:30 a.m., the same Scotch Plains squad that lost, 5-4, to the Post 228 crew on June 20. In the same game that will have to face the likes of Roselle, Summit and Westfield in the last three games of the season — all on the road.

Springfield, in the meantime, will travel to Arminto Field for a rematch with Roselle on Tuesday, and then on to Memorial Park for a two-night doubleheader with Linden just one week from tonight. Linden, kept in mind, has been able to shake off a slow start and cannot be regarded lightly, what with an 11-9 record, despite losing a doubleheader to Scotch Plains on Sunday.

There is also the matter of Springfield re-scheduling a road game with Roselle Park, a contest that was washed out on the night of July 2, in what had been the second of a home-and-home set there as well. Yes, things are lightening up — and they may well get a lot lighter, barring any major injuries or sudden rash of rainstorms that would force a cluster of games to be played in rapid succession on or by July 26, which is the deadline for league play to end, with only the following day permitted as a last-minute makeup day.

As far as injuries are concerned, however, there is little doubt that Springfield has suffered what is more importantly, to Frank Quinn, who is the team's number two hurler and — as of Monday morning — the club's second leading hitter, suffered what appeared to be a devastating arm injury in the nightcap of the Union doubleheader, when Steve Mavrakas of the Rams collided with the Post 228 star as he was reaching for an off-line, fifth-inning throw from pitcher Frank Leonardis, who was slightly off-balance on the soggy Rabkin Field turf.

In tremendous pain, Quinn was later carried off the field on a stretcher with his left arm immobilized in a sling, while his teammates and other onlookers feared the worst in what was believed at the time to be a hyper-extended elbow. But amazingly and miraculously, Quinn made a quick recovery and returned the following night to hurl a five-hit shutout over Berkeley Heights, with 12 strikeouts sparking the 2-0 win.

His astonishing recovery coincided well with a renewed league effort that enabled Springfield to continue with its impressive wins over Westfield and Kenilworth two days later. The victory over Westfield, in fact, was a mirror image toward any playoff aspirations the Post 228 team has.

Down 3-0, to fourth place — Westfield after 1½ innings of play, Weimerman's ballers erupted for four runs against Chuck Mueller, one of the county's most talented ballplayers, who will attend Georgia Southern College in Statesboro, Ga., beginning next month.

Mike Smith, who has raised his batting average to .288, clipped the hard-throwing southpaw for a run-scoring single after Mueller had walked the bases full with only one out. Todd Richter, in his first game back in the leadoff position, then whacked a three-run double to center field that gave his team a 4-3 lead.

Richter, who will attend classes at the Georgia Institute of Technology in Atlanta this fall, then held the Post 3 team scoreless the rest of the way, allowing but three hits and one walk over the final five innings of play, along with six strikeouts, which gave the ace right-hander a sparkling 4-0 record and a 1.44 ERA.

Quinn added his second double of the game during a three-run outburst in the sixth, which put the much-needed win safely away.

Paul Small, Leonardis and Nick Gaozick, one of four Roselle Park transfers, then hurled a two-hitter over Kenilworth later in the day, as his club raced to a 9-1 win over an improved Kenilworth squad, which fell to 6-13 with the loss. For one hour, however, the outcome of the game was literally in limbo after the skies quickly became laden with rain-filled clouds that produced powerful lightning bolts — powerful enough to cause the umpires to halt play at the start of the fifth inning, knowing full well that both the metal backstop and aluminum bats are frightfully good conductors of electricity.

By while at least half of Springfield experienced drizzling rain for roughly 10 minutes, only a few harmless sprinkles fell at Ruby Field, a facility that would probably have become unplayable if too much of a downpour had occurred. After the lightning and concerns had abated, however, the game was played to its conclusion under cooler, bright blue skies.

"We've always finished with Westfield, which always gives you a battle," explained Weimerman, who is going with a three-day rotation this week, before coming back to giving his starters the customary four days of rest between starts next week. "We have our pitching rotation set up the way I want it, and hopefully things will start to work our way."

AWARD WINNERS

Michele Marqueton and Michael Krihak of David Brearley Regional High School in Kenilworth were among several athletes to be honored recently at the Union County Interscholastic Athletic Conference's 10th annual Scholar-Athlete dinner at the Town and Campus Restaurant in Union. Both students also were nominated for the James Caparo Memorial Award, which is named after the man who was instrumental in the formation of the Mountain Valley Conference.

7 get MVC honors

Two members of the David Brearley Regional High School baseball team were recently selected to the All-Mountain Valley Conference baseball team for 1987, while four other Brearley players and one from Jonathan Dayton Regional High were cited for Honorable Mention.

Pitcher Mike Chalenki and infielder Richard Lyons of Brearley both were named to the All-Conference "Squad," while pitcher Tim Riley, catcher Vin Rappa, infielder Ken Kinney and designated hitter Gary Faucher of Brearley received Honorable Mention status as well.

Pitcher Todd Richter of Mountainville, who had a 4-2 record and 1.96 ERA for Dayton, received Honorable Mention status as well.

Chalenki compiled a 4-4 record and a 1.16 ERA, along with three saves and 90 strikeouts in 97 innings of work, while Lyons led the Braves in hitting at a .422 clip.

Vacations for fun — and for learning

By VICKIE MOESER
Smithsonian News Service

Eddie Eismann claims loafing is one of his favorite hobbies. But one finds that hard to believe in light of his other pastimes. Since 1980, Eismann — an inquisitive man with an adventurous spirit and a strong interest in nature — has monitored the mating habits of Florida horseshoe crabs; patrolled St. Croix beaches where 900-pound leatherback turtles lay eggs and later chaperoned the hatchlings to sea; explored the linguistic aptitude of bottlenose dolphins; and photographed humpback whales and recorded their songs off the coast of Hawaii.

