field Township Committee, vacated his seat.

Like his fellow candidates, Kurzer said he is pleased with how the board has been performing.

"I think the school system has progressed admirably well," remarked Kurzer, who has a master's degree in business administration from Columbia University. "I want to take it to the next step...to make the school system as good as possible."

Kurzer places much value on education, which he calls "the best gift you can give to a child." His activities include serving on the Admission Committee at Vassar College and working with Columbia's placement office.

Kurzer, who also works as a vice president for a securities company in New York City, believes "very highly in the educational system."

As a board member, Kurzer was instrumental in formulating the proposed school budget, which he said he hopes will receive public approval.

"I think it's very important that the budget is passed," he added.

Families are needed

The American Scandinavian Student Exchange (ASSE) Student Exchange Program is seeking local families who are interested in having a teenager from abroad stay at their home during the school year.

The teenagers are students from Europe, Australia and all points in between. They are 15- to 18-year-olds who want to become part of an American household, which means they pitch in on everything from chores to family discussions.

They are also enthusiastic about sharing the culture and customs of their own homelands. Most ASSE students are fluent in English, and can help teach their own language to their American family.

ASSE International is a non-profit, tax-exempt, public benefit organization, and ASSE is officially designated as an exchange visitor program by the United States Information Agency (USIA).

The organization has many students for whom we are currently seeking families. The exchange program lasts for an academic year. Interested persons should contact Eileen Vochees of Kenilworth at 276-7514 or call 1-800-333-3802.

Strike is avoided

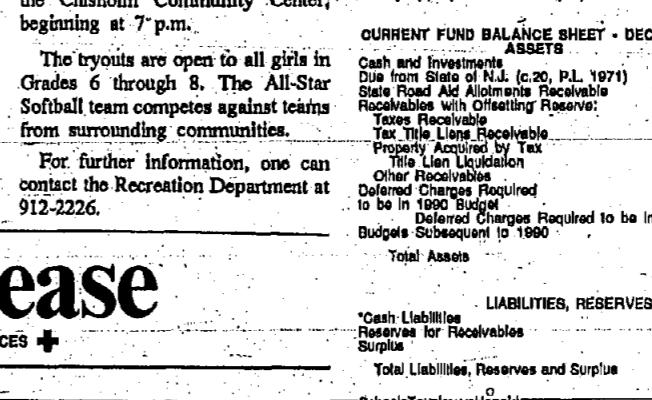

A threatened college instructors' strike was avoided last Thursday when a tentative contract settlement between the state and the Council of New Jersey State College Locals was reached. A strike would have affected New Jersey's state colleges, including Keane College of New Jersey in Union. Negotiations between the teachers' union and the state began in October 1988, according to Stelman. The teachers have been working without a contract since July 1989. "These were grueling, tough negotiations," Stelman said. "It has been a really tough year." The teachers' union represents approximately 700 professional staff members and 2,300 teachers through-out the state, according to Stelman. The terms of the new contract, which have not been released, are retroactive to July 1989. Stelman noted, however, that a 4 percent first-year salary increase is only retroactive to February. The new contract will expire on June 30, 1992.

Directory for seniors available

The New Jersey Health Products Council (NJHPC), headquartered in Union, is offering a revised public service folder entitled "A New Jersey Directory for Senior Citizens."

The 1990 edition lists more than 125 verified telephone numbers that provide a direct link between senior citizens and those state and county agencies offering information helpful in solving financial, legal, health and welfare problems.

Since 1979, when the NJHPC Senior Citizens Directory was first published, more than 500,000 copies have been distributed. The revised directory, which is available on request, provides an additional toll-free number and a space for any state or community organization using the pamphlet to stamp its name and address.

Health insurance probe sought

Petitions to Gov. James Florio and the New Jersey Legislature seeking an investigation into the increase in the cost of health insurance and bringing them to state legislation to reduce the cost, are being distributed by the Committee for Consumer Protection, Inc., 1531 Stuyvesant Ave., Union.

"With the recent unacceptably 40 percent increase in health insurance premiums by Blue Cross and Blue Shield of New Jersey, families find the annual cost of $5,600 per year is more devastating than the escalating cost of auto insurance," Herbert Ross of Mountaineer, president of the committee, said.

"At the present time, all health insurance providers in the state of New Jersey must reimburse the hospitals and the state for their provision of health-care services to the indigent and those unable to pay," Mark Ross, counsel for the committee, said.

"This has shifted the burden from the doctors and the hospitals to the consumers of health insurance in New Jersey. The citizens and employers who have acted, responsibly, by obtaining such insurance now find that the cost to provide health care to those who have not obtained such health insurance is included in their bill, and the insured are paying for themselves as well as the uninsured. Properly, such costs belong in the welfare system or the courts (through collection actions) and not placed on the backs of those who are acting responsibly," Ross said.

The Committee for Consumer Protection, Inc., is a New Jersey non-profit corporation. It is a membership-based organization with a $5 annual membership fee. Its phone number is 686-5151.

BUNIONS and BONE ENLARGEMENTS
By Dr. Michael Eglow

A large percentage of our population may develop a bunion. Both men, women and children can develop bunions, although it appears that bunions are more commonly seen on women's feet. A bunion is a swelling or enlargement of the large toe joint on the inner side of the foot. As bunion deformities progress, they do become quite symptomatic and bothersome producing swelling, redness and pain.

There are many ways to treat bunions. Your Podiatrist can select from a wide range of sophisticated surgical and non-surgical techniques which are available thanks to advanced research and scientific study of the various foot deformities. Many surgical procedures can be performed in an out-patient hospital setting. The doctor will recommend what is best suited to your needs and your particular situation.

Remember both you and the doctor are a team working toward a common goal, comfortable feet, so that you can remain active and fit in today's fast-paced lifestyle.

Four road construction projects funded

Four proposed construction projects on local roads are among those which received grants for fiscal year 1990 from the New Jersey Transportation Trust Fund's municipal aid program recently.

