QB isn't the only signal-caller on the field

By JOHN A. GAVIN
While a loud command echoes from Meisel Field, bodies move in a cluster at midfield. And as scores of feet pace the width of the field, dust drifts from a barren patch of ground near the 50-yard line.
However, those cadences are not the sounds of a quarterback barking signals to the football team. And the cloud of dust is not the result of linemen falling in the ground making a tackle. The people on the field are members of the Jonathan Dayton Regional High School Bulldog Marching Band.
Like the football team, the band operates on command. With those signals coming from a drum major. And, like the team, they also are practicing for this season's first football game. But that preparation is for the half-time show during the game.
As band members branch out from a column formation into symmetrical patterns, carefully emphasizing every step and where they are in relation to the next band member, Martin Friedman, the band director, keeps a watchful eye on the group as a unit, carefully critiquing their mistakes and giving new members encouragement as they start their first week of marching.
For the band, their every movement is scrutinized and the least mistake could mean disaster during a half-time show. Like the football team, they put in hours and hours of practice. However, their performance will be judged in just 10 or 12 minutes — the time they are allotted to do a half-time show — while the football team has a 48-minute game to exhibit its skills. Consequently, it is up to the band to emphasize what they do best during that short time.

"We march corps style, which is more of a design type of thing," says Friedman. "We don't do letters or pictures. We do designs to music. It's almost a dance choreography. In a sense, although they're marching with schools, just starting last week, it was a 'back to basics' session for the band as they took to the field. On Friday, band members practiced some of their upcoming routine without their instruments. Bernstein says such an exercise gives members a chance to "solidify their drills."
"But the best thing is after you do a good show," he continues. "You feel it and you are on such a high. It's a good feeling that you accomplish something like this after all these afternoons. Like it wasn't such a waste."
Condon, who plays alto saxophone, baritone saxophone and baritone horn, has been playing musical instruments ever since she was in the fifth grade. She says that one of the fulfilling things about being in the band is the chance to meet new friends and travel to events. She says she is looking for similar

"It's a lot of power," says Goodman. "But, I enjoy being a leader. They listen to me, just as they listen to him (Friedman)."
Goodman, who attended a special class on leadership at Lafayette College in Pennsylvania, says that she loves leading the band and giving signals as they march in various formations.
"To band members, the thrill of performing before a football crowd generates an indelible degree of satisfaction. For example, Lora Condon, a 16-year-old junior, from Springfield, says that her greatest pleasure is playing at the first football game whenever she's a freshman.
"Everybody is out there cheering for you, your parents are out there," says Condon, who is starting her third year in the band. "And you get that really nervous feeling in your stomach. It's like really weird...and you get butterflies."
"But the best thing is after you do a good show," he continues. "You feel it and you are on such a high. It's a good feeling that you accomplish something like this after all these afternoons. Like it wasn't such a waste."
Condon, who plays alto saxophone, baritone saxophone and baritone horn, has been playing musical instruments ever since she was in the fifth grade. She says that one of the fulfilling things about being in the band is the chance to meet new friends and travel to events. She says she is looking for similar fulfillment once she gets to college.

"It's a good way to meet people," she says, "especially in college where everybody is sort of busy."
For Tommy Karamus, 16, of Mountainside, being in the band has a different meaning. Although he is a junior, it will be his first year in the band and the first full year he has played an instrument.
"I went to Catholic school prior to this, and they never had any sort of band program," Karamus says. "And I think it's a real waste. I think they should because I never had an opportunity to learn."
Karamus, who plays trombone, says that he signed up for the band last year and has worked very hard since that time to perfect his skills for the upcoming year.
"Mr. Friedman has helped me out a lot," he says. "He gave me private lessons once a week during school, and during the summer I've been working with a private band teacher. Prior to this, I didn't know how to read music or anything, but it's coming slowly and I've learned a lot."

Like Karamus, many of the Dayton band members are new. When Friedman arrived at the school two years ago, there were only 24 members in the band. Now there are 38 members, Friedman attributes that increase to "hard-core recruiting and working with eighth-graders."
"I've spent a lot of time now during the early part of the year working with the eighth-graders, giving them instruction and allowing them the opportunity to perform a little bit with us," Friedman explains. "And that gets them less afraid of John. It's no longer unknown," says Condon, "because band is a team thing."

With those funds, the band will be able to go on more trips and provide other services for its members.
For band members like Condon, the chance to go on more trips means much more than performing. It gives them a chance to interact with their peers and represent their school in a proud way.
"It teaches you a lot of things like responsibility and how to act as a group," says Condon, "because band is a team thing."

Hiring rule reaffirmed

By JOHN A. GAVIN
Members of the Township Committee Tuesday night unanimously approved adhering to an ordinance passed in October 1986 which requires the town to select a fireman from the three applicants who obtain the highest scores on a test given for the position. The ordinance also states that those applicants be considered regardless of where they reside.
However, that approval didn't come without protest. About five members of the volunteer fire department who attended the meeting said that a member of their organization should be given first preference if such a position becomes available. The volunteer squad has 22 members.
"The wording of that ordinance is ambiguous," said Marcel Campion, president of the volunteer unit.
The ordinance reads that if there is a tie between two of the applicants, the one which is in a higher preference category shall be selected. Mayor Edward Fanning said that such a preference category will include residence requirements and similar experience.
In addition, while the volunteers were in attendance, committee members had a chance to find out some of the equipment problems those volunteers have been experiencing for the last few years. Campion said that many of the trucks that the unit uses are outdated and are not up to federal standards. He said that this equipment is just as important as many of the other vehicles purchased by the town and should get similar priority when budget appropriations are made.
"I know you have budgets," Campion said. "We're going out with equipment that's a '56 '59 and '61 model as first line equipment. We're having more and more calls on the highway and not one of our trucks meets specifications because the crew has to stand on the rail."
Campion said that new firefighting standards require firefighters either ride in the cab or in jumpsuits behind the cab. He said that firefighters no longer can "hang on to the back" of a truck while answering a call.

In another portion of the meeting, committee members announced that an agreement had been made with Schallbe Oil Company to adhere to state Ordinance No. 875 which puts restrictions on exhaust emissions of idling diesel-powered engines. In addition, Howard Schwartz, town attorney, announced that officials with Schallbe have agreed to leave their present location no later than Sept. 1, 1988.
For the past few weeks, Francis Crosetti, a homeowner who lives adjacent to the oil company, has been attending township meetings and voicing complaints about violations of the ordinance. In fact, Crosetti was at Tuesday's meeting when Schwartz made the announcement.

Although Schwartz assured committee members and the audience that an agreement had been made, Crosetti said that he has seen violations of the ordinance as late as last week. He said he will voice those complaints until the ordinance is obeyed.
"I'm gonna continue to come, I'm gonna continue to complain and I'm gonna continue to holler until something is done," he said.

DPW still cleaning up summer storm damage

By JOHN A. GAVIN
Although it's been more than a month since Springfield and neighboring towns were struck with a thunderstorm and tornado-like winds that swept across the state, Springfield Public Works employees are still finding loose branches piled on sidewalks and driveways weeks — even after they've cleaned up the area. In fact, some of these branches have been found in areas of town that weren't even hit by the storm.
Consequently, local officials are urging citizens not to place extra branches on the street for pickup because the town is only responsible for the branches on trees owned by the town.
"What has become a problem is that in various places around, as if by magic, new branches and new piles of sticks from trees, or whatever, have appeared behind houses, on sidewalks or in the gutter in the area where the storm did not hit or the storm did little damage," said Committee Member William M. Welach, speaking at Tuesday's Township Committee meeting. "If, in fact, this is from a township tree, please call. I'm sure we'll be happy to pick it up and move it away."

"If it's not from a township tree, and if it's from your tree or your yard, the township has no responsibility for moving that branch," he continued. "That's your responsibility for doing away with it in every way you can."
Welach said he was surprised that residents haven't been "more creative" in trying to put those branches out on the street. He said that when limbs are in areas where the storm didn't hit, it's obvious that those branches were put there by the homeowners.
Leo Eckmann, township engineer and secretary to the planning board, echoed those sentiments, adding that many local residents have been putting branches out on the street as if they were storm-related.
Shortly after the July storm left tree limbs hovering over electric wires and utility poles dangling over the streets, Sylvester Boettcher, town public works superintendent, said that those winds accounted for the most damage that he has seen in town for the last 30 years. Consequently, Welach expressed satisfaction on how the clean-up has gone and complimented the efforts of the road department.

Grandparents Day renews close ties

By SUZETTE WALKER
This Sunday, Sept. 13, is National Grandparents Day — a day for showing our grandparents, who remain constant sources of unconditional love and wisdom throughout our lives, how much their presence has meant to us.

National Grandparents Day was officially declared nine years ago through a joint Congressional resolution signed by President Jimmy Carter, after several states had campaigned to have the holiday recognized. The resolution designated the first Sunday after Labor Day each year as Grandparents Day.

The individual most directly responsible for bringing Grandparents Day about, however, was Michael Goldgar, an Atlanta, Ga., native, who started a grass-roots effort after visiting an elderly relative. He felt the holiday would give America's grandparents some well-deserved recognition, as well as help revive family closeness at a time when the skyrocketing divorce rate was splitting many families apart.

Goldgar also served as executive secretary for the National Council for the Observance of Grandparents Day, an organization founded in 1978 for the purpose of promoting the holiday.

According to Rachel Bolton, spokesperson for Hallmark Cards, Inc., in Kansas City, Mo., the holiday has generated a great deal of popularity since its inception. Hallmark predicts that four million Grandparents Day cards will be sent this year nationwide, and florists and gift-sellers also enjoy an annual boost in business at this time.

Bolton explains that the tremendous enthusiasm for the holiday is due to several social and demographic changes in the last decade which have brought the contributions of the elderly back into the public eye.

One is the number of programs which have sprung up in recent years, such as "Adopt-a-Grandparent," which were designed to bring youngsters and elderly people closer together through participating in shared activities. The second is the returning trend of grandparents having primary care of young children as more mothers enter the workforce.

Third is the so-called "graying of America," with more than 20 percent of America's population now over 50, the post-65 bracket adding 1,600 people a day, and those over 85 now comprising the fastest growing population of all.

Having the opportunity to know and spend time with a loving grandparent is one of the most precious experiences children can have during their formative years, and even after they have reached adulthood.

In addition to providing an extended family, grandparents have ample time and patience for their grandchildren, time for quiet talks, to answer a child's many questions or listen to a problem when parents don't understand.

Most people have cherished memories of times spent in the company of their grandparents, whether it be taking a walk through the woods, listening to an often-told favorite story, or sharing a secret just for two. These remembrances last a lifetime and just recalling these moments keeps grandparents always close in our hearts.

Grandparents also can be an invaluable source of knowledge of how people lived and the events which occurred in previous generations. Having actually experienced it firsthand, they can bring the past to life with a flavor and vividness no textbook can match.

These days, grandparents often live far away from their married children and grandchildren, making it difficult to maintain a close relationship. Even when the distance is not so far, though, busy lives can limit the time the younger people have to spend with their elders.

Grandparents Day is the ideal occasion for renewing close ties with older family members, whether it be with a gift or floral arrangement, a card, or simply a telephone call telling a grandparent how much he or she is loved and remembered. It will make their day, and serve as a unique reminder to grandchildren just how special their grandparents are.

Kenilworth blotter

Police arrest revoked driver

Police arrested Michael Bowler, 34, of South Orange on Sept. 4 at Michigan and Kingston Avenues. Bowler was arrested for driving with a suspended license. Further investigation revealed that outstanding warrants had been issued for Bowler in West Orange and Cedar Grove, as well as Kenilworth. Total bail was set at $750.

David Ben Israel, 44, of Springfield was arrested Sept. 4 for driving with a suspended license. He was later released on $300 bail.

A Roselle Park resident was arrested Sept. 3 for driving with a suspended license. Vito R. Perrotti, 24, had been stopped at Boulevard and 31st Street for making an illegal turn on red when it was discovered his license had been suspended. Bail was set at $500.

