The Best Car Wash in Union County is...

SPEEDY CAR WASH
Personalized Hand Detailing On Every Car Washed

Speedy Car Wash
Union's car-cleaning expert

It's located in an industrial area on Lehigh Avenue... not exactly the kind of place you might expect to find a car wash... but somehow the Speedy Car Wash has managed to do quite nicely over the past 17 years.

At Speedy Car Wash, an exterior wash goes for about $1 less than the average car wash, a competitive price in a business where customers can be charged over $5 simply for an exterior wash, not to mention amenities such as hot wax.

Rooney, though, at his totally "brushless" operation, provides more than just a lower price, while providing personalized service in what can be a very impersonal, high volume business.

In addition, the Speedy Car Wash offers free, self-service mat-washing equipment, something many other car washes dispense only for an extra charge, as well as coin-operated, self-service vacuum cleaners. Rooney always keeps his equipment up to date, replacing washing equipment as part of an ongoing commitment to giving the best wash for the money.

"There is no equipment in the world that will do an absolutely perfect wash," he explained, adding, however, that a little extra effort can produce a superior service.

At Speedy Car Wash, Rooney's employees take time to wash out excess dirt from every vehicle before it even enters the conveyor — and the workers must greet each customer courteously because it is their job to do so.

"I won't permit my helpers to take tips," said Rooney, who can be seen right alongside his workers washing cars. "I want them to do a good job because it's their job, not because they're getting a tip."

Once inside, every vehicle is treated to a wash where every part of the car is cleaned more than once with fresh water and fresh detergent.

Each part of the car is cleaned at least twice, with the lower, dirtiest sections receiving four complete wash applications. No detergent or water is ever reused.

When the car-wash is not operating, Rooney is still busy keeping all equipment in working order.

"We've really done a lot of maintenance on our equipment," he said. "I think that our assemblage of equipment is superior to most other car washes in the area."

Rooney makes a point of trying to spend as much time as possible at Speedy Car Wash.

"If you don't have an absentee ownership here," Rooney explained, "the ownership is always present."

Speedy Car Wash is open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. every day of the week, weather permitting.

COUNTY LEADER NEWSPAPERS VOL. 51 NO. 16 — SPRINGFIELD, N.J., THURSDAY, JANUARY 11, 1990 — TWO SECTIONS — 50 CENTS

Authorities nab four armed suspects

Springfield police apprehended four armed men, who appeared to be on their way to commit a violent crime last Friday morning.

Patrolman Peter Davis, cruising Mountain Avenue near Morris Avenue during early morning rush-hour, spotted a pickup truck with an expired inspection sticker and license plates. Pulling the truck over, he asked the driver, Anthony Dentie, 35, of Newark for identification. Dentie handed Davis an expired driver's license.

Glancing inside the cab, Davis noticed a handgun protruding from a gym bag. He then ordered Dentie and the other three men, who were identified as, Frederick Stewart, 31, of Union, Robert Vajnos, 26, and Joseph Chilli, 33, of Staten Island — out of the truck.

The quartet surrendered without a struggle to Davis and Detective Judd Levinson. Levinson had observed the arrest and approached to assist, authorities say.

"I was on standard morning patrol in the business center of town," explained Levinson. "I was right there when Patrolman Davis pulled over the men, and walked over to help."

The men wore ski caps which police said could be pulled down and used as masks. They were in possession of four handguns loaded with hollow-point bullets.

The truck contained a multitude of burglary tools, according to police. In addition to the handguns, Patrolman Davis and Detective Levinson found handcuffs, gloves, duct tape and a police scanner. The scanner was set to the frequency used by Summit police.

Police Chief William E. Chisholm of the Springfield Police Department cautioned, against assuming that the suspects planned to commit a crime in Summit, however, since this frequency is used by several other municipalities.

Police are unsure of the motive of the suspects, but stated that they are pursuing a possible link to organized crime.

According to the Organized Crime Unit of the Union County Prosecutor's Office, one of the suspects, Joseph Chilli III, is an alleged member of the New York City-based Bonanno crime family.

The men were charged under five counts, said Chief Chisholm. These included possession of handguns for unlawful purposes, possession of loaded handguns and possession of hollow-point bullets.

The suspects were also charged with possession of stolen property, as police were able to determine from serial numbers that at least two of the weapons seized were stolen. They were further charged with possession of a defaced firearm. One of the weapons had the serial number filed off, making a trace nearly impossible.