The grants included $95,000 for Market Street, Kenvilworth; $110,000 for Dill Street, Linden; $118,000 for Walnut Street, Roselle; and $106,700 for Colonial Avenue, Section 2, Union.

According to Acting Transportation Commissioner Robert Innocenzi, there was $26.25 million available for fiscal year 1990 under the renewed fund, and his department received requests for projects worth more than $125 million.

Union County municipalities alone submitted 38 applications for projects totaling $5.89 million in value. Funding for 13 of those projects, worth $1.42 million, was approved.

Innocenzi stressed that each project must be committed to a construction contract within 18 months of its approval date, or the Department of Transportation will reallocate the grant money.

LIFESTYLES

Pamela Lewis is comfortable with 2 careers

By BEA SMITH
Pamela Lewis, who plays Trudy, the ostentatious beauty in "Steel Magnolias" at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, didn't have to reach too far to achieve a Southern authenticity in her voice. She was born in a small town in South Carolina called Conway.

ACTRESS IS BEAUTICIAN — Pamela Lewis, left, is seen doing Barbara Gulen's hair while Billie Lou Watt provides some juicy gossip in "Steel Magnolias," which will be at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, through March 18.

"I'm Southern," she declares. "And I had done the role before this past summer at the Center Stage in Pennsylvania. So, I'm fairly familiar with it already."
"Actually," says the actress, "I did it for a total of about seven weeks. And I've enjoyed it very much. The play reminds me very much of many of the women in my family. They are very flamboyant on the outside and consider themselves very normal on the inside...with a heart of gold. And I hope that comes across to the audience because that's what I intend."
Lewis says, "We have an excellent company here at the Paper Mill. Everybody is very well cast. We have a group of perfectionists," she sighs. "You know, it's very hard work doing hair and talking at the same time. And there's drama and comedy, and you have to have people who can handle both with ease and professionalism."
"I think," she says, "that is probably why it's so successful. 'Steel Magnolias' is being done all over the country. I understand it's going to be a TV series."
"And the movie is doing very well. I play the part Dolly Parton played in the movie. I like her very much as a performer," explains Lewis. "She's totally false on the outside and totally real on the inside."
Lewis says enthusiastically, "The role of Trudy is just great...overdone costumes and a heart of gold. I wouldn't mind doing it again. Maybe I can play it in the summer if they decide to produce it then."
"This is Robert Harting's first play, you know. And he has an ear for Southern expressions. He has a very good handle on the way people talk. He really listens to accents and expressions. And we on stage had to make the accents very clear and loud. Sometimes, it's very hard."

About the Paper Mill, Lewis says, "I adore working at the Paper Mill. Everybody treats you like gods. There's a very professional situation there. The theater is incredible...just gorgeous. And it's very rare and rewarding when they treat you like a family. Angelo Del Rossi and his people there are concerned about everyone's comfort. And let me tell you, that's very rare. I've worked in a lot of theaters in a lot of places, and it's most unusual to come across a theater like this."
Lewis, who was a singer until she was 17, says, "I did my first play in high school when I was 17, and I was hooked. I was a singer up to that time. I sang with my family in a revivalist group, a gospel quartet in a Born Again circuit in the South. We toured with that group when I was a child. So, I am familiar with audiences. In my first play, 'The King and I,' I played Anna."
Lewis was graduated from Virginia Commonwealth University, where she majored in acting and minored in speech. "After college," she says, "I started my acting career in the Lord Circuit, where I toured in theaters throughout America. I did hundreds of plays and spent years in that circuit doing great plays. I appeared at the Center Stage in Baltimore, the Huntington Theater in Boston, the Coconut Grove and the Repertory Theater in St. Louis. I traveled all over the place for about 10 or 15 years. Really," she sighs, "I did an enormous amount of traveling. It was good training, but I got tired of it as I got older. I wanted a place of my own. So, about four or five years ago, I moved to Manhattan. And that's where I reside now. And I like the stability and security of living in one place."
Among her New York credits are the role of Violet in the Tony Award-winning "Sweet Bird of Youth," and Celimene in "The Misanthrope."

And she also does "The Three Sisters," "Roxanne" in "Cyrano de Bergerac," and "Bananas" in "The House of Blue Leaves." She also appeared on television in "End of Summer" with Helen Hayes and played the role of Karen Jensen in "Guiding Light."
"And speaking of a variety of roles, different accents and voices, Lewis has another career, a very specialized career of "making noises into a microphone. Really, that's what I do," she laughs. "I am a member of a movie looping company...and I loop voices into people and things, looping as opposed to dubbing. It's more like being a natural mimic. It's more like a character analysis." She fits looped conversation, hysteria and special effects into the mouths of film actors, babies and commercial food products.
"The public isn't too aware of looping, and that's how it should be," she confides. "What I do, for example, is this. A director will cast someone whose looks he loves but whose voice he hates. After the movie is finished, I put on earphones, watch the lips, then lip-synce. I've done a lot of different types and scenes. I specialize in babies. I do babies who coo, who are hysterical babies, happy babies," Lewis muses. "I do background people in films. Some of those little Yiddish ladies in 'Crossing Delancey' were me."
"This is what you call post production sound work. We blend right into the movies. I sort of specialize in the weird work. I do screaming, shrieking, and lots of growling and roaring. I do little cracker voices, such as the happy crackers in the Ritz Bika Peanut Butter Crackers, and the animation in Hershey's Chocolate Beastie." Lewis is also the voice of the Evil Sorcerer for Nintendo Video Games.
"They pay very well," she explains. "And that enables me to do theater now and again. I did my first talking books for the blind recently. I did two-hour sessions in three sessions."
Lewis also does "talking books for the blind. It's a very special kind of work. I do talking book cassettes for children, too. I did my first talking books for the blind recently. I did two-hour sessions in three sessions."
"It makes for a varied life. I've always had a good ear for these things. I do what is called the weird stuff, and it's a more fun for me. After I've done a play for a while, then I do my voices. I feel that whatever you haven't done in a while, you want to do that. I still do summer stock a lot."
"Here at the Paper Mill, it's my own accent rather than a Russian or Yiddish accent or a Ritz cracker."
Lewis laughs. "I have fairly adjustable vocal chords. I can stretch them or make them smaller, especially when I do babies. I also have a good ear with training on top of it, well, I just naturally do it."
She shrugs. "It's what I do!"