In the name of science, the 73-year-old retired bus driver from Philadelphia has also tagged howler monkeys in Central America; observed Przewalski's horses — (the world's largest surviving wild horse subspecies) in Holland; tracked black bears in North Carolina's Blue Ridge Mountains, and kept an eye on an active volcano in Costa Rica. A trip to Tonga to study giant clams is in the works.

Eismann, along with many other "like-minded" "civilians," prefers to share in the challenges and rewards of scientific discoveries — rather than lollygag around — crowded pools and beaches in his spare time. "I gladly pay to go on these scientific expeditions," Eismann says, "I feel I'm not only making a monetary contribution to various research projects, but by pitching in and helping out the scientists with the dirty work, I'm learning a lot, too."

Adventurers who prefer to keep their hands clean may wish to indulge their special interests — from astronomy to zinfandel — by choosing from a number of study tours also led by experts. These adult-education vacations — fun with a focus — make up the fastest-growing segment of the travel and tourism industry.

There are several organizations that match would-be volunteer research assistants with field research expeditions. Typically, teams are made up of about 10 members who share expedition expenses, with each volunteer putting up an average of $1,200 for room, board, field equipment and ground transportation. The cost does not include air fare to and from the staging area.

Although the 1986 Tax Act places some restrictions on travel deductions, expedition travel, including the volunteer's share of costs and all reasonable out-of-pocket expenses incurred en route to and from the field, may be allowed — if the volunteer can show that a significant portion of the time was spent in valuable charitable work. For that reason, it is a good idea to keep a daily log of expedition duties.

Earthwatch is the largest and perhaps best-known, non-profit organization of HANDS-ON — An Earthwatch volunteer gets some hands-on experience with her subject while working in Borneo on a project looking into ways to protect orangutans and their habitat. More than 180 volunteers have participated in this popular expedition studying one of our closest primate relatives.

English philosopher Francis Bacon wrote: "Travel, in the younger sort, is part of education; in the elder, a part of experience. There are as many reasons, people travel as there are travelers. Some enjoy exploring the unknown, others like plunging deeper into their special interests. Most delight in the company of kindred spirits."

Several groups, along with a number of colleges and universities, provide similar services. The University Research Expeditions Program, for example, specializes in "matching people from all walks of life with University of California scholars in need of assistance on research expeditions worldwide." UREP is sponsoring more than two dozen expeditions this year, from observing the maternal behavior of Australian sea lions to analyzing changes in jazz music in Puerto Rico.

No previous experience or specialized training is necessary to join a scientific expedition, although marine science projects may require scuba certification. On some research projects, physical stamina and the ability to scamper safely over rough terrain are desirable. "A well-developed sense of curiosity is one of the most important credentials for team members," adds UREP spokeswoman Rebecca Simon.

A sense of humor, patience and flexibility are also helpful, since living conditions in the field are often spartan. "Home" during that two-to-six week period may be a tent, a trailer, a dormitory or a castle — and may or may not include the usual conveniences. Often, cooking and cleaning chores are divided among the volunteers.

Dr. Larry Agenbroad, a geology professor at Northern Arizona University, has directed undergraduate, graduate students and more than 100

"Some of my best crews have been volunteers. They're eager, interested and willing to undertake all sorts of duties and challenges," he says enthusiastically. "They're motivated by something more than grade-point averages. And, data collected by volunteers has as much scientific validity as data collected by students."

Projects are selected on their research merit and with an eye toward being able to train volunteers in a short amount of time. "The ideal situation," explains Dr. William Melson, a geologist at the Smithsonian's National Museum of Natural History and an early support of lay people joining scientists in the field, "is the as volunteers learn specific tasks, they rotate duties and train one another."

Equally important is keeping the volunteers informed on how their work contributes to the big picture. "Within six months, the scientists send us field report, detailing the numbers and types of samples collected and quantifying various accomplishments," Earthwatch spokeswoman Elze Magruder says. "We forward that to the volunteers. Researchers also send us copies of their papers on projects that appear in scientific journals, which we also distribute. Often, the team members are credited for their assistance."
The participants are, after all, amateurs, and for the most part, the leaders are mindful that their needs and interests differ from those of paid laborers or other scientists. Dr. Vicki Funk, a Smithsonian botanist, puts it this way: "The volunteers' desire to work and learn is also mixed with their desire to have fun, enjoy themselves, see the countryside and buy souvenirs — all normal kinds of things."

"But they never forget they're not typical tourists. The volunteers are in the field because they've made a deliberate decision to make a contribution to science."
Funk and Melson were Eddie Elsmann's project leaders on a recent expedition to Costa Rica, tracing Arenal Volcano's history and studying how rain-forest plants regenerate on lava flows. They varied the daily routine of collecting and analyzing plant, rock and soil samples, along with around-the-clock monitoring of the volcano's eruptions, with nightly lectures on plate tectonics and local flora. A side trip to a national park to observe volcanic rock formations and a dry tropical forest and an occasional sing-along also were part of the itinerary.

"For the traveler who prefers the joys of learning without the delights of lugging through the jungle, a number of study tours are available through colleges and universities, alumni organizations and cultural institutions."
The Smithsonian Associates Travel Program offers more than 100 domestic and foreign destinations a year and is the largest museum-travel operation in the United States. The tours, led by experts from the museum or academic communities, are designed for many tastes and budgets, for range from studying the colorful coral reefs along the Florida Keys to attending classes at England's Oxford University.