Police arrested Anatoli Schumacher, 40, of Elizabeth on Sept. 1 after a passerby witnessed the suspect arguing with another man at the corner of Boulevard and South 24th Street. Schumacher was charged with disorderly conduct, displaying an open container of alcohol in public, and possession of a prescription legend drug. He was also wanted in Elizabeth for contempt of court.

Troy Grier, 23, of Hillside was arrested at Boulevard and 31st Street for driving with a suspended license following a vehicle check. Bail was set at $250.

The theft and cashing of payroll checks from a food and manufacturing company on North 12th Street was reported to police Sept. 3 by an administrative assistant from the firm. According to police, three of the checks had been cashed at National State Bank. Authorities currently have no suspects in the case.

A representative from a South Michigan Avenue firm reported that one of the firm's employees, an Elizabeth resident, had $300 in cash, a change purse and house keys stolen from her locker Sept. 3.

A woman reported her co-worker's purse had been stolen while the latter was working at her job in a motor lodge on S. 31st Street Sept. 5.

A 21st Street resident reported the theft of $500 from his home Sept. 5, according to police.

A Park Drive resident reported a 12-by-16-foot tent was stolen from his property Sept. 5, according to police. The tent had been set up in the rear yard and was apparently taken sometime during the night. No suspect has been named for the tent.

The day manager of a motor lodge on S. 31st Street reported that one of the guests had his vehicle broken into while parked at that location Sept. 6. A CB radio valued at $150 was missing from the vehicle.

A Washington Avenue resident reported witnessing several youths breaking bottles in the high school parking lot and causing a disturbance on Sept. 1. The suspects fled in a vehicle upon arrival of police.

Police received an anonymous call Sept. 5 concerning two juveniles who were allegedly spray painting a wall on the recreation building located at South Michigan Avenue Park. Authorities report the youths were gone on arrival, but fresh spray paint was discovered on the building.

Mountainside blotter

Two men found with fireworks cache

Two Hillside men were arrested Sunday for possession of fireworks. Both were arrested in the vicinity of Mill Lane and Vassar Road after they were observed by police exiting a wooded area.

Eric A. Brodeur, 21, and Michael A. Malz, 19, were arrested after police discovered an M-80 firework inside the suspects' vehicle. Police had noticed the car's engine was running with no one inside the auto.

According to police reports, upon further inspection of the the vehicles, additional fireworks were discovered. Two marijuana pipes were also found.

Police added possession of drug paraphernalia to Brodeur's record.

A 20-year-old Newark man was arrested Monday by police for possession of narcotics.

Loris Barcus was arrested after his vehicle was stopped by police on Route 22 East for an improper inspection sticker. A computer check revealed the sticker belonged to another auto.

Police reports state that Barcus' driver's license had been suspended for failure to appear in another town's municipal court.

Springfield blotter

Police nab wanted suspects

Two area men facing outstanding warrants from Springfield Municipal Court were arrested last week and turned over to Springfield police.

According to police records, Gordon L. Barber, 46, of Mountainside, was apprehended by Mountainside police before being turned over to local authorities; he was arrested on a warrant.

Kevin M. Bogan, 25, Summit, was arrested by Millburn police on Friday before being turned over to

New Jersey Bell Puts Technology To Work.

By William S. McKinlay
External Affairs Manager

Last year, New Jersey Bell spent over $1.6 million to improve and expand its state-wide telecommunications network, and with good reason. That money helps keep New Jersey Bell's phone rates the lowest in the country. By investing in new technology, we gain efficiencies that we pass onto our customers.

What's more, new technology helps us provide new and better services for you.

Center III, our premier business communications system is one of those services. It has all the innovative features any business might need, like automatic calls, call transfer and call pick-up. And, it's a flexible system. When your office layout or communications needs change, the phone system can easily be changed right from the telephone in your office. There's no need to purchase, house and maintain system hardware in your building. Instead, the "brains" of Center III are located in our local switching centers. That gives our customers big savings in cost along with added convenience... and there's no capital outlay for an expensive PDX.

Using Center III's high-tech capabilities, we have packaged a group of features called Community Center. Community Center brings residential and business tenants in large, modern buildings a choice of state-of-the-art telecommunications services. The developer or owner installs the system capability into the building and the tenants can select those phone services they want from a long menu of offerings.

For instance, these abbreviated dialing and other standard Center services that tenants can subscribe to. And, there are special phone services like call forwarding, call waiting and distinctive ringing. Speed calling of up to six frequently called numbers is also available.

Another example of New Jersey Bell technology helping business and consumers is Public Data Network (PDN). PDN provides inexpensive access to data bases over regular phone lines... PDN already has helped bring the speed and power of computers to that individual agents can find your "dream house" at the touch of a button.

Agents can search the listings using 28 different criteria - like price, lot dimension, school system, type of heating and so on. In fact, you can even compare mortgage rates and related financial information.

Use the weekly real estate catalogs that are often out of date when published. This data is always current.

Use the PDN. This kind of computerized quick access system would probably be too costly for the county board and local agents, but we've made it available to you.

Next time you read about a "high-tech" service from New Jersey Bell, be sure that it will bring you the best communications in an excellent value.

Some news tips

Now that the kids are back in school and club activities are under way, we'd like to offer our readers some tips on submitting news items to the paper.

The most important thing to remember is that we want your news. Local news is the heart of a community newspaper. Our problem is that we are unable to be everywhere at once, so we need to depend on others to let us know what is happening in town. That doesn't mean to say we'll be able to drop everything and run out everytime someone calls. We may ask you to send in a news release or picture concerning the event.

Thousands of pieces of mail come into our office every day. We'd like to emphasize local items. To help get your information into the paper, here are some tips:

★ Make sure all of your publicity includes the who, what, where, why and how of the event. There's no sense in publishing a release about a special meeting, for example, if the time and location are not included. Give us some information about the purpose of your organization. It could be the topic of a lengthy feature story at a future date. Most of our feature stories are the result of information included in well-written publicity releases.

★ Type your news releases and include a name and daytime telephone number on them. Handwritten publicity crosses our desks every day. Very often, the handwriting is illegible and there is no contact number on the copy. The result is that the material is never used.

★ Make our deadlines. For club news, the deadline is noon Friday. Once your publicity reaches our office, it must be typed into our computer system. The closer to deadline the news arrives, the less likely it will be given top priority by the typing department. We cannot promise to get every item that makes the deadline into a particular week's paper.

★ Think ahead. We give top priority to events that are given less priority — they're old news. You're better off submitting an article on a future event than a past one.

★ If you must submit a release after an event, such as the case in contests, races, sports events or elections, the focus should be on the winners or the results. Don't say, "Club held an essay contest and 10 students were named winners." You should say, John Smith was the top winner of an essay contest at Main Street School. Other finalists were...

★ Let us know if a special event is happening at school, the recreation center or the municipal building that might be a good picture-taking opportunity. Ribbon-cutting, check presentations and award ceremonies with a group of people holding a certificate or a pair of scissors are not interesting. A better picture idea is to have an on-the-job type photo of an awardee or a picture of what the donation is going to buy.

★ If we can't get to a picture assignment, we may ask you to take a picture and submit it. With only one full-time staff photographer, we need to be selective in the assignments we make. Quite often, several newsworthy events occur at the same time and choosing an assignment is difficult. Anyone submitting a photograph should keep a few guidelines in mind:

★ Fill in the frame with the subject of the photo, cutting out all unnecessary objects.

★ Don't put more than three or four people in one photograph. One sure way to miss having a picture published is to have 35 unrecognizable faces in it. It's better to submit several good, sharp photographs with a limited number of people who can be recognized.

★ Don't submit photographs that are too bright or too dark. Check the photographs at right for some dos and don'ts.

★ Remember, we only publish once a week. If you submit a publicity release to us on a Friday and submit an identical story to a daily newspaper the same day, they'll print it before us, making our news look old, or worse yet, a rewrite of their story. Submit the release to the daily on Wednesday. That way, we can both come out with the news on the same day.

★ Appoint only one person to handle publicity. This is good advice for schools as well as organizations. Very often, news releases are repetitive because more than one person is handling publicity.

★ We do not take news releases over the telephone. We'll be glad to speak to you about a possible news or feature story or a picture-taking opportunity. Tuesdays and Fridays are the best time to call with that kind of information.

★ Ask your local merchants to support this newspaper by advertising locally. We need everyone's help to create the best local newspaper possible.

Finally, please know that we depend on our readers for feedback. We can't promise to get every news release in the paper, make every picture assignment suggested or write every news or feature story we've learned about. But we'll try. If we've goofed, let us know. We'll try to make amends.

Our goal is to give our readers what they want. We can only do that if they talk to us. Write letters to the editor — remember to include your signature and telephone number — and let others know your views on a particular issue. Unless the letter is libelous, it should get into the paper if you've followed our guidelines.

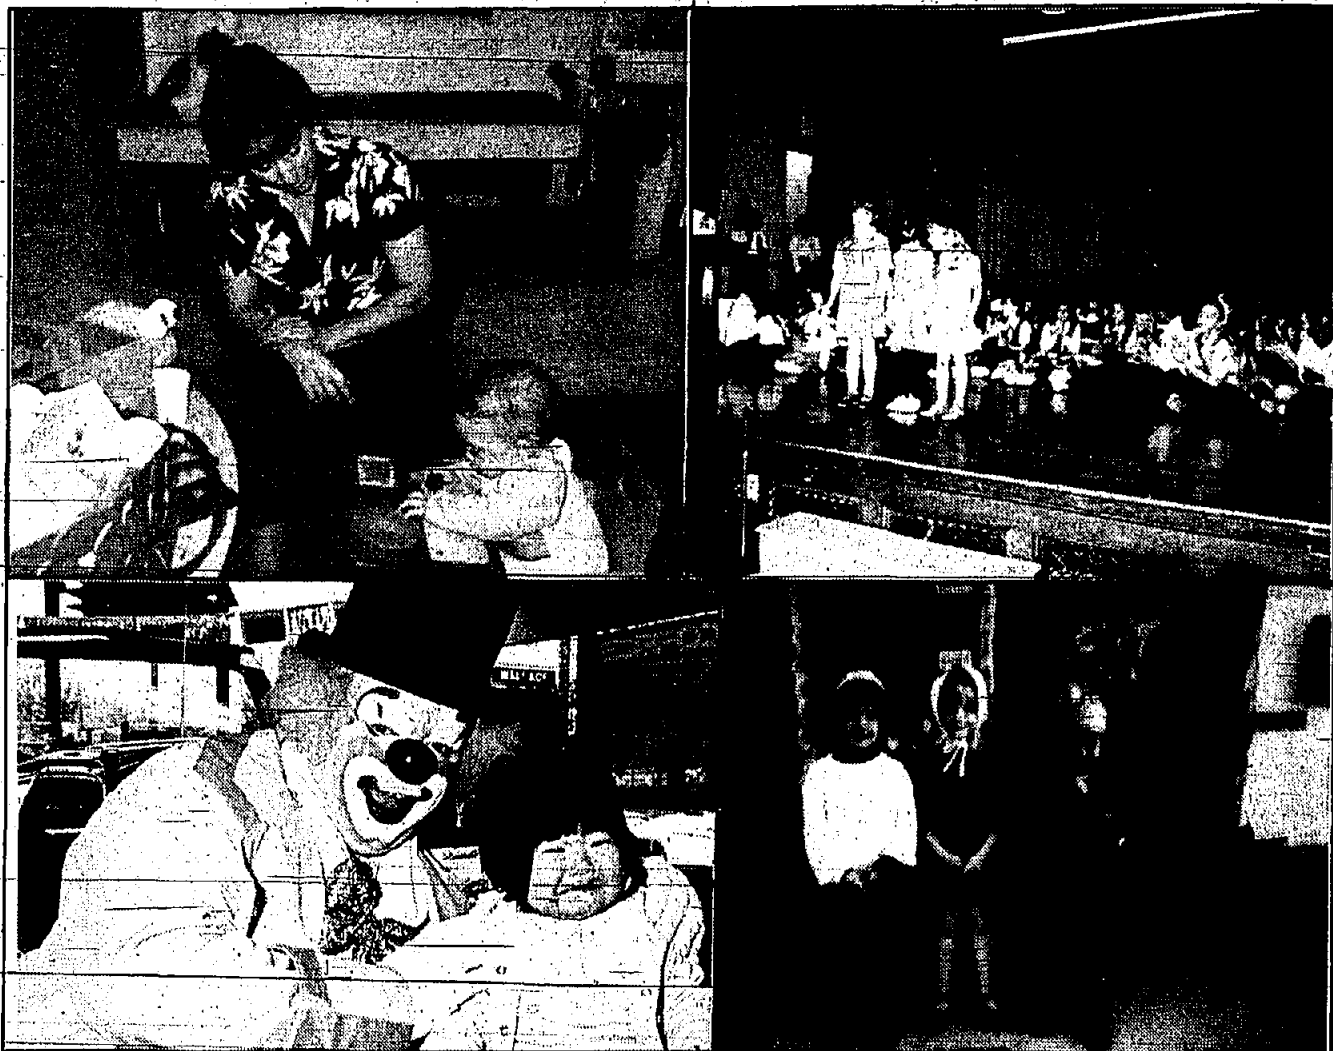

With your help, we hope to improve our coverage of community events this year. Don't hesitate to call — preferably on a Thursday afternoon — if you have any suggestions.