Afterwards, they were transferred to the Union County Jail and held on $150,000 bail. Dentie's bail was posted Sunday, but the other three men remain in custody.

Detective Sgt. Robert Mason is leading the Springfield Police Department's investigation of the case.

Springfield schools eyed for state certification

According to a recently-released report by Springfield Board of Education President Ruth Brinen, the township's public schools will be recommended to the state Board of Education for five-year certification and approval of their programs and services.

The recommendation is based upon a month-long on-site visitation by the state Department of Education for the purpose of evaluating all programs offered by the school district. The district includes Thomas L. Sandmeier, James Caldwell and Florence M. Gaudinier Schools.

The report, which according to Brinen, realized a distinction in honor of the school district since the last review five years ago, indicated that perfect scores had been obtained in 43 areas evaluated.

Union County Superintendent of Schools Dr. Vito A. Gagliardi and a team of 10 Department of Education staff members presented a summary of their findings, which praised the school district for its accomplishments and complete turnaround in meeting and exceeding the standards prescribed by Brinen.

Chigliardi reported in his review of the Indicators of Planning, Community Involvement and Personnel that he was impressed with the organization and documentation that substantiated achievement in these areas, Brinen said.

Other members of the team who had responsibilities for evaluating the curriculum, facilities, special education and basic skills programs and the financial records, lauded the district for the comprehensiveness of services and the exemplary programs established, according to Brinen.

Brinen's report overviewed areas of commendation, which included achievement test scores, the Gifted and Talented Program, the elementary guidance program, the small classes and individualization, the facilities, and a host of other areas.

Dr. Gary Friedman, Springfield superintendent of schools, stated that he was "pleased that the state Department of Education confirmed the dramatic improvement in the schools."

"The turnaround was a credit to the sustained efforts and support of the Board of Education, and community staff. The district schools have entered a new era of responsiveness to the community, and the image of our school system is in the process of being rebuilt, and this state certification only adds to that renewed image of excellence," Friedman said.

Baby Elizabeth is winner of 1990 'Diaper Derby'

Elizabeth Jane Helznmann came into the world at 6:24 a.m. on New Year's Day, Jan. 1, unaware that her arrival three days early had garnered her a special place in township history as the first baby of the year for Springfield.

As the first Springfield baby of 1990, Elizabeth is the winner of this year's Diaper Derby sponsored by the Springfield Leader and area merchants.

"The seven pound, five ounce girl, who measured in at 20 1/2 inches, was a welcome addition to the family, according to beaming parents Diane and William Helznmann of South Maple Avenue.

"It's a wonderful way to welcome in the new year," exclaimed the new mother.

Elizabeth's brother Andrew, who is eight years old, and sister Christine, who is five, have eagerly awaited their baby sister's arrival, according to their parents. The child will be rooming with big brother Andrew.

"They've been so excited," said Diane Helznmann. "They've been telling all their friends at school."

William Helznmann is an accountant at Gruen Marketing in Secaucus. Diane is a homemaker who says she will now be spending a good deal of her time with the baby.

As winners of the Diaper Derby, the family will be showered with gifts from local merchants. Berkeley Federal Savings and Loan in Short Hills will open a $50 savings bond in the baby's name.

The Howard Savings Bank of Springfield will open a $25 bond. The family will receive a $10 gift certificate "to help build the baby's future" from Kay's Hardware in Springfield, as well as a tray of sloppy joes from Campus Sub Shop II.

Park Drugs on Morris Avenue will present the baby with a vaporizer, and the family receives a one-year subscription to the Springfield Leader.

New Dayton principal named

The Board of Education of Union County Regional High School District 5 has announced that Judith Wickline is equator with more than 10 years experience in secondary school administration has been chosen as the new principal of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield.

Wickline will replace Anne Romano, who will retire on Feb. 28. A graduate of Dayton — herself, Romano served as teacher, attendance officer, assistant principal, and principal at Jonathan Dayton during her 26-year career at the high school. She has been the principal since 1977.

Wickline will assume her duties as Dayton principal on March 1. Jonathan Dayton enrolls students from both Springfield and Middletown.

The new principal is coming to Springfield from Parsippany High School, where she has served as an assistant principal for just over a year.

"I am definitely looking forward to the challenge of being principal of the very stable, solid environment for learning," she added.