OPINION

Deserved honors

Rick Iacono is intense and demanding, quite witty, and sometimes even a bit brash. He won't always tell you what you want to hear, but he'll always tell it like it is.

He also happens to be one heck of a wrestling coach. That's why the veteran Jonathan Dayton Regional High School coach was selected as both the District 10 and the Region 3 Wrestling Coach of the Year last weekend. And three weeks earlier, he was named Union County's co-coach of the year as well.

Over the past two years, the Springfield school has had one of the finest Group 2 teams in the state. And its combined 25-4 dual-meet record during that time can't be attributed to just talent alone — although there's been plenty of that on Dayton's mat squads. It's also because of things such as motivation, knowledge and strong leadership — things for which Iacono, also the school's head baseball coach, is best known.

It is worth noting that one young man who had never wrestled before went on to win a total of 40 matches in two years under Iacono.

We couldn't agree more with the triple honors accorded Iacono. His time for recognition has finally arrived, and deservedly so.

Think About It 'Play ball,' or is that 'Pay ball'?

By JOHN TARTAGLINO

Ah, the first sign of spring. Baseball is back, wearing its iconic colors. How I missed the sounds of modern baseball.

The "crack" of the law books as they hit the attorneys' desks. The excited murmur of the crowd, as they await the arbitrator's latest ruling.

And let's not forget the clouds of dust raised by players sliding into substance-abuse treatment centers.

We even have an extra bonus this year. The traditional players' strike gave way to an owners' lockout.

Who says baseball lacks innovation? It's a funny thing — first the owners want to play, but the players don't; then the players want to play, but the owners won't.

It kind of reminds me of my 6-year-old son and the kid upstairs.

Never mind, "Kill the umpire!" The key play for either baseball is: "We'll see if it holds up in court!"

Players sue owners. Owners sue players. Baseball is still a family game, but only if your family name is Rehnquist.

Being a baseball fan is now a lot like being a hedgehog-house grovler. Contracts are negotiated. Salaries are structured. The books now list "RBIs" as "Residual Base Income."

I've been a baseball fan for 30 or so years. In fact, I've been a Yankee fan, so I've learned to live with almost anything, but even I'm starting to get tired of corporate baseball.

Here's an example. Remember a while ago when the American League gave a thought to eliminating the designated hitter? Well, they decided to keep it.

Why? For one thing, the players' union protested that getting rid of it would hurt their members. Their position was that without the DH, lots of 40-year-olds with bad knees would be out on the street, replaced by 20-year-olds who'd be paid less money, and that would be bad for the pension fund.

The pension fund? Is this baseball, or the longshoremen's union?

While they're at it, why don't they hold out for the addition of a short centerfielder. That one extra job per team might help the national unemployment figures as well as the pension fund.

Neighbors, officials helped in fight

I want to take this opportunity to thank my neighbors on both Tooker Avenue and Hawthorn Avenue for their support in cleaning up the hazardous environmental conditions at Schable Oil Company.

I especially want to thank former mayor Jeff Katz, Mayor Phil Kurnos and Fire Inspector William Gras for all their help. Without them, we would never have accomplished our goal.

Both Springfield and our neighborhood are much nicer places to live since our differences were settled. It is now a pleasant experience to look out our windows and not see smoke pouring out of oil trucks, and not to have to hear the terrible noise created by those trucks.

FRANCIS CROSETT
Tooker-Avenue

Present administration booted Schable

I read, with interest, the letter from Lou and Fran Monaco which appeared in the Springfield Leader on March 1.

In it, they commended Francis Crosett for his courageous stand against the Schable Oil Company, and I heartily agree. It's a fight not many citizens would undertake, especially for so long a period of time.

What was not mentioned, however, was that Crosett had been waging this war for more than five years, and nothing had been done until the present administration took control of the governing body. In fact, some members of previous administrations scoffed at Crosett and even ridiculed him from the dais during some township meetings.

Yes, my hat's off to Francis Crosett. I applaud him and thank him.

But I also want to applaud and thank Mayor Phil Kurnos, Deputy Mayor Marc Marshall and Committeeman and former mayor Jeff Katz. Without them, we would still have Schable.

Exposure to arts is vital to students

Since the success of "Bye Bye Birdie" at Florence M. Gandisner School, are we on an artistic roll? Can that enthusiasm be kept alive by encouraging an interest in theater arts?

Your response may be "yes," but is that affirmation the truth? In Springfield, we seem to be missing the message so appropriately stated in "Bye Bye Birdie" — that of a genuine thirst for the arts.

You may respond: "Isn't this ridiculous? Didn't we pack the house nightly to demonstrate support for the show?"

This is true. However, the show has closed.

What's next? Should we be comfortable with a program or two in the form of a concert or play? Do the schools need more enrichment? Is an annual exposure to the arts a substantial diet for our youth? Are programs in choir or instrumental music on their way to the elephant's burial grounds?

If you are not informed about this situation, please, take a moment to check the enrollment in these programs in our town. These numbers reflect our true commitment to the arts.

Remember, for most of us, we are not born culturally endowed; it is through exposure that we achieve enrichment. This exposure can be delightfully contagious.

Not only offering but expanding the curriculum beyond reading, writing, and arithmetic is a risky business. An innovative idea is not always popularly received.