News tips: Give us a call

Do you know of a news story that we, too, should know about? Has your club or organization undertaken a project that might be of interest to others? Would one of your friends or neighbors be a good subject for a feature story? If so, be our eyes and ears and tell us about it.

Call us at 686-7700 with a news tip and we, in turn, will offer a tip of the hat to you with special recognition on this page.

Some Dos and Don'ts

child have good expressions on their faces, they're facing the camera, the composition of the photo is excellent and the contrast is sharp. In other words, it's a good picture which reproduces well. The photo on the bottom right is out of focus and much too dark to reproduce well. Remember, we can't make a bad picture look better. We can enlarge it or reduce it, but the end result will not look better than the original.

Quarry suited for better uses

By MARVYN SCHNEIDER and SELMA PRAGER
Since Robert Gold, marketing director of the New Jersey State Park Commission, phoned before the county Freeholders Ad Hoc Committee July 26 in reference to constructing an amphitheatre in the former Hoshalme Quarry site, interesting developments have occurred.

First, there seems to be some confusion as to exactly how much land is involved in the quarry and what impact an amphitheatre would have on Springfield and neighboring communities. We would like to fill you in on some background and recent developments.

We had been led to believe 69.58 acres of this land would be a nature conservancy in exchange for the 77 acres taken from the quarry reservation to complete 1-78. The DOT Final Environmental Impact Statement for Interstate 78 said, "We recommend that the quarry within the Reservation required for right-of-way be replaced by land having similar usefulness in the Hidden Valley area." Page 7-8 of the Final Environmental Impact Statement, Conceptual Plans, Metcalf & Eddy, 1982, refers to this land taken for I-78 as "approximately 80 acres of upland wildlife habitat and five to six acres of wetland wildlife."

Yes, consultants did give, as one of their options, an outdoor amphitheatre, but they carefully stated all the negative aspects of it. On Page 3 of the Conceptual Design Report Amphitheatre and Shooting Complex by Metcalf & Eddy, 1982, it stated, "Background noise generated by traffic on I-78 could require amplification of amphibole performances at a sound level exceeding regulations of Springfield Township and State of New Jersey;" and Pages 6-8 notes "the nature of many of the activities associated with an amphitheatre e.g. rock concerts."

The accompanying maps showed the proposed amphitheatre on quarry site, on the southwestern side, of I-78 up a narrow, winding, hilly, two-lane road — often covered with a dense fog — tucked up against the property line of homes. The site area would be a mere 100 feet away from these residential properties. The entrance and exit would also be near these homes.

Gold addressed the Union County Ad Hoc Committee to "ally" years about traffic, noise and rock concert "chaos." His answer to the traffic problem would be to widen the bottom of Mount View Road by eight feet! For two thousand cars all leaving at the same time and on foot, walking to their cars parked down below, or on the narrow residential streets on Baltusrol Top?

In the 1982 Metcalf & Eddy Wildlife Reservation Alternative Conceptual Plans, Pages 6-8, it states, "The activities proposed for the quarry site could tend to generate a significant amount of traffic at certain times along Shunkle Road," a major route for ambulances to Overlook Hospital. "All site access would be via local streets," it adds.

As for New Jersey's "Ban-the-Bomb" Mr. Gold assures selection of an oversight committee that will censor the type of music or other uses of the amphitheatre. Legal research has brought many cases to light where this was struck down as an example of "Prior Restraint." For example, an article in a New Jersey paper headlined "Kean-Rodno 'Rolling into' Ban-the-Bomb" stated, "Local Officials Opposition," a judge ruled in favor of the bikers. Then, another article stated, "Beach Boys Show Brings Good Vibes to Waterloo." Now the Beach Boys are certainly not "rock," but the article states, "the group got the crowd to its feet immediately and kept the people dancing and singing for 30 minutes. The band continually encouraged the audience to clap, dance and sing along with them. Their performance left the crowd 'yelling for more.'"

Gold said, "Acoustical studies of the quarry site and the design of the site all show that the symphony would be in conformance with stringent state, not local, noise laws that require no noise be louder than 50 decibels after 10 p.m. Fifty decibels, as explained to us by the DOT is equivalent to "business office noise." What will the musicians do at 10 p.m., put away their instruments and pull out typewriters?

In July, Governor Kean revealed plans for a $200 million World Class Performing Arts Center in downtown Newark, and another $100 million to build up a network of performance centers in other parts of the state. Such as new warm weather outdoor facilities: accommodating up to five thousand patrons indoors and up to ten thousand on lawns, amphitheatre or bleacher-type seats in Camden, Liberty State Park, and Waterloo Village. These will be summer homes for the symphony, along with indoor facilities in Morristown, New Brunswick, Trenton, Red Bank, Englewood and Cherry Hill. With all these potential facilities, why is Springfield still being targeted after opposition from the community and indifference from the rest of Union County?

Now we have been informed the state wishes to dispose of the remaining one hundred acres of quarry land to the community and will be offering it first to the county. We have the wonderful opportunity of having this land turned into parkland. As the Governor's Council on N.J. Outdoors warned in February, "the state is facing a parklands crisis."

Under new rules approved by the State Planning Commission, New Jersey's 21 counties and 567 municipalities will have to develop their land-use master plans to protect critical open spaces while directing growth to areas with adequate public facilities.

The Kean administration, DEP and many parks and conservation groups have referred to the urgency of preserving the state's disappearing open space as New Jersey's "quiet crisis." A recent study by the Governor's Council on the Outdoors urged the state to acquire 373,000 acres of public open space while the lands are still economically obtainable. We have right here in Springfield the acres already owned by the state, which is the quarry.

Therefore, the quarry is suited for far better uses than an amphitheatre, which would serve a limited audience for only four months out of the year. The land should be used year-round for the enjoyment of all people — our children, senior citizens, all of us, for natural wildlife preservation and recreation.

Please come tonight at 7:30 p.m. to the Freeholders public meeting at the Union County Administration building in Elizabethtown to show your support of these goals.

Let's keep "Woodstock" out of our woods and rock out of your quarry.

Second chance for tax cheats

By STATE TREASURER FEATHER O'CONNOR

I asked you to join me today because I have an announcement about Tax Amnesty, a program that signals a fundamental change in New Jersey's attitude toward tax cheating.

Humor, is not funny. In fact, it's a crime. And, contrary to popular belief, it is not a victimless crime.

★ It is unfair to the majority of our citizens who, year in and year out, meet their tax responsibilities, often at some sacrifice.

★ In the long term, it causes the tax burdens of those people to be higher than they would be if every citizen met his or her tax responsibilities.

★ Tax cheating also damages the effectiveness of public programs which are essential to our quality of life. Think of tax evasion in terms of lost day care, roads in disrepair, a lesser quality of education for our children. There are many other examples.

★ Finally, voluntary tax systems are an important part of what America is all about. Tax evasion, left unchecked, ultimately threatens the very fabric of our society.

It was with those thoughts in mind that Governor Kean last spring signed legislation that changes the rules and exacts a heavy price on tax cheating. Before those rules are changed, it makes sense to give citizens who have not met all of their tax obligations a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to voluntarily come forward and bring their tax accounts up to date.

That is why the Governor decided to support a period of Tax Amnesty, before tough new tax laws go into effect.

The new law, as signed by Governor Kean last spring, calls for:

★ Substantially increased civil penalties for failure to file and failure to pay.

★ A new method of calculating interest so that the Division of Taxation will never again be the cheapest money around. After Amnesty is over, interest will be at the price rate plus 5 points calculated on the total unpaid balance, including penalty and interest, and compounded daily.

★ A whole new series of sections in Title 54 called "tax crimes," which enumerates a number of offenses carrying stiff criminal penalties as well as escalating sentences for repeat offenders.

★ A myriad of new provisions which will enable the Division to enforce the law better than in the past. You should also know that the Division of Taxation has been very active over the past several years in upgrading its — a total tax capability. Some of that capability will be utilized to process information obtained under extensive information-exchange agreements with the Internal Revenue Service as well as more than 35 other state revenue departments.

In short, after Amnesty we will be dealing with tax evasion in a way that was never possible before in New Jersey. We will have tough new laws and an enormously increased capability on the part of the Division of Taxation to make use of those tough new laws.

This morning Governor Kean announced that the Amnesty dates in New Jersey will run from Sept. 10 through Dec. 8.

That period is a 90-day window for taxpayers to come forward voluntarily before they are caught, without any threat of criminal prosecution or indeed the imposition of civil penalties, and to pay up whatever they owe at 9 percent interest.

It's also an opportunity for individuals and corporations already known to the Division of Taxation that owe money to come forward and gain the benefit of paying off whatever liability exists with only the imposition of 9 percent interest.

As you know, Governor Kean was originally opposed to the whole notion of Tax Amnesty, as indeed were three successive treasurers. In the final analysis, you can make a compelling case that Amnesty is justifiable only because of the tough new laws that accompanied its enactment.

The original "Amnesty" bill was 3 pages long. The bill that Governor Kean finally signed was 59 pages long. Those 59 pages of amendments were provided by the Division of Taxation to give the kind of tax enforcement capability the organization felt was needed to slam the door in the face of those who failed to meet their obligations.

After amnesty, it's a new day. As noted earlier, tax evasion is not a victimless crime and this administration does not intend to sit idly by while a minority of citizens refuse to meet their obligations.

Oliver Wendell Holmes once said that taxes are the price we pay for a civilized society. Well, after Dec. 8, for those individuals and corporations who have elected fast and loose with our tax laws, the price is going to be much higher.

Feather O'Connor is state treasurer of New Jersey. This is the first time he has given a speech he recently delivered.

Milk, lunch available

Area public and parochial schools have announced that low cost, nutritious school lunches and/or milk are available to all children enrolled.

In addition, meals and/or milk will be provided free or at a greatly reduced price to children from households whose gross income is at or below those shown for their household size on the income scale below. Applications for Free and Reduced Price Meals were sent to the households of all children enrolled in the schools.

Foster children are also eligible for free or reduced-price meals and/or free milk. Application forms are available at local schools and application can be made at any time during the school year. If a household member becomes unemployed, or the household size or income changes during the school year, parents should contact the school so that all children receive the proper benefits.