"The high school should serve as the center of the community," she continued. "At Jonathan Dayton, I am hoping that we can involve everyone — teachers, parents, senior citizens and all other community members — directly in our educational and occupational efforts. Together, we can all work to give our youngsters the best education possible."

A native of San Francisco, Wickline earned a bachelor of arts degree in English Education from Michigan State University in 1970, and received a master's degree in guidance and counseling from Eastern Michigan University in 1975.

She began her career in education as an English teacher at Grand Blanc High School in Grand Blanc, Michigan. After 5 1/2 years of teaching, Wickline was named as the deputy principal at Grand Blanc, a position she held for eight years.

Following her family's move from Michigan to New Jersey, Wickline became the vice principal of Sparta High School in Sussex County.

Her experience at Sparta immediately preceded her assignment to the Parsippany-Troy Hills school district, where she served as assistant principal and then as principal for two years.

Traffic sign sought

By RAY BOGUSZ

The Springfield Township Committee tackled several key topics Monday during its first meeting of 1990, including traffic problems, a zoning application and an order to Schallie Oil to clean up its property.

William Syracuse, a Springfield resident, urged the committee to place a "no right turn on red" sign on a busy part of Shunpike Road near his home.

The large volume of traffic at certain times of the day, claimed Syracuse, requires this measure to prevent serious traffic accidents.

In its first regular meeting of 1990, the Springfield Township Committee approved the appointment of a volunteer fireman to probationary firefighter status.

William Koonz Jr., who was recommended by Fire Chief Gerard P. Richelo, was approved unanimously by the five-member committee.

Committee members also heard from the attorney representing Malcolm Scharf, a Livingston businessman seeking to have his property rezoned during the State Department of Education's recent evaluation of schools.

STUCK IN TIME?

By Peter Chiswick

The Cream Federal Savings Bank, branch on Morris Avenue in Springfield, appears to have entered an unusual time warp, for perhaps bank officials had a hard time letting go of the old year in any case, an employee from the building announced last Wednesday. Date is being Dec. 31.

police blotter

Kimberly Marie Parets, 24, of Elizabeth was arrested on Jan. 3 at 9:15 a.m. by Detective Sgt. Robert Mason of the Springfield Police Department. The arrest was made as a result of an investigation conducted by department detectives into the theft of money from Hester Time Corporation in Springfield.

Police claim the defendant forged checks, making them payable to herself. The total amount of the checks was roughly $1,400.

Parets was arrested on a warrant for forgery and theft by deception; she was released on her own recognizance pending action by a Union County Grand Jury.

On Jan. 4 at 8 p.m., Parets was arrested again, this time by Detective Judith Levinson, and charged with additional counts of forgery and theft in the amount of $2,500. She was released on her own recognizance pending her court date.

On Parramore, 31, of Nutley was arrested Jan. 3 by Patrolman Edward McNary and charged with driving with a suspended driver's license.

George Schuster, 35, of Springfield was arrested Jan. 4 on Springfield Ave. by Patrolman Steven Stock. Schuster was charged with driving with a revoked license while being stopped for an equipment violation.

Eckmann, right, recently received an honor award for a $60,000 Municipal Street Resurfacing project from the New Jersey Society of Municipal Engineers. Eckmann was honored during the society's annual awards luncheon held in Atlantic City. At left is Michael Manno, vice-president of the Newark Asphalt Company, which was also involved in the project.

School may be certified

In addition to Bishop's overview of the county superintendent's report at the Board of Education meeting last week, a review of the High School Proficiency Test Results of ninth-grade students at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield was presented.

The written analysis indicated that there has been positive growth in student achievement over the past five years in all areas of the test, and that the district scores are comparable with communities such as Scotch Plains, New Providence, Millburn, Summit and Westfield, according to Bishop.

The report also compared the district ranking of graduates of Florence M. Gaudreault School to 21 communities with higher district factor groupings, based on the Index of Comparability, and the results showed that Springfield students have increased in performance to a level of parity with other school districts which have outstanding reputations, according to Bishop.

Other items on the agenda included:

- Appointment of Keith Kurzer to the Board of Education to fill the unexpired term of Leo Eisen who resigned after being elected in November to the Springfield Township Committee.
- Review of the proposed $7.6-million budget.
- Advertisement of bids for repaving the James Caldwell School parking lot.
- Awarding of tenure to Camille Ruggieri, a first-grade teacher at Thelma M. Sandtzeir School.
- Acceptance of more than $10,000 in competitive grant funds for improvement of instructional programs.
- Approval of participation in the Governor's Teacher Recognition Program.

