Marshall made mayor by the GOP majority

By DAVID WISE
First-term Committeeman Marc Marshall is the new Springfield mayor, appointed by the Township Committee to succeed Committeeman Philip Kurnos, who was elected deputy mayor, at the well-attended reorganization meeting on New Year's Day.

Marshall and Kurnos, as well as Republican Committeeman Jeffrey Katz, used their 3-2 majority to select their choice for mayor and other town-appointed positions. The Democrats, Committee members Lee Eisen and Marcia Forman, abstained on Marshall's mayoral appointment and offered their own nominations to certain positions like the Planning Board and Board of Adjustment.

Scores of people filled the renovated Town Hall courtroom chambers to hear Marshall's call for more volunteerism and responsive government. Also seated on the podium were Rabbi Perry Rank of Temple Beth Ahm of Springfield and Supreme Court Judge Seymour Margulies who, along with the other committee members, gave speeches expressing their hopes and concerns for the new year.

After the Republicans and Democrats cheerfully posed for group photographs on the podium, three Springfield veterans groups — The American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Jewish War Veterans — marched into Town Hall chambers to lead the audience in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Rabbi Rank opened the swearing-in ceremony with an invocation about leadership, followed by the appointment of Marshall as mayor. Marshall then warmly embraced Kurnos before they exchanged committee seats, connoting a friendly transfer of official duties. The audience applauded as Marshall assumed the podium's center chair, while Kurnos took his seat off to the left side.

Committeewoman Forman delivered a short speech, telling the audience, "I would hope in this coming year that we will work together" to solve township problems.

Adding to her words, Committeeman Eisen advised the Township Committee to "continue to work on legislation to ensure that spending is prudent."

Committeeman Katz, after thanking the municipal employees for their service and dedication, delivered a forceful speech about "the opportunities, challenges and frustrations" that lie ahead in the new year. The committeeman also thanked Kurnos, calling him "a terrific mayor."

Katz ended his speech with a denunciation of Springfield's loss of "home rule."

In New Jersey, he said, there has been a strong tradition of allowing the local community to "control its destiny." For decades, towns and cities were given much autonomy in terms of raising revenue and making expenditures, unencumbered by state involvement. In recent years, however, municipalities have seen a gradual erosion of this self-governing privilege, and this development worries Katz, who publicly expressed his apprehension.

The newly adopted Quality Education Act is an example of how home rule is becoming a bygone policy. Local school districts, for better or worse, have always been able to decide the way in which to spend their money. The school board was entitled to use its funds in practically any manner deemed suitable. Now, however, the state is attempting to equalize the quality of education through redistribution of school funds.

Katz said that in order to accomplish this task, the state is proposing to eliminate state aid to wealthy suburban schools and pump millions into poor school districts. Advisory commissions will have to set up to regulate school spending, and such state interaction invariably conflicts with the principles of home rule.

Katz, upset by what he believes is duplicity in government, said state legislators are trying to label the Education Act as American "apple pie." The Republican, though, told the audience that Florio's new law would have a negative impact on the Springfield school system.

Citing it as another case of home-rule erosion, Katz thoroughly criticized the Municipal Cap Law, which limits township spending levels. There is no benefit to Springfield when it saves money through an austere budget, only to have the county and state squander the capital, said Katz.

"We should be responsible for our budgets and spending," he declared.

Finally, Katz spoke about a costly financial burden placed on Springfield — its obligation to respond to emergencies on Route 78. Springfield, in addition to Millburn and Summit, is required to render medical and police assistance to any accident reported on a nearby stretch of the interstate highway. The town, nevertheless, does not receive state aid for this emergency service, which utilizes many manpower hours throughout the year, according to Katz. Furthermore, Katz said the state still has not adequately reimbursed Springfield for the property it used to construct Route 78.

Apologizing for a sore throat, Deputy Mayor Philip Kurnos recalled his two "very productive years" following a period of "decay and mismanagement." The Republican-led committee turned the town around 180 degrees, he said, by purchasing new fire equipment, improving the parks and playgrounds, and increasing the police and fire staffs.

Kurnos said the newly installed advanced phone system was reducing operating costs by 60 percent. A modern computer, he added, also allows the town to maintain tighter financial controls.

Kurnos proudly told residents that Springfield's zero percent budget was an unacclaimed achievement in the state, where economic waste is apparently the norm. The former mayor warned that the state legislature is increasing salaries and perks while "legislating us to the poorhouse."