For the school officials to determine eligibility, the household must provide the following information listed on the application: names of all household members, social security numbers of all adult household members or a statement that the household member does not possess one, total household income listed by the amount received by each household member and the type of income it is, and the signature of an adult household member certifying that the information provided is correct. Households are required to report increases in household income of over $30 per month or $600 per year and decreases in household size.

The information provided by parents on the application will be kept confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility.

The school will advise parents of their child's eligibility within 10 working days of receipt of the application. Any parent dissatisfied with the eligibility determination may contact the school to request an informal conference or may appeal the decision by requesting a formal hearing. Parents may contact their individual schools for applications.

Once determinations are completed, school officials are required to verify a minimum of 3 percent of the approved free and reduced-price applications. In the operation of Child Nutrition Programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, national origin, age, or handicap. Also, the names of those receiving free or reduced-price meals will be kept private. Children who receive free or reduced-price meals or free milk benefits are treated the same as children who pay for meals. All those who believe they have been discriminated against should write immediately to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Teens to learn about hazards of drug use

Drug-free teens from the New Jersey area will join together on Sept. 26 and 27 for a R.E.A.C.H. America training seminar sponsored by the Holy Family Youth Ministry, the Elks, Jaycees, and Fair Oaks Hospital.

The R.E.A.C.H. America (Responsible Educated Adolescents Can Help America Stop Drugs) program is designed to train teens, ages 14-19 who are currently drug-free, about the health hazards and effects of drug and alcohol use.

Among the prominent speakers who will address the participants are: Dr. Calvin Chantles, director of adolescent services at Fair Oaks Hospital; Archbishop Theodore McCarrick, Joseph Pariso, director of alcohol and drug education for the Essex County Sheriff's Office; and Senator Carmen Drelich and Assemblyman John Kelly.

Topics ranging from Alcohol, Crack and Drugs in Our Community, to Helping Yourself, Helping a Friend, Starting a Student Group, How to Present a Program to Elementary School Students, etc., will be addressed. Other highlights of the seminar include a dance and a balloon launch.

To insure the continued success and support of the teens who are attending, it is recommended that an adult adviser be present from a youth group, Scout troop, club or school when teens from their respective groups are attending. However, teens need not be part of any group in order to attend. Adult workshops will be held for advisers who are in attendance.

Lori LeCarl, chairperson for this September's program, says, "It is vital that teens learn the effects that drugs and alcohol have on their physical growth, their emotional and social maturation and the learning process. Drug use is threatening the lives, health and happiness of users and non-users alike. When educated, today's adolescents can and have made significant contributions toward a drug-free society."

"Parents, educators, law enforcement, legislation and media," LeCarl says, "must work together to support and encourage teens to be

Management workshop planned

"Techniques For Effective Management" will be the topic of a workshop given by Mary Ann Arre on Sept. 28 at the Holiday Inn at Kenilworth, Exit 138 off the Garden State Parkway from 7 until 10 p.m.

The workshop is designed for business people, managers, people, educators, students, homemakers...anyone who wants to use these techniques effectively.

According to Arre, most people have experienced the feelings that

Haase joins Brearley staff

C. Paul Haase, a music instructor and director of high school band programs at area schools for 12 years, has been named as the new teacher of instrumental music and the band director at David Brearley Regional High School in Kenilworth.

A lifelong resident of Mountaine, Haase began his career in music education as the band director at Linden High School in 1974. In 1981 he became the director

PTA receives award

Irene Fiecht and Marie Sedlak, Garden State Regional High School PTA members, recently received awards for 100 percent teacher PTA membership and for an increase of above 10 percent in general PTA membership.

The actual increase in membership was 44 percent. The awards hang in the Gaudinier School office.

Artist's work displayed at hospital

A long-time Panworld resident, Alison Brennan, who attended the LeGrande School, is displaying her art at Children's Specialized Hospital, Mountaine. Funds raised through the sale of her paintings will benefit the hospital.

Brennan, whose paintings depict a variety of subjects, is currently painting portraits of people and dogs.

Recently she displayed her art in a show at the Scotch Plains-Fanwood Public Library and was a finalist in a competition in Trenton held by the Federated Women's Clubs of New Jersey.

Newark Academy adds wing

With the addition of a new middle school wing, Newark Academy in Livingston is starting a sixth grade when the school opens its 21st academic year Tuesday. Construction on the new wing began last fall and was completed this summer. The wing contains classrooms, a science laboratory and administrative offices.

The day's activities will feature an all-school assembly, class and adviser group meetings, and outdoor games.

Newark Academy will hold its second annual Fall Convocation Sept. 18. The speaker will be attorney Mark A. Bohick, an alumnus of the Academy, who is executive assistant to the chief counsel for the United States Senate Select Committee on Secret Military Assistance to Iran and the Nicaraguan Opposition.

This Week In Business

Chamber writes state industry recap

The history of more than three centuries of commerce and industry in New Jersey, a state that was itself founded as a business venture, is brought to life in the pages of a big new illustrated history book just published under sponsorship of the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce.

"New Jersey: History of Ingenuity and Industry" is a 624-page, coffee-table-sized, beautifully illustrated and thoughtfully-written limited edition that made its formal debut in July at a Trenton reception at which copies were presented to state officials.

Robert V. Van Fossen, chairman of the State Chamber and chairman and CEO of Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co., presented copies to State Librarian Barbara F. Weaver and Commissioner Gordon R. Putnam of the Department of Commerce and Economic Development. The copies, Van

Fossen noted, are symbolic of the sponsorship of the book by the State Chamber as "a gift to the people of New Jersey and as an addition to our literary heritage."

"This book," Putnam said, "is a tribute to all the corporations in this state - both small and large - that have helped make New Jersey the thriving center of commerce that it is today. It clearly demonstrates that we in New Jersey have much to be proud of, thanks to the hard work and dedication of millions of workers."

On hand to autograph copies of the new history for those present was the author, James P. Johnson, a resident of Westfield, and a professor of history at Brooklyn College and the Graduate Center of the City University of New York. Johnson's authoritative text captures the attention by concentrating on the human aspects of commercial development, tracing the contributions of the phalanx of entrepreneurs, inventors and dreamers who gravitated to New Jersey and used its bountiful natural resources to push forward the horizons of human endeavor.

Through the pages stride such personalities as the bridge-building Roeblings, the Stevenses of steamboating and railroad fame, also producing Peter B. Ballantine, gunsmithing's John Fitch, silk-milling John Ryle, tomato-packing Joseph Campbell, and Einstein and Edison, whose contributions illuminated the world in so many ways.

The tone and tenor of "New Jersey: History of Ingenuity and Industry" is set by the state's noted historian, John T. Cunningham of Florham Park. In it, Cunningham notes that ingenuity continues to reign supreme in New Jersey, sprouting now in "hundreds of huge, carefully landscaped research installations" that make the state a national leader in research.

Also participating in the Trenton reception at the New Jersey State Library were the two people responsible for gathering the more than 400 historic photos and artwork that graphically complement the text. The photo researchers are Charles P. Cummings, supervising librarian of the New Jersey Reference Division of the Newark Public Library, and Catharine Fogarty of Rutherford, who was responsible for development of the

New Jersey Room Collection at Fairleigh Dickinson University. Rounding out the audience were representatives of a number of the more than 100 New Jersey corporations and institutions whose business biographies appear in the final chapter, prepared by former Wall Street Journal correspondent David Fleming, New Jersey State Chamber President Fred A. Westphal, who served as master of ceremonies for the reception, paid tribute to all the companies represented in the book "for the support that made possible publication of this book that will preserve for future generations a record of the economic achievements of a great State and its dedicated, innovative people."

Westphal also noted that the New Jersey book, sponsored by the Chamber as part of the observance of its 75th anniversary, is one of the largest ever published by Windsor Publications of Northridge, California. Windsor has established itself in the past decade as publisher of America's leading history book series.

A collector's volume with a fine cloth binding, "New Jersey: History of Ingenuity and Industry" is available now at B. Dalton Bookstores and Waldenbooks stores around the state at $34.95.

DONATION—Lester M. Bornstein, president, Newark Beth Israel Medical Center, accepts two pediatric wheelchairs from Marcella Rudd, center of Elizabeth, and Julia Gelfin of Union, Sara Siffer Orthopedic Relief Organization Executive Board members. The organization aids orthopedic patients by supplying equipment and providing funds to health care facilities for orthopedic research.

Sponsor solid waste seminar

The Hackensack Meadows Development Commission and the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection are teaming up to sponsor "Managing the Solid Waste Crisis in New Jersey." Sept. 18-19, at Harrah's Marina Hotel/Casino, Atlantic City.

The 2½-day seminar is designed to present a comprehensive perspective on practical solutions to the solid waste disposal crisis in New Jersey.

To provide decision makers at the local and county levels with a comprehensive perspective of garbage disposal and its alternatives, policy-making officials and experts in the industry have been invited to participate in panels that thoroughly address the solid waste issues facing New Jersey's solid waste districts and the people they serve.

An exhibit area is planned where representatives of companies who offer essential services and supplies to solid waste management programs will be available to review their equipment and services.

Further information on how to join other leaders in learning about the successful ways to win the battle against improper or inadequate garbage disposal methods can be obtained by contacting Margaret Wechsler, public education coordinator, Hackensack Meadows Development Commission, 460-1700, or Karen Goldman, Holt & Ross Inc., 392-0600.

County freeholders support proposed legislative aid plan

Freeholder Chairman Alvin Augustine requested that a formal resolution be made supporting the plan. The freeholders will vote on that resolution at tonight's regular freeholder meeting in Elizabethtown.

The proposal involves a three-bill package that would use $36 million in state revenues to help pay soaring disposal fees in Union, Morris, Somerset, Middlesex and other northern counties which have been affected by the garbage crisis.

The second major component of the package calls for creation of a special $20 million loan fund that would be used to ease the spiraling disposal costs for those counties that have been affected by the closing of the Hackensack Meadows Development Commission landfill in Kearny. Within the county, Springfield and Union have been forced to ship its garbage to western Pennsylvania as a result of the closing.

Augustine said that such relief is practical and necessary to relieve the affected communities of the soaring costs.

"This is causing a great shock to the experience of these counties which is unacceptable," said Augustine, about the extra $16 million, every municipality in this county will have to adopt emergency appropriations this year for paying for this garbage problem," said Fulcomer. "This problem is caused entirely by the State of New Jersey."

"It shouldn't be $16 million, it should be $32 million," he continued. "They should pay 100 percent of the cost because their state government has caused this crisis and it's going to affect every municipal budget and now they cut the emergency appropriation in half. That's not enough. It should be 100 percent."

"Until today, the taxpayers were going to bear an even greater burden," Eldridge said. "Now if this bill proposed by Assembly Speaker Thomas Deverin passes, at least we are going to get some relief... But at least with this today, the state finally showed that it's looking out for the citizens of this county and other counties."

Hardwick said the legislation expected to be introduced at the Assembly session today and that he may ask the Democratic minority for the votes to consider the package on an emergency basis.

Bills would offset trash fees

Assembly Speaker Chuck Hardwick has announced a plan to provide $16 million in grants to offset rate hikes suffered by communities throughout Union, Middlesex and other counties that dump at the Edgewater landfill.

The bill, co-sponsored by Hardwick and Assembly members Thomas Deverin and Peter Genova, would help offset 50 percent of the $2 million cost increase awarded Edgewood in July by the Board of Public Utilities. The legislation, which Hardwick said will be introduced when the Legislature goes back into session today, would save taxpayers in Union County an estimated $3.5 million.

A second bill would create a $25 million no-interest loan and grant fund for counties that have been forced to truck garbage out of state due to a landfill closing. The proposal is specifically aimed at helping communities, including Springfield and Union, forced to dump out-of-state as a result of the "closure" of the Hackensack Meadows Development Commission landfill.

Eligibility for loans under the Solid Waste Rate Shock Relief Fund would be determined by the progress applying counties have demonstrated in plans to build resource recovery plants.

