Two sections

Byouk is 'bestseller' in library

By DOMINICK CRINCOLI JR.
It was love at first stack for 200 library director Nancy Byouk.

"I knew after working my first job in a library setting that I had found the perfect profession," she said.

And there she sat, poised and upright—ready for a volley of questions about her latest exploits.

"I have always had a love for libraries, always frequented them."

In speaking of her childhood, and how her family relocated around the country several times, she said, "It was the first thing we did after moving to a town — we familiarized ourselves with the public library."

Her adjustment to the new position she has occupied since June 6 is going smoothly, she said, due to a caring staff and the diligence of her predecessor, Cynthia Josephs.

Her responsibilities as library director include: managing the library budget, managing the library payroll, coordinating work schedules and employment of volunteers, supervising the purchasing and cataloging of new books, coordinating a film exchange with the Sarah Bailey Civic Center, and contacting the landscaper to keep the grounds well-manicured, just to name a few.

Though she has a full staff, including three professional librarians to work the front reference desk, Byouk, who is dedicated to working with the people of Springfield, often takes on additional responsibilities in order to be more personally accessible to Springfield residents, she said.

"Some 200 to 300 people walk through that door every day," she explained, pointing to the front door, "and I am constantly evaluating my staff to see how we can better serve the public — I try to supervise the staff and see if there is anything I can do to help them do their job better."

Byouk has a staff of 14 regular and five part-time workers and a library that is remarkably extensive: close to 80,000 volumes, subscriptions to over 200 periodicals, New York Times on microfiche since 1865 or thereabouts, a sizable large print book section to accommodate senior citizens, and a section for the blind and handicapped which serves as the distribution center for Union County.

Also, over 80 entertainment video cassettes available for $1 to library members, an array of paintings which can be rented, and more than 200 books on cassette tape. Moody's, Credit Week, Value Line and other business sources are available to local businessmen.

The children's section sponsors a program called Bedtime Stories for Children. Youngsters arrive in pajamas to take part in the twice-monthly activity. And there's Story Hour for children twice each week.

Byouk first studied at Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., majoring in English literature, after which she earned her master's degree in library science from the University of Missouri.

In 1982 she was appointed to the post of General Services Librarian at Bernardsville Public Library. In 1984 she was appointed to be library director at the Florham Park Public Library, until assuming her current directorship in Springfield.

"I really enjoy working in Springfield," she said. "I am now acquainted with the core group of regular library patrons, and what I have found is that people are very appreciative of the things my staff and I are doing for them."

"It's not like working at the Division of Motor Vehicles," she said. "People come to this library because they want to be here."

The library is open Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Tuesday and Friday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and beginning Sept. 12, Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

THE TOWN GARAGE, located behind the Springfield Public Library is the drop-off site for recycling glass, newspapers, and aluminum cans. The drums hold glass bottles while newspapers are stacked along the wall. Aluminum cans are brought to the Firemen's depot across the street. They can, however, be left at the town garage.

Sorry, folks...

Recycling update

By DONNA SCHUSTER

An effort on the Leader's part to encourage Springfielders to keep up the good work with their recycling program backfired last week when we published a photo of the wrong recycling drop-off location.

We wanted to call attention to the depot location after a few phone calls from residents indicated it wasn't so easy to find. We believe them.

We couldn't find the right one either. The location we photographed and published last week turned out to be the depot for aluminum cans only. That depot is operated by Springfield Firefighters Local 57, which donates the proceeds of aluminum recycling to the Burn Unit at St. Barnabas Medical Center in Livingston.

Residents are welcome to drop off their aluminum cans there, but the correct recycling location is at the Town Garage, behind the Springfield Public Library. And it is there the aluminum cans, glass bottles, and newspapers are supposed to wind up.

Any aluminum cans brought to the central depot at the Town Garage will be transported to the Firefighters location.

Sorry for the confusion!

'Explorers' opens doors

By DOMINICK CRINCOLI JR.
AT&T Technology Systems in Springfield will continue a 16-year tradition next month by sponsoring "Explorers," a Boy-Scouts-of-America-affiliated program that may sway the minds of some to consider the field of engineering.

Free to Union County youths between the ages of 15 and 20, the program offers professional training and guidance that could lead to careers in engineering and other science technologies.

Explorers' Post 400, which meets at AT&T's Springfield Operations Center on Lawrence Road throughout the school year, matches the career interests of the young men and women with the resources of a major organization.

Explorers is nationwide. Various community organizations such as businesses, industries, professions, churches and civic groups donate their leadership and resources to the creation of anything from an outdoor nature hiking post to a data processing post — all aimed at the betterment of Explorer-age youth.

"It is the purpose of the Boy Scouts of America to provide young adults with an effective Exploring program designed to build desirable qualities of character, to train in the responsibilities of participating citizenship, and to develop in them personal fitness," reads a portion of the Exploring Committee Guidebook.

Twenty-three students from high schools throughout Union County participated in last year's Explorers program at AT&T.

The group met on a weekly basis at AT&T to talk to technical professionals from the company. They discussed technical careers, state-of-the-art technology, learned about the company and embarked upon various projects of interest.

Many technical areas of interest to the students were investigated; students built a robot, learned about computers, built remote control cars and learned about photography, just to name a few.

Explorers Post 400 was formed at AT&T in Springfield in 1972.

Post 400 co-presidents for 1987-88, Josh Hammer and Dimitri Vorona, recent graduates of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield, were instrumental in bringing about a successful program, said AT&T spokeswoman Donna Jones.

"Their promotional efforts and suggestions to add field trips to the itinerary has attracted many new members," Jones said.

"The field trips are an added attraction to the program." This year we went to Lasarum, Great Adventure and spent a weekend in Washington, D.C.," said Vorona.

"Explorers is a great opportunity to make new friends, work on technical projects and learn about technical careers," he added.

County residents who would like to know more about the program are urged to contact AT&T representatives Vinco Garcia at 467-7181, or Steve Kubicki at 467-7243.

Deal set for fire pumper

By DOMINICK CRINCOLI JR.
The Township Committee voted Tuesday to purchase a fire pumper for $245,264.

A motion was made 15 minutes into the meeting to accept bids from the public for the fire pumper and only one company, Hahn Motors, Inc. responded. The firm is based in Hamburg, Pa.

Deputy Fire Chief Gerard Richelo and Hahn representative Ollie Oleson were able to iron out the details of the agreement in private, and a resolution was passed to approve it before the end of the agenda meeting.

"The Township Committee has done a great favor to the Fire Department today," Richelo said.

The 31-foot long pumper is scheduled for delivery to Springfield in approximately six months, after construction of the vehicle's chassis is completed.

The six cylinder diesel-powered pumper, one of three in the Fire Department's possession, will carry 750 gallons of water and, depending upon the pressure in the underground water mains, is capable of extracting 1500 to 2000 gallons of water per minute from a standard water hydrant.

The Hahn pumper replaces a 1961 Ford fire pumper.

Hahn offered the Fire Department $2,500 for the Ford pumper, but arrangements have been made for a private sale of the vehicle.

"The Ford needed to be replaced because it was not cost-effective to maintain any longer; parts became obsolete and were increasingly difficult to find," Richelo commented.

The Ford also not equipped with seats for the firefighters on their way to a fire, Richelo explained.

"This violates the current safety standards of the National Fire Protection Association which states that the practice of riding on the back of a fire vehicle on the way to a fire should be abandoned — that a seated arrangement on fire calls is much safer."

In other Township Committee business:

□ The St. Barnabas Medical Center Burn Foundation awarded Mayor Jeffrey H. Katz a plaque in appreciation of his efforts, and that of the Springfield Fire Department, for giving the burn center periodic monetary contributions stemming from recycled aluminum cans in Springfield.

□ Springfield First Aid Squad Captain Elizabeth J. Fritzen, with a tone of urgency, announced that a membership drive is slated for sometime in September.

"The First Aid Squad is badly underfunded," she said.

"In the month of July we received a total of 107 first aid squad calls, the great percentage of them during the day."

□ At present we are relying on municipal employees to help out during the day, but I am not sure how long we can continue this way."

□ A proclamation was passed declaring Sunday Sept. 11 as "National Grandparents Day," in recognition and appreciation of the vital role that grandparents play in family life.

□ A suburban CBS television TV-3 special program, titled with the same name, will air that evening at 7:30 p.m.

Seniors keeping busy, but cool

It has been a hot summer, but the senior citizens have been spending their time at the Municipal Pool trying to keep cool. They enjoy bocce, playing cards, or just chatting with their friends.

Some of the senior groups meet at Sarah Bailey at least once during the summer.

The members of Group 3 met on July 17 and as they have done for the past few years, members helped with the folding and stuffing of envelopes for the annual Fund Drive for the Springfield First Aid Squad. They also made cravets for the Squad the following day from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The members are: Wilma Schenck, president of Group 3; Hedwig

Huljak, Sophie Biltzer, Kitty Soaries, Anita Ward, Mary Mattei, Anthony Mattei, Marie Nunn, Francis Oberich, Ellen Rowley, Ann Vennodey, Mary Chapleski, Adam Chapleski, Mitty Anthony, Audrey Mae Anthony, Doris Hart, Barbara Davis, Fanny Goldstein, Betty Searles, Martha Zwibel, Helen Winkolholz. One member, Mildred Guenther from Group 4, helped out also. Other helpers were: Ruth Primis, Senior Citizen bus driver, Brian McNany, director of recreation, and Theresa Herkalo, Senior Citizen coordinator.

This past week a bus-load of seniors spent five days at Poland Springs, Maine. They encountered hot weather, the same as was experienced in Springfield.

On Aug. 11, some of the members attended the Senior Day at the New Jersey State Fair. Madeline Lancaster received Honorable Mention for being an Outstanding Senior Citizen along with 22 other seniors from throughout New Jersey. She is outstanding and Springfield seniors are very proud of her.

Upcoming trips will be a day trip to Atlantic City and a five-day trip in September to Cape May.

The annual Senior Citizen Picnic will take place at the Municipal Pool on Wednesday, Sept. 7, raindate is Sept. 8. This will be the close of summer and the fall season will begin at Sarah Bailey.

Recovered vehicle nets three arrests

The recovery of a van stolen from Springfield led to the arrests of two Irvington residents and a homeless man. All three were charged with possession of a stolen vehicle, police said.

The 1987 Dodge Astrovan was spotted in the parking lot of a Route 22, Union, donut shop by an employee of the firm that owns the van. The employee contacted the van's three occupants and managed to get the keys to the vehicle. The occupants then fled on foot down Route 22, according to reports.

Springfield Police Officer John Trampler arrived on the scene, gave chase, and apprehended Carl Zielinski, 28, who has no permanent address.

Police blotter

Zielinski was charged with possession of a stolen vehicle and released on his own recognizance.