Another study organization is Elderhostel, which offers the 60-plus set more than 850 back-to-school opportunities around the world each year. Colleges, universities and other educational institutions open their doors to Elderhostel participants who live on campus for a week or more and take up to three non-credit courses in science and liberal arts, taught by the school's faculty.

English philosopher Francis Bacon wrote "Travel" in the younger sort, is part of education; in the elder, a part of experience." There are as many reasons people travel as there are travelers. Some enjoy exploring the unknown, others like plunging deeper into their special interests. Most delight in the company of kindred spirits.
George Rosser, a radiologist from Charlotte, N.C., was thinking along these lines when he joined a group of Smithsonian Associates on a field trip to the Antietam Battlefield in Maryland. "It's really fun being with other Civil War buffs and discussing our mutual friends," he says, naming a few: "Abraham Lincoln, Robert E. Lee and Ulysses S. Grant."

SO I SEE — Smithsonian geologist William Melson helps volunteer Paul Lee, a retired Connecticut businessman, identify minerals in volcanic soils.

World-wide journeys beckon

A number of non-profit organizations pair amateur scientists with professional scientists conducting field research. Here is a partial list of such groups:

- Earthwatch, 680 Mount Auburn, Box 408, Watertown, Mass. 02272 (617) 925-8200
- Nearly 16,000 volunteers have contributed more than $8.6 million to 950 expeditions in 79 countries and 36 states since Earthwatch was founded in 1971. The organization has three goals: to support significant scholarship in the sciences and humanities; to encourage members of the public to participate in the solution of global problems that affect the quality of life; and to provide training for teachers and students. Earthwatch ranks with the National Geographic Society and World Wildlife Fund as one of the largest private sponsors of field research.
- University Research Expeditions Program, University of California, Berkeley, Calif. 94720 (415) 642-8556
- Launched more than 10 years ago at the University of California, Berkeley, UREP matches people from the general public who are interested in joining worldwide research expeditions with scientists in need of field teams and funding to continue their work in disciplines ranging from archaeology to zoology. Like Earthwatch, no special academic or field experience is necessary to participate in these expeditions.
- CEDAM International, Fox Road, Croton-on-Hudson, N.Y. 10520 (914) 271-5385

Founded 20 years ago, CEDAM — Conservation, Education, Driving, Archeology and Museums — is comprised of novice and experienced divers, marine biologists and underwater explorers, photographers and archaeologists. During the past few years, volunteers have studied Spanish shipwrecks, collected fish for the New York Aquarium and set up a long-term program to study the marine life of the Galapagos Islands. Expedition costs range from $700 to $3,000 per person.
For adventurous travelers who enjoy learning more about a particular area's culture or natural history, many groups offer study tours led by scientists, professors and other experts. Here is a partial list:

- Smithsonian Associates Travel Program, 1100 Jefferson Drive S.W., Washington, D.C. 20560 (202) 357-4700
- The Smithsonian Associates Travel Program offers culturally oriented domestic and foreign study tours led by museum curators and visiting scholars. The tours are a benefit of membership in the Smithsonian National Associate and Resident Associate programs and range in price from $1,200 to $3,500.
- Elderhostel, 80 Boylston St., Suite 400, Boston, Mass. 02116 (617) 426-8856
- Elderhostel, founded in 1975 for older adults, offers short-term academic programs at more than 1,400 educational institutions around the world. Elderhostel students live on the campus of their host college or university while taking up to three non-credit courses. Domestic, one-week programs cost $265.
- International Expeditions Inc., Suite 164, 1776 Independence Court, Birmingham, Ala. 35216 (304) 835-4724
- International Expeditions Inc. arranges some 120 natural history tours for zoos, museums, aquariums, universities and nature centers each year. An equal number of study tours, led by naturalists, are scheduled for individual travelers to 19 destinations worldwide. Costs, including international air, fare, meals and lodging, range from $1,199 to $3,595.

Whale-watching on Scouting agenda

A special unit of whale watchers has been added to the agenda at Camp Hoover this summer. Campers will spend two days at Camp Hoover preparing and enjoying camp, then head to Cape Cod for a whale-watching expedition.
The Whale Watch program was introduced and scheduled for June. It has been so popular that we've added another session to run Aug. 16-22," says Betsy Fabricant, director of Camp Hoover. Designed for all girls entering grades 6 through 12, the Whale Watch program includes a stay at Lake Wequaquet in Centerville, Cape Cod. The group will journey by boat to the famous Stellwagen Banks off Provincetown.
Information about the Whale Watch out of Camp Hoover can be obtained by contacting Washington Rock Girl Scout Council, 232-3234.

Truckers compete

The 33rd annual New Jersey Truck Driving Championship of professional drivers in the state heats up July 17 and 18 at Somerset Marriott in Somerset.

This elite group of drivers, many of whom have previously captured company safety and truck rodeo awards, compete in difficult-but-not-uncommon-on-the-road situations.
The competition is sponsored by the Council of Safety Supervisors of the New Jersey Motor Truck Association, a service organization that represents 1,400 trucking companies in the state.
The truck driving championships includes a pre-trip inspection of vehicles used in the course of driving. In this segment of the competition, drivers must find unsafe equipment defects planted by the judges. Drivers are also tested for their knowledge of federal regulations governing truck transport.
The rules of the competition have been set by American Trucking Associations of Washington, D.C. Winners in this state contest will compete in the national truck-driving championships in Ft. Worth, Texas, in August.