It is curious that when changes must be made for budget considerations, the enriched courses are the ones which are eliminated first. The statistics of enrollment in these programs tell the story. Our Springfield youth, unlike those youth in the surrounding communities, are not showing the interest in these cultural programs.

This is not the students' fault! Interest is achieved through cultivation and exposure.

Essentially, our students' interests can be turned round. The presentation of the outstanding performance demonstrated at Gandisner four weeks ago showed that endogivers like "Bye Bye Birdie" are a vital counterpart to our children's development.

When the students have the opportunity and the stewardship of fine educators like Bruce Hanson and Susan Bergey, in addition to the exceptional talent of Mark Majacki, just imagine what could be achieved!

As parents, we have obviously selected the best professionals to work within the school environment. All that is needed is the time provided within the curriculum to allow the students to reach for the stars. After all, there may be a Sir Laurence Olivier or a Beverly Sills in the wings!

Hillside Avenue

Budget indicates concern for students

I have been a teacher in Union County Regional High School District 1, which includes Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield, for nearly 25 years.

In that time, I have taken great pride in the quality of education that the students of my district have received.

Because of the fine teachers, programs, administrators and Board of Education members, many district students have gone on to college, or to specialized schools, or "directly" into jobs of all kinds.

Many return to visit their teachers after college or their first jobs and express appreciation for learning many things — how to do mathematics, prepare a mechanical drawing or write a letter. Many recall small favors a teacher did for them, favors the instructors themselves had long since forgotten.

That is why it bothers me that the quality of education, relationships and affection that many students have come to expect and appreciate from the district may be in jeopardy.

If the district's proposed budget is not supported by parents and others concerned about the education of our children, what will happen to them in the future? Will they have the same opportunities as students have had in the past? My greatest fear as a teacher and a resident of this area is that they may not.

There are many who look at educational budgets only in terms of dollars and cents. Many look at budgets solely in terms of their local property taxes.

I ca had in the past? My greatest fear as a teacher and a resident of this area is that they may not.

There are many who look at educational budgets only in terms of dollars and cents. Many look at budgets solely in terms of their local property taxes.

I cannot do that. I look at the school budget as an indicator of the seriousness of our concern to educate our children. I pay my taxes, and I can see the value they deliver.

I urge everyone who cares about the future of our children to inform themselves on the budget and to vote to support the maximum opportunity for the young on the April elections.

Lock out baseball players for season

Although there are more serious issues to discuss, I would like to address the current major league baseball "lockout."

How ridiculous is it when there is a management-and-labor dispute, despite both sides earning more money than ever before in their respective histories! Many people I've spoken with feel that because the owners are supposedly saving millions of dollars each year, they should yield to the players' demands. My opinion is the exact opposite.

People enter business to earn money. An owner of a baseball team is in business to do just that. Why should he be expected to share the revenue from his successful business?

Salary arbitration is a joke, in my opinion. Why should a third party be able to require an owner to pay a higher salary? It's the owner's team, isn't it? He should decide what salary is paid.

The player is only an employee. If he doesn't like the rules, then he should go sell insurance for $30,000 a year.

On the other hand, people will argue that it's the players who fill the seats. That I will agree with. But aren't they being compensated to do just that? The average major league salary is $600,000 per year. Not bad compensation, huh?

The players argue that they need a greater pension plan. Are they kidding? Is anyone going to tell me that someone earning the bucks that are being paid today can't put a few quints away for retirement? Haven't they heard of an Individual Retirement Account?

The owners should, in my opinion, lock out for the entire season. Let some of these headless players go for a season without their mega-paychecks. Maybe they can get a job for $7 an hour to tide them over.

Maybe then, the players will realize that they are some of the luckiest people in the world. Actually, a group of only 650 lucky people.

If they can't realize that, bring up another 650 and tell the current players, "Adios."

Freeholders oppose bill, claiming it will cost county $1.7M annually

By SEANON CATES

Union County officials have joined their peers in Essex, Morris and Passaic counties in opposing State Senate Bill S-145, which is presently being discussed in the Legislature.

If the proposal is signed into law, Union County officials claim the county would lose $1.7 million in revenues that it presently receives from motor-vehicle fines annually. Under the legislation, that money would be turned over to the county's municipalities.

Two mayor-legislators — State Sen. Frank X. Graves Jr., D-35, mayor of Paterson, and State Sen. John A. Lynch, D-17, mayor of New Brunswick — co-sponsored the bill.

Graves, however, will never see what will become of the proposal. He died unexpectedly on Sunday at the age of 66.

The bill has not yet been presented to the Senate, according to Union County Freeholder and Assemblyman Neil Cohen, D-21.

"Most of the mayors in the Legislature will probably support it, and most of the freeholders in the Legislature will probably reject it," Cohen said.

Historically, Cohen noted, the monies raised through such fines has been split almost equally between the municipalities in a county and the county itself.

"The bill would direct monies that are now provided to the towns and county and give it just to the towns," Cohen said. "The county can ill-afford to lose the $1.7 million in revenue it presently receives from those fines."

"One party conducts the arrests, and another party conducts the incarceration and the probation. Therefore, the distribution of funds should be shared," Cohen explained.

"The county bears the expense of incarceration, the monitoring of probation, the monitoring of first offenders, the building of a jail and the employment of corrections officers to work in the jail," Cohen added.

Cohen cautioned that if the county lost the $1.7 million, then county services would have to be reduced or taxes would have to be raised.

"It's a catch-22," Cohen said. "Unless, or until, the state picks up the court costs, there has to be a partnership between the towns and the county."

"The bill is presently in committee in the Senate, and it would have to be voted on in the full Senate before it is sent to the Assembly. Approval of both houses in the Legislature is necessary before it would be presented to the governor for his signature."

County to lease two buildings to house employees

By SHARON CATES
In an interesting twist to almost two years of negotiations to find a better place to house the Union County Department of Social Services, the county Board of Freeholders opted to lease both of the buildings being considered.