The purse of Terri Pascavage, 22, of Irvington was found inside the van. And, police said, eyewitnesses later identified pictures of Pascavage and her husband, Derek Pascavage, 21, also of Irvington, as the occupants of the stolen van.

The two were arrested Aug. 8 by Irvington police and Springfield Det. Sgt. Robert Mason.

The Pascavages were charged with possession of a stolen vehicle. Police learned that Derek Pascavage was also wanted by the Essex County Sheriff's Department on other charges.

The Irvington couple were remanded to the Union County Jail. Bail was set at $10,000.

Hinkson was charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance which police suspect is cocaine.

Water levels are Ok

New Jersey-American Water Company, which services Springfield, has announced all water restrictions for its customers in Morris, Union, Passaic, Essex, and Somerset counties have been lifted.

Record high temperatures and dry weather earlier in the season resulted in increased water demands. To assure an adequate supply of water, New Jersey-American Water issued the ban on all non-commercial outside water use on July 11. Limited restrictions were in effect in Hunterdon and Warren counties. The water company, however, is requesting its larger commercial customers to honor the alternate day schedule for lawn sprinkling until further notice.

Donald L. Conroy, manager for the Northern Division, said that the 6 inches of rain during the past week has allowed us to bring our reservoir levels in excess of 80 percent of capacity. This puts us at a safe level with little concern of reverting back to restrictions for the rest of the season.

The company's three reservoirs — two in Short Hills and one in Livingston — represent 25 percent of the water supplied to its customers. The utility's system demand averages approximately 36 million gallons per day, but record pumping during June and July frequently exceeded 50 MGD.

All 30 of the municipalities affected were notified.

Station inspections are under way

By KENNETH SCHANKLER

One recent Saturday was disrupted for a number of Union residents by fire engines and health inspectors after gasoline fumes seeped into their homes.

The fumes, the apparent residue from a leaky underground tank at a nearby gas station, are among the reasons health officials are conducting a large scale inspection of underground gas tanks, not only in Union, but throughout the state.

The station has reportedly not pumped gas since the incident. Comes block pumping islands on the establishment's apron.

The owner of the station would not comment on the situation, although the establishment reportedly will begin selling gas again before the end of the year.

The prospect of replacing the vessels can be very costly, said Jerry Ferrara of the New Jersey Gasoline Retailers Association.

All tanks with a capacity of 2,000 gallons or more are required to be registered with the state Department of Environmental Protection's Bureau of Underground Storage Tanks, and it is those tanks that are targeted for closest inspection.

"It gets kind of complicated because you're talking for some dealers $100,000," Ferrara explained, adding that the cost can vary depending upon the size of the tank in question.

"We feel these regulations are so stringent, you're going to lose 400 to 500 dealers statewide," Ferrara said.

Soil removal can add another $20,000 to the expense for the dealer, Ferrara said, depending upon whether the contaminants have been aerated from the dirt.

If the soil is removed after aeration, Ferrara said, it can be used as fill at garbage dumps. If not, a small retailer could be hard-pressed to come up with the funds for removal.

In Springfield, a program for inspection of tanks is getting under way. Dr. Henry Birne, the township health official, said he is working with the County Environmental Organization to set up inspections. No problems have been detected yet.

"I imagine there are hidden problems. It's about time we started this type of inspection program," said Birne.

David Wright, superintendent of Public Works in Kenilworth, said that two borough stations recently had their tanks replaced.

In Mountainside, officials are inspecting stations only if a complaint is lodged. Robert Sherr, health official for the borough, said the smaller municipalities have not been experiencing gas-tank related problems.

"Many gas stations have foreseen the recent legislation going through, and have already replaced their tanks," Sherr said.

Union Township health officials said tank inspections in that town are proceeding at a rate of between three and five per month under guidelines established by local ordinances and the state Department of Environmental Protection.

If leaks are found, the station owner will have to replace the tank to continue selling gasoline.

"What you're seeing is tanks being replaced not because they're leaking," said Ferrara.

Tanks, he said, are being replaced because they have not been replaced in a number of years or they don't meet certain standards established by either state or local regulations.

Replacement of tanks is not the only environmental measure costing gasoline retailers a lot of money, though.

New regulations are being implemented for Stage I and Stage II recovery of fumes.

Stage I recovery involves the recovery of fumes generated when fuel is pumped from the truck to the storage tank. Most trucks are equipped with hose mechanisms that suck the fumes back into the truck for use in producing new gasoline.

And Stage II, requires a special nozzle on the hose that pumps gas into the car. Stage II, according to Ferrara, is quite costly and is already required at stations pumping 10,000 gallons per month.

All stations will be required to have the new hoses in November, and Ferrara was not happy at the prospect.

"I'm more upset about Stage II," Ferrara said, "which is a fraud, than with the tanks. Those nozzles don't work. They're too heavy."

Ferrara said the special nozzles cost $475 apiece.

"Our argument is that it's not efficient," Ferrara said, explaining that the new hoses become stiff in cold winter weather and often don't do the job they're supposed to during the rest of the year.

Recovered vehicle nets three arrests

The recovery of a van stolen from Springfield led to the arrests of two Irvington residents and a homeless man. All three were charged with possession of a stolen vehicle, police said.

The 1987 Dodge Astrovan was spotted in the parking lot of a Route 22, Union, donut shop by an employee of the firm that owns the van.

The employee confronted the van's three occupants and managed to get the keys to the vehicle. The occupants then fled on foot down Route 22, according to reports.

Springfield Police Officer John Trampler arrived on the scene, gave chase, and apprehended Carl Zielinski, 28, who has no permanent address.

Police blotter

Zielinski was charged with possession of a stolen vehicle and released on his own recognizance. The purse of Terri Pascauge, 22, of Irvington was found inside the van. And, police said, eyewitnesses later identified pictures of Pascauge and her husband, Derek Pascauge, 21, also of Irvington, as the occupants of the stolen van.

The two were arrested Aug. 8 by Irvington police and Springfield Det. Sgt. Robert Marone. The Pascauges were charged with possession of a stolen vehicle. Police learned that Derek Pascauge was also wanted by the Essex County Sheriff's Department on other charges.

The Irvington couple were remanded to the Union County Jail. Bail was set at $10,000.

In other police action this week: Gregorio Garcia, 29, of Plainfield was arrested and charged with careless driving, driving with an open container of alcoholic beverages and driving with a suspended license on Aug. 21.

On Aug. 19, Eym Hinkson, 20, of Newark was arrested after police pulled him over on Route 22 for a motor vehicle violation. Hinkson was charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance which police suspect is cocaine.

Kudos to Lancaster

Madeline E. Lancaster was one of 22 senior citizens throughout the state to receive Honorable Mention in the "Outstanding Senior Award" presented by the New Jersey Commission on Aging.

Senior Citizen Coordinator Theresa Herkalo submitted Lancaster's name as an Outstanding Senior who devotes her time to helping other seniors. Lancaster over the years has been a special person to all the seniors, running trips and keeping them active.

"She has done work for the community with the Historical Society, Women's Club, started Heritage Day, and was the originator of the '200th Anniversary of the Battle of Springfield' parade which was held a few years ago.

She received a certificate and was given two passes to the State Fair compliments of Governor Thomas H. Kean and George Hamid, president of the State Fair.

Clarification

Last week's Springfield Leader credited Police Detective Judd Levenson with the Aug. 9 arrests of three people charged with drug possession. It was, in fact, Officers Jean Trampler and Edward McNary who made the arrests.

And, according to the detective, Aug. 9 was McNary's first day on the job.

The Leader regrets the error.

Water levels are Ok

New Jersey-American Water Company, which services Springfield, has announced all water restrictions for its customers in Morris, Union, Passaic, Essex, and Somerset counties have been lifted.

Record high temperatures and dry weather earlier in the season resulted in increased water demands. To assure an adequate supply of water, New Jersey-American Water issued the ban on all non-commercial outside water use on July 11. Limited restrictions were in effect in Hunterdon and Warren counties. The water company, however, is requesting its larger commercial customers to honor the alternate day schedule for lawn sprinkling until further notice.

All 30 of the municipalities affected were notified.

Station inspections are under way

One recent Saturday was disrupted for a number of Union residents by fire engines and health inspectors after gasoline fumes seeped into their homes.

The fumes, the apparent residue from a leaky underground tank at a nearby gas station, are among the reasons health officials are conducting a large scale inspection of underground gas tanks, not only in Union, but throughout the state.

The station has reportedly not pumped gas since the incident. Comes block the pumping islands on the establishment's apron.

The owner of the station would not comment on the situation, although the establishment reportedly will begin selling gas again before the end of the year.

The prospect of replacing the vessels can be very costly, said Jerry Ferrara of the New Jersey Gasoline Retailers Association.

All tanks with a capacity of 2,000 gallons or more are required to be registered with the state Department of Environmental Protection's Bureau of Underground Storage Tanks, and it is those tanks that are targeted for closer inspection.

"It gets kind of complicated because you're talking for some dealers $100,000," Ferrara explained, adding that the cost can vary depending upon the size of the tank in question.

"We feel these regulations are so stringent, you're going to lose 400 to 500 dealers statewide," Ferrara said.

Soil removal can add another $20,000 to the expense for the dealer, Ferrara said, depending upon whether the contaminants have been eroded from the dirt.

If the soil is removed after aeration, Ferrara said, it can be used as fill at garbage dumps. If not, a small retailer could be hard-pressed to come up with the funds for removal.

In Springfield, a program for inspection of tanks is getting under way. Dr. Henry Bjrne, the township health official, said he is working with the County Environmental Organization to set up inspections. No problems have been detected yet.

"I imagine there are hidden problems. It's about time we started this type of inspection program," said Bjrne.

David Wright, superintendent of Public Works in Kenilworth, said that two borough stations recently had their tanks replaced.

In Mountainside, officials are inspecting stations only if a complaint is lodged. Robert Sherr, health official for the borough, said the smaller municipalities have not been experiencing gas-tank related problems.

"Many gas stations have foreseen the recent legislation going through, and have already replaced their tanks," Sherr said.

Union Township health officials said tank inspections in that town are proceeding at a rate of between three and five per month under guidelines established by local ordinances and the state Department of Environmental Protection.

If leaks are found, the station owner will have to replace the tank to continue selling gasoline.

"In addition, any contaminated soil must also be removed.

"What you're seeing is tanks being replaced not because they're leaking," said Ferrara.

Tanks, he said, are being replaced because they have not been replaced in a number of years or they don't meet certain standards established by either state or local regulations.

Replacement of tanks is not the only environmental measure costing gasoline retailers a lot of money, though.

Now, regulations are being implemented for Stage I and Stage II recovery of fumes.

Stage I recovery involves the recovery of fumes generated when fuel is pumped from the truck to the storage tank. Most trucks are equipped with hose mechanisms that suck the fumes back into the truck for use in producing new gasoline.