The public is invited to watch the driving competition on Saturday, July 18, 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Free parking will be available and refreshments may be purchased.

4-H plans hoedown

The Union County 4-H Youth Development Program will hold its first annual 4-H Hoedown on July 25 at the Trailside Nature/Science Center, Coles Avenue and New Providence Road, Mountaintide, 7:30 to 10 p.m.
People of all ages are invited to attend this square dance evening of 4-H folk fun. Those who attend can also return the next day to enjoy the 1987 Union County 4-H Fair.
Molly B. Wolfe, 4-H program associate, can be contacted for ticket cost and registration information.

Joseph Priestley not only discovered oxygen in 1774, he also discovered the way to make soda water.

Country music sparks park event

The Board of Chosen Freeholders and the Department of Parks and Recreation will present a "Country Western Revue" July 22 at Union County's Summer Arts Festival.
The concert will feature the New Jersey debut of Rattlesnake Annie, a country singer, song-writer whose first album for Columbia Records was released in April 1987.
Joining Rattlesnake Annie is Steel Angel, a popular group at past Summer Arts Festivals. The concert will be held at Echo Lake Park, Mountaintide/Westfield, and will begin at 7:30 p.m. Geoff Berne, a well-known producer of country western shows in the metropolitan area, will serve as guest emcee.
Rattlesnake Annie has attracted wide-spread attention over the past few years in recordings and concert appearances with Willis Nelson, with whom she sang a duet at the original Farm Aid concert, and other country western stars.

At age 12, Rattlesnake Annie's first group, "The Gallimore Trio," was first prize in the House Talent Opry contest at the Grand Ole Opry. Annie released her first single in 1977 and later that year was chosen the "Most Original Performer" at the Jimmie Rodgers Festival in Meridian, Miss. Her debut album "Rattlesnakes and Rusty Water" was released in 1980 and was praised by country music magazine writers in both Europe and America.
While in Europe, she became the first American country singer to record an album behind the Iron Curtain when she collaborated with Cheboshovska's Michael Tucey, on the LP, Rattlesnake Annie and the Last Cowboy. Annie's second album, "Country Livin'," was chosen one of 1986's best albums by Country Music magazine. The LP helped Annie gain more media attention and the recent recording deal with Columbia Records.

The Department of Parks and Recreation suggests that concert patrons to bring lawn chairs or blankets to sit on. A snack truck, dance floor, and Parks information booth will be available at the concert site. In case of rain, the concert will be held at Trailside Nature and Science Center, Coles Avenue and New Providence Road, Mountaintide.

Up, up and away festival set

Sights and sounds of bygone days are relived in Readington on July 17, 18 and 19 at the New Jersey Festival of Ballooning. It's the largest air show and balloon race on the east coast.
As many as 56 hot air balloons rise into the sky every night creating an unforgettable combination of colors, images and excitement.
But the balloons don't fly just to entertain the crowd of more than 60,000 at the New Jersey Festival of Ballooning is a championship balloon race for the northeast region of the United States.
Kemilworth heating and air conditioning contractors, Meyer & Depew Comany will sponsor one of the hot air balloons to take flight during the festival. Its balloon will fly to benefit the Lupus Erythematosus Foundation of New Jersey. Lupus, for short, is a disease of unknown cause and occasionally affects the internal organs.
Other aerial attractions at the festival will include an A-26 medium bomber, sponsored by Land'Corp., an old-time barnstorming airshow by the Flying Pioneers, the Fuji airship, the West point parachuters, and a spectacular fireworks display on Friday night by the Internationally acclaimed Sanlore Brother of Garden State Fireworks.
The public will also have the chance to fly in Lindbergh's original Ford Tri-Motor plane offering short sightseeing flights of Hunterdon County.

And there will be just as much excitement on the ground: an International Food Festival; a Revolutionary War encampment; a juried fine arts and crafts show; some of the finest antique planes in the country; a variety of antique cars, including hot rods from the 1930s; jugglers on the field; more than 40 businesses offering displays and product demonstrations; and free prizes and giveaways including two tickets to anywhere TWA flies.
The festival opens tomorrow at 5 p.m. and at 1 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Admission is $5 per person on Friday and $7 per person on Saturday and Sunday. There is no charge for children under 12 and parking is free.

Peacock's pride grounded it

BY DR. JOHN B. WOLF
Professor, Union County College
What bird would you choose to lead the Easter Parade up Main Street? I'd select the peacock. Replete with a crest and a long tail which has rainbow-colored eyelike spots; the male peacock can spread out its train like a fan. This bird is so splendid, that a fancy who struts and swaggers in fancy clothes could be considered vain — "vain as a peacock."
According to legend, the peacock once was without its beautiful feathers. Juno, Jupiter's wife and queen of the gods, favored this bird. One day it begged her for a train of feathers to distinguish it from the other birds. She granted the peacock its wish.

For the birds

Spurring its new finery, and sparkling with emerald, gold, purple and azure, the peacock strutted in a haughty manner among the other birds. Even the beautiful Golden Pheasant, a bird that frequents the mountains of a number of China's provinces; could see that its beauty was surpassed.

But it seems that the peacock sacrificed its freedom for the sake of pomp and show. One day it saw an eagle soaring in the sky and felt a desire to fly, as it had been accustomed to do. However, the weight of its beautiful tail held it down. Subsequently, the peacock recognized that it would have to strut on the ground forevermore as it was more encumbered than the chicken, turkey or any other common barnyard fowl.