She will lead an office with 144 employees, and an annual mail volume of approximately $1.6 million pieces.

Hardison has previously served as manager of mail processing at the Plainfield Post Office. She also served as postmaster in Springfield and most recently as postmaster in Cranford.

Hardison, the former Janet Walker, grew up in Springfield and was educated in the Springfield school system. She is a former Jonathan Dayton Regional High School cheerleader and girl scout. Her sister and brother, Elizabeth and Jimmy Walker, still reside in town where the family has lived for over 54 years.

Correction

A story about a rezoning petition published in last week's Springfield Leader incorrectly reported that Dolly Madison Kitchens, a manufacturer of kitchen cabinets, had gone out of business.

Marshall Koplitz, executive vice president of Builders' Fair, reported that his organization purchased Dolly Madison Kitchens in August 1989 and moved its showroom to Union.

"We're still going strong," said Koplitz. "We've just moved around the corner."

OPINION

Last hurrah?

An ongoing squabble within Union Township's Republican Party surrounding Peter Genova should not obscure a simple fact — that his nearly five years in the state Assembly were most productive.

Genova, who represented Springfield and the rest of the 21st Legislative District, left office on Tuesday with his imprint on a wide assortment of legislation — ranging from benefits for senior citizens to a school ban on paging devices often used by drug dealers.

Genova was most active in the area of veterans' benefits. An Air Force vet himself, he was the prime mover in the law that created a cabinet-level New Jersey Department of Military and Veterans' Affairs.

In fact, at least 26 measures he sponsored solely or in partnership with other legislators eventually became law.

Serving the district alongside former Assembly Speaker Chuck Hardwick — one of Trenton's most powerful lawmakers — Genova probably could have hidden in his fellow Republican's shadow and ridden Hardwick's coattails at election time. Instead, Genova established his own identity and his own legislative agenda.

And he clearly demonstrated an attentive ear to the wants and needs of the electorate. Five times, Genova ran for office; five times, he was elected.

We did not always agree with Genova, particularly regarding his decision to vacate his Assembly seat right after he had secured his party's nomination in June. But we also think he proved himself to be an effective legislator, and we hope that Tuesday was not his last hurrah.

Republicans unresponsive to people

There was a true touch of irony in the front pages of last week's Springfield Leader. At the top of the page was an article noting that Marcia Forman and Lee Eisen were sworn into office as Township Committee members, and the new government was constituted, with the members making public remarks. In those remarks, former mayor Jeffrey Katz and his two main back-up group took an opportunity to once again blow their own horns.

Just below that story was a story about businessman Malcolm Scharf's attempts at having a property rezoned — another instance of the irresponsiveness of that same Republican administration. Based on the story, the Republicans are failing to even make an attempt to accommodate the needs of a citizen. Rather, they are doing what is easy for themselves. As always, they claim it is to save money, and to "run the town like the business it is."

But regardless of whether their procedure is the best, it is the attitude of the Republicans that is so distasteful. They do not believe that there could possibly be an opposing view. Their attitude is: If you do not agree with us, you are wrong.

It appears that Katz and company have not learned. Even though the Democrats won by an overwhelming majority last November, the Republicans continue to ignore the wants and needs of the citizens of Springfield, and proceed upon their own self-conceived plan of doing what they want, regardless of public opinion.

The citizens of Springfield do not want their government run like a private fiefdom. The citizens of Springfield want a local government that is, as suggested by Eisen, "responsive and responsible." Or, as it was put by Forman, "We need to involve people in government."

I hope that my fellow residents will watch our local government carefully this year, for if they do, I am sure they will see that Forman and Eisen can best lead this town — not the closed-club group headed by the Republicans.

Springfield Democratic Party

May 1990s be kinder to animals

For the sake of all those who care about the animal population, I hope the new year and new decade are more kind than 1989 was.

As an animal lover, when I heard about the slaughter of elephants in Africa and of other animals for profit around the world — and of the use of these poor creatures to test cosmetics and household chemicals in the United States — I wanted to cry.