And Stage II, requires a special nozzle on the hose that pumps gas into the car. Stage II, according to Ferrara is quite costly and is already required at stations pumping 10,000 gallons per month.

All stations will be required to have the new hoses in November, and Ferrara was not happy at the prospect.

"I'm more upset about Stage II," Ferrara said, "which is a fraud, tian with the tanks. Those nozzles don't work. They're too heavy."

Ferrara said the special nozzles cost $475 apiece.

"Our argument is that it's not efficient," Ferrara said, explaining that the new hoses become stiff in cold winter weather and often don't do the job they're supposed to during the rest of the year.

Regional Adult School schedules GED program

Although it is seldom easy for a busy adult to return to school, flexible hours, accessible teachers, individualized programming and the recognition of the importance of real-life experience make a diploma from the Union County Regional Adult High School an increasingly realistic goal for many individuals.

Registration for the Adult High School and all of the programs conducted by the Regional Adult Learning Center will continue until the end of September. The Adult Learning Center will be open every weekday and on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings during that time.

Further information can be obtained by calling Carole Beris at 272-4480 or 272-7580.

The success of an adult school, Beris said, depends in part on recognizing that the students attending it are different from the teenagers in traditional high schools.

A big mess

It would be an understatement to say that automobile insurance in New Jersey is a big mess that should transcend the political infighting that has stalled any agreement on a solution among the state Assembly, Senate and Gov. Thomas Kean.

The situation has become a black comedy that long ago lost its ability to make people laugh. On Broadway, it would have closed after initial reviews.

Bills drafted and passed in the state Senate, controlled by the Democrats, have been all but spat upon in the Republican-ruled Assembly and vice versa. Gov. Kean has tried to intercede on several occasions, but has gotten nowhere.

Verbal thresholds and additional charges for habitual motor vehicle offenders are proposals that have taken center stage at one time or another as one solution after another has been debated and, eventually, rejected.

Insurance carriers have also used threats to pull all coverage from New Jersey as a pressure tactic.

In the meantime, motorists have been burdened with one surcharge after another designed to keep the fiscally ailing Joint Underwriters Association afloat.

The JUA, established in 1983 to provide insurance to "high risk" motorists unable to get coverage on their own, has, Assembly sources say, been abused to the point where it now requires distressing stop-gap rate increases just to remain in operation.

Insurance companies reportedly have found it more convenient to assign drivers, even good ones, to the JUA just to avoid the hassles of handling more and more clients.

New Jersey insurance rates are the highest in the nation, a fact that is sure to gain more than passing mention in this fall's election campaign. Motorists are fed up with paying ever-increasing rates with no end in sight to the inflationary spiral.

Public disgust has reached a point where residents are staging a protest Saturday in Trenton in hopes of averting the latest surcharge and convincing the Legislature to arrive at a solution post haste.

Fliers distributed by protesters call for the defeat of "the powerful legal lobby" responsible for the continuing rise in rates.

There are still several proposals in Trenton, including one authored by Speaker Chuck Hardwick that would allow good drivers to eventually escape JUA clutches, thus leaving drivers with poor records to fend for themselves in obtaining coverage.

A number of measures have already been tried and have failed, among them the much-ballyhooed no fault system and, of course, the JUA.

Each was going to pave the way to an insurance utopia of sufficient protection for all motorists at reasonable rates. Each proposal now pending has its supporters saying virtually the same thing.

The bottom line, however, is that motorists are just about at the end of their rope with this insurance mess. It's time for the Legislature to put aside politics and implement a compromise measure.

Even if the measure were to prove unsuccessful, at least the Legislature would have made an attempt to solve the problem. After all, a measure that fails is better than no measure at all.

New Jersey Matters

Organized planning system needed

CHUCK HARDWICK
Assembly Speaker

A fundamental part of where we choose to live is based upon the present and future quality of life that we consider desirable will be preserved in future years.

Whether one lives in the urban northeast, the rustic woods of New Jersey's Pinelands, or along the Garden State's booming coastline, it's important to most of us to have a basic confidence that some sort of organized planning system be maintained to preserve the characteristics of the region we call home.

But because proper planning cannot be done in a vacuum, isolated from the planning of neighboring localities, it's essential that some sort of cohesive, unified planning system be established by region, to which any municipal or county plan must conform. In order to achieve this goal, the Assembly has introduced legislation which would call for the formation of separate regional planning commissions to guarantee the right of local areas to be intricately involved in the decision-making process that determines their future development. This "home rule" legislation was inspired by the inadequacy of the current process, under which the State Planning Commission dictates local land use for the entire Garden State.

There's an inherent problem with a statewide planning system. The rights of local regions and communities to determine their own destiny is essentially undermined. This leaves virtually any area of the state exposed to the threat of having a vastly undesirable, even injurious, course of development dictated to it by a distant body unaccountable to either the Legislature or to the people of those areas whose destiny is being critically affected.

For that reason, the Assembly approved legislation in 1987 that would have given the Legislature oversight authority over any plan developed by the Planning Commission. It was hoped that such oversight authority, by which individual legislators could vote down a plan that adversely affected the area they represent, would provide for some measure of accountability in the system.

The legislative oversight plan was passed by both houses of the Legislature, but was subsequently vetoed by Governor Thomas Kean.

If enacted, the regionalized planning commission system would eliminate many of the problems that would be encountered under the current statewide planning system.

The "home rule" planning proposal would provide for the establishment of 10 separate regional commissions exclusively devoted to development of master plans for areas which share similar concerns.

The proposed commissions would be comprised of the following areas: Essex, Union, Hudson, Morris, Passaic, Bergen, Hunterdon, Sussex, Warren, Mercer, Middlesex, Somerset, Monmouth, Ocean, Burlington, Camden, Gloucester, Salem, Cumberland, Cape May, Atlantic, the Hudson, the Delaware, District, and the Philadelphia region and a coastal area panel.

Since each commission would be responsible for developing plans exclusively reflective of the interests of its targeted region, the individual panels would be much more responsive to the constituents who live and work within the areas they represent.

Improving the level of accountability in the process should help foster a system of planning the state's future development that is more adaptable to the needs and interests of particular areas, and more representative of the wishes of the citizens in any given area.

In short, such a system is essentially more democratic and places the power to make key decisions about future planning where it belongs—in the hands of the people.

Vacation may be tougher than work

By DR. MICHAEL DIMAR-CANGELO

You've had your two-week vacation. You're tan, relaxed, broke but happy, and it's time to go home. Now comes the hard part.

Everything you packed, and more, has to be unpacked and laundered. You have to notify the newspaper, post office, cleaning person, day-care center and countless others to start everything you told them to stop two weeks ago.

The mail must be sorted. Bills have to be paid. Your mother is waiting for you to answer her letter. The lawn has grown up to your ankles or the leaves have all fallen, or the driveway is clogged with snow, depending on the time of year.

You begin to think about your "in" box at the office and to dread facing all of the crises which are bound to be there waiting for your attention.

Stress can build up when you return from a vacation, because you are faced with a double workload for a while. Work has accumulated at home and at the job, and getting all of the things you brought home with you clean, organized and stored away seems like an overwhelming task.

Stop. You've got "vacation crash." The best cure for vacation crash is to plan for it in advance. Schedule your vacation so that you are home at least three full days before you return to work. Continue to sleep late, but begin to go to bed at a reasonable hour again.

Most important of all, don't be compulsive about getting everything done as soon as you return. You should ease back into your work-a-day world, and not plunge into it trying to solve all the problems waiting for you.

For the first week back, set the alarm 15 minutes earlier than usual. Give yourself time to wake up slowly, so that you don't rush about frantically and add to your vacation crash stress. Stretch out slowly when you wake, breathe deeply a few times and imagine yourself back on that sandy beach or wooded mountain-side. Take a 15-minute mini-vacation to prepare yourself for the rest of the day's hectic pace.

On the job, replace unrealistic expectations with reasonable ones. Separate the contents of your "in" box into neat stacks of do-it-now, sometime this week, before the end-of-the-month and the circular file under the desk. Put obvious junk mail aside until you have the time to go through it.

At home, consider hiring a student to move the lawn or rake the leaves. Give that pile of dirty clothes to a professional laundry — one that picks up and delivers. Go out for dinner until you have time and energy to restock the pantry. If your vacation really did leave you broke, make sure everyone pitches in and helps with the vacation aftermath. Even the youngest child can pull weeds, if he's shown what they look like.

For your next vacation, considering a house-sitter while you are away, or agree with friends that each of you will check on the other's house during vacations.

You worked hard for your vacation. Make it last as long as you can.

Jail chief wants a 'hands-on' job

By DONNA SCHUSTER

Vincent O'Donoghue, director of the Union County Jail for the past 20 months, handed in his letter of resignation last week and said he wants to return to a "hands on" post in an investigative capacity. Before taking the mostly administrative position with the county, O'Donoghue achieved the rank of major with the New Jersey State Police.

"I've tried my hand as a public manager, now I just want to go back to police work," said the director, who will officially step down Sept. 9.

As director, O'Donoghue was responsible for the day-to-day operations of the jail, which is located in Elizabeth directly across from the County Administration Complex on Elizabeth Plaza, and the supervision of about 150 employees and, ultimately, up to 600 prisoners.

The jail, built in the 1920s, was constructed to accommodate 255 inmates. This week there are 609 inmates being detained. Overcrowded conditions in the jail have become commonplace over the past few years and drew considerable concern regarding the safety of inmates and correction officers alike.

The construction of a new jail is under way and it is expected to be completed by August 1989. The new facility will be located next door to the administration building.

O'Donoghue said the overcrowding of inmates added to his problems and frustration.

"In a building that old, you've got plumbing and air-conditioning problems, on top of too many inmates. We've been turning away disorderly persons and those arrested for motor vehicle violations. We just can't accept them," said the director.

Prisoners turned away by the county jail have had to remain in municipal lockups, much to the chagrin of local police chiefs, who say their facilities are not equipped to hold prisoners for more than a day or two.

But O'Donoghue is optimistic that his replacement will fare better with the new facility.

"The correction officers will have to be retrained. In the new jail, they will be on a one-to-one basis with the inmates with no bars between them," said the director, who described the new facility as having a completely different layout.

"Now we're going to have bars between them that separate the inmates. In the new jail, there will be pods, or day rooms that will house prisoners during the day. Each one will be supervised by a correction officer who must have strong interpersonal communicative skills."

O'Donoghue said the correction officers will become mentors and consultants to the inmates.

The director's philosophy of dealing with correction officers and inmates, and running the jail was, admittedly, para-military in nature.

"I came from a strict military organization and some people felt I was pretty strict around here."

Of his replacement, O'Donoghue said, "We have qualified people right here. But it's up to the fireholders and the new county manager, Joe Martin."