On the checklist of the birds of the world, the peacock, quail, partridge and pheasant belong to the same order of birds. The peacock that is emblematic of multicolored television, the bird that you and I would quickly recognize in the wild, is known as the Common Pheasant. Its turf is the lowlands of the Indian Subcontinent and Sri Lanka; an Indian Ocean island once known as Ceylon. Its cousin, the Green Peafowl, is found from Bangladesh to Indochina and on the island of Java.

Although the peacock's 20-inch feathered fan has inspired fashion plates through the ages, its inability to fly is "FOR THE BIRDS."

Checks totalling $44,325 were presented to Union Hospital officials by its Guild Association at a recent installation dinner at the Galloping Hill Caterers, Union. The Guild Association also installed its 1987-1988 slate of officers at the event. The donation represented the culmination of a variety of fund-

Your Horoscope

For week of July 16
ARIES (3/21-4/19) Although you really won't feel it, you will be making much progress at work. You will find that this, but all will be fine. You need to utilize more patience and not expect things to reach fruition immediately.

TAURUS (4/20-5/20) Although socializing is favored this week, don't use your success to ask for any special favors from friends. By mid-week, you will find yourself in a rather nostalgic mood which could cause some lowering of spirits, but try not to give in to this.

GEMINI (5/21-6/20) This will be one explosively successful week for you concerning a certain project in your career. However, don't be surprised if a loved one isn't as elated as you. Perhaps, that person has been feeling somewhat ignored and requires attention.

SAGITTARIUS (11/22-12/21) Any activity concerning the spending of money is favored this week, whether it's investing, shopping or real estate. This bodes well for future success. Certain jealous friends will not cheer you on, but this will soon pass and they will delight in your achievements.

AQUARIUS (1/20-2/18) Someone close to you is sliding on a certain obligation which does not sit well with you. You will be tempted to confront the person, but this isn't the right time. There is a good reason for what's happening, so try to be patient and understanding.

PISCES (2/19-3/20) This is your week to pursue romance and recreation. Although a higher-up will not be as amenable about vacation time as you'd like, this advantage would be wise to spend a quiet weekend just relaxing and resting.

CAPRICORN (12/22-1/19) This is your week for friendship, business success and romance. You may have a hard time believing all this can happen to you and will tend to be pessimistic. Don't give in to it, and you will find your good streak will last much longer.

Plays Waterloo debut

Planiat Claudio Arrau will make his Waterloo Festival debut July 18, highlighting the fifth weekend of the Waterloo Festival's 1987 season. Arrau, a specialist in the music of Beethoven, will perform that composer's "Emperor" Concerto with the Festival Orchestra, conducted by its principal conductor, Gerard Schwarz.

Also on the program is a French work, Jacques Ibert's musical travelogue "Escapes," and Walter Piston's Fourth Symphony, one of this French-trained composer's most important works. The concert will take place at Waterloo Village, July 18 at 8:30 p.m. In addition, as part of the expansion of the Waterloo season under its artistic director Samuel Lipman, Schwarz and executive director Shirley Greltzer, the concert will be repeated July 20, at 8:30 p.m., in Richardson Hall on the campus of Princeton University, the new home of the Waterloo School of Music.

On July 20, visitors to historic Waterloo Village will hear a Waterloo Sampler Extravaganza. Festival performers from the Waterloo School of Music will be featured.

On July 23 at 7 p.m. in the tent, "The Hall" of Farmers, starring Fats Domino and Jerry Lee Lewis will appear.

More information and reservations for Saturday night buffet suppers can be obtained by calling the Waterloo box office at 347-4700.

Kindermusik sign-up starts

Monica Pelsing, a music teacher in Union, is holding two Kindermusik open houses for fall registrations on July 22 and 29 at 7:30 p.m. at the United Methodist Church, Overlook at Berwyn Street, Union.

Kindermusik is a specialized program of music learning and enjoyment for children ages 4, 5 and 6.

The program focuses on the development of the entire child as well as music education. Through a music curriculum, basic school readiness skills such as language, reading, gross and fine motor coordination and social interaction are developed. After the completion of the Kindermusik program, the child shows a developmental advantage of seven months in readiness for school as well as developing an intense interest in music.

The child's musical activities include singing and learning many songs, ear training, playing instruments, drama and movement, reading and writing, musical notation and acquaintance with instruments of the orchestra.

Pelsing, an experienced music teacher, received a degree in music education from Georgian Court College, Lakewood, and certification in preschool education from Kean College, Union. She has studied the Kindermusik program at Westminster Choir College, Princeton, earning credits to teach the curriculum.

Any parent wishing more information or planning to attend an open-house, may contact Pelsing at 864-9439. A description of the program and materials will be on display. Registration is on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Pop music performers offer aid

By MILT HAMMER
Best Of The New LPs for your listening pleasure: "Mega Hits '86" (MCA Records).

Since 1982, some of pop music's most respected artists have offered their music in support of the T.J. Martell Foundation for Leukemia and Cancer Research. This year, Mega is releasing the latest Martell fund-raising LP, "Mega Hits '86."

As its title implies, the album features 10 recent chart hits, each contributed by artists and labels to raise funds toward the foundation's vital work.

The roster of talent on "Mega Hits '86" is impressive: Belinda Carlisle, the Fabulous Thunderbirds, Aretha Franklin, Don Johnson, Patti LaBelle and Michael McDonald, Miami Sound Machine, Mr. Mister, the Moody Blues, the Outfield and Stevie Wonder. Even more notable is the reason behind this compilation—the ongoing fight of the T.J. Martell Foundation for the cause of humankind.