How would you like it if someone pulled out your teeth and then killed you as they could make a profit on the material your teeth is made of? How would you like it if someone pulled off your skin to make a coat and then showed off to her rich friends? How would you like being shackled and having soap or other chemicals forced into your eyes or down your throat so someone else could be more "sexy"?

Think About It

Roads are stranger than fiction

By JOHN TARTAGLINO
Submitted for your approval:

John Tartaglino has a problem. He thinks he's about to drive to work on a completed highway. Instead, he's just taken a wrong turn leading to a sheet of water.

The Construction Zone.
De-De-Dee!
Picture four lanes' worth of traffic compressed into one. You sit in your car, attention split between the rising temperature gauge on the dash and the three pristine lanes of highway to your left. You're trapped where you are, locked in by what seems to be an infinite length of orange cones.

You look ahead through air shimmering with car exhaust. Both traffic and the thin-orange line of plastic seem to go on forever.

The young woman in the Audi next to me is singing along with her tape deck, windows closed, as she defiantly risks overheating by running her air conditioner at full blast. A college type copes by removing his shirt, using it as a blanket on the hood of his car, and working on his fan.

Others read, walk, mooze. I have my own technique. I grasp the steering wheel firmly, pound my head on the dashboard, and chant rhythmically:
"I hate this %&& road. I hate this %&& road. I hate..."

You get the idea.
It's a law of modern highway construction that as soon as the asphalt cools, it's time to tear it up and start over. A good rule of thumb is that for every day a roadway is open, it will be closed three months for repair.

In World War II, combat engineers built bridges that tanks could cross three abreast. They built them overnight, and under artillery fire.

A similar bridge, built on the Garden State Parkway, takes so long that the clean-up crew at the opening ceremonies are the grandchildren of those who started the job.

I have a theory. I think that there are really only 12 cars on road construction people in the world, and maybe four pieces of construction equipment, none of them in working order. They're replaced, some piece by

How would you like being kept in a dark little box without ever seeing sunlight so that someone could have a more tender meal of veal cutlet? These are some of the things being done to animals in the name of vanity or "science," when much more humane methods are available through computers or alternate sources of clothing or food.

I hope the new year and the new decade are based much more on real need and humane feelings rather than on the greed which motivated many of those in power in the past decade.

We should let the elephant have his tank, let the fox, rabbit, racoon, lynx, beaver and coyote have their fur, and let the rare and beautiful kangaroo roam Australia free as he was meant to — because in 10 years, if this is not done, these beautiful fellow inhabitants of our planet will be lost to us forever.

I also hope those in industry and government become less motivated by profit, greed and lobbying and make real efforts to clean up our air and water this decade, so all of us will be able to live in a better world.

County jail inmate population reaches all-time high

By SHARON CATES
The inmate population in the Union County Jail reached 897, an all-time high, on Monday.

The old county jail, which is where the inmates are being held until the newly-constructed, Ralph Oriacello Correctional Facility can be occupied, is only equipped to hold 600 inmates. And that is with double-bunking in the cells; allowed only by a federal court order.

In addition to the inmates in the county lock-up, approximately 100 county inmates are being detained in municipal jails in Union County.

Even with the impending opening of the new county correctional facility, which is equipped to hold 720 prisoners, there seems to be no permanent solution for the overcrowding problem on the horizon.

The new correctional facility had been expected to debut in December, however, due to a dispute with a contractor over problems with broken pipes in the building, the opening was postponed. Now, according to County Manager Joseph Martin, inmates are expected to be moved into the new facility by the end of next week.

Yes, Martin noted that he thinks that "the problem will undoubtedly get worse before it gets better."

"Building more jail space is the absolute 'wrong' answer," Martin explained. "It is a bad investment. We have to view jails as a very expensive public resource, and we have to fill them more wisely than we do now."

As shown in Union County, jails have an insatiable appetite for growth," Martin said. "An empty jail space is to the courtroom as a vacuum is to nature — it will fill up."

Martin noted that, unfortunately, people have mixed emotions about jails. "People want criminals locked up, but they don't want to pay the tab to lock them up," Martin said.

Martin noted that there may be solutions other than to continue to build more jail space. He explained that the Vera Institute to start a supervised bail-bond program. The program would not solve the overcrowding dilemma, he said, but would be expected to bring some relief.

Under the program, the county might bail out low-bail inmates. The released inmates would then be supervised while awaiting trial, according to Martin.