Kean vetoes grant, loan OKd

By DONNA SCHUSTER

From Trenton this month comes good and not-so-good news. Union County will receive $13.3 million in zero-interest loans for its Resource Recovery plant, but was denied $6.6 million in grant money when Gov. Thomas H. Kean conditionally vetoed a bill designed to offset the cost of garbage disposal.

The plant, which is being designed by Oden Martin Systems Inc. of Union County — earmarked specifically for garbage rate-shock relief.

The county has been transporting its trash to landfills in Pennsylvania and Ohio since the Edgeboro Landfill in East Brunswick was closed to Union County trash last January. The Resource Recovery plant will generate electricity from the incineration process.

Meanwhile, residents of Union County will continue to pay up to $137 per ton to dispose of household trash.

Back to school update...

Cooperman: monitoring is needed

In May, national attention focused on New Jersey when state Commissioner of Education Saul Cooperman ordered the Jersey City school district to demonstrate why it should not be taken over and operated by the state.

But the Hudson County district, under widespread scrutiny as a result of the state's action, is just one of 563 districts the state Department of Education has "monitored," he announced, since 1984. Of those, only 18, or 3 percent, have failed to achieve state certification. And of the 18 school districts, many will be certified within six to 12 months.

"It is important to put monitoring in perspective. The vast majority of New Jersey's school districts have earned certification for five years and are free to work on improving student learning," said Dr. Walter J. McCarrill, assistant commissioner for the Division of County and Regional Services. "Improved student learning is the driving force behind monitoring and, in fact, all Department of Education programs."

All the state's districts were first monitored between 1984 and 1987. The second round of monitoring is scheduled to begin this fall. At that time, officials will begin to take another look at districts that had demonstrated their success in providing students with the "thorough and efficient" educational opportunity guaranteed them by the state's constitution.

The monitoring process consists of three levels, systematically designed to assure that school districts meet the minimum standards required for certification.

In January, Governor Thomas H. Kean signed into law what is, in effect, the "final step" of monitoring. With Kean's signature, legislation was enacted allowing the state to take over school districts which consistently failed to earn certification.

"The state believes in local control and wants districts to solve their own problems. Reluctantly, and as a last resort," however, we must consider takeover when school districts are chronically deficient year after year," McCarrill said. "The Legislature has delegated the responsibility for providing education to local districts, but the department must hold districts accountable. Our tools are monitoring and, when necessary, further state intervention and possible takeover."

If districts fail the first of the three-level monitoring process, they must develop local improvement plans to address problems. If, despite implementation of improvement plans, districts do not become certified in the second level of monitoring, the state moves them into Level III.

In this level, a team of educators from outside the district and staff from the department's Office of Compliance conduct a "preliminary review" of the district's performance. This must be done to achieve certification in a series of "findings and directives."

Usually, the next step is the development of a Corrective Action Plan (CAP) based on the findings and directives. If the district cannot achieve certification by implementing this plan, the department launches a Comprehensive Compliance Investigation (CCI), a complete examination of the district's management and finances.

Based on the investigation, the department could order the district to demonstrate why it should not be taken over and operated by the state.

If during the preliminary review, irregularities are discovered that warrant a more detailed investigation, the state may bypass the Corrective Action Plan and move directly to a CCI.

Several districts in Level III are carrying out plans to correct their problems and making progress toward state certification.

For example, Penns Grove-Carneys Point is projected to be the first district to be certified after having been in the third level of monitoring. The Salem County district is also making progress, and is expected to be certified this summer. Other districts in Level III are expected to follow, including Asbury Park, which has a summer 1990 certification target date.

Early behavior can mark trend

Mike is 8 years old and so far the most significant thing he has learned in school is how to fail. He has trouble reading, seldom finishes a project, and has difficulty concentrating. When his teachers speak in class, he doesn't listen.

Months pass, and his parents recognize in just learning properly. Each day the boy's self-image sinks a bit lower. Eight years later, Mike is 6 feet tall and still can barely read.

Two facts have changed, however. Mike now has a probation officer assigned to him by juvenile court and attends a continuation high school, on an irregular basis.

The above scenario is every parent's nightmare, and yet, according to author and educator Lawrence J. Greene, there is help for kids like Mike if they can be diagnosed and brought into treatment early enough.

His book, Learning Disabilities and Your Child: A Survival Handbook (Fawcett, Columbia) is illustrated throughout with actual case histories of kids who had difficulty in school and were treated successfully.

Additionally, the book explains every issue related to learning disorders, such as IQ, hyperactivity, low self-esteem, autism, sensory impairment, perceptual dysfunction and genetic influence.

"Parents are amazed that some of the warning signals for learning problems often seem like normal behavior for a child," Greene explains. "It is important to recognize these signals and to act on them as early as possible. If you wait until the child is in high school, it is often too late to do anything about it."

Greene also stresses the importance of parents taking a role in their child's education and says that they must be willing to commit time, energy and, in some instances, money to help solve a child's learning problem.

In 1970, Greene founded the Developmental Learning Center, now located in Saratoga, Calif., and recently opened a new center in Morgan Hill where children who suffer from disorders such as dyslexia, or letter reversal, and aphasia, a communication disorder, can go for help.

A visitor to one of these centers can find students on a trampoline spelling their names backward, sitting at desks reading with the help of a machine that lets them see one word at a time, practicing writing on a chalkboard or trying verbally to guide their teacher through a maze.

A diagnostic evaluation and parent conference is Greene's first step in the remediation process. Once the source of the learning problem is identified, next comes developing a learning-assistance strategy that fits the child's specific needs.

Video networking at UCC

During the upcoming fall semester, a Union County College professor will simultaneously lecture to students in his classroom at the Scotch Plains Campus as well as in a classroom at the Cranford Campus and another classroom at Scotch Plains. This will be made possible by the new UNET Communications Network the College will implement this fall.

His lecture will not only be carried over the television network, but will also have available a data link, which he can use to demonstrate a particular point. And, he will have a voice link so a student in any one of the classrooms can raise a question or

Speaker Hardwick pushes JUA restructuring

Expressing disappointment over the most recent auto insurance plan approved by the Senate, Assembly Speaker Chuck Hardwick introduced a bill last week to restructure and rehabilitate the financially ailing Joint Underwriting Association.

Hardwick said many of the drivers in the JUA are good drivers and said to make them responsible to restructure the deficit-ridden JUA would be grossly unfair.

"We would be punishing good drivers," he said. "There are other ways to keep the JUA afloat without rocking more than a million motorists with another rate increase."

The Speaker's bill, which would be a companion to the Senate bill, proposes comprehensive restructuring of the JUA while relieving those enrolled in the association from paying exorbitant premiums.

The bill would dedicate the portion of the current insurance premium tax derived from auto insurance for use as a loan by the JUA. The term of the loan would be four years.

Another component of the bill would allow the JUA to pay awards for pain and suffering in settlements. "The bill also authorizes an independent audit of the JUA's books and directs that it be completed in short order."

Additionally, the measure would establish a legislative commission that would investigate claim settlement practices in the JUA.

"Hardwick said that the bill would restore a system in which good drivers no longer compensate for the costs of bad ones.

"The bill would ensure that the only rate increases in the JUA would be incurred by drivers with accidents and violations," he said. "Bad drivers should pay their own freight."

"The Speaker said the Assembly would act on his bill and the Senate bill as soon as possible."

Senator C. Louis Bassano today urged the federal government to adopt laws to regulate medical waste and track its disposal. Federal waste tracking legislation, which would keep tabs on the waste from the time it leaves medical facilities until it is disposed of, passed the Senate and has been sent to the House.

Governor Kean and New York Governor Mario Cuomo met last week to unveil a strict plan for tracking the disposal of medical waste in the New York City.

"After a summer of beach closings and waste-polluted waters, it is clear that the tracking of infectious waste is necessary for all states, not just New York and New Jersey. We need strong action on a federal level," said Bassano.

"The improper disposal of medical waste is a serious matter. In the case of syringes and vials of infectious material, people who handle the waste and are unaware of the danger could become infected with a serious disease," continued the senator.

"Vials containing the hepatitis virus have washed up on New Jersey beaches this summer. The reason there is a system in which good drivers no longer compensate for the costs of bad ones.

track the disposal of medical waste," Bassano said.

A bill sponsored by Assemblyman Peter J. Rinaldo that would provide funds to study whether the state should establish an export trading company to guide corporate trading overseas recently passed the Assembly by a vote of 70-1.

The bill, A-2676, calls the Division of International Trade within the Department of Commerce, Energy and Economic Development to conduct a study on the feasibility of establishing a state-operated trading company.

"New Jersey's industries could well benefit if the state became actively involved in helping establish overseas trade," said Genova, R-21.

The measure would appropriate $50,000 to the study, the assemblyman said, explaining that the division director would be authorized to use the funds to hire expert consultants, if needed.

The report on the viability of establishing such a trade operation for New Jersey's corporations would be due one year from the effective date of the act.

The bill goes to the Senate for further consideration.

Rep. Matthew J. Rinaldo (R-NJ) said today that the airlines and the Federal Aviation Administration are finally responding to calls for a solution to the aircraft noise problem affecting certain areas of northern New Jersey.

Rinaldo said that he was encouraged by the response he received from several major airlines to a letter he wrote in June, urging them to speed up their procurement of quieter "Stage Three" aircraft.

Calling aircraft fleet replacement "one of the most powerful weapons" in the fight against noise pollution, Rinaldo said today that "the public outcry is being heard. All of the airlines have in place substantial programs" to replace or modify louder jets to reduce noise.

The 7th District Congressman quoted from letters he had received from the major airlines as evidence of progress. One stated that the "national air transportation system needs a national policy on airport access and noise abatement."

New Jersey businessmen more likely to vote: survey

New Jersey small-business owners are far more likely to be registered and to vote in both local and national elections than the general public, according to a survey of small-business owners.

Of 344 members polled by the New Jersey chapter of the National Federation of Independent Business, more than nine out of 10 business owners or 91 percent said they were registered to vote, and seven out of 10, 70.3 percent, said they had voted at least once in the last two years. Nationally, just 68 percent of the general public's eligible voters are registered and only slightly more than half of those registered voted in the last national election.

"These results show that the business community is one of the more politically active groups in the population, and that should send a pretty clear message to any candidate for office," said Laura Giannotta, director of governmental relations for NFIB/New Jersey.

According to the survey, nine out of 10 business owners voted in the last local (93 percent) and state elections (92.1 percent). But the business owners didn't turn out during the last national election, with only 64.5 percent indicating they had cast a vote.

"Obviously, as a business owner you're concerned with where your local tax dollars are going so you're inclined to vote in town or city elections, plus state elections," Giannotta said.

But she cautioned campaign officials not to neglect the small-business vote during the 1988 presidential campaign. According to the survey, 85.5 percent said they planned to vote in this year's general election.

In determining who they will vote for, the business owners believe a candidate's competency for office is the overriding concern (51.1 percent), followed by agreement on specific business issues (17.1 percent), and honesty (25.8 percent).