"How do they expect the taxpayer to tighten the belt?" he asked the audience. "We know it's going to get a lot worse before it gets better."

With regard to his successor, Kurnos had nothing but praise, calling Marshall "a human dynamo" with much business acumen.

The audience gave Kurnos a loud round of applause and Marshall returned the accolade: "Kurnos has made a truly positive impact on this community," the newly appointed mayor said. "His re-election is a valuable asset to the community."

Throughout much of his speech, Marshall drew an analogy, frequently comparing his administration's relationship with voters to that of a newly wedded couple.

"The voters of Springfield — together we can be successful," he remarked. Marshall stressed that his administration must be "more sensitive to the cries of our neighbors."

The mayor told residents that recycling efforts had to be intensified and that "we need to keep Springfield clean."

More urgently, Marshall asked "the community to lead the state" in volunteerism.

"Now is the time to become involved in Springfield — a community that was built by volunteers," said Marshall, who called for a more "patient and caring" community.

New school funding act condemned by Marshall

Governor James Florio's 1990 Quality Education Act has generated considerable protest from voters, school officials and local politicians, including newly appointed Springfield Mayor Marc Marshall, who is sending a resolution, outlining a litany of grievances, to the governor and several state lawmakers.

Marshall argues, in his resolution, that "suburban school districts throughout the state will be forced to reduce the high level of attention which they currently provide their students" because of the loss of state aid.

The education act, introduced and adopted by New Jersey in less than a month during the summer, is designed to eliminate state aid to wealthy school districts and funnel at least $1.1 billion to the poor school districts. Not only will the "minimum aid" to property-rich suburban districts be taken away, but every school district will be required to assume teacher pension and Social Security payments.

Marshall is extremely critical of the "poorly designed legislation," particularly of the speed with which the law was drafted. The complex funding bill was quickly promulgated with relatively little opposition from Republican lawmakers, and school district officials had virtually no inkling of what the law would entail.

The law's enactment coincided with the Abbott vs. Burke case, in which the New Jersey Supreme Court ruled, during this summer's legislative hearings, that the state's school funding method was unconstitutional.

The practice of providing state funds to wealthy school districts, the court declared, created an educational disadvantage to property-poor school districts. To provide a universal standard of education, the Supreme Court advised the legislature to create a more equitable distribution of school funds.

Marshall believes, however, the law was "rammed through the state legislature in response to the Supreme Court case."

"It was a reflex reaction, a knee-jerk reaction to the court opinion," expressed Marshall, who is worried that Springfield stands to lose all of its funding by 1996, an aid package valued at approximately $1.6 million.

Like many Republicans facing the same financial outlook, Marshall is concerned that his community, labeled a wealthy suburban school district, will have to absorb the loss of state dollars. As a result of this reduction, a local tax would have to be levied upon residents, who are already besieged by new state and federal "revenue increases."

To fulfill his job as mayor, Marshall said "my position is to support the taxpayers."

"It is a selfish ideal," admitted the Republican, "to protect our backyard." This proposition does not lead to guilty conscience, however, because "the taxpayers pay for a quality education and expect to see a quality education."

The newly appointed mayor said the Democrat-controlled state legislature, working in collusion with Florio, passed the education act under a shroud of secrecy and without adequate public debate.

Marshall said Florio betrayed the trust of voters, and figuratively "slapped" the face of the New Jersey Education Association (NJE), the largest teachers union in the state, a strong supporter in the 1990 Democratic gubernatorial campaign.

Although the NJEA has previously approved initiatives to improve the quality of education in poor school districts, where many classrooms lack properly trained teachers and curriculum materials, the NJEA is opposed to the new legislative measures. The fact that school boards will now have to make pension and Social Security payments creates an undue burden (Continued on Page 2)

Police arrest man wanted on burglary and assault warrant

By DAVID WISE
Springfield police arrested a fugitive wanted for burglary and assault charges after he hit a woman at a local eatery, but a search for two purse-snatchers continues, said Police Chief William Chisholm.

On Dec. 28 at 9:30 p.m., police were summoned to a Springfield restaurant on Morris Avenue, where a female took refuge in a bathroom after being physically assaulted by a male patron in the restaurant bar area. Police were told the woman refused to leave the bathroom, in fear of the man who assaulted her at the bar.