Named in memory of T.J. Martell, son of CBS Records executive Tony Martell, the foundation was organized in 1975 by a small group of record industry executives. It has established the T.J. Martell Memorial Laboratories at the Mt. Sinai Medical Center in New York City and the Neil Bogart Memorial Laboratories at the Children's Hospital in Los Angeles. Bogart, a pioneering record industry executive, was a cancer victim.

Through the continued support of artists and music business professionals at all levels, the foundation has raised over $12 million for research into the battle against cancer, leukemia and AIDS. Its scientific activities, towards which 97 percent of its contributions are directed, have attracted the aid of music stars from around the world.

Each year since the initial compilation release five years ago, a different "label" has offered—legitimately—distribution services on a nonprofit basis, with MCA taking on the duties of '87. For Tony Martell, this project reaffirms his faith in the record industry's compassion.

"I can't say enough about the artists, managers, attorneys and all other music industry people who have helped to make this successful," says Martell. "The writers and performers who made these records are, in effect, giving up a portion of their pay for a year—and I appreciate it deeply. The music industry has been involved in many wonderful charities in recent years, everything from USA for Africa to Farm Aid. Yet this particular charity was founded by the industry itself, and that shows a special kind of caring."

In sum, "Mega Hits '86" is a back-to-back of classics. The fact that the LP benefits an exceptional cause such as the T.J. Martell Foundation makes it all the more satisfying to hear.

Arts Center to present Basie tribute

The Union County Arts Center will present the Count Basie Alumni All-Stars, featuring Grover Mitchell, in a "Tribute to Count Basie" July 17 at 8 p.m. at 1601 Irving St., Rahway.

The late Count Basie, born and raised in Red Bank, "is considered one of New Jersey's great contributors to the arts." Basie's mix of big band swing and cool jazz has entertained four generations of music lovers. And now Grover Mitchell, a leading member of the Count Basie band for 22 years, continues that musical tradition in a tribute to the count at the historic Union County Arts Center.

Reservations can be made by calling the theater box office at 499-8226, Wednesday through Saturday, noon until 5 p.m.

Astaire retrospect

G & G Productions announces "Shall We Dance," a Tribute to Fred Astaire.

There will be anecdotes about Fred Astaire's life and career. In addition the program will highlight the singer who introduced more popular songs than Frank Sinatra and Bing Crosby combined. Over 40 songs with slides, spanning 70 years of his career, will be offered for the audience's entertainment.

"Shall We Dance" will be presented at G & G Productions resident theater, Community United Methodist Church, Chestnut Street and Grant Avenue, Roselle Park, on July 21, one night only, at 8:30 p.m. Admission is free.

Further information can be obtained by calling 351-3823.

MATURE HORIZONS

Heart disease toll decreases

By DR. JOHN KOSTIS
When it comes to the heart, there's both good and bad news. The good news is that the number of persons dying of heart disease annually has decreased by 30 to 35 percent over the figures two decades ago. The bad news is that heart disease is still the No. 1 killer of Americans.

It is important for the public to know that the treatment for patients with heart attack has changed dramatically over the past several years. Procedures and therapies that were considered exotic or experimental only a few years ago are now commonplace at such centers as Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital in New Brunswick.

Until now, heart attack was treated by "letting nature take its course" — that is, watching patients closely and responding quickly to any complications that might arise. Today, cardiologists can intervene before extensive heart damage occurs rather than reacting to what has been considered "inevitable" complications.

Heart attack is caused by the sudden blockage of a patient's coronary artery, which supplies the heart itself with blood. In the past, this blockage could not be corrected without bypass surgery. Today, two new techniques allow cardiologists to reopen clogged heart attack arteries quickly and safely without surgery.

At Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital, as well as some others in New Jersey, patients can receive potent medications to dissolve the blockage. This treatment may be successful in 40 to 70 percent of patients. If this is unsuccessful or only partly successful, the artery can then be reopened by the new technique called percutaneous transluminal coronary angioplasty (PTCA).

This treatment involves a small balloon attached to a thin plastic tube being inserted through the blockage from an artery in the patient's leg or arm. Physicians at centers doing this procedure have been successful with this therapy over the past two years.

By reopening the closed "heart attack artery," blood can again reach the damaged heart muscle, thereby reducing the size and extent of the heart attack. In turn, this may reduce a number of the complications that were previously believed to be inevitable.

Seniors are eligible

Senior citizens who meet certain conditions are eligible for energy conservation services worth up to $200, according to Public Service Electric and Gas Company's Energy Conservation Department.

"We expect about 8,000 residents to take us up on this offer this year," says Rosanne Barbagallo, energy conservation specialist, "and we're not surprised. It's free for many residents, and it saves heating costs, once it's in place."

Residents who are receiving Lifeline assistance, and are space heating customers of PSE&G, or electric customers heating with oil, are eligible. PSE&G customers can also qualify if they live in buildings in which both gas and electric are supplied by PSE&G, or in gas- and electric- buildings in communities in which the company supplies only the gas service, or in buildings in the company's "electric-only" territory, regardless of heating fuel.

Homeowners must get approval from landlords for the program. An installer inspects the home, or apartment, PSE&G conservation specialists note, to determine which of some 22 conservation measures are called for, and proceeds with the work involved at no cost to the customer. For those on Lifeline, there is no charge for the service.

PSE&G has been offering the program for two years. More than 10,000 installations have been made since the inception of the program. PSE&G officials are projecting another 8,000 installations in 1987, based on the interest demonstrated for it last year.