HI-TECH ART — Fred Webb compares a negative to a blueprint at FLW Hi-Tech Services in Roselle.

The art of transforming electronic concepts and designs into precision masters for chemically milled parts and printed circuits is an exacting one that requires years of experience.

Fred Webb, the owner of FLW Hi-Tech Services Inc. at 201 E. 11th Ave. in Roselle, has the necessary know-how to provide such a service.

"We provide art services and photographic services for the electronics trade," said Webb, who went into business on his own last September after over 15 years employment with another firm specializing in the high-precision photography. "We specialize in the close-tolerance type of photography. We cater to the electronics world because the average consumer would not have use for our services."

Basically, Webb provides photographic masters which his clients use to produce circuit boards, micro chips and other precise electronic components.

Hybrid circuits, gratings, thin films, thick film circuits, chemical milling masters, taped printed circuit masters, mini chips and microwave masters are also within Webb's areas of expertise.

Victim/Witness — no reason to be alone

By STEVE HEISCHBERG

The Union County Victim/Witness Assistance Program, part of a statewide effort, began in 1979 in Elizabeth on a grant from the county. After one year, and much success, it was made a permanent part of the Prosecutor's Office budget. And it continues to grow.

The program provides varied forms of support for crime victims and witnesses to crimes. It gives emotional support to victims who are uneasy about testifying in court, transportation to and from the courthouse, childcare for single parents who are testifying, and a letter service providing victims with updates on their particular case, along with many others.

The program is geared to encourage victims to come forward and assist with prosecution, and provides contacts in the community for social service referrals to suit the needs of the victim.

Most frequent offense

The program recently received a grant from VOCA — Victims of Crime Act — to hire additional staff in three specific areas: domestic violence, sexual assault and child abuse. They are three of the most frequent offenses the program deals with.

Domestic violence is a nightmare, and worse if the victim has nowhere to turn. The program provides a temporary safe haven for victims while their situation is reviewed by a counselor. Victims are provided with options for legal recourse and are sometimes referred to social agencies for further assistance.

Compensation

Victims who were injured during a crime may be eligible for monetary compensation up to $25,000. If the review board finds the victim played no role in the actual commission of the crime, compensation can be awarded. Counseling, which applies primarily to children, can be included as compensation. According to Witt, a child who was a victim or witness can appear to be fine right after an incident, but may be affected later in life. Marriage and family counseling is also included as relatives can become secondary victims in a case, Witt said.

The counselor can refer to the Self-Help Group Directory to give the victim further assistance. Organizations such as MADD and Compassionate Friends are listed in the book. Patricia Witt, director of the program, refers to it as "the bible."

Land of Secrets

Abused children, usually under the age of 10 or who are mentally handicapped, are brought to a special room where they can be alone with a counselor to talk about their experience. The room is called The Land of Secrets and the child is told that it is a place where he or she can tell secrets that nobody else will hear.

The room has a small camera in an upper corner that records the scene. This tape can then be used as evidence against the defendant in court. It is a place of comfort for the child that is decorated with carpet and toys and bright, encouraging colors. The toys and decorations are mostly donated by county employees and people in the community.

Emotional support

The program provides emotional support until a trial is over. The victim will be picked up at home and driven to court. The counselor will stay with the victim throughout the trial, from start to finish. A separate waiting area is provided if the victim is intimidated by the defendant, who might be out on bail. This room is very private and only the victim and the counselor are allowed in. The counselor will console the victim and even hold his or her hand if necessary, the director said.

In an effort to help victims sort their feelings and apprise their assigned judge of details surrounding their case, the program encourages them to write a letter prior to the trial. This gives the judge an opportunity to review the case. The letter is sent to the Victim/Witness office and is then hand-delivered to the judge. The office houses two large volumes filled with such letters.

The victim is also allowed to write a parole inquiry letter once the defendant has been placed in jail. This is mainly for first and second degree cases which involve crimes of serious assault. The parole board must contact the victim prior to the parole hearing. The victim can voice objections to parole in the letter. Notification letters are also sent to the victim regarding the defendant's status in prison.

"We don't turn our back on anyone who is in need," said Witt.

Bush office is in Clark

The George Bush for President campaign has selected an office in Clark as the headquarters for the state of New Jersey. The office, which will be located at Exit 135 on the Garden State Parkway, is at 77 Brant Ave., and will open right after the Republican Convention in late August.

Bill Palatucci is the Bush campaign manager for New Jersey. A resident of neighboring Westfield, Palatucci said, "It's going to be a great area for Republican volunteers, and we're going to need lots of help."

Joseph "Bo" Sullivan, the chairman of the New Jersey Bush Campaign, said, "Union and Middlesex counties have always had very active Republican parties, and we're looking for a lot of support from the community. It's going to be a close race in November."

The Headquarters will be shared with "Victory '88," the Republican Party's effort to get out the vote for Bush, Pat Dawkins, Congressman Matt Rinaldo and all Republicans.

Gary Mattson of Cranford, the statewide volunteer coordinator, said, "We're going to need lots of help registering people to vote and there are always phone calls to be made and envelopes to be stuffed." Volunteers should call 381-1988.

Runnells topic of cable show

In September, "Vintage Views," Union County's Cable TV Program for seniors, looks into how John E. Runnells Hospital is preparing for the next future, announced William H. Eldridge, Union County freelancer and liaison to the Advisory Council on Aging.

Host Lou Coviello, of the Division on Aging, Department of Human Services, which produces the program, Joseph Sharp, associate administrator of Runnells and Cynthia LePoldovin, director of Occupational Therapy at the hospital, will discuss the attitudes and services at Runnells.

"Funded as a county hospital, Runnells is in a position to better address the human side of patient needs. Rehabilitation services, a hallmark at Runnells, restore or maintain physical or mental functioning," Eldridge said. "This patient centered attitude is to be expanded and enhanced in Runnells' new building now being built at another location in Berkeley Heights."

"Vintage Views" is available throughout the county as follows: Elizabeth, TKR cable, channel 12, Mon. 6:30 p.m., Wed. 6 p.m.; Plainfield, Storck cable, channel 20, Tues. 6:30 p.m.; Summit Area, Suburban cable, channel 36, Tues. 1 p.m., Fri. 6 p.m.; and other locations. Suburban cable, channel 32, Thurs. 7:05 p.m.

Persons wanting more information about "Vintage Views" or who want an opportunity to comment on programming may call Coviello at 327-4872.

Victims of fires or those forced to flee their residence due to a crime are provided with clothing by Goodwill in Elizabeth through the program.

The Victim/Witness program does not provide housing but does work with social service agencies to keep victims from being alone and without help.

Special occasions

Every Thanksgiving the program puts together food-baskets for the victims. These are distributed to agencies such as the Catholic Community Services, who in turn give the food to the victims. The CCS is a food cupboard and puts together packages and delivers them directly to the victim's home.

In April the program observes Victim's Rights Week, which is sponsored by the National Organization for Victim Assistance. Last year, program employees tied pink ribbons, signifying compassion, around the trees of public buildings such as police departments and municipal buildings in certain Union County municipalities. In the other communities, posters with pink ribbons were hung.

The program also has a crime prevention film library to assist police by serving as a lending library and resource center. The library currently has 16 films which are accompanied by a discussion guide and/or test answer forms.

"I'm very proud of what I do. I've been here seven years and I've learned and seen a lot. I've still got a sense of commitment," said Witt.

Religious Events

Traditional services

"With the new Jewish year of 5749 fast approaching," says Rabbi Howard Morrison, spiritual leader of Congregation Beth Shalom of Union, the synagogue has announced that it has already scheduled a full slate of services for the New Year, which are open to the general community. The traditional midnight Selichot service will take place on the night of Sept. 3, preceded by the second annual Saturday night activities at 10 p.m. The High Holy Day schedule is: Rosh Hashana evening services will take place on Sept. 11 and 12 at 6:45 p.m.; Rosh Hashana morning services will take place on Sept. 12 at 8:30 a.m. and on Sept. 13 at 9 a.m. Tashlich will take place at 4:30 p.m. on Sept. 12; the first day of Rosh Hashana.

Yom Kippur services will begin with "Kol Nidrei" on Sept. 20 at 6:30 p.m. and on Sept. 21 beginning at 9 a.m. A "break-the-fast" will follow the conclusion of services.

Further information regarding the purchase of High Holy Day tickets or synagogue membership, which includes tickets at no cost can be obtained by calling the synagogue office at 686-6773.

During the past several months, Congregation Beth Shalom of Union has launched a "very special study project." The Beth Shalom Haftarah Club. On Sunday mornings, men and women have gathered to learn the art of chanting the weekly prophetic selection using the traditional cantillation.

For some of the students involved, it was reported, the class has given them the opportunity to celebrate the Bar/Bat Mitzvah, which they never celebrated fully in the past. For others, the Haftarah Club has enabled them to utilize their own musical skills for the purpose of celebrating Shabbat "in a new exciting manner." For those who did not celebrate their Bar or Bat Mitzvah, the Sunday services have enabled them to "rediscover the Judaism of their past and make it part of a vibrant meaningful Judaism in the present."

In the past year, congregation members, Dr. Abraham Lef, Herbert Elster, Herman Silver, Millard Spialter, Lew Schwarz, Ivo Frank, Tracy Kaplowitz, Henry Goldwasser and Irving Diamond, participated in a class which was taught by Morrison and assisted by Dr. Jacob Rosen.

The Haftarah Club will begin its first full year with the onset of the High Holy Days next month. The class is open to the community at no charge. The only prerequisite is a "basic Hebrew reading ability." Further details can be obtained by contacting the synagogue office.

mas and Easter seasons.

The Chant School sings at the 5:30 p.m. Latin Mass on the first Saturday of each month.

A multiple wedding

Six couples will be re-married on Sunday in an annual multiple wedding called the "Celebration of Religious Freedom." All six couples will be re-married on Sunday in an annual multiple wedding called the "Celebration of Religious Freedom." All six couples are Russian Jewish immigrants, who came to the United States within the past year. In each case, the couples originally were wed in the Soviet Union, in a simple civic ceremony because "they were denied the right to the joy, traditions and religious observances of their heritage."

In an annual event, sponsored by an organization, Bris Avrohom, the multiple wedding on Sunday will permit the couples to be wed under the traditional "Chuppah," attended by rabbi, family, friends, dignitaries, sponsors and the media. The wedding will begin at 5 p.m., Sunday in Congregation Ahavas Achim B'nai Jacob and David, 700 Pleasant Valley Way, West Orange.

QUITE A COLLECTION — Carol Scantlebury of Montclair looks over one of the countless displays from last week's Union County College exhibit on the history of defunct Baseball Leagues that were in existence before the integration of major league baseball in 1947. The exhibit, which was organized by UCC history professor Dr. Lawrence Hogan of Fairwood, will be put into storage before its planned April 1989 debut at the Newark Public Library.