Martin said this would offer an economic solution to the problem. He costs approximately $60 per day to house an inmate in the county jail, he said. It.

currently takes approximately nine months to sentence the average inmate, so paying the bill of some inmates may be less costly, Martin said.

"The jail overcrowding problem is not only a county problem, however, state and municipal lock-ups are also overcrowded. In fact, the municipalities of Union and Elizabethtown, whose jails house county inmates, have filed a lawsuit against the county for its failure to accept inmates who should serve time in the county jail."

On the other hand, state prisons are refusing to accept state prisoners now being held in county jails, due to their own overcrowding dilemma. So those prisoners remain in county jails until there is available space at the state level.

A decade ago, former governor Brendan Byrne initiated a state emergency order, continuously updated since then by Gov. Thomas Kean, which gives the state a broader prerogative to obtain county jail space, according to Martin.

Martin said he would like to see governor-elect James Florio reject the order.

Martin stated that laws mandating jail sentences for certain offenses are adding to the overcrowding problem.

"Legislators are passing legislation mandating sentences without having the vaguest idea of those laws' adverse effects," Martin said.

Another space problem related to the county jail is the increasing number of women inmates.

On Monday there were 105 women inmates in the jail. The old Union County jail is only equipped to hold approximately 50 women, and even Brendan Byrne initiated a state equipped to hold a limited number of women inmates.

Martin explained that the county could "ideally" hold 60 women inmates. Any more than that would force the county to allow space in another section of the jail, which would decrease the number of male inmates. The facility could accommodate.

State prisons also have limited space for women, Martin explained, and so they are not now accepting female state prisoners who should serve time in state prisons. Thus, they are in county jails, which are not equipped to hold them either, Martin said.

Martin claimed that there is not a single program that will alleviate the jail overcrowding problem. Instead, he said he felt that several programs working together should reduce the severity of the problem.

Martin continued, "I would like to focus instead on seeing that the problem isn't repeated."

Martin said he intends to present a final report on the matter to the Union County Board of Freeholders at its Feb. 15 meeting.

Gallagher, Danna leading more youthful Union team

By MARK YABLONSKY
Mike Gallagher, if he is allowed to, can shoot the inside out of the basket and will account for big points down the stretch. Michael Danna, on the other hand, rarely has to be given anything more often than not, he establishes his own game under or near the basket from his power forward position.

Both are the senior mainstays on this year's Union High boys' basketball team, which has had its ups and downs, due mainly to the loss of several of last year's standouts that helped carry Union to an 18-5 record and a semifinal-round playoff appearance in North Jersey, Group 4, Section 2.

While the differences from last year's team are obvious, though, they seem to be having more of an effect on Gallagher than Danna. Why?

First of all, last year's super backcourt of Jimmy Young and Tommy Moore, at shooting and point guard, respectively, was lost to graduation. That necessitated bringing Gallagher, a sharp-shooting forward, into the backcourt, where he's alternated, at both the point and shooting guard on a full-time basis, which wasn't always the case last year. But either way, opposing teams know full well that he's the man to watch — just as Young had been the one to focus on during the 1987-88 season.

MIKE GALLAGHER

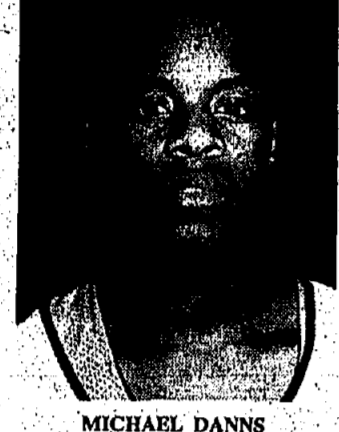

Thus, Gallagher, depending on where he plays and the particular defense that is employed against him, can net 27 points, as he did in a 63-50 victory over Livingston on Dec. 14. He held to only four points in a 44-40 case in last Thursday's 45-35 defeat to Westfield — a game in which Gallagher, after sinking his first two shots, didn't get another high percentage shot the remainder of the game.

"I'm shooting the ball a lot more this year," said Gallagher, who, with a total of 126 points in Union's first eight games, was averaging 15.8 points a contest, roughly double of what he did a year ago. "I love it. But every team's starting to attack on me and come full court... There's a lot of foul-and-ones on me. And I'm really frustrating me because I'm not shooting but I'm just not getting a lot of shots due to the fact that they're denying me the ball wherever I go."