PSE&G maintains a toll-free number, 1-800-854-4444, during business hours Monday through Friday, for information on the program.

Restaurants are responding to diners' dietary concerns

By KAREN MONDRONE
Restaurants of all sizes are responding to the growing interest in health and fitness. With about 25 percent of the American population dieting and millions of others watching their salt, sugar and fat intakes, restaurants are luring customers to the table with fresh, lighter and more interesting cuisines.

The collage, cheese-hamburger patty diet plate is finally outdated.

Ten years after the publication of the "Dietary Guidelines for Better Health," food service has finally revised menus and chefs are being trained and prepared to deal with customer requests for broiled or baked lean meat, fish and poultry without rich sauces; stir-fried or steamed vegetables, whole grain breads and rice; fewer processed foods; more fresh fruit and vegetables; low-fat dairy products.

Some restaurants have applied the "lite" concept to the traditional burger meat. The result: leaner, all-beef burgers, life mayo and cheese, a choice of white or multi-grain buns, reduced calories and extra fiber, baked potato or fries, a vegetarian sandwich in pita bread, a salad bar, frozen yogurt dessert and sparkling apple juice.

If you've noticed they hear beside some entrees on menus then you've probably eaten at a restaurant participating in an American Heart Association approved nutrition program. In 1975 AHA began assisting restaurants with recipes and menus offering low-fat, low cholesterol entrees. If four or more are listed on the menu and the portions of fat-trimmed meat, skinned fish and poultry are not more than 6 ounces, less for organ meats, and shell fish, they are approved by AHA. There are specific criteria for dairy products, salads and salad dressings, oils, breads and desserts. There are no requirements for salt, but restaurants offering low-sodium dishes are rated in an AHA brochure listing participating restaurants.

Low-fat cooking is not synonymous with bland or boring foods. Many chain restaurants offer plain natural foods including baked potatoes, whole grains, pasta, salads, lean meats, poultry and fish.

Following a special diet or just trying to eat in a healthy style often requires asking questions and making special requests. The best approach is to be assertive without being demanding, and appreciative of efforts made by the restaurant staff. Questions you might want to ask are:

Express your preferences; restaurants will meet your interests and needs. So select carefully, and happy, healthy eating!

Gives retirement information

People who plan to retire in the near future naturally are concerned about their post-retirement income once they are no longer employed, says John H. McCutcheon, Social Security manager in Elizabeth.

People under 60 can also get an estimate of their benefits, but it will take a little longer. Those in this group can obtain a free form, Request for Statement of Earnings, fill it out and mark it to show they want a benefit estimate, and mail it. In return, they will get the information they want.

People who would like more information about estimating benefits should contact the Elizabeth Social office. The office is located at 342 Westminister Ave., and the telephone number is 1-800-272-1111.

Americans' eating habits change

For 20 years, cholesterol has been a household word. Americans, accepting its link with heart disease, have started changing eating habits, hoping to reduce heart attacks. Yet heart disease continues as the nation's number one killer, in spite of lowered cholesterol consumption.

The answer became clear. There is "good" as well as "bad" cholesterol and the way cholesterol in your blood is packaged is as important as how much cholesterol you have.

The "good" cholesterol is packaged in small lipoproteins — a combination of fat, cholesterol and protein — and has a high density.

This high density lipoprotein (HDL) is believed to be the scavengers that pick up cholesterol from the bloodstream and transport it to the liver, literally clearing the blood. The larger lipoproteins of lower density that tend to stick to the walls of arteries are called low density lipoproteins (LDL).

"As levels of 'good' or HDL cholesterol increase, the odds of having a heart attack decrease. The critical question is 'How do I increase levels of HDL?'"

Doctors have recommended 25 to 30 minutes of an aerobic activity like jogging, cycling, swimming or walking several times per week. Also, in the early 1980s, the U.S.

Government in its Second Annual Report on Alcohol and Alcoholism revealed that moderate drinkers outlive teetotalers. If over weight, reducing "will" help raise HDL cholesterol, as will discontinuing cigarette smoking. Moderate was translated to four ounces of liquor, half a bottle of wine, or two bottles of beer daily.

Later research revealed two kinds of HDL. HDL-2 is the protein that removes "dangerous" fat particles. HDL-3 is inactive and appears to have no effect on heart disease.

The New England Journal of Medicine published a study which states that alcohol raised only the HDL-3 levels.

Author revisits Olympic Park's era

Olympic Park, New Jersey's largest and oldest amusement park when it closed in 1985, comes alive again in "Smile, a Picture History," now in its second printing.

Authored by Alan A. Siegel, "Smile" is an illustrated, 178-page history of Olympic Park from its founding as a picnic grove in 1887 until it fell victim to television, high land values and the popularity of Disneyland-type theme parks. The 45-acre site of the former amusement area in Maplewood and Irvington is an industrial site today.

Siegel also wrote "Out of Our Past," a history of Irvington; and "For the Glory of the Union," a work about New Jersey soldiers in the Civil War. "Smile" won a certificate of excellence from the New Jersey League of Historical Societies two years ago.

Subjects covered in the book's 18 chapters include the park's four million gallon fresh-water pool, the merry-go-round, the largest ever built in America, the Walkathon craze of the 1930s, the Aborn Comic Opera Co., the Roller Rink, a budding young comedian named Red Skelton, as well as such beloved Olympic Park personalities as Bubbles Biscardo, trapeze artist-turned-actress; Captain Joe Basile, America's Brass Band King; and Henry Guenther, the park's owner for four decades.