Regular exercise schedule brings on many benefits

By DICK KAZMAIER

There is some good news on the horizon for all of us. We are living longer, and that means more years to enjoy the people, places and activities that make up our lives. It also means more reason to exercise regularly, now and as you get older.

While medical advances are extending the length of our lives, it is up to us to maintain the quality of our lives. One way to do this, of course, is to exercise regularly. Age need not be a barrier, even if you haven't been particularly active in the past. Everyone can enjoy the benefits of regular exercise.

And, the benefits are many. For people of all ages, exercise helps reduce the chances of developing such chronic diseases as heart disease, high blood pressure, obesity and possibly, arthritis. People who exercise often feel better about themselves and are better able to cope with stress. Studies show that regular exercise may even help you live longer.

There's a popular saying that tells us "everyone should exercise, but older people must." There are many good reasons for making this statement. For one, studies show that exercise helps increase your metabolism during and after a workout, which may help keep those extra pounds off.

People who are physically active also report having more energy during the day and a more restful sleep at night. With more stamina and vigor we can better enjoy the increased leisure time that accompanies us as we grow older. Also, we'll be better able to keep up with active friends, family and especially the grandchildren.

Weight-bearing exercises such as walking, using light weights, and doing low-impact aerobics can help slow down the process of osteoporosis, a deteriorating bone disease common among older adults and especially women. Osteoporosis often is the cause of bone breakage, which can be very serious in older men and women. Weight-bearing exercises also will help improve and maintain your muscle tone and strength, which will help your posture as well.

Regular, physical activity can also help alleviate some of the digestive and bowel function problems you may have as you get older. Stretching exercises increase flexibility in your muscles and joints, easing joint stiffness and increasing your mobility. Getting in and out of a car, up from a chair, and reaching and bending will be easier and the risk of injuring yourself will be reduced.

Although the physical benefits of exercise help maintain our health and keep us independent and self-sufficient, the emotional, social and psychological benefits of being physically active are equally significant. Taking part in a new activity, or an old favorite, may mean new friends and social activities. Or, you may find it more relaxing to exercise alone with your favorite music. Whatever activity you choose, it should be fun and something you look forward to doing.

If you haven't exercised for several years, or have a medical condition which may require special attention, check with your physician before starting an exercise program. Your doctor, or someone knowledgeable in exercise training, will help you design an appropriate exercise program.

Try to establish a routine, a special time and place to exercise that is convenient and fits well into your schedule. The activity most popular among the over-55 age group is fitness walking. This ideal aerobic activity can be done in your neighborhood, at a local track or in a shopping mall.

Handicapped man stands tall in new role as softball ump

Peter Rozynski is one umpire who doesn't mind the verbal abuse that is sometimes showered upon the men in blue, either by fans, players or managers. That's because Rozynski can't hear any of it. He's deaf.

Rozynski recently completed umpiring in the Clark Men's Slow-Pitch Softball League after attending an umpiring school sponsored by the Union County Department of Parks and Recreation, and the Amateur Softball Association.

"Peter was assigned a signor, Lauren Margolis, who attended classes with him and interpreted the work," said Leo Spirito, the Parks Recreation supervisor and District II A.S.A. commissioner. "His instructors, Dick Archer, A.S.A. umpire-in-chief, and Jim Powers, area umpire, said he was an excellent student who asked many important questions regarding the rules of softball and the mechanics of umpiring."

Married with two children, the 35-year-old Roselle resident is the first hearing-impaired umpire to be registered with the A.S.A. in the greater Union County area, according to Michael Lapolla, the Union County Recreation Chairman and liaison to the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board.

"I am very proud that our county employees made the effort to include Peter in our umpiring program," Lapolla said. "That shows the commitment we have made to all our county residents."

Rozynski graduated from the New Jersey School for the Deaf in West Trenton in 1970, where he was selected to the Dolaware Valley League high softball. All-Star squad and he played on several amateur baseball teams and threw a no-hitter while playing semipro baseball for the Clifton Tigers.

Rozynski decided to become an umpire because he has always been athletic and more importantly, he believed it was a golden opportunity to show everyone that he could do it, even though he is deaf.

"I want to be a part of the game that I love so much," he said. "I don't want to just sit down with a beer in one hand and a bag of popcorn in the other."

"I live in two worlds — one deaf, one hearing — and I assure anyone who is interested in breaking down the communications barrier and developing understanding regarding the deaf culture, that it can be done."

Senior entry deadline ending today

Today, Aug. 25, marks the final entry deadline for the golf and tennis events in the upcoming Senior Games of New Jersey. The previous deadline for the two events had been Aug. 22. The Aug. 29 entry deadline for all other Senior Games events has not been changed.

The Games, which will take place on the campus of Kean College in Union and surrounding facilities on Sept. 10-11, will offer competition in 17 sports to New Jersey residents age 55 and over.

"We have been receiving numerous inquiries from residents who wish to participate in the golf and tennis events," said Funkhouser. "We were concerned that some people might miss the opportunity to participate with our original deadline, so we responded with the three-day extension."

Funkhouser added that the golf and tennis events needed a deadline earlier than the other sports because of their logistical demands.

The entry fee is $3.00 ($1.50 for PAAD cardholders), with additional fees for those competing in golf and bowling. All entrants will receive a commemorative t-shirt and certificate of participation.

Ms. Ciani is a recent graduate of Kean College, where she played varsity soccer for four years. Also captain of the team for a year, Ms. Ciani earned a bachelor's degree in urban and outdoor recreation.

Shipman to coach UCC

Alex Shipman, a tennis pro at the Mountaineer Indoor Tennis Center in Mountainside, will coach the Union County College men's and women's varsity tennis teams this coming school year, with the women's squad active in the fall and the men playing in the spring.

The Lady Owls will open their 1988 season on Sept. 17 against Atlantic County Community College at Mays Landing, while Shipman will make his home debut on Sept. 22 against Raritan Valley Community College at 3:30 p.m. in Cranford. Next spring, Shipman's men's squad will open up at home on April 11 against Brookdale Community College of Lincroft.

Owls make '88 soccer moves

If psychology can help, the Union County College men's soccer team should be very strong in 1988.

Prof. Thaddeus R. Tharmey of East Brunswick, a member of the UCC Psychology/Sociology Department, has been appointed head coach of the Owls' men's soccer team. He had been serving as coach of the women's soccer team.

In announcing the appointment of Prof. Tharmey as coach of the men's soccer team, athletic director Fred Perry of Roselle also announced the appointment of Christine Auletta of Linden to succeed Tharmey as head coach of the women's soccer team, and Ramona Mastia Ciani of Tinton Falls as assistant coach of the women's squad.

Tharmey has been a UCC faculty member since 1969 and is working on his doctoral degree in developmental psychology at Rutgers University. He earned a master's degree from Seton Hall University and a bachelor's degree from the University of Tampa. Ms. Auletta, a senior at nearby Kean College, who is working towards a degree in recreation, currently works as a private landscaper. She was chosen to play on the 1988 State Select Team and has participated over the past six years on several New Jersey State Teams. Ms. Auletta previously was a starter and captain for Kean's varsity women's soccer team.

Ms. Ciani is a recent graduate of Kean College, where she played varsity soccer for four years. Also captain of the team for a year, Ms. Ciani earned a bachelor's degree in urban and outdoor recreation.

Here's one for the old Toots

By BERT RANDOLPH SUGAR
If gin and sports are your dual tonic, then you've probably been in one of those watering holes which advertises itself as a "sports bar." Not just any old beer-and-shot saloon, or a pricey restaurant where the elite meet to eat, but an honest-to-goodness sports bar.

Once upon a time, back when men were men and women were women, there stood an oasis smack dab in the middle of Manhattan called Toots Shor's. It is not to be confused with the still existing Toots Shor's, bearing resemblance in name only. Shor having died years ago. To some it was merely a pub. To others it was the "A.C.," as in Athletic Club. But to most it was a place where devotees of the life non-strenuous could congregate and where the popping of corks was the scheduled order of the day. And night.

Shor's is gone now, its place in the hearts of boussers and carousers propped up with reverential anecdotes. Some remember the time when Shor, famed himself in the company of Sir Alexander Fleming, the discoverer of penicillin. As Shor stood there, possessing a slight interest tinged with faint bewilderment at the man he faced, one of his waiters sidled over and told him that the manager of the New York Giants, Master Mel Ott, had just arrived. "Excuse me," Shor said to Fleming. "I gotta leave you — somebody important just came in."

It was that kind of bar, a sports bar where the important people were sportsmen and those who cared about sports. Shor's is gone now, replaced by one of those civic markers New York City plunks down to celebrate a memory. But what a memory! Its place has never been taken — especially in the heart of someone like me, who five minutes after I was born started longing for the good old days.

And so, rather than being accused of being unable to see beyond the end of my swizzle stick, I put in many hours searching for the lineal descendants of Shor's. I finally found them, in Chicago.

Simpson...

Carnegie Hall bound

By BEA SMITH

Will success spoil two 12-year-old lads from Union? NOT THE kids are Colin Simpson and Dale Garcia — even if they are PTSA first-place winners and scheduled to play a piano duo in an annual competition in Carnegie Hall in New York City on Nov. 13.

The youngsters, their families, friends, classmates, even their beloved piano teacher, Paul Koslowski, who made it all happen — may be somewhat awed at the idea of Colin and Dale performing in the prestigious site that is Carnegie Hall — but they all go about living their everyday lives in less than a stunned state of mind.

In fact, five of them visited this newspaper office recently in a normal state of mind to talk about it. Koslowski, a music teacher with the Linden school system, who has his own private practice of teaching music and who is a member of the Piano Teachers Society of America Inc., whose national headquarters are in Maplewood, led the group of four. They were Colin, and his mother, Lucille Simpson, a teacher at Holy Spirit School, whose husband is Colin Sr., and Dale and his father, Antonio, a medical technician at Newark Beth Israel Hospital, whose wife is Zenaida.

"These are real talented kids," beams Koslowski. "Very few youngsters in this age group win PTSA first-place state awards. The competitions are held at Kean College in Union by the directors of the society, Gustave and Carol Ferri. Every spring they have various competitions. But this is one we all can be proud of," he says.

Colin, a husky youngster, who is going into seventh grade in Holy Spirit School, and who excels in sports activities, too, explains, in a remarkably calm voice, "It's a different experience. Something different than winning something in school. You know you put so much time in to do it — it just feels great. Really," he smiles. "It's a different experience. You feel that you really did something important and it took a lot of practice to do it. It made me proud, too."