Last Thursday, county Freeholder Chairman Gerald Green announced the board's intention to rent space in both the Albender building and Alfieri's Westminster Plaza building, both in Elizabeth.

"We haven't voted on it yet," Green said. "We have directed County Counsel Jeremiah O'Dwyer to finalize the leases.

Green noted that once a vote is taken and the leases are finalized, the Department of Social Services will occupy the Alfieri building. The Probation Department and members from the county Prosecutor's Office will occupy the Albender building, according to Green.

Although the freeholders said they are aware that the Probation Department and Prosecutor's Office had been in need of more adequate facilities, they chose not to make that information public, Green said that the board members opted to keep that information confidential so they would have better bargaining power during the negotiations.

The Department of Social Services has been located at 80 East Broad St., Elizabeth, for approximately 10 years. Over that time, employees have consistently complained about the deteriorating condition of the building.

"That building is located in Elizabeth's central business district, where the Elizabeth City Council had said it preferred to keep the social services employees. The council was concerned about the potential loss of business by downtown merchants," Green said.

"We had to be concerned with what is good for the 21 municipalities in the county and what was good for government," Green said. "We tried to make sure the Elizabeth merchants would not be lured by the move."

"It wasn't that we were ignoring the city of Elizabeth, but we had to address the concerns of the county as a whole," Green added.

John Harfield, president of Communications Workers of America Local 1080, the union representing the department's employees, noted that the workers were not concerned about moving outside of the business district.

"We are really not that far outside of the business district, so I do not see that as a problem at all," Harfield said. "Our main concern was moving out of this building."

Employees from the Social Services Department are not expected to begin moving into their new location until the late spring or early summer, according to Green.

In the Albender building, the Probation Department and Prosecutor's Office employees will remain close to the county courthouse. That move is expected to take approximately six months to complete.

Green explained that major renovations to the Albender building had to be completed before the employees could be moved. The Probation Department and Prosecutor's Office staff is expected to be moved in phases as the renovations are completed.

Anti-delinquency grant received

A $60,981 State Law Enforcement Planning Agency grant has been awarded to Union County for delinquency prevention.

The grant involves federal Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act funds.

The grant to Union County will enable the Urban League to begin the Juvenile Aftercare Alternative Program. This project will provide after-care services to probationers, male and female, ages 10 to 17, returning to the community from the Department of Corrections field programs. Referrals will also be accepted from the community for 53 youths by assisting with school re-entry, job placement and family stability through family and individual counseling and life skills training.

Stamler feted for anti-child abuse efforts

Union County Prosecutor John H. Stamler, co-chairman of the New Jersey Governor's Task Force on Child Abuse and Neglect, has been named recipient of the federal Department of Health and Human Services Commissioner's Award for his efforts on behalf of child abuse prevention.

The award is given annually by the department's Office of Human Development Services Administration for Children, Youth and Families at its National Conference on Child Abuse and Neglect.

Stamler is chairperson of the protection subcommittee and co-chairman of the New Jersey Governor's Task Force on Child Abuse and Neglect.

Under Stamler's direction, the task force has heightened public awareness of the problem of child abuse and neglect and developed child abuse prevention programs throughout the state.

Stamler was instrumental in putting into place training programs for the New Jersey Department of Human Services' Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS) protective services workers, law enforcement officials, physicians, lawyers, mental health clinicians and educators.

He developed a guide titled, "Child Abuse and Neglect: A Professional's Guide to Identification, Reporting, Investigation, and Treatment."

Stamler also played a major role in the creation of the New Jersey Child Sexual Abuse Training Institute, which provides training and technical assistance on the multidisciplinary team approach to investigation and treatment of child sexual abuse.

He was also instrumental in establishing the child-abuse diagnostic centers in Newark and Camden and in developing a child-abuse awareness campaign with an emphasis on educating physicians and educators on child-abuse awareness and reporting.

Iacono awarded twice, as seven make states

By MARK YABLONSKY
Dayton Regional head wrestling coach Rick Iacono, who saw two of his Bulldog combatants qualify for the upcoming state tournament, received Coach of the Year citations for both District 10 and Region 3 at the regional tournament this past Saturday in Union.

"The thrill of getting Coach of the Year of the Region is a thrill not only because our region has gotten so tough," Iacono said, "but because there are a lot of fine coaches in the region. I was elated."

"I won it in 1979, and who knows, maybe I can win it again in 2001," he added jokingly in reference to a possible 11-year cycle.

Already an earlier choice as co-Union County Coach of the Year, Iacono watched as 103-pounder Danie Moreno and 130-pounder Chris Moreno won state tournament slots. The five other CLN-area wrestlers to qualify were Dan Lilley, Miko

RICK IACONO
County Tournament title and a second-place finish to Irvington's Terrence Paul in District 10. "I felt a little bad for Chris," said Iacono. "I felt he wrestled well enough to win...but I was pleased with the way he wrestled. And I was glad he was relaxed. I think both of these kids are going to do something in Princeton." Paul, incidentally, was voted as the region tournament's Outstanding Wrestler.

Linden defeated in final

By DAVE WISE
The Lady Tigers of Linden High advanced all the way to the North Jersey, Section 2, Group 3 girls' basketball state tournament finals by beating Cranford, 28-18, on Feb. 28 and Clifford Scott, 72-52, last Friday. But Linden's hopes of capturing a state sectional title were sadly crushed when the team, now 20-8, fell to Randolph High, 53-49, on Monday night in Cranford.

In last week's action, the Lady Tigers easily put away Cranford in a quarterfinal round game in Linden, and this victory advanced Linden to the semifinals.

"They were holding the ball and it was a very low-scoring game," remarked Eng. "Their game strategy was to hold the ball, but Linden prevailed."

And prevailed they did: Linden took an early lead in the first quarter with two three-pointers from juniors Joann Hall and Erica Reed. This was a morale-booster because after those two shots fell into the basket, Linden "did not trail" in any quarters, said Eng.