When police arrived they questioned David Gormley, 33, of Chester, and subsequently confirmed that he was the suspect. Police also learned that Gormley was wanted by Chester police on various burglary and assault charges.

Gormley, however, fled on foot from the restaurant premises, and through several backyards along Crescent Road, with Springfield police in pursuit, said Chisholm. The suspect was finally nabbed by Officers John Rowley and Michael McNany, who charged him with aggravated assault on a police officer and resisting arrest.

Gormley was remanded to Chester police, pursuant to their warrant, and pending action by a Union grand jury. Chisholm said the victim is also a Chester resident and former employer of Gormley.

Police are still searching for suspects in the Dec. 28 purse-snatching at a Springfield supermarket parking lot. As in recent thefts, two young black males grabbed a 34-year-old Springfield woman's pocketbook as their car passed by her at 7 p.m.

The suspects' car, a 1990 Chief Cherokee stolen in Union hours earlier, left the crime scene via Route 78 East, and became involved in a hit-and-run accident. The thieves were later chased by Hillside police into Newark, where the suspects collided with a Hillside police cruiser.

The suspects then escaped by fleeing on foot, said Chisholm.

Springfield police arrested a man for possession of stolen property after his car was stopped on Route 22 East.

Officer Peter Davis pulled a car over for equipment violations, also for having a North Carolina license plate taped on the back window. After performing a registration check, Davis discovered the license plate to be stolen.

The officer arrested Henry Harris, 34, of Newark and charged him with possession of stolen property and several motor vehicle violations. Harris was released pending a Springfield Municipal Court appearance.

Financial aid options will be discussed at Dayton

By SUZETTE STALKER
A financial aid awareness program, designed to give parents and students all the facts on financial aid for college, will be held at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield on Tuesday, Jan. 22, at 7 p.m. in the Halsey Hall auditorium.

The program is aimed at families residing within Union County Regional High School District 1, which includes Mountainside, Springfield, Kenilworth, Clark, Garwood and Berkeley Heights. Dayton enrolls students from Mountainside and Springfield.

Guest speaker Lissa Anderson, associate director of Financial Aid at Fairleigh Dickinson University in Madison, will discuss several topics, including the Financial Aid Form, the needs analysis formula and financial aid eligibility.

Jane Laustsen, director of Guidance at Dayton, explained that the program is being offered to inform parents and students of the Regional District of the various types of financial aid available to them and to dispel common misconceptions about financial aid eligibility.

"We felt there was a need for this program because college expenses are continuing to rise and likewise the need for financial aid also increases," she explained. "In order to make parents and students more aware of financial aid, we developed this program for them."

"A lot of parents have the idea that if you apply to a $20,000 per year school and to a $7,000 school, the aid you'll receive will be the same, which is a misconception," Laustsen continued. "The aid is determined by College Scholarship Service based on the cost plus a family's ability to pay."

Laustsen added that many families are also not aware of the various financial aid options available, such as grants, loans and work-study programs. In work-study, students get a portion of their expenses defrayed by working in their college's Admissions Office, library or other departments.

Families should also apply for financial aid early in the year in order to be eligible, Laustsen emphasized. She advised that waiting until April or May is generally considered too late to apply, since funds will most likely have already been distributed by then. "Some parents feel that they aren't eligible for financial aid," Laustsen said. "They feel that their property value is too high or that they earn too much money. They should still send in the financial aid form anyhow, though, because they might still be eligible for some."

Marshall appointed mayor of town at New Year's meeting

 the meeting, declaring 1991 as the "Year of the Volunteer." This proclamation also requests volunteer help, in addition to citing recognition. "Our volunteer service organizations are in desperate need of manpower in order to ensure the continuation of their existence," the document reads.

Marshall read a second proclamation making Jan. 2, Kurnos' wedding anniversary, a day to honor the former mayor and his wife, Shirley, who is described as her husband's best friend and confidante. "Norwood Drive" — the street on which the Kurnoses live — "will be known as Kurnos Drive," said Marshall.

Marshall criticizes new law to fund poor urban districts

 locally, according to the NJEA. "The teachers union will not support it," said Marshall. "They think it will hurt the standards of education." Since the 1970s, many states, including New Jersey, have been attempting to restructure the school funding laws, in light of numerous state court rulings. Nowhere was the educational disparity between suburban and urban school districts more apparent than in New Jersey. As early as 1973, in the Robinson vs. Cahill case, the New Jersey Supreme Court decided the unconstitutionality of school financing in New Jersey.

politicians to accept fiscal accountability. The school funding problem, Marshall thinks, can be solved by "down-sizing of government" in order to keep state expenditures under control. A dismantling of the property taxation system would mean the school board can no longer control the quality of its educational system. This is not an option favored by Marshall, who believes the elimination of government waste would save tax revenue, which could then be applied to poor school districts.