Having averaged 11.3 points and 6.3 rebounds a game last winter, Danna, unlike Gallagher, doesn't feel as though he's being given different attention by opposing squads this time around. Even though a strong, 6-4 rebounder such as Jason Montgomery is no longer around as the main center of attention, so to speak:

"Not really," said Danna quietly. "People didn't really pay any attention to me last year. They (now) just concentrate on Mike more and that frees me up sometimes." Exactly why does Gallagher alternate between the two guard positions? "Because I need him at the point," Hazleton explained. "He's still my best ball handler. I have to play him at the point and just wait for his points to come. So I'm just sometimes forced to play him out of position."

MICHAEL DANNA

Like Danna, Gallagher will surely be a welcome addition to some college program, be it at either the Division 1, 2, 3 or maybe even the junior college level, depending on what develops later on this year. The only difference is that Gallagher, already schooled as a guard, is well prepared to remain there in college. Danna, on the other hand, is better equipped to remain at forward, regardless of his 6-2 height.

In the meantime, what remains for this former team, which was 4-4 as of press time?

"I don't want to jinx us," Gallagher concluded, "but we definitely have to get motivated more if we want to improve ourselves. That includes myself."

Nets' star to chair shootout

New Jersey Nets' forward Roy Hinson will chair their 10th annual Nets/Ester Sausage Basketball Shootout, an event which raises funds for direct services for the disabled throughout the state.

Held from now until March at various school locations, the shootout allows students 18 years or younger, as well as coaches and athletic directors, to have fun and actively participate in helping persons with disabilities.

Jack Hart of Union recently captured the New Jersey State Handball singles "B" Division title at the state championship tournament in Lake Hopatcong.

And Hart did it the hard way, by not losing a game. The number one seed, Hart defeated Brian Ponony, 21-8, 21-5. His next opponent was Jersey City's Joe Pringali, who fell 21-4, 21-16 in the semifinals. In the final, Hart met his doubles partner, Richard Groenber, who succumbed to Hart's continuous pressure and kill shots, 21-11, 21-6.

Survivor feels strength while reciting poems

By BEA SMITH
When Dina Weinreb Jacoud of Union, a Holocaust survivor, reads poetry she has translated from Yiddish to English, there must be a dry eye in the audience or among the crowd. In a Polish-Jewish accent, the thin, frail-looking woman enunciates each word and phrase with such strength and feeling, one finds oneself covered with goose flesh.

"They are very powerful poems," she says. Jacoud, who survived the death camp of Auschwitz because she didn't look Jewish and spoke fluent Hungarian and Polish, still finds it emotionally difficult to recall the war years of her youth. During a recent visit, she paused occasionally to swallow her tears and wipe her eyes — which is pretty much what she does during her frequent lectures in the Wilkins Theater at Kean College of New Jersey, Union, the Workers Circle in Elizabeth, the Holocaust Museum in Washington, D.C., and the Jewish Federation.

On Jan. 22 she will serve as guest speaker at Sinai Sisterhood in Summit when she discusses Raul Wallenberg, the Swedish diplomat who saved Jews from the Nazis. She will also speak at the World War II Hero, and next month when she talks about Wallenberg at the Workers' Circle.

She wipes her eyes and her eyelashes and nods her head. "I don't know why I survived while so many millions died. It was fate," says Jacoud. "I was meant to be a survivor, even though I was the weakest child in the family. I don't know why. I can't explain it. I didn't even want to live. When I look back now, I think I survived because someone up there felt that I should be a witness for those people who didn't survive the concentration camps."

'Cocktail Hour' is 'thirsty' play

By BEA SMITH
"The Cocktail Hour," currently ringing in the new year at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, has audiences appearing somewhat stunned by the quiet tone of this straight play about a well-to-do WASP family. Perhaps they have been so spoiled by the lavish, somewhat rowdy musicals of the recent past that a quiet play with comedic overtones and tragic undertones gives them somewhat of a jolt. But after all, there is more to the theater than the fantastic musicals which have been staged at the Paper Mill.

A.R. Gurney's "The Cocktail Hour" was produced on Broadway last year with Nancy Marchand starring in the role of the respectable mother, Ann. In this production the role is excellently played by veteran actress Phyllis Thaxter. The four-character play is about a conservative family living in a wealthy Buffalo suburb, ritualistically observing and enjoying the best things in life. A cocktail hour always precedes dinner. The cocktail hour is exceptionally important because it allows the family members time to discuss world events, domestic problems, and big and small personal woes. It is also in danger of turning the family members into prospective alcoholics.