"We did the things we had to do in order to advance in the tournament," noted Eng.

It was a very slender lead, that kind which doesn't allow for mistakes — but unfortunately, Linden made some costly mistakes. After leading, 37-36, at the end of the third quarter, Linden blew two lay-ups and missed 3 foul shots. These errors gave Randolph a chance to make "their big run" in the fourth quarter, according to Eng.

Mary Carraschi of Randolph added to her team's lead by scoring three 18-foot jumpers and "Randolph never trailed after that," said Eng.

"They cashed in on easy opportunities," Eng further noted.

One advantage which Randolph quickly seized was their shooting strength on the fast break. Randolph was shooting 62 percent from the foul line, as opposed to Linden's 27 percent rating.

Hall finished with 19 points, Knoock scored 10 points, and Marable ended the game with nine.

This was the first Linden girls' basketball team to win 20 games in one season, and also the first team to reach the state sectional finals.

In summing up his team's performance this season, Eng said, "I'm very pleased with the progress of our team. We feel confident that we'll be able to compete (next year) for the county, state and conference titles."

BATTLING IT OUT—Scott Aderdy of Dayton, left, and Madison's Roshona Richardson go at it in this quarterfinal-round heavyweight bout in the Region 3 tournament last Friday night in Union. Aderdy prevailed by a 7-4 score, but just missed out on qualifying for next week's state tournament in Princeton, when he lost, 8-5, to Pete Lue of Parsippany Hills in the regional consolation on Saturday.

Rams hope for advancement

By MARK YABLONSKY
Whatever did happen in Tuesday's North Jersey, Group 2, Section 2 title game between Abraham Clark High of Roselle and Hillside at Madison Boro High School, it's safe to say that whoever lost, didn't deserve to be sent home so early in post-season play. And whoever won, has, as Ram coach Stan Kokie feels, "an excellent chance of going all the way," meaning to the entire Group 2 championship.

Roselle and Hillside this season have both been outstanding and as of now, one of them is going to be facing the North Jersey, Group 2, Section 1 champion tonight at 8 p.m. at Boston Regional in East Rutherford.

And the whole ball of wax — into it, the Group 2 title and entrance ticket the second annual Tournament of Champions — is up for grabs on Saturday at 5:30 p.m. at the Louis Brown Athletic Center in Piscataway.

The question posed to Kokie on Monday was simple: since his team had defeated Hillside, 90-60, in the only clash between the two back on Feb. 3 in Somerville, was he worried that a proud, 24-2 Comet team would be thinking of revenge?

"I don't think you'll look at revenge," answered Kokie, whose team, at 23-1, received a first-round bye in the section and then ousted a 21-6 Jefferson Township squad, 96-30, this past Saturday in Roselle in the sectional semifinal. "I think both teams are on a mission. Personally, I wish this was the third time because when you play them once, you don't know what to expect a second time." This time of year, there is no second chance. If you win, you're back in action just two nights later, a fact that neither Kokie nor a lot of other coaches seem to appreciate.

Led by 6-5 senior wing Craig Martin, the Rams entered Tuesday's game with Hillside in search of a 13th sectional championship. Martin averages 21 points, 11.3 rebounds, 6.3 assists and 6.5 steals a game.

Others, such as Eugene Brown and Jon Johnson, to name a few, are also putting up good numbers. Brown and Johnson combined for 39 points in the win over Jefferson, with Brown getting 22 of them, including 12 in the first period alone. Johnson also had 12 points in the opening quarter.

Siragusa cited

Kentworth's Tony Siragusa, the All-American defensive lineman for the University of Pittsburgh, has been named as the 1989 Outstanding Collegiate Athlete Award winner by the Breatley Regional high football program. The former Breatley football and wrestling standout will be honored at the school's annual football dinner next Thursday, March 15, at the Westwood Restaurant in Garwood.

Siragusa will also speak at the dinner. A reception is planned for him at 4 p.m. that afternoon at the Kentworth P.B.A. Hall on Lafayette Avenue.

More information is available from Breatley football coach Bob Taylor at 272-7500.

BEARING DOWN — Peter Carpenter of Dayton, right, puts pressure on Boonton's Charlie Gullshan during Region 3 action last Friday night in Union. Carpenter won, 4-0, for his 22nd victory of the season.

Croce becomes All-American

Roselle Park's Frank Croce, who is a member of the Kean College wrestling team, capped off a brilliant 37-4-2 record by placing sixth in the Division 3 national tournament as a 142-pound contestant this past weekend in Ithaca, N.Y., making him an All-American wrestler for the third straight year. The top eight wrestlers in each weight class earn All-American status.

Prior to transferring to Kean at the start of the current 1989-90 school year, Croce had been an All-American for John Steel at Middlesex County College for each of the past two seasons.

Croce was still recovering from the effects of a rib cartilage tear sustained

"I'm very happy that he got it," said Kean coach Craig Spencer, whose Kean team finished the season with a 20-7-1 dual-meet record and a final No. 17 national ranking. "He had a very tough road."

Softball registration set

Registration for the upcoming 1990 Kentworth girls' recreational softball league, ages 6-14, will take place this Tuesday, March 13, at 6:30 p.m. in the Harding School gymnasium.

'89-90 All-County Girl's Basketball team

About our '89-90 picks

By MARK YABLONSKY

For the third straight year, County Leader Newspapers is presenting its All-County Girl's Basketball Team, consisting of players from the towns within our coverage areas: Springfield, Mountaineer, Kenilworth, Roselle, Roselle Park, Linden and Union.

Since basketball has many less players than do other sports, we are offering an 11-member First Team, as well as Honorable Mention selections. Our choices are based on statistics, importance of a player to her team, personal observation, and also on comments and observations from each of the coaches with whom we spoke.

Our selections were not made by position, largely because a certain amount of our choices either play more than one position, or play under varying kinds of offenses.

For the second straight year, Jennifer Francis proved to be the perfect complement to Meixner up front for Dayton.