MAUSOLEUM AT HALICARNASSUS
A Queen's loving monument
Upon the death of King Mausolus in 353 B.C., his devoted widow, Artemisia, resolved to perpetuate his memory by erecting the most splendid tomb ever known. This was built the Mausoleum, and that is the name now used to denote any elaborate sepulchre.
Gethsemane Gardens Mausoleum, a monument that brings peace and comfort of spirit, stands as a modern monument. Crypts are available with a no-interest payment plan, and there are special discounts for those who pre-pay in full. BUSINESS OF THE WEEK

PROFESSIONAL SERVICE — That's the motto of Noble Eyeglasses, where manager Jim Dambola, apprentice optician Terrance Shelton and optician Peter Aquila are among those ready to provide new eyeglasses quickly and economically.

People who wear glasses don't always see eye to eye when it comes to getting their prescription spectacles updated, largely because of the time and expense involved.

Noble Eyeglasses, at 1721 Morris Ave., Union, has a solution to all of those concerns, according to manager Jim Dambola.

"We specialize in courtesy and fast, prompt service," said Dambola. "We still try to keep our prices down without compromising quality."

And, he emphasizes that service is offered very quickly in most cases.

"We can fit most people in an hour with a new pair of glasses, if they have the prescription," Dambola explained. "Without a prescription, it would take maybe an hour and a half."

That hour and a half includes a full eye examination by optometrist Arthur Friedman and selection of frames from a wide variety of all the most popular brand names, including Safilo and Avant Garde.

The eye exam, which costs $25, takes approximately 20 minutes.

Also available are contact lenses, which come in the conventional clear form, and several colors, including blue, aqua, green and amber.

Most prescriptions are filled on the premises in Noble's in-house laboratory, so Noble customers can have their glasses or contacts made while they wait.

To care for your contacts, the store, located next to Bradlees, also offers a complete line of contact lens supplies including solutions, kits, heaters and chemical units.

Noble also has the latest in prescription sunglasses and offers free eyeglass adjustment and minor repairs.

"We provide this service to people even if they haven't bought their eyeglasses from one of our outlets or from us," said General Manager Peter Aquila of the free adjustment service.

It's all part of Noble's way of "seeing" to it that the store's customers get the best in eyeglasses and service at reasonable prices.

Noble is open from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday; 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday and Friday; 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays, and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Overlook Hospital

When I came to Overlook Hospital in 1973, I never dreamed that I would still be here 15 years later... and happy!

I hope you will agree with me that the First Amendment cries out for true community newspapers to open their columns to responsible points of view - especially of those who seek to govern - not merely to concerns of those who own the newspaper. Our releases will appear in the Union Shopper. Look for them there.

If you concur with my conception of what a good local newspaper should be please communicate these concerns to the people who run the Union Leader. Speak out! Tell them you have a right to know what I think and what Mayor Healan thinks. Not what the Union Leader thinks you should be told.

On Nov. 3
Elect
Jerome
PETTI
to Township Committee
"He's Ready!"

Filed for by Union Top Democratic Campaign Committee, Joseph L. Kinet, President, 682-2629 PL, Union, N.J.

Union Township's Right To Know!

Because the Union Leader, your local newspaper, refuses to print candidates' campaign statements, we the Democrats of Union Township, have been forced to purchase advertising space so that you will have access to the information you deserve to have about the campaign for Township Committee. Facts that a serious, responsible community newspaper should provide in its news columns.

Why I Am Running For Township Committee
By Jerome Petti

As a student of our government and as an attorney, I am deeply troubled by the Union Leader's failure to report fully on the views of candidates for public office. An informed electorate is a key ingredient of the democratic process - Keeping the citizenry in the dark thwarts that process.

But in a way, the cavalier attitude of the Union Leader is a reflection of the manner in which the current township administration is running our community. This should be the issue in the township ballot off with an administration run by experienced public servants like Anthony E. Russo and Jim Roberts - or one controlled by Mayor Healan and her inexperienced partisans?

In the weeks to come, I plan to provide you in this space with my vision of what Union Township ought to be. I have lived here almost all my life. I have attended our schools and immersed myself in civic and cultural activities. I have played on our athletic fields and worked as a municipal employee. I have practiced law here and participated in the political process. I have owned property here and operated two successful businesses.

All of the foregoing have prepared me to offer my views on the issues that I regard as important, based on my many conversations with the good people who make this community what it is. The Union Leader believes the campaign should be decided solely on the basis of the candidates' replies to four questions posed by its editors. I truly believe I would be doing those whose support I seek a disservice by allowing myself to be limited to responses to a few questions dreamed up by journalists who are not involved in the day-to-day life of our community.

When I came to Overlook Hospital in 1973, I never dreamed that I would still be here 15 years later... and happy!

I have had the opportunity to work on Pediatrics and now in the Neonatal Unit. I now work part-time which offers me the best of all worlds - full-time work and mother, and part-time nurse. While raising my three children, Overlook has provided me with the flexibility in my work schedule. I have switched from full-time part-time to per diem depending on my family obligations.

Overlook has always encouraged participation and input from its nursing staff. I look forward to my contribution as a member of our Nursing Recruitment and Retention Committee. The medical staff and administration are also very supportive of the nursing staff.

I have friends in other area hospitals, but I feel that none are as happy as I am working at Overlook Hospital!

Susan McDonald, RN
Staff Nurse

Ex-beauty queen enjoys new 'reign'

By BEA SMITH
What do people think about when summer is over? Most people think about the Labor Day weekend, going back to school and the "Miss America" Pageant in Atlantic City.
And when the fabulous array of 59 beauty queens adorn Convention Hall in Atlantic City Sept. 19 following three days of preparation to compete for the "Miss America" honor, we can be sure that not one of those gorgeous creatures will be thinking about what she will look like at age 50.
And probably, Janet Mannino, who strutted before the judges as "Miss New Jersey" over the Labor Day weekend 30 years ago, never gave it a thought either. Whether or not they win, the "Miss America" contestants do reach 50, and if any of them look anything like Janet Mannino at age 50, they have nothing to worry about.

She was an absolute beauty at age 20 as Janet M. Ressler of Union, formerly of Irvington, the reigning "Miss New Jersey." She's even more beautiful 30 adult years later.
"Fifty is very painful to acknowledge," Mannino says with a pretty frown during a visit to Hayes Road, Union, the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Ressler.

MISS AMERICA CONTESTANTS FOR 1957 PAGEANT — She was Janet Ressler of Union then, when Janet Mannino, left, posed as Miss New Jersey with other beauty queens on the beach in Atlantic City 30 years ago. All four women participated in the Miss America pageant.

ON STEVE ALLEN SHOW — Janet Ressler Mannino appeared on a number of television shows. Here, she is seen with the delighted musician-comedian on his regular show.

"Really, I won't be 50 years old until December, but I decided to celebrate it in August. Since my birthday is so close to Christmas, I've always felt that I've been overlooked somehow, because everybody is so busy preparing for the holidays."
A birthday party was held for her Aug. 8 at the Shrewsbury River Yacht Club in Fair Haven. "It seems like everyone attended," she says. "In addition to my husband, Joseph, my parents, sons and daughters, friends from Irvington High School and Upsala College...there must have been about 135 people. And the highlight was a beach plane which flew over us waving a banner, 'Nifty, Nifty, Janet's Fifty.'"
In addition to maintaining the loveliness in her face, the tall ex-beauty queen has a figure women 'way under 30 can envy. What is her secret? "I don't drink. I don't smoke. And I always take care of myself," she says modestly. "I used to teach physical fitness when I was first married — to my first husband, Joseph Ens, who lived in Springfield. I taught in adult education classes in the early 1960s in Holmdel, where we had lived at the time."

Never in a million years, she indicates, would she have imagined competing in any beauty contest. "I thought I was going to be a psychologist or a psychiatrist. It all happened when I started college at Upsala in East Orange and needed some money for a scholarship." She shakes her head in disbelief.

Mannino, who was born in Irvington — "the home of Jerry Lewis and Janet Ressler" — moved to Union when she was 17 years old.
"I was a senior at Irvington High School then," she says, "and I had to pay a tuition at that time to stay in Irvington High and to be graduated from there. It was pretty steep, too."
The college freshman's plans were to "go to college for eight years. I needed the extra money," she recalls, "so I started entering contests hoping to get enough money for a scholarship. At the Trenton State Fair, I won a color television set," she laughs.
"Then I read in the Union Leader that they were having a 'Miss Union' beauty contest in Connecticut Farms School. Prizes included

The Nutley 5 Mile Classic

SUNDAY SEPTEMBER 20
10:00 AM

"The Run For Everyone" Nutley 5-Mile Classic. It's the race for everyone, from weekend joggers to world class champs.

The flat, well-marked course winds along tree-lined streets and streams through the heart and parks of Nutley. The route is traffic controlled with splits at every mile, water stations and Electronic Timing by Race Timing Systems. This is one of New Jersey's best run races and a great tune-up for the Fall running season.

Trophies are awarded to male and female overall winners, as well as to male and female winners in each of eight age groups. Medals are awarded to male and female 2nd through 5th place finishers in each age category and to all finishers over age 60. In addition all entrants are eligible for prizes raffled at the end of the race which includes a color TV.

Post-entry Registration and Race Number Pickup tables open at 8:00 a.m. at Nutley Savings & Loan, 371 Franklin Ave., Nutley. There's a one-mile Fun Run at 9:30 and free race t-shirts to all Pre-entries and to Post-entries while they last. Pre-entries must be received by September 18th, so be sure to send yours in today.

Add 'Brecker' to collection

By MILTHAMMER
Pick Of The New LPs: "Michael Brecker," MCA/Impulse Records.
Here's a good-sounding album that you shouldn't pass by. A worthwhile addition to your jazz collection of "goodies."
More than most mortals, musicians can be measured by the company they keep. In the case of this tenor saxophonist, that company includes Chick Corea, Dave Stratts, Quincy Jones, Dan Fogelberg, Charles Mingus, Bette Midler, Bruce Springsteen, Parliament/Funkadelic, Frank Sinatra, John Lennon, Eric Clapton, Freddie Hubbard, Chaka Khan, James Taylor, Steely Dan, and Billy Joel—to name a few.
They were all inspired to require Brecker's services because of his renowned virtuosity—as an incandescent soloist, seamless ensemble player, and innovative composer. And now Brecker's gifts are being put on their most conspicuous and compelling display—with the release of his first solo album, "Michael Brecker."

Born in Philadelphia to a musical family, Brecker began listening to Cannonball Adderly, Miles Davis, Clifford Brown, and John Coltrane while still in his teens. Initially trained on the clarinet, Michael's jazzy leaning led him to switch to

Disc 'n' data

alto saxophone and then tenor, where he finally found his instrument. Committed to a career in music at an early age, he attended Indiana University only briefly before pulling into New York at age 18.

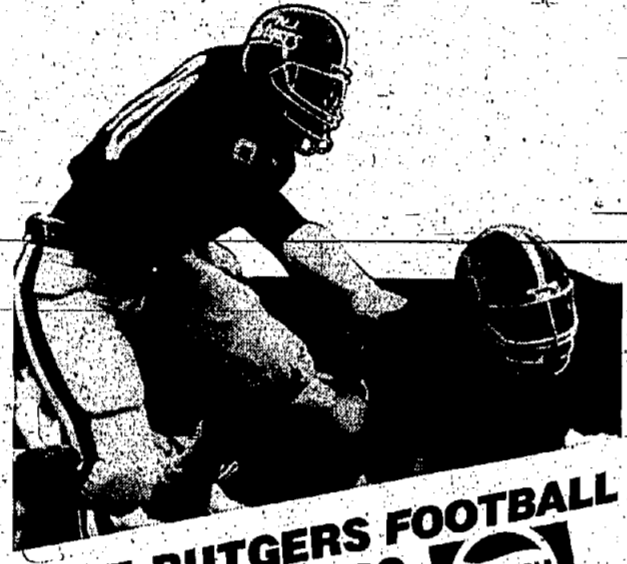

From there the climb was rapid and dramatic. In the late 60s Brecker joined with Billy Cobham, John Abercrombie, Will Lee and others to form Dreams, a band of rock and jazz.