"Smile" is available by mail order for $21 each from the author at 5 Wychwood Way, Warren, 07066.

Magazine makes arthritis info timely

People in New Jersey with arthritis now have a new source for up-to-date information about their disease. It's a magazine called "Arthritis Today," published six times a year by the Arthritis Foundation.

"There are over one million people in New Jersey who have a form of arthritis," says Dr. Sheldon D. Solomon, president of the Arthritis Foundation's New Jersey Chapter. "One in every seven people has arthritis, one in every three families is touched by it. These people want to know the latest about arthritis research and treatment. The Arthritis Foundation's official new membership magazine gives that and much more in a very upbeat and positive way."

A free membership benefit of the Arthritis Foundation, the magazine deals with the financial and emotional concerns of people who have arthritis, as well as with the physical aspects of having arthritis.

"Arthritis" is the term for a group of about 100 related diseases that include rheumatoid arthritis, osteoarthritis, gout, lupus, bursitis and spinal arthritis. For information about "Arthritis Today," write to the Arthritis Foundation, New Jersey Chapter at 15 Prospect Lane, Colonia, or call 888-6744.

A complete program of regular exercise — program, monitored carefully by a physician, will help in the fight against heart disease.

The fight against heart disease is a top priority of Deborah Heart and Lung Center, Deborah, located in Browns Mills specializes in patient care, education and research for the fields of cardiac, pulmonary and vascular medicine. Deborah annually treats over 20,000 adults with heart, lung or vascular disease, and children born with congenital heart defects.

IRS zaps delinquents
 The Internal Revenue Service last year issued nearly 47,000 levies against the assets of New Jerseyans who failed to pay overdue taxes, but who had the ability to do so. The IRS also made over 600 seizures of property in 1986 in the Garden State to satisfy such tax debts.
 These actions were taken after all other attempts to seek payment for back taxes failed, says the IRS.
 Individuals who are in arrears in their taxes will initially receive a series of up to five payment notices over a five-month period. The final notice is sent via certified mail and advises the taxpayer of the IRS's intent to levy. If a taxpayer fails to respond to any of the notices, the IRS will levy the assets of the delinquent taxpayer 10 days after the final notice is mailed. These levies are usually made against a taxpayer's bank account. The IRS also has the authority to garnish wages.
 Even though these levies seldom fully satisfy a tax debt, they will usually cause taxpayers to call the IRS. At this point, the IRS will obtain financial information to determine the taxpayer's ability to pay. If immediate payment is not possible, the IRS can enter into an installment or temporarily set the account aside because of hardship.

 In instances where a case cannot be resolved by phone, the case will be assigned to a revenue officer, who will initiate personal contact at either the taxpayer's home or place of work. Then, based on the revenue officer's contacts and further in-depth investigation, a determination is made as to the most appropriate method of resolving the account.
 In cases where the IRS plans to seize tangible property, the taxpayer is contacted personally and given a final opportunity to pay prior to the seizure. Revenue officers must obtain management review and approval prior to conducting a seizure. Two levels of management approval are required before a personal residence may be seized.

The IRS urges taxpayers who receive payment notices to pay their debts promptly. If they believe the notice is incorrect or they do not have the ability to pay, then they should contact the IRS immediately.

Drafts rehab mortgage

The New Jersey Housing and Mortgage Finance Agency has developed a program that will allow a consumer to both purchase a one- to four-family house in need of repair and rehabilitate it with one mortgage.

Buy-and-Fix-It, as the program is called, is expected to be a boon to urban communities where there is an abundance of housing stock that can be bought inexpensively and rehabilitated. Through the sale of $60 million in Mortgage Revenue Bonds issued in June 1986, the agency is offering an initial interest rate of 8.55 percent for Buy-and-Fix-It loans.

"This program will attempt to close a huge gap in the housing market," says Leonard S. Coleman Jr., commissioner of the Department of Community Affairs and chairman of the NJHMFA. "With one mortgage, a consumer can buy a house and rehabilitate it."

"We have taken a long, hard look at the real estate market to develop a financing mechanism that will enable potential homebuyers to preserve existing housing stock," says James L. Logue III, executive director of the NJHMFA.

The agency was able to develop the Buy-and-Fix-It program largely as a result of the cooperation of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. With this department's assistance, the agency streamlined an existing program offered by HUD and made it a more viable alternative for both the public and the agency's participating lenders. The 30-year, fixed rate loans require a minimum 5 percent down payment of the combined cost for the purchase price of the house and its rehabilitation. An appraisal will be done to determine the number of inspections to be made and the amount of funds to be disbursed after each phase of the rehabilitation.

The program contains an energy component and by taking advantage of it, consumers can reduce their interest rate below the current 8.55 percent rate. Through the assistance of the Department of Commerce and Economic Development, the NJHMFA will offer a 0 percent interest rate for qualifying energy-related improvements, which will be blended with the 8.55 percent rate to produce the actual rate for each loan.

For more information about the Buy-and-Fix-It program or any of the agency's other low-interest rate mortgage programs, consumers may call the NJHMFA's toll-free hot line between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4:45 p.m. at 1(800)NJ-HOUSE, or 1(609)890-8900 from out-of-state.

Funds to support the agency's low-interest rate mortgage programs, such as Buy-and-Fix-It, are issued through the sale of tax-exempt Mortgage Revenue Bonds. The tax-exempt status of these bonds are scheduled for expiration on Dec. 31, 1988. A bill has been introduced in the House of Representatives to extend the deadline until 1992.