The family always seems to have servant trouble. Usually, the dinners are not prepared on time, and the butler loses her keys to whoever is nearby and says, "I'll have just a splash more of that martini. I'm serious. Just a splash," while the father, Bradley, played by Burt Edwards, who recreates his Broadway role from last summer, generously splashes more Scotch into his glass, and the cocktail hour is extended one or two more hours.

In addition to father and mother, the family includes two sons: John, a book publisher and playwright, who has written an autobiographical play, and his younger brother, David, who is a doctor.

"The Cocktail Hour" is a nice quiet change, especially to begin the new year, and a welcome play to substitute for the rowdy musicals that have been so popular. The play will run through Feb. 4.

READING POETRY

Dina Weinreb Jacoud of Union, a Holocaust survivor, reads a poem, 'Shoes,' which she translated from Yiddish to English.

Dina Segal, in Hungary, they called her Stephanie Waga. They took me to a work camp with 300 other girls in Saxony to work in a factory to make electric bulbs, and we lived there. A girl who got very well acquainted with me introduced me to an American soldier. The soldier talked to me in Polish, and another fellow came along. He was translating, and he was an American Jew. I said to myself, 'Whatever will happen will happen. I'm going to speak up.' He asked me if I could speak Hebrew. I said, 'I'm Jewish. I'm among Christians.' So, he said he would take me to a Jewish camp. He said he was from Brooklyn and that he would write to his parents to send me packages.

"He and another friend took two other girls and me to a camp. From that camp, they took us to Bavaria, which is close to Munich. That is where I met my first husband, Meyer Weisberg. He was from Krakow. We met on a train, and he said immediately, 'She is going to be my wife.' Jacoud laughs. "I was too busy for that I wanted to find my family. But he had perseverance. We were married in that camp in 1947, and in 1949 we went to America." She sighs. "My husband had gone to dental school in Munich. At first he had been a dental technician, then he became a dentist. I learned to be an assistant to a German dentist. I had learned a little bit from ORT. "In August we left for America, and we settled in Miami, Fla. I was very happy there. I will never forget. We had $20. We bought a radio, and I heard a Jewish station that played music. Do you know I cried? "Our son, Herman — who is assistant professor of New York University School of Medicine, and a former chief of neurology services at New York Veterans Administration Medical Center — was born in Miami. Then we moved to Newark in 1952. We started a new life. Here, it was very hard. My husband couldn't be a dentist here because they wouldn't recognize his degrees. So he worked for $45 a week in a fabric factory. He

One word of caution — those attending "The Cocktail Hour" should avoid driving home before a theater-goer awfully thirsty.

BUSINESS

Kean administrator granted new patent

Scott and Lee Judin, owners of Mill Lilly's Costume Palace on Center Avenue in Dover, N.H., have been granted a United States patent from the commissioner of Patents and Trademarks for their tool, the Balloon Stretcher.

Back home the Judins worked on an idea for such a tool and the Balloon Stretcher was born during that summer. Formal application for a U.S. patent was then made in August of 1988, and the Judins received a Notification of Allowance from the Patent Office about one year later and were assigned Patent No. 4879928.

The Balloon Stretcher is used by balloon artists and decorators to insert items such as stuffed animals into balloons. The idea for the Balloon Stretcher came when the Judins attended the annual gathering of the National Association of Balloon Artists (NABA) in 1988 held in New Orleans.

Local bank gets $100M acquisition

The recent acquisition of New Brunswick Savings Bank has both immediate and long-term benefits for Constellation Bancorp and its shareholders, according to John J. Connolly, president of the $3 billion bank holding company.

Constellation Bancorp is the parent firm of The National State Bank, which has offices in Cranford, Elizabeth, Millburn, Kenilworth, Rahway and Roselle Park.

The savings bank acquisition provided Constellation with close to $100 million in new capital and increased the company's book value per share by 58 percent, Connolly said.

"It also gave us a leading position in Middlesex County, one of New Jersey's most affluent and fastest growing marketplaces," Connolly told a meeting of the company's officers.

In addition to having the new capital available to acquire other banks and financial services organizations, Connolly said Constellation also may use those resources to "expand our network of branches and develop new products and services."