Raising her scoring average from 12.6 to 14.7 points a game this winter, the 5-9 strong forward also averaged better than four assists and two steals per game. Her presence inside made Meixner all that more effective, and her hard work was a major reason why the Lady Bulldogs made it to the North Jersey, Group 2, Section 2 playoffs for the first time in six years.

Her two best games of the year resulted in a 25-point showing in a 38-39 win over Roselle on Jan. 26, and 23 points in a 39-33 loss to Ridge on Jan. 19.

"She developed into a much improved passer this year," Krupp said. "And she had a good knack for steals."

See next week's paper for our All-County boy's basketball team.

The first of this year's three-time All-CLN players, Kim Eagan continues doing what she does best for Brearley, and that, of course, is scoring points.

Beating the 400-point mark for the second straight year, Eagan notched a total of 432 points in all 21 of Brearley's played games for a team-leading 20.6 average. She now has a total of 1,056 points in three years, and she should become Brearley's all-time leading scorer — including boys' and girls' competition — before the half-way point of next season.

"She's a very consistent player," Brearley coach Marge Egan said. "Consistency I would say is the key word for her. She's always composed under pressure, and her head is always in the game."

LAUREN MEIXNER
DAYTON

Shamona Marable is amazing. This is one of the reasons why the senior standout wing/guard, who is leaning toward attending FDU-Teaneck next season, is one of four All-CLN three-time repeaters on this year's team.

After averaging 14.1 points and five blocks a game as mostly a front-line/wing player last year, Marable, having already moved back to the point, did even better this time. All she did was average 15.7 points a game in 1989-90, while dishing out 62 assists and blocking 81 shots. And she also recorded a total of 425 rebounds, an average of 15.2 per contest.

And all that from the point. But how?

"She goes in and crushes the boards, it's that simple," replied Linden coach Andrew Eng. "Offensively, she's the biggest kid on the court. And she gets a lot of rebounds because of her athletic ability."

JENNY FULLMAN
ROSELLE

MICHELLE PIECH
UNION

This season, Joann Hall started at wing and moved more and more to point guard as the season wore on. And if she's at shooting guard by the time next season rolls around, it won't matter anyone. She'll hurt you no matter she plays.

Averaging 17.7 points a game with a total of 499 in all this year, Miss Hall is some 300 points shy of becoming only the second player in Linden girls' basketball history to reach 1,000 points. Her 50 three-point baskets this season are definitely a school record, and may well be a county record, too. And don't forget her 62 assists and 48 steals, either.

"This is a kid that is what Linden girls' basketball is all about," said Eng without hesitation. "She is the epitome of our program with her dedication and desire to make herself the best basketball player she can be."

It's been one heck of a year for Andrea Labonia, Union's senior center who is a repeat selection for All-CLN honors.

For one thing, her 445 points in 25 games represents a team-leading 17.8 scoring average, a significant increase even from last season's 16.0 mark. She started in every one of Union's 25 played games, and in eight of those contests she scored 20 points or more — including her record-setting 38-point effort in an 80-48 win over Kearny on Feb. 3, in which Nancy Fowler's old mark of 37 for one game was broken.

Only once all season did Labonia fail to hit double figures, that coming on Jan. 23 when Union Catholic limited her to just four points.

"She's a very team-oriented player, very unselfish," Union coach Joe DeStephan explained. "She's also a very good shooter, plus she was one of our co-captains."

For the third straight year, Lauren Meixner is a rebounding chameleon for All-CLN honors. Just as her grades have already made her a member of the National Honor Society.

As gifted in the classroom as she was competitive on the hardwood, Meixner leaves the Dayton girls' basketball program as one of just four players to reach 1,000 career points. That came about when she 2-11 center netted 18 points in Dayton's season-ending 39-37 defeat to Hanover Park, leaving her with a four-year total of 1,017.

Her team-leading 16.9 points and 14.7 rebounds a game illustrate quite clearly what she was for Dayton this year — one of Union County's most dominant inside players.

"I'll tell you, Dayton's going to miss her competitiveness and her aggressiveness," Dayton coach Arthur Krupp said. "She was by far our most valuable player. When she isn't on the floor, we're hurting."

SHAMONA MARABLE
LINDEN

Another third-time member of the CLN All-County squad, Jenny Fullman had another strong year for the Lady Rams, scoring 300 points in all 19 of her games for a 15.8 scoring average. While that is down from last year's 20.1 average, Fullman did score 20 points or more in six games, and in two more contests, she had 19 — despite frequently being double-teamed.

Add on an average of 4.1 assists and just under three steals a game, and you have a better idea of Fullman's true worth. She also sank 29 baskets from three-point range, five of which came during a hot 10-minute stretch in the same game in which the senior guard recorded a season-high total of 28 points.

"She's our point guard and a four-year varsity starter," Roselle coach Bob Giamontti said. "She was the best ball handler we had."

Some coaches may have plums for players, but Joe DeStephan is quite happy to have a peach on his team — or in this case, Junior Michelle Piech, who is also a repeater for All-CLN honors.

While her point total of 243 was down from her 285 of last season, Piech still averaged 13.5 rebounds per game.

"She's a good, strong rebounder inside and we hope to see more point production from her next year," DeStephan said. "She's strong inside and she should be a dominant force in rebounding again."

'Voices' has lyric insight

By MILT HAMMER

Ear-placer: "The Voices," MCA

The unrelenting sound of The Voices comes through clear and strong on the self-titled MCA debut release. This San Diego-based quintet combines a muscular rock approach with a compelling touch of melodicism and lyric insight. Produced by Andrew Slater and Niko Bolas, "The Voices" showcases a band that stands out from the pack by virtue of its musical honesty and sheer visceral impact.