The early 1970s brought stints with Horace Silver and, later, Billy Cobham, touring and recording all over the world. Brecker then invaded the studio scene, quickly emerging as the pre-eminent studio saxophonist of his generation. His appearance on nearly 400 albums constitutes a virtual pantheon of popular sound.

Acting Studio fall term is scheduled

The fall term for The Acting Studio in Cranford will begin its 10-week term Oct. 5.
A full range of classes will be offered for children and adults who are either beginners or experienced performers. Registration for the fall term will be held Sept. 28 and 29, from 4 to 8 p.m., at 189 North Ave. E. in Cranford. Students may also register by phone after Sept. 19.
This fall, for the first time, David

Christopher will schedule a "Director's Workshop." It will be held on four Saturdays in November.
In the regular acting classes, which meet once a week for 10 weeks, four levels of sequential acting technique classes for adults are offered.
A free brochure or further information can be obtained by calling David Christopher, director and head of faculty, at 276-0275.

COACHING YOUNGSTER FOR AUDITION — Esther Kravitz, artistic director of Performers Theater Workshop, coaches Matthew Lombardo, 8, for upcoming audition on TV's "Starsearch." Matthew is a "Sesame Street" regular and a member of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists.

Rehearsal season to open

The Choral Art Society of New Jersey, under the direction of Evelyn Bleeker, will open its 28th rehearsal season Tuesday at 9 p.m., at the Presbyterian Church in Westfield, Mountain Avenue and Broad Street.

The concert season will open Jan. 9 with Vaughan Williams' "Hodie" and Vivaldi's "Magnificat." The spring concert will feature Mendelssohn's "Elijah." The society has invited those interested in performing the choral masterpieces to audition for membership and to attend weekly rehearsals. All voices are welcome. It was announced.

Singers who want to audition can come to the first rehearsal or contact the membership chairman at 222-9222 for further information.

Arts school trains professionals

The Performers Theater Workshop, a performing arts school, 20 Summit St., West Orange, is offering more than 26 levels in its curriculum, which includes courses in acting, dance, voice, song, interpretation, acrobatics, TV acting and commercial techniques and show production. Instruction on all levels is offered to students from 5 years of age to adult and to "absolute beginners to very advanced."
Within its three-year existence, PTW has attracted young performers, who are working professionals represented by New York Management agencies. Esther and Howard Kravitz, co-artistic directors, feel that "just because a person who comes to us doesn't want to become a professional doesn't mean that the person who comes to us isn't deserving of the best professional teaching available and that is our primary concern for everyone who becomes a part of us."

The curriculum also includes a three-year existence of its "Teen Troupe," which has been performing a song and dance revue at country clubs, catering halls and shopping malls in the area.
Following the run of its first musical venture, "Godspell," PTW is planning a "Performers Showcase" revue for its new season.

Open house registration for the fall season will take place Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. at the school occasion. Classes are scheduled to begin Sept. 17. Additional information can be obtained by calling 762-7711.

Your Horoscope

For week of Sept. 10

ARIES (3/21-4/19) Don't assume everyone is as well-versed with the routine at work as you are. If you do, some careless mistakes just might occur for which you will have to take the blame. Make sure your instructions are clear to the letter when giving them to others. Big wigs will be watching.

TAURUS (4/20-5/20) Your critical side is showing, but loved ones will balk at this. Try to exercise understanding and patience. As others will be quick to point out, you are not endowed with perfection. Your imagination will be at an all-time high this weekend, so take advantage of it.

GEMINI (5/21-6/20) While you enjoy making snappy witticisms, they are sometimes at the expense of others. Think before you speak. Your sense of humor is not appreciated by everyone. Someone you think is a friend does not have your best financial interests at heart, so be careful.

CANCER (6/21-7/22) You can sometimes swamp yourself with extraneous details when it's the time to make a decision. Be scanned. Avoid being bogged down by this since a situation at home will require your attention. A loved one is acting strangely, but let this pass for now.

LEO (7/23-8/22) You will do the wise thing and seek out a financial advisor who will be able to help you reach your financial goals. Loved ones, however, are not in agreement as to how to use this extra windfall. Listen well because their suggestions just might merit some extra attention.

VIRGO (8/23-9/22) While you are not one who enjoys lone shopping sprees, it is best to stick to yourself for now. Your judgment will be your best guide when splashing out that fall wardrobe. While your heart is hearing visions in your romantic life, be sure to keep a level head.

LIBRA (9/23-10/22) A paradox always, you are creative and imaginative, but have a very solid logical mind. Someone from whom you don't assume answers is not satisfying your logical side. However, now is not the time to press since this person will continue to be evasive until the time is right.

SCORPIO (10/23-11/21) You will probably feel bogged down this week at work by petty details. However, as distasteful as it is, pay attention to these tiny items. A clerical error could very easily occur if you are not diligent. By week's end, all will be straightened out.

SAGITTARIUS (11/22-12/21) It seems as though everyone around you is on the defensive right now. Since this is the case, give thought to what you have to say prior to speaking. This will avoid hurt feelings and misunderstandings all the way around. Keep a light rein on your pocketbook this week.

CAPRICORN (12/22-1/19) Be sure to tread carefully with sensitive family members this week. Plan a family outing for the weekend since everyone will be in a better mood and will be able to relax. This is not the time to make any long-reaching decisions, so take it easy for now.

AQUARIUS (1/20-2/18) Someone at work is misreading you about the facts, so ferret them out yourself. While it's hard to believe, someone could be deliberately dishonest with you; this person has an eye on your position. It would be wise to take steps to protect yourself.

PISCES (2/19-3/20) Financial aspects are not favored this week, so avoid going on any spending sprees or making any significant purchases. Borrowing and lending are also not favored at this time, so take heed. The cloud in this area will soon dissipate; be patient.

Ethnic festival planned

Secretary of State Jane Burgin has announced final plans for the 1987 New Jersey Ethnic Festival at Liberty State Park in Jersey City. The official state ethnic heritage celebration will be held Saturday and Sunday from noon to 6 p.m. on both days. A "Parade of Nations" and an official ceremony will open Admission to the festival and parking are free. The Liberty State Park is directly accessible from New Jersey Turnpike Exit 14B. Ferry boats to the Statue of Liberty leave at frequent intervals from a dock near the festival site.

Financing determines how much house to buy

How much house can you afford? Take a home buying tip from the National Association of Realtors: What you are able to buy could depend on the type of financing you choose.

Similar interest rates might be offered for conventional mortgages and those backed with insurance from the Federal Housing Administration or a guarantee from the Veterans Administration. But the mortgage plans each have different down payment and income requirements.

Meeting the requirements for a loan involves more than having an acceptable credit history. Loan qualifications also are determined by a percentage of monthly income allowed for mortgage payments and all other monthly bills.

Stan H. Sabin, chairman of NAR's Real Estate Finance Committee, explains that the less stringent qualifications of loans backed by the federal government housing programs make them the most affordable, in terms of down payment and income guidelines.

"Making a down payment is the hardest part of buying a home for many first-time buyers. A lot of times, people who are used to renting have not seen any reason to save very much," says Sabin, a Realtor from California. "They have a high car payment and other high bills; and when you add that to a house payment, they wind up over-obligated."

FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed loans are sometimes the only choice for buyers who can afford a mortgage payment, but have little money saved, says Bob J. Muffley, vice chairman of NAR's Government Mortgage Programs Committee.

"We see people who have a good income, who have the money for the monthly mortgage payment, but they don't have money to put down. If they don't have enough for a down payment, they have to go with a VA-guaranteed or FHA-insured loan," says Muffley, a Realtor from Idaho.

The VA home loan program currently guarantees up to $27,500 or 60 percent of the value of the property, whichever is less, in case of loan default. Generally, most lenders will lend - with no down payment required - up to four times the amount of the guaranty, which is the veteran's entitlement. Under the $27,500 entitlement, the current maximum loan amount available with no down payment is $110,000.

Up to $135,000 can be borrowed in many cases, with a down payment of 25 percent required for any amount over $110,000.

VA-guaranteed loans, which are available to veterans and enlisted personnel, have the most flexible qualifications for borrowers. The agency has guidelines that recommend a specific monthly income for total debt payments.

VA-guaranteed loans have no prepayment penalties and can be assumed without restrictions by military or non-military assumptors. The agency requires that a funding fee equaling 1 percent of the loan amount be paid by the borrower. This fee can be paid at closing or financed into the loan amount.

Loans with FHA insurance also have relatively lenient buyer qualifications. The FHA, a division of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, insures full payment of the mortgage to the lender.

Generally, FHA's guidelines place a limit of about 38 percent of the net monthly income for mortgage payments, including principal and interest, real estate taxes and insurance, and utility bills; and about 55 percent of the net monthly income for total debts.

The agency's national mortgage insurance limit is $67,500. Increases up to a current maximum of $90,000 are generally made for agency-designated "high-cost" areas. A housing bill now going through Congress contains a provision raising the maximum to $101,250. FHA's program requires a 3 percent down payment on the first $25,000 of the loan, and 5 percent on the remaining amount.

A mortgage insurance premium totaling 3.8 percent of the loan amount is charged to borrowers. This sum can be paid in full at closing or financed into the loan amount. FHA-insured mortgages can be pre-paid without penalty but home owners may be liable for one month's mortgage interest if a 30-day notice of intent to pay is not submitted to the lender servicing the mortgage.

FHA-insured loans are assumable. Currently, an FHA rule requires a credit review for assumptors of FHA-insured loans that have been originated or previously assumed within two years preceding the buyer's assumption date.

A conventional, or privately-insured, loan is one choice for non-military borrowers seeking a loan beyond FHA's mortgage insurance limits. Conventional loans have tighter qualification requirements that vary with the amount of down payment made - the lower the down payment, the tougher the guidelines.

Sabin says loans covering 95 percent of the purchase price can be difficult to get. Since conventional loans do not have federal government backing, lenders originating the loans and the private mortgage insurance companies insuring the loans often prefer down payments of at least 10 percent, he says.

Generally, private mortgage insurance is charged to insure loans covering more than 80 percent of the purchase price. A certain amount (which varies with the insurance company) is charged initially to cover the first year's insurance, and a smaller amount is charged for renewals in the ensuing years. The insurance is added to the mortgage payment.

Qualifications for conventional loans vary, but for many plans, lenders require that borrowers spend no more than 25 percent of their gross monthly income on the mortgage payment and no more than 33 percent of their gross monthly income on total debts.

Convention is open to public Realtor reports record sales tally

Schlott Realty invites the public to attend its third annual convention today at the Aspen Hotel-Manor on Rt. 46 West, Parsippany, from 3 to 8 p.m. This marks the first time this company wide event has been open to the public.

The convention will feature exhibits and workshops by many participating vendors, as well as, Schlott's divisions and departments.

The seminars begin at 7 p.m. and will cover a wide variety of subjects, with topics ranging from where and what type of house to purchase, to how to obtain the desired type of financing. A seminar on Florida is designed to provide prospective homebuyers with a view of the Florida lifestyle.

For those interested in pursuing a career in real estate there will be a seminar conducted by the First Referral Network and a Career Night, which will focus on the skills and requisites needed for a successful career in real estate and the benefits of such a career.

On the financial end, there are seminars on investment, to be conducted by The Financial Network, specialists in the areas of investment, cash management, taxes, risk management and retirement and one entitled Pre-retirement which deals with housing options and lifestyle alternatives for those who are planning or already retired.

For more information and to obtain a complimentary convention pass contact your nearest Schlott Office or call educational services at 1-800-REALTOR.

Century 21 of the Northeast has reported record numbers for sales volume, properties sold and commissions earned for the first six months of 1989, dispelling concerns that rising interest rates would lead to an industry slump.