His mother echoes, "You bet!" Dale, a slim, friendly youngster, who is going into eighth grade, says, "I feel proud of myself for what I did. It's a good thing to do — just feel proud."

ly. "She tried to teach it to me when I was a little boy, but I was too young. Then I learned to play the piano. I went to the Millburn School of Music when I was 7 years old. But I only stayed six months. My aunt, Judy Brienza of Union, teaches with Paul, and she had asked Paul if he would teach me, and he said 'Yes.'" Colin has since performed in talent shows at the high school and in PTSA recitals — he is equally serious about his other interests and activities.

"I played soccer for the Union Lancers," says Colin. "I played on the team for three years to 1987. I also played for the Rebel Softball League for the Recreus in the Union Recreation League. I used to be involved in judo, and when I left, I left as a greenbelt. I attended the Cranford Judo-Karate School for about three years, I started when I was in the fourth grade.

"What do I want to be when I grow up?" he ponders. "Well," he says, rubbing his chin and looking very grown up, "I might teach music, you know, give piano lessons to help pay my way through college. Then I might study medicine or architecture. I'm really undecided," he muses.

Dale, who started studying the piano at the age of 6, was a third-place winner in the Russell E. Lanning Memorial solo piano competition in 1987. This year, he was a second-place winner and had performed in PTSA recitals for two years and in talent shows at the high school.

"When I was small, I says Dale, "I played a lot on the piano, which my dad had gotten for me. And Paul has been teaching me ever since I was 6."

Other than music, Dale likes art. His father says that the youngster "won a safety poster contest for the AAA, the American Automobile Association. His poster was chosen out of 6,000. He also plays tennis and he swims."

"I don't know what I'm going to do when I'm grown up," says Dale. "I can't decide yet."

The magic word of Carnegie Hall still has an astounding effect on all five visitors.

Dale says, "I have watched somebody else play in Carnegie Hall. But just thinking about it, I feel kind of numb. It's such a big place, and all those people. Wow!"

Colin says, "It's scary. I'm nervous, too. Do you know what Carnegie Hall looks like? Wow!"

"Everybody knows about Carnegie Hall," says Colin's mother. "Why, my husband's family in England... in Berwick-on-Tweed... all know about Carnegie Hall."

"And even in the Orient," says Dale's father, "they all know about it. I'm originally from the Philippines, and there have been a lot of long distance calls. And there have been long distance calls from Canada, where my grandmother and grandfather live."

Colin's brother, Jamie, who is 8, "also takes piano lessons from Paul," says the young man. "He's going into the fourth grade at Holy Spirit."

"He passed the auditions," says Koslowski, "but after that he had to go to the doctor because his finger was broken. This year, however, he'll play for the PTSA in the Millburn recital."

Dale, who is an only child, says, "I hope to be a musician some day." And his father adds, "I want to hear it from him, not from us."

Colin's mother says, "I taught Dale in Holy Spirit in the fourth and sixth grades. Now I'm moving over to teach sixth, seventh and eighth grades there."

Dale's father says that perhaps the reason why Dale is so musically inclined is that it is in the family. "I have a sister who was offered a scholarship in Juilliard School of Music, the most prestigious in New York City. But she decided to get married instead. I play the piano, too. But I taught myself by ear. Lessons?" he grins. "I'm afraid it's too late."

"They're both great students, Colin and Dale," says Colin's mother. "And Paul just doesn't stop. He really takes an interest in them. He takes them to concerts... over and above his regular teaching classes. Even though Colin is interested in the music of today, he has started a classical music collection.

Dale's father agrees. "He works so well with them, he manages to get all the best that they have to give. He really imparts what he knows to his students. We are very lucky to have Paul for our children."

Koslowski admits that "I'm equally as happy to have them as students. They work very hard. And my students either like me and we get along...or they hate me."

Koslowski says he was "hired to teach the accordion and piano. I've had two great teachers, Ann Liva at Wilkes College, and Thomas Richner at Rutgers." In his private practice, which he has had for 22 years, he now has 11 students to whom he teaches instrumentally.

music. "Some of my students have gone on to teaching music."

"I taught in Pennsylvania when I was in college," Koslowski and his wife, Victoria, have two children, Amy, 6, and Robert, 10 months old. "Amy's talented," he says, "but I don't want her to practice yet. She has a good memory, and she recognizes music when she hears it on television or radio." As far as the accomplishments of Colin and Dale, Koslowski says, "This is a very exciting thing for me. Right now, they're too young to enter Talent Expo as a duet team in the state competition. But they will in the spring. They will be competing with 13- to 18-year-old students. These are the best I've had. It's most exciting."

In other music, Colin says, "I listen to just about everything." And Dale says, "I like modern music for dancing." His father says, "They're both very low-key." And Colin's mother says, "All my students from Holy Spirit had heard about Colin and Dale." Koslowski says, "They had competed in a talent show three years ago in the school. I got a lot of phone calls and some new, good students for the school. They're not as advanced as Colin or Dale, but hopefully, some day."

"These are nice kids. They get along well and with everyone else as well. I pray for them to win. I asked the Lord, 'Let them win, and I'm hopeful that they will. Carnegie Hall, here we come!'"

Festival judges announced

A selection of three judges for the 15th annual Festival on the Green scheduled Sept. 17 in Friburger Park, Union, recently was announced by Janet Haggerty, vice chairman of the festival; which is sponsored by the Union Township Chamber of Commerce.

The judges, who will determine the winners of more than $2,500 in prizes, will include Frank Lacano, an award-winning illustrator with experience in judging; Sue Sachs, a consultant and instructor in metal work, and Donald P. Lokuta, a Kean College professor, who has published extensively in photography.

It also was announced that in the event of rain, Union's "largest cultural event" will be held the next day. The festival also will include entertainment and display tables by local organizations.

The art judge, Lacano of Union, is a member of the New York Society of Illustrators, which has awarded him a distinguished service prize. Lacano also was cited with a 15-year award for service donated to talented youth on the Lower East Side of New York City. He was chosen by the United States Air Force to travel through Spain, England and West Germany, including West Berlin and Communist-occupied East Berlin to do on-the-spot illustrations of Air Force communications "vital to the security of the United States and its allies."

A World War II veteran, Lacano continues to conduct a studio, doing illustrations and paintings for such corporations as AT&T, Bell Telephone, Merck and Schering-Plough.

Sachs, the second judge, who resides in Parsippany, has had her metal work shown in dozens of galleries and craft fairs along the East Coast and California. She has been artist in residence since 1981 at the Riker Hill Art Park in Livingston and instructor of jewelry at the Summit Art Center since 1982. Sachs has won many awards in shows.

Lokuta, the third judge, who resides in Union, has served as professor of photography in the Department of Technology at Kean College of New Jersey, Union, since 1975. Prior to that, he taught at Ohio State University. His articles on the history of photography and published photographs have appeared in dozens of magazines and handbooks. He has published four books on photography.

Lokuta's work has appeared in more than 300 exhibitions worldwide, including one-person exhibitions as far away as Secna Gallery in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, and group displays. His photographs also appear in private, corporate and museum collections. More information about the festival can be obtained by calling the Chamber of Commerce office at 688-2777.

Sugar important to energy

By JOYCE YANOWITZ
When we refer to the word "sugar," it is usually the granulated kind found in the sugar bowl or the powdered form sprinkled on baked goods. This table sugar, or sucrose, is the standard against which we measure all others. It has 16 calories in a teaspoon, and is a composition of glucose and fructose. It is often "labeled 'empty' calories because it provides no nutrient other than carbohydrate. However, when the body receives too few carbohydrates and fats to meet its energy needs, it is forced to use protein from the diet for energy instead of for body maintenance.

To date, there is no substantial scientific evidence that sugar is addictive or that the amount of sugar eaten early in life creates an increased desire for sweets during later years. Sugar is not a specific cause of obesity. The basic cause of overweight is an excess consumption of calories regardless of their source.

Are naturally occurring sugars better for you than processed sugars? The answer is no. The body does not discriminate among sources of sugar. It does not matter whether a sugar is added to a food or whether it is naturally occurring in a food. It is used by the body in the same way. Most uses for sugars in food processing are similar to uses in the home. Commercially, sugars are used mostly for their sweetening power — just as in the home. Sugar makes many foods more palatable. Sprinkled on grapefruit, for example, it takes away the sour taste; stirred into chocolate it offsets the bitterness.

Body language

Sugars possess several other properties important both to industry and home use. One is the preservative effect, which is vital to retaining the quality of products, such as jams, syrups and candies. Sugars also serve as food for yeast and other fermenting agents in the making of breads, pickles and alcoholic beverages.

To sum it up, one may ask how much sugar is acceptable? The U.S. Dietary Goals suggest that refined sugars should constitute no more than 10 percent of the total calories you eat each day — that means 200 calories for a person who needs 2,000 calories a day. But you would be hard-pressed to figure out exactly how that translates into such a wide-range of sugars now added to processed foods. Therefore, the USDA's Dietary Guidelines, which simply state, "avoid too much sugar," probably make the most sense. That means you should try to limit your intake of table sugar, other caloric sweeteners and foods typically termed sweets.

Joyce Yanowitz is the director of Dietrition Inc. Nutritional Weight Loss Programs in Westfield, at 203 Elm St., 789-3799; in Millburn, at 281 Main St., 467-3232.

'La Cage' to open

The Broadway musical, "La Cage aux Folles," will open the Paper Mill Playhouse's fall season Sept. 14 and run through Oct. 23 in Millburn. Lee Roy Reams, who plays Albin and Walter Charles, who plays Georges, star in the Tony Award-winning show with music and lyrics by Jerry Herman and book by Harvey Fierstein.

Reams recently received both Tony and Drama Desk nominations for his starring performance in "42nd Street." He also appeared on Broadway in "Applause" with Lauren Bacall and as "Lorelei" and in the revival of "Hello Dolly!" with Carol Channing. He recently appeared at the Playhouse in "Paper Mill Stars Salute the American Musical Theater."

Charles made his Broadway debut in "Grease" and stayed with the show for two years until Leonard Bernstein tapped him for "1600 Pennsylvania Avenue." He also played the title role in "Sweeney Todd" opposite Angela Lansbury in Los Angeles and in the Broadway production of "Cats." He won a Drama Critics Circle Award for his portrayal of Albin in the West Coast production of "La Cage aux Folles" opposite Gene Barry. Charles made his film debut in Blake Edwards' "A Fine Mess" and can be seen in "Fleisch II" with Chevy Chase.

Set in a transvestite nightclub in St. Tropez, "La Cage aux Folles" is a musical farce about an unusual family trying to live up to the expectations of a very normal son. Performances are Wednesday through Sunday at 8 p.m.; Thursday matinees at 2; Saturday and Sunday matinees at 3. Tickets can be reserved by calling the box office at 376-4343.

Audio-narrated performances for the visually impaired will be offered on Oct. 15 at 3 p.m., Oct. 20 at 2 p.m. and Oct. 21 at 8 p.m. Funding for "La Cage aux Folles" has been made possible in part by a grant from the N.J. State Council on the Arts/Department of State.