Bandmates Peter Kevin, lead vocals, guitar; Tommy Andrews, lead guitars, vocals; David English, keyboards; and Todd Hoffman, bass, have avoided pretenses and gimmicks during their rise on the Southern California club scene. "When we're on stage, we don't pose or dress up in spandex," says Kevin. "It's just a real show with a lot of heart and intense energy. And that's what we went for in making this record."

The Voices' first album achieves the band's goal of capturing their galvanizing sound in the grooves. Much of the recording was done live with few overdubs — and the results can be heard on such fiery tracks as

"War," "Fallen Idol" and "Midnight Train." Other cuts have a more textured approach without sacrificing emotional impact — "Sound of the Rain" and "China Walls," two yearning midtempo numbers, stand out among them.

"Kick It In," the LP's opening track, is an explosive war cry with a charming rhythmic thrust. "Let It Fall," an ominous, propulsive modern rocker, and "All I Wanted," melodic with a dark edge, reveal further sides of The Voices' musical vision.

The Voices speak with confidence that comes from years of seasoning from live performance. Yet the members of the group have retained the enthusiasm and integrity which have sustained them through the rigors of playing the Southern California club circuit.

While the band formally came together six years ago, the members had been working on and off in bands around San Diego since their junior high school days. Several had worked with major acts — bassist Todd Hoffman, for instance, did a stint with Lions and Ghosts, and guitarist Tommy Andrews played with Steve Jones. But, as drummer Randy Willert says, "We never really came of age in any band until The Voices."

Michael Shapiro of Mountaineer performed with the Brass Ensemble Sunday at the Afternoon Music, the chamber series at the Unitarian Church in Summit. He is part of the New Jersey Youth Symphony.

The NYYS in cooperation with the New Jersey Symphony, was founded in 1979. It provides professional training for 250 young musicians from 63 communities.

REAL ESTATE

Weichert foresees new trends in '90s

Given the dynamism of the real estate industry — especially at the end of a record-setting and unprecedented decade — the country's largest independent real estate company predicts that the 1990s will be a period of change.

And while it's difficult to foresee what the decade may bring and what outside forces will influence the industry, one thing is certain: buyers, sellers and brokers alike will experience a shift in trends.

Weichert Realtors, based in Morris Plains, with local offices in Clark, Union and Westfield, expects the decade will bring a more stabilized appreciation rate, with time for incomes to adjust to housing prices.

The real estate companies and agents that will grow during the 1990s will be those that recognize the shift and adjust accordingly, the company predicts.

"The housing market has always been based on a cycle," said James Murray, Weichert senior vice president of marketing. "The companies that will succeed will be those that adapt to the market and keep current with trends."

A recent poll of Weichert experts unveiled these expectations for the 1990s:

- Best growth areas: Somerset, Western Morris and Warren counties will experience expansion, especially with the completion of Interstate 78.
- Interest rates: Rates will be less volatile in the '90s, according to Timothy Good, president of Weichert Mortgage Co., unlike the roller-coaster pattern of the '80s. More people will purchase homes for shelter and not for investment purposes.
- Good predicts that as 1990 begins, interest rates will be lower than average.
- Rate of appreciation: Gradually stabilizing, low through 1990, steady at the inflation rate throughout the next few years. Some areas will fare better than most.
- Biggest challenge for buyers: Affordability. During the '90s, appreciation outpaced income levels. The '90s will be an adjustment period.
- Biggest challenge for sellers: Acknowledging current real estate conditions and pricing homes competitively and realistically.

RELOCATION HONORS — Bernadette Houston, right, sales manager of the Union office of Degan Boyle Realtors, receives the company's Relocation Achievement Award for 1989 from Dorothy Degan Hunt, left, vice president and director of Relocation, and Joan Wislowski, assistant director of Relocation. Houston was honored for leading the company in closed broker-to-broker referrals.

Kitchen improvements can help sell a house

In a soft real estate market, improving a kitchen can help a house hold its value, and pay off in the end for the seller, according to Weichert Realtors.

Weichert is the largest independent residential real estate company in the country, according to trade groups. It has local offices at 1307 Stuyvesant Ave., Union; 157 Central Ave., Clark; and 185 Elm St., Westfield.

Long considered the home improvement that gets the best return on investment, new kitchens are one way that sellers can distinguish their homes from the many others on the market.

Homeowners who might sell in the future would be well advised to evaluate the condition of the kitchen, said Jim Murray, senior vice president of marketing.

"Think of an improvement as a way to add value to your home," Murray said. "Updating this room can help homeowners realize their full equity at sale time."

If a home has a dated kitchen, buyers rarely consider it unless it's a terrific bargain, he added.

Renovating the kitchen can turn an ordinary house into something appealing — and the project doesn't have to be expensive. It's not cost-prohibitive to turn a 1960s kitchen into something for the 1990s, according to Weichert Realtors.

Here are Weichert's 10 easy home improvement tips to expedite a home sale:

- Cabinets: Use light colors and

- Countertops: This is your kitchen's focal point. Choose from wood, granite, marble, Formica or tile products to give the room character.
- Back splash: Adds color to the room. Use hand-painted tiles for the customized look. Mirrors work to add light and space to the room.
- Flooring: This sets the tone of the room. Select light woods for a traditional yet updated design. Marble and tile also work well.
- Lighting: Light is right for the '90s. Add lots of recessed lighting and lighting under cabinets. Consider installing skylights.
- Windows: Up-to-date windows not only add light but are more energy-efficient than older windows. Greenhouse windows make a room look larger.
- Appliances: Consider replacing a stove or refrigerator with a new American or European model. Two dishwashers appeal to some buyers.
- Plumbing fixtures: Opt for the newer colors. Perhaps a cork sink and copper and a new faucet will upgrade the room.
- Doors: Consider replacing your back door with some of the newer glass models.
- Installing a butler's pantry will help bring your kitchen into the 1990s.

Weichert Realtors operates 200 offices in Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Delaware and Pennsylvania and provides a full range of real estate services, including mortgage, insurance, commercial, corporate relocation, moving services.