The number of properties sold during the first half of 1989 rose nearly 10 percent over the previous year, which was itself a record period. Total sales volume rose 35 percent to $2.5 billion, fueled by increased activity and healthy appreciation.

Commission income earned by Century 21 brokers and sales associates in Connecticut, New Jersey, New York (five boroughs and L.I. and Island) and Rhode Island was up 30 percent over the previous year.

"Fears that the economy would slow down or that mortgage rates would skyrocket proved groundless. Real estate prices continue to rise in many areas along with sales activity," says Robert Sperle, regional director, Century 21 of the Northeast. "We see no indication that the state of the market should change significantly over the next few months and 1989 could well prove to be another record year for production."

Prices in the Northeast were 19 percent higher than recorded during the first six months of the previous year. During the same period, price increases across the United States averaged 6.2 percent.

During the month of June, the average price of a home in the Northeast was $152,121, up 25 percent over 1988. Prices that month averaged $159,709 in Northern New Jersey; $97,626 in Southern New Jersey; $146,281 in Connecticut; $119,883 in Rhode Island; and $171,263 in the Metropolitan New York area.

The hottest real estate market in the first half of 1987 was in the state of Rhode Island, where appreciation was reported at 30 percent as compared to the same period in 1986. Commission income rose a whopping 54 percent. Rhode Island was closely followed by Northern New Jersey which recorded a 27 percent rise in housing prices year to year and a 34 percent rise in commissions. Sales closed in those two states were up 14 percent and 12 percent, respectively.

In Connecticut average mid-year prices rose 28 percent over the previous year; New York reported a 12 percent increase and Southern New Jersey, 23 percent.

System-wide, the Century 21 Real Estate Corporation enjoyed an equally productive six months, both in sales closed and commission income. More than 320,000 families across the United States bought or sold a home through the system's offices during the first half of 1987.

IRS to eyeball house sales

In an effort to ensure that taxpayers report on their tax returns the profit realized on the sale of their homes, the person responsible for closing the transaction is now required to provide the Internal Revenue Service with the name and address of the seller, the gross proceeds of the sale and certain other information. The IRS will match this information with data appearing on tax returns.

A copy of the form (1099-B) will also be given to the seller before Feb. 1, 1988.

Generally, the difference between the price at which a person bought and sold a home, minus home improvement costs, are now taxed at a 28 percent capital gains rate. A taxpayer can defer the tax on the profit, if he or she within two years purchases a new home that exceeds the profit on the old home.

Also, taxpayers age 55 and above who have lived in a home at least three years prior to it being sold can exclude up to $125,000 of their profit from the capital gains tax. This is a once-in-a-lifetime benefit.

More information on reporting real estate transactions to the IRS are contained in Publication 924, which can be obtained free of charge by calling 1-800-424-3676.

FACE-FRAMING PIERROT collar... sets the romantic mood. The allure of ruffles continues all the way to the peek-a-boo skirt, extending in lace ruffles to a chapel train. Designed by Michèle Piccone for Bridallure. In rustling taffeta and crisp lace.

New fashions: many options

Commitment. A word barely used in the 'me' decade of the 70s has become an integral part of our vocabulary in the late 1980s.

With the divorce rate on the downswing for the first time since its sharp rise in the 60s and 70s, and the average age of first-time marriage at an all-time high, couples are exchanging vows and pledging to make the magic of the moment last forever.

And the moment is magical, with the bride gowning in traditional opulence — incorporating the latest fashion trends — for the most important day of her life.

According to Michèle Piccone, design director for Alfred Angelo Bridals, "The fashion options have never been greater than they are for the fall and winter bride. With a myriad of fabrics, and silhouettes that span the spectrum from flirtatious puffs to long and lean, she can create her own individual look to reflect her unique personality."

She has a host of fabrics from which to choose, including shiny lace, sumptuous satin, rustling taffeta and shimmering crystal organza.

She can show off her well-toned body — the result of a continuing love affair with the fitness craze — in the new body-conscious silhouettes. Look for:

- the long torso bodice that slithers down the hips
- chemises that skim the curves
- bare shoulders, plunging necklines and key-hole back bodices
- Elements from the stylish past are echoed in current collections. Note the Sabrina neckline — part of the 50s influence. Court necklines and baroque sleeves recall the grandeur of medieval brides and modern-day Juliets. Making a comeback are flattering Pierrot collars.

"Tradition," relates Piccone, "takes a fanciful turn with ruffles, bustles and peplums. Bows make a fashion statement as headpieces — and as accents at shoulders, wrists, derrières and trains."

Sparkled with beading, headpieces run the gamut from small pillboxes to wide-brimmed Victorian hats. This season look for:

- the return of the cloche, chic and sophisticated
- asymmetrical, face-framing clusters or sprays of flowers
- on-the-forehead styles in wreaths and bridal rings
- open-crown pillbox headpieces
- Mary Queen of Scots or tear-drop headpieces worn forward on the forehead.

Complementing the bride are her bridesmaids — now numbering as many as eight or more — in gowns that reflect her style. Instead of selecting the "sweet young thing" bridesmaid dress that may hang unused in the closet after the wedding, relates Piccone, brides are choosing fashion-forward gowns that can double as evening dresses. "Shoulder-baring necklines, long-torso silhouettes, peplums and bows for lack of interest all are directional for fall and winter brides," she says.

This season's weddings will create many happy memories, memories that the bride and groom — with a renewed sense of commitment to making their marriage a success — will cherish for a lifetime.

Bridal wear firms are 'wed'

Bridal Originals, the world's largest manufacturer of bridal wear, and After Six Incorporated, the world's largest manufacturer of men's formalwear, have joined hands for two major programs which will have a significant impact on the bridal marketplace.

For fall 1987, the two companies will participate in a joint advertising program in which many of their leading styles will be featured together in a variety of trade, consumer print campaigns, as well as in other promotional activities. Secondly, beginning with spring 1988, Bridal Originals will launch an additional bridal gown line carrying the label "After Six by Bridal Originals." The firm will, of course, continue its other existing and established labels, Bridal Originals, "Forever" Wedding Collections by Oscar de la Renta and Nadine Frenals.

In making the announcement, Bridal Originals' Chairman Richard L. Freundlich stated, "We feel strongly that this new association represents a marriage of the highest caliber. After Six enjoys an outstanding reputation. Additionally, it benefits from strong consumer brand-recognition. We believe that the strength of Bridal Originals' well-known name, combined with that of After Six, will create never-before-seen excitement in the business of planning and dressing for beautiful and outstanding wedding parties."

Robert C. Rudofker, president of After Six Incorporated, noted that

"The pieces have finally fallen into place on an idea that has been in the making for years. Outfitting the bride is a natural step for After Six to take, especially in light of the growing number of consumer outlets which feature clothing for the whole wedding party. We are confident that After Six by Bridal Originals will be a very visible and successful line."

Bridal Originals, founded in 1947, is a privately-held company. Its owners are also the principals of the Nan Duskin chain of fine specialty stores in Philadelphia and Baltimore, and Fine & Co., a leading house manufacturer.

After Six made its start in Philadelphia in 1903 where it continues to be located, and has been the leading manufacturer of men's formalwear since that time.

Nationwide, there are over 7,000 specialty bridal shops and department stores that carry bridal apparel for the entire wedding party. Men's formalwear is available in a wide variety of retail outlets, including fine bridal shops, including approximately 2,450,000 marriages will take place, and industry surveys report that the average expenditure for a formal wedding totals over $11,000.

THIS SILK double-crepe gown has a strapless bodice of floral silk Venise lace. From the Oscar de la Renta Forever Wedding Collections.

Watching those pre-wedding calories

Energy is the body's most basic need. Energy is used for breathing, when the heart pumps blood, when we sit, stand, and walk.

The energy value of any food is measured in units called kilocalories, commonly shortened to "calories" in the United States. No single food or kind of food is "fattening" by itself. When the energy provided in food is not used, the excess is stored in the body in the form of fat. Storage of too many excess calories results in overweight.

Calories may also be added to food intake by consuming alcoholic beverages — which supply no nutrients but yield calories at the rate of 7 calories per gram of alcohol.

Travel scams can ruin a honeymoon

There are no "free trips" in the travel business. These are words of warning from Endless Vacation Travel (EVT) agents based in Indianapolis—who point out the dangers of falling victim to the multitude of travel scams currently operating across the country promoting vacations to exciting places such as Hawaii, Mexico and the Caribbean.

"With strong and highly publicized competition between airlines and others in the travel industry, it makes it difficult for the consumer to know which travel plans and offers are legitimate," says Helen McWilliams, assistant vice president of operations for EVT, a resort condominium-rental company. "The general public is being deluged by rates delivered by phone or mail—offers of unbelievably low airfares, coupons and gifts."

Members of the American Society of Travel Agents (ASTA) are legitimately concerned about the effect of the travel scam epidemic on the reputation of the travel industry. In fact, ASTA has launched an intensive consumer-education program to inform the public about the rip-offs and how to avoid falling prey to such schemes. Bogus vacation proposals cost consumers and credit card companies millions of dollars every year.

When approached by an unfamiliar travel agency about a "too-good-to-be-true" trip offer, consider the value of what is being offered versus its alleged price. You've just been told that you can purchase a week's stay in the Caribbean, including airfare and oceanfront lodging in a first-rate hotel, for only $200. Does the offer sound reasonable? If it doesn't, then exercise some common sense and caution before proceeding further.

Often, disreputable operators go out of business quickly or relocate without leaving a forwarding address. A customer may mail in $50 to guarantee his trip, only to learn a few days later that all flights and lodging for the intended destination are unavailable.

Vince Ambery, who is with the Federal Trade Commission's division of marketing practices, says that four out of five complaints to his agency concern travel-related problems. The increased use of sophisticated and inexpensive telemarketing reportedly has contributed to the confusion. Ambery stresses that oral misrepresentations have become a major concern.

A few simple precautions can save you money and inconvenience:

□ Ask for the name of the reservationist, the name of the company president, the name of the company and its address and telephone number.

□ Ask for other pertinent information about the company that has contacted you. How many destinations do they have? What are their guarantees with the resorts they offer to ensure the availability of vacation weeks at the time of check-in? What forms are received when a reservation is made?

□ Resist any pressure to make an immediate decision on the offer. Ask the solicitor to print details of the offer in writing and send the information through the mail. Obtain in writing all details of the contract, including specific information about what you are purchasing. Ask also that the total price be included in the written materials.

□ Learn what the cancellation policy is before you confirm your reservations.

□ Be careful when providing your credit card number over the phone, especially with a company you do not know or one who has not answered your questions sufficiently. When dealing with a reputable agency, telephone confirmation through the use of a credit card is often the most efficient method of transaction.

□ If you are suspicious about a company, don't hesitate to report your concerns to the proper agencies: the Better Business Bureau, state and local consumer protection agencies, consumer reporters, state attorneys general and ASTA's consumer affairs department.

New line has drama, style

The drama and style of Oscar de la Renta are beautifully showcased in his new presentation of masterpiece bridal gowns, the Oscar de la Renta Forever Wedding Collections. Special attention is directed to the de la Renta signature details—ruffles, bows, tucks and beading—giving these innovative gowns an exceptional point of difference, all at affordable prices.

Emphasis is given to rich fabrication as luxurious French Alencon lace, Venice lace, silk satin, silk shantung, silk crepe and silk taffeta are featured. Drama is added to silhouettes as sheaths, halternecks and flowing princess lines romantically drape the figure to its most feminine advantage.

As evidenced by the variety of shapes, lengths, necklines and sleeve treatments, de la Renta has considered brides of all ages. He has also given thought to second marriages with an emphasis on simpler, classic designs coupled with the richest of fabrics. Additionally, each gown has been designed with a matching headpiece.

This season marks de la Renta's second bridal collection. Priced from $700 to $2,400, the gowns are available in fine bridal shops and department stores nationwide. Several of the designs will be featured in a series of consumer print ads in Brides and Modern Bride.