CAPTAIN'S GALLEY II, ship-shape in every way!

I've always heard that to join the navy you don't just "See the World," you also eat very well. Captain's Galley II, at 250 Morris Ave. in Springfield, is a prime example of this adage, for to eat there is to experience a confirmation of this maxim. The food is "Top of the Line!" Quality & value seem to be the goldposts. Reputation comes in here also for to be a Captain's Galley II suggests there must be a Captain's Galley I, which there is at 75 Main St. in Madison.

The decor may not much resemble a ship's galley, however the quality of the food dispels any doubt. As you enter, the bar is on one side, the dining room on the other, with a wooden chair-height divider between and short red cafe curtains, stained glass panels hanging plants above the divider creating a warm & cozy atmosphere. The dining room is paneled in dark wood with booths on one side & tables on the other. Tiffany lampshades hang over all the tables adding to this effect.

Beginning with a friendly greeting from Connie, our charming & most accommodating waitress, to the exceptional hospitality of Mr. Lake, the owner, our evening at Captain's Galley II was an exceptional experience from start to finish. We certainly got off to an auspicious beginning as soon as Connie delivered our bread, hot, pumpkin-encrusted with butter! To me, bread served warm shows the caring & thought which goes into the serving of a fine meal. It takes just a minute of time yet makes a lasting impression in the mind of this diner. My friend and I selected shrimp scampi & stuffed mushrooms for our appetizers. The scampi were tender & delicately flavored & the mushrooms were not only gigantic but stuffed to overflowing with the most wonderfully flavored crabmeat. They were excellent!

Drama Club leader set

Marilyn Court of Linden has been elected president of the Cranford Dramatic Club, CDC, for the 1988-1990 term.

Court, who has been a member of CDC for 11 years, was named to the position at the club's annual closing meeting on June 26. In past terms, she has served as CDC's production vice president, corresponding and recording secretary.

"I'm looking forward to serving CDC and I hope to be instrumental in increasing the community's awareness of the fine theater we offer," said Court. "Many people in the area don't know we exist, and I want to see that change. The CDC consists of an incredibly talented group of people, both on-stage and behind-the-scenes."

Court will be serving as president during a milestone season. "We're celebrating our 70th season during 1988-1989. The CDC is one of the oldest existing community theaters in New Jersey. That's quite an accomplishment."

In addition to her participation in CDC, Court is a teacher in the Roselle school system. She is also a member of the Paper Mill Playhouse Guild and an avid theatergoer.

The CDC opens the 1988 season with John Van Druen's family classic "I Remember Mama" on Oct. 7. The season continues with "A Bedful of Foreigners," "Dial M for Murder," and "Fiddler on the Roof." Discounted season subscription tickets are available for all four shows. Those who would like to receive a subscription ticket form or obtain further information on CDC may call the Box Office at 276-7611.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Someone close to you has been making some good points about what's been going on, but you've been too obtuse to really listen. Make an effort to understand what others are trying to tell you, and things will soon improve.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Those whom you've offended in the recent past are waiting for an apology. It's best to swallow your pride and give in, since you may find that there are areas you overlooked.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Stop dreaming about all those placed you'd love to visit and make some concrete plans. Travel is in your stars now, so take advantage of it and pack those suitcases.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) A monetary matter which has been bothering you will be seen in a new light. This will bring you some relief and you'll be able to spend your energy on other things this week.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) Your conservative approach is just what is needed on the career front, but don't let added financial windfalls tempt you into a shopping spree. It's wise to invest right now.

Teacher recruitment, retention is up

New Jersey offers several programs to recruit highly qualified new teachers and to recognize, reward and renew the talented educators already in our schools. Among them are grant and scholarship awards, financial incentives, professional recognition and renewal programs and opportunities to interact with education leaders. The following summaries include telephone numbers to call for further information.

Minimum Starting Salary: Requires public school districts to pay teachers at least $18,500 per year. Proposals are under discussion to raise minimum salary and provide bonuses to teachers in certain urban districts. Division of Finance, (609) 292-4421.

Governor's Teaching Scholars: Recruits highly qualified high school graduates to teaching by offering college loans of up to $7,500 a year. State will forgive the loans in return for teaching service in New Jersey public schools. Division of Educational Programs, (609) 292-6874.

Minority Teacher Program: Attracts promising minority high school juniors to teaching by providing academic enrichment at Jersey City State College and college loans of up to $7,500 a year, forgiven in return for teaching in New Jersey public schools. Office of Teacher Certification, (609) 588-3104.

Teacher Certification Reform: Helps ensure a continued supply of well-qualified teachers in several ways:

• Allows qualified candidates who have not completed college teacher preparation programs to earn certification through an alternate route, called the Provisional Teacher Program;

• Raises certification standards for all prospective teachers by emphasizing subject matter competency and greater rigor and consistency in traditional teacher preparation programs; requiring teaching candidates from both the traditional and provisional routes to hold bachelor's degrees in liberal arts, science or technology; and requiring all new teacher candidates to pass teacher competency tests before they can be certified.

Distinguished Teacher Candidate Awards: Recognizes 15 outstanding college seniors preparing for teaching careers through traditional college teacher preparation programs. Division of Teacher Preparation and Certification, (609) 984-1216.

Dodge Fellows: Awards 15 grants of up to $5,000 each to outstanding teacher candidates participating in the Provisional Teacher Program. Funded by Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation.

Division of Teacher Preparation and Certification, (609) 984-1216.

Governor's Teacher Grant Program: Awards grants of up to $15,000 each to teachers or groups of teachers who create new ways to enhance student learning so they can share their techniques with colleagues throughout the state. Division of General Academic Education, (609) 292-4461.

Governor's Teacher Recognition Program: Acknowledges outstanding teachers through Governor's Teacher Recognition Grants: $1,000 grants awarded annually to honor more than

St. Joseph's is expanding

St. Joseph's School in Maplewood is expanding its pre-school program to meet the ever-changing needs of families, many of whom have mothers in the workforce. Parents will have more choices in the hours their 3- and 4-year-old children attend the pre-school and the type of program in which they participate.

In addition to a full-time day-care program and special pre-kindergarten program for precocious 4-year-olds, St. Joseph's will offer a half-day program for pre-schoolers, designed to meet the needs of parents who work part-time and children who are ready for pre-school but who may not be ready for a full-day program.

For the first time, parents can contract for a full year according to their needs, says Principal and Pre-school Director Ellen Kaufmann. All programs can be tailored to fit parents' working schedules because extended care is available for an hourly fee.

This year will also see the pre-school's move from its current separate building into the main school building that houses children from kindergarten to eighth grade. The move will enable the preschoolers to move into the mainstream of the academic life of the school and use all facilities to their advantage. The younger children will be able to enjoy music, art, gym and library facilities, as well as the camaraderie that comes with being part of a school community.

As in previous years, the curriculum for preschoolers will also include such traditional subjects as language arts, math readiness, science, social studies and religion. The pre-school program also stresses considerable playtime with quality equipment.

The pre-schoolers will also go on numerous field trips. They will visit a pumpkin patch at Halloween time and the Paper Mill Playhouse during the Christmas season. A trip to Turtle Back Zoo is on tap for spring.

The pre-schoolers, along with all the other St. Joseph's students, will join in celebrating the 75th anniversary of the St. Joseph's parish in 1989. "The children will no doubt get caught up in the enthusiasm of the parishioners during the celebration," Kaufmann says.

Marking her sixth year as principal, Kaufmann notes many "good, progressive changes to the program and what it is offering the community," Kaufmann points to the cohesive feeling of the school community that lends itself to an easy transition as children move from grade to grade. Eighty percent of graduates go on to prep school, she says.

St. Joseph's School offers the only full-time gifted and talented program in the area, with French or Latin taught to gifted and junior-high students. The school, which stresses individualized instruction and small classes, has departmentalized upper grades and a computer lab, as well as a varied sports program.

St. Joseph's welcomes students from Summit, Springfield, Millburn, Short Hills, Livingston, South Orange, Maplewood, Union and surrounding areas. Parents seeking more information about the preschool or other programs can call Ellen Kaufmann at 761-4033.

The Rutgers Cooperative Extension of Union County has expanded its garden hotline hours. Union County residents can call to have their garden questions answered free of charge, thanks to efforts of our Master Gardening volunteers. The number to call to reach the hotline is 233-9366, 1-3 p.m. weekdays or 7-9 p.m. on Monday and Wednesday evenings.

Condominiums' life-styles can attract buyers

Condominiums, and their maintenance-free lifestyles, have traditionally attracted singles and busy professionals who don't have the time or desire to mow lawns or shovel snow from their driveways. Just as often, individuals opt for a condo rather than a conventional home because of the price. But condos are not for everyone. The New Jersey Society of Certified Public Accountants (CPAs) advise prospective buyers of condominiums to review carefully the various pros and cons before leaping into a purchase.

In a condominium, you own an individual unit as well as a share of the development's common property and facilities, such as a swimming pool or tennis court. However, you generally do not own the property surrounding your home, and you may not even have final say on the look of your home's exterior.

Consider, too, that most condominium owners not only have close neighbors but also have to abide by numerous community association rules. If you operate a business out of your home, make sure that the association permits such activity. Bylaws can also limit your ability to rent your home — a factor which can be of critical importance if the condo is a second home.

While operation and maintenance of the condo's common property are not the owner's concern, the fees for such services are. In some developments, monthly maintenance charges can run as high as several hundred dollars — in addition to mortgage payments. Ask the association about its priorities and future plans. You may not want to pay more maintenance fees in order to establish a fully staffed day care center, but if the rest of the association votes in favor of such a facility, you'll be obligated to pay your share.

For the most part, condominium owners get the same tax treatment as other homeowners. You are entitled to deduct mortgage interest, property taxes, and any casualty losses you may incur. In addition, all the rules relating to the sale of a principal residence apply to condominiums.

However, some special tax considerations exist: solely for condo owners. Occasionally, you may deduct property taxes assessed on the development's common elements. When a share of your maintenance fees is used to pay taxes, for instance, you may be entitled to a deduction. Similarly, you can often deduct any mortgage interest on your share of common property, such as a social hall where residents gather.

If you do decide to buy a condo, remember that not all condos are equal. Your actual financial liability for a condo can vary greatly depending on several factors, the reserve fund being only one. When calculating the actual cost of a condo, you also need to determine the exact purpose of the monthly maintenance fees. Are security or other services, such as garbage collection, included? Are any major repairs pending? Remember that the amount of the fee can change from year to year, depending on circumstances. CPAs say that if you are thinking about buying a condo, but plan to rent it out most of the time, remember that you may be able to take the numerous deductions available for owners of rental property. Since tax reform has made the rules for figuring these deductions more complicated than in the past, explore the consequences before signing a contract to purchase. MONEY MANAGEMENT is a weekly column on personal finance distributed by the New Jersey Society of Certified Public Accountants.