The intangible wedding facts

This year, industry surveys estimate that approximately 2 1/2 million marriages will take place and that average costs for a formal wedding will total over $10,000. Men and women are also marrying at an older age. The average age for a groom is 26-years-old, versus 23 in 1976. Weddings are also getting larger. Bridal consultants consider a small wedding to be one with fewer than 200 guests.

Big weddings are those with more than 500. These facts and figures are significant, but they don't show something that is equally important — each and every wedding ceremony is based in part on traditional, cultural, and ethnic values. It is these values, aside from the facts and figures, dollars and cents, that are at the core of marriages in America today and the center of interest for After Six Inc., the world's largest manufacturer of formalwear.

On June 17, After Six was proud to be a part of an exhibition opening at the Balch Institute for Ethnic Studies in Philadelphia. "Something Old, Something New — Ethnic Weddings in America," a traveling exhibition cosponsored by Modern Bride Magazine and the Balch Institute, will visit other American cities in the fall. Almost all Americans can trace their cultural and familial ties to some other country, either in Europe, Asia, South America, Africa or points in between. And considering that every culture has certain traditions relating to marriage, and weddings in particular, it is only natural that

Some queries need special attention

The simple announcement, "I'm getting married," guarantees you'll be in the spotlight for months ahead. This "instant celebrity" status often invites endless personal questions from family, friends...even strangers. "Where did you meet?" "How did he propose?" Some may be fun to answer, others can be irritating.

An article in a recent issue of Bride's magazine suggests dealing with some common questions this way:

□ "Why do you want to get married?" With today's acceptance of the single lifestyle, and of couples who live together without marrying, a person who takes the traditional route may be asked to "justify" that decision.

If you can answer this question — and if you want to — you might explain that you're serious about your religion, or that you believe marriage is the strongest statement of commitment two people can make. But sometimes the best answer is much simpler: "It just feels right to me."

□ "Why did you decide to marry him?" Questions about your choice of partner can be upsetting, particularly if these doubts come from people you love and respect. Usually the best answer is, "When you get to know Bob better, I'm sure you'll see why."

What if the question causes you to have doubts yourself? Does this mean that you are making a mistake? Remember that marriage is a very big step; even people who are very much in love worry.

□ "When are you going to have a baby?" This is a touchy question, but it can be helpful to distinguish someone who is merely prying from someone who is genuinely interested in passing along valuable advice. In the first case, a non-answer such as "Why do you ask?" might stop the questioning short.

In the second case, if the question comes from an older sister, for example, what at first seems intrusive could actually get you to explore an issue you hadn't thought about before.

□ "Will you be quitting your job?" Many people still assume that a bride will automatically give up her place in the work force for a place at home. "No, of course not," is a good reply, whether the questioner is a friend, relative, stranger, or your boss. In the latter case, you might underscore your answer by being particularly dedicated at work.

If you do decide to stop working, or if you'll be moving to another town after the wedding, be honest. Give your employer plenty of notice and leave on a good note.

□ "Will you share the housework?" Friends who ask this may be wondering how they would handle the situation if they were to marry. Just say, "We plan to be equals." After all, no one can foresee the future or know exactly what married life will be like.

□ "How much will your wedding cost?" or "Who's paying for the wedding?" The first question is factless...and very common. You could wave it aside with something like, "Never mind. Just come and enjoy yourself." The second question could be answered honestly: "Bill's parents and mine are splitting the bill." Or with a joke: "We're accepting contributions of $100 or more from all those kind enough to inquire." Or, as with any one of these "engaging" questions, by simply not answering at all.

Other wedding facts

Someone would explore their differences and similarities.

It is interesting to note that among Romans, Greeks and Jews, gold wedding rings — perhaps the most common symbol of marriage — traditionally signified the groom's pledge of betrothal, and were given as payment to the father of the bride. Today, in many western societies, the father of the bride escorts his daughter to the altar and figuratively "gives her away," reflecting the archaic concept of the wife as property. In certain parts of Europe, essential clothing and household goods were accumulated in a "hope chest," or trousseau — from the French word trousse or "bundle" — which has since given rise to the modern bridal shower.

Certain customs such as the white wedding gown and bridal headpiece reflect variations on ethnic traditions. The all white gown is believed to have originated in England in the late 18th century and represented virginity, whereas in today's world of second and third marriages, white more often signifies hope and joy. In Japan, white was the color of mourning and signified that the bride was now dead to her natural family. Red, indicating happiness, is the usual color for the bride in China, northern India and Bhutanese countries. Today's bridal headpieces are descended from wreaths of flowers, gems and metals worn by Ukrainian, Lithuanian, Swedish and Finnish. In Hindu weddings the bride typically wore an elaborate headdress called a topor, which was made of pitch.

Why wait for a special occasion to enjoy a very special dinner.

Dinner at the highly acclaimed Upper Crust restaurant is a special occasion all by itself.

With elegantly appointed surroundings, beautiful table settings, and attentive service.

But what you'll find most impressive is our fine American cuisine and fresh native seafood. Featuring entrees such as Blue Claw Crab Cakes with a Chile Corn Salsa, Woven Salmon and Sole with a Dill Beurre Blanc, Steamed Coho Yearling Salmon with Fresh Herbs, or Medallions of Veal with a Pink Grapefruit Sauce.

Our chef has also prepared many imaginative dishes which reduce the calories, but not the enjoyment of gourmet dining.

After dinner, there's the lure of The Laurel's with great music in a contemporary setting.

Call and make your dinner reservations now. Because even if you're not celebrating a special occasion, we'll make it seem like one.

Stopping the jitters

As anyone who has gotten married can tell you, the months leading up to a wedding can be a time of stress as well as happiness. There's just so much to think about and do.

You need to find ceremony and reception sites, to choose just the right clothes, to make sometimes touchy decisions about who will be in your wedding, to furnish a complete home for your life after the wedding — and all this while you're having the inevitable doubts about getting married in the first place.

While wedding jitters are about as common as weddings, there are ways to make sure the anxiety doesn't get out of hand. Bride's Magazine has these commonsense suggestions:

□ Don't be afraid to admit you're upset. Tell your partner what's bothering you, whether it's a serious question about your relationship or a relatively trivial worry that you'll go blank when it comes time to say your vows.

□ If you try to keep the stressful feelings to yourself, you'll only transfer them to something else, getting overly-irritated at a late train, or a run in your stockings.

□ Take positive action whenever possible. Sign up for a pre-marital workshop. Practice reciting your vows in front of a willing friend.

□ Share the wedding responsibilities. If you're the bride, don't assume you have to do everything yourself. This idea is old-fashioned, as well as exhausting. Ask your fiancé to join you in picking out a catering hall and registering for gifts. He can write a share of the thank-you notes, handle all the honeymoon arrangements.

□ Keep a calendar of everything you have to do. This kind of master plan gives you the secure feeling that you're not forgetting something crucial.

□ Also gather any business cards, fabric swatches or magazine-clippings you accumulate all together in one place — either a wedding planner made for this purpose or a simple manila envelope. Organization has the magical effect of reducing anxiety to a manageable level.

□ Have a system for each task. Say you're doing invitations. First see if the task can be broken down into steps. You have to address the envelopes, stuff them, seal them and stamp them.

□ Then, decide how you'll tackle each step. How long it should take and who will do it. Next, set a completion date, keeping in mind that invitations should be mailed six weeks before the wedding. Finally, take action by setting a time and a place to begin.

□ Pace yourself — don't plan to scout for reception sites the same day you have a report due at work. You'll make it through these pre-wedding months if you promise yourself you won't tackle more than one major job a day.

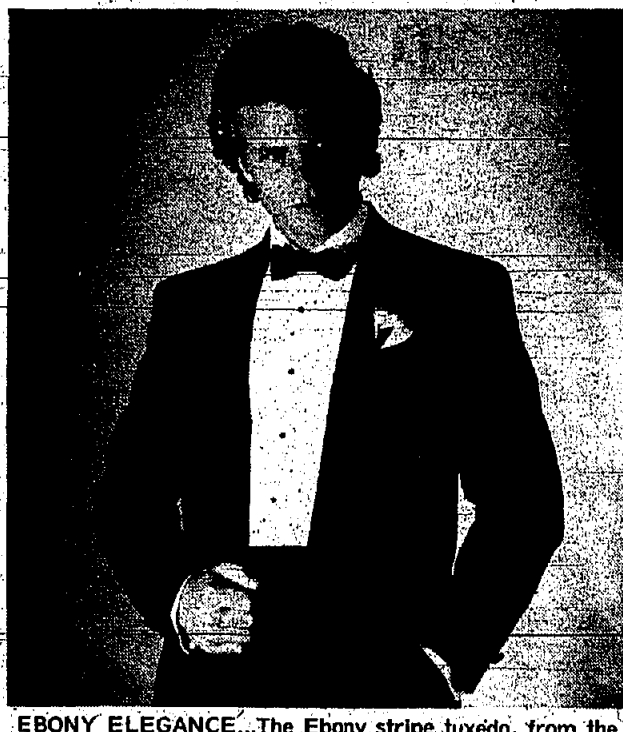

□ Guard your health. Don't let a hectic schedule keep you from eating right, or often enough. You'll feel even more jittery from the weakness that results from a drop in blood sugar.

□ Be sure to get enough rest and exercise, too. Exercise increases the body's level of norepinephrine, a substance that gives you a feeling of calmness and well-being.

□ If sleep eludes you at night because you have too much on your mind, try the time-tested soothers: A hot bath, warm milk or a back rub.

DELICATE, hand-beaded ribbon lace trims the multi-tucked bodice of this silk satin gown, de la Renta signature bows highlight the waistline and full bishop.

EBONY ELEGANCE...The Ebony stripe tuxedo, from the Miami Vice Collection by After Six, features black-on-black stripes with matching pleated trousers of 100 percent wool. It's shown here with a white spread collar shirt, black satin bow tie and cummerbund.

Consumer tips

Director warns about scams

Are some vacation offers too good to be true? Yes, says Consumer Affairs Director James J. Barry Jr. Many New Jersey consumers are being deluged with postcards, letters and phone calls offering vacations to Mexico, Hawaii, Las Vegas, the Bahamas, Florida or other popular tourist sites.

Travel scams are the latest attempt by con artists to bilk consumers, and these offers are often hard to resist, Barry warned. They are bright, well-written and demand an immediate response; but what initially sounds like a good deal, often is not, he says.

The typical offer is a postcard that starts off, "Congratulations, you have been chosen to receive a fabulous vacation." Consumers who respond to the phone number on the postcard are given an explanation of how to book their vacations and asked for a credit card number. The unwary fall for the gimmick and give the requested credit information. The result is a charge to their accounts for membership in a travel club, Barry says. It is then up to the club members to book trips on dates acceptable to the travel club.

"Usually all consumers get is frustration," says Attorney General W. Gary Edwards, the Cabinet officer in charge of the Division of Consumer Affairs, one of 10 divisions in the Department of Law and Public Safety. "The lucky travelers are lured down in advance. Many others assume their trips are arranged, plan their vacations and then discover they have nowhere to go."

A recent survey in California revealed that one percent of consumers actually made the offered trip. The restrictions for travel are often so complicated it is impossible for anyone to comply.

Another version of the travel scam is the two-for-one offer which can turn out to be more expensive than a normal booking, made through a travel agent. Hawaii for $29 was the bait for one recent offer. The catch was an obligation to pay highly inflated hotel-room rates for seven days.

Barry offers consumer advice for dealing with travel:

□ Be wary of mail or phone solicitations. Use a travel agent or tour operator with a regular place of business. Then if anything goes wrong you have someone to complain to.

□ Never give your credit card number over the phone to someone who wants to "verify" the information. Ask the caller to give you the information and you do the verifying.

□ If you are still determined to go ahead and take advantage of these offers, think of it as gambling. Your chances of winning are minimal.

□ If you have already given your credit card number to the vacation solicitor, notify the company in writing that you want to cancel.