Following policies set forth by the courts, Florio attempted to correct the inequalities between suburban and urban districts, but the governor inadvertently caused a firestorm of protest. If Florio viewed the Abbot vs. Burke case as a green light to quickly pass corrective legislation, the governor was mistaken. Marshall charges that the rapidly approved act produces several problems. In his resolution, he writes: "Homeowners, in general, and the large senior citizen population of our community, in particular, will again be severely impacted by the inevitable tax increases."

According to Marshall, the tax savings would be a boon to New Jersey, spurring industrial growth and creating thousands of jobs. In terms of education, more money can be earmarked to urban schools as a result of reducing the size of government. The mayor is strongly opposed to the new income and sales taxes, calculated to bring in more than $2 billion a year. But Marshall thinks the current sales tax, in addition to governmental cuts, is enough to subsidize the state's school system.

The primary beneficiaries of the education law, the poor communities, will not reap any rewards of the massive state aid, said Marshall, who theorizes that these districts will be "back in the same boat — no better off than they were before."

"You can't tax the people the way they're being taxed," he said adamantly. Marshall criticized the extravagance of New Jersey lawmakers who voted themselves a "$10,000 salary increase" and issued certain legislators expensive badges made of gold. He is particularly peeved at how some funds Springfield and other towns send to the state, such as the Gross Receipts and Franchise tax and Stock Transfer tax, are often misappropriated.

The Republican said urban schools will have to provide matching funds, totaling millions of dollars, for all the aid they receive. Furthermore, the new act requires all districts to pay teacher pension and Social Security payments, a cost that will burden many school budgets.

The state, Marshall said, collects tax revenue for the 911 emergency number, operated by each town, but "not one dime has been given to the municipality."

The plan is "ludicrous" to Marshall, especially since many "communities are struggling in a tough economy." Although those most vocally opposed to Florio's law are Republicans and wealthy school districts, Marshall said "some poor districts are complaining" about the ill-conceived Quality Education Act.

At a recent meeting of municipal officials, Marshall questioned Assembly Speaker Joseph Doria, D-Hudson, about the revenues contracted to go to towns, but the legislator pooh-poohed the inquiry. "Doria said, 'I'm not in the people business,'" Marshall remarked.

In Marshall's opinion, the state should form "a bipartisan committee to come up with an equitable solution," rather than rely on input from poor school districts. He further believes that school board officials must participate in the process from which they were previously excluded.

Marshall says in the resolution addressed to Doria: "Immediate action must be taken to reverse the harm which the Quality Education Act has and will continue to cause to this state's education system."

A kit available for testing the water for dangerous cancer-causing radon

With new evidence that dangerous levels of cancer-causing radon gas are found in drinking water, the American Lung Association of Central New Jersey announces the availability of a low cost water test for home owners. Arrangements have been made with the DMA Analysis Group in Pennsylvania to evaluate samples of water taken from the home. DMA is certified to provide radon services and will send a written, confidential report. The kit costs $18.00 and includes sampling tube, transmittal package, return postage and the results of a laboratory analysis of water obtained from a water faucet in either the bathroom, kitchen or laundry room.

If a home has tested positive for radon in air, a portion of the problem may be coming from water, especially if rooms where water is used (kitchens, bathrooms, laundry rooms) indicate high levels of radon. When water is dispensed, a certain amount of radon is released into the air. One can determine if the water system is contaminated with radon by having it tested.

water supplies may be corrected by governmental intervention, homeowners with wells will have to assume personal responsibility.

The Lung Association reports that although it is easy to obtain the water sample required for the test, the purchaser should carefully follow the directions in the kit. Kits may be obtained by sending a check for $18.00 to the American Lung Association of Central New Jersey, 206 Westfield Avenue, Clark, N.J. 07066-1539 or by stopping at the Office Monday through Friday between 9:00 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Library hosts opera singer

On Jan. 13 at 2 p.m., the Springfield Public Library will present Rose-Baum Senerchia, the internationally acclaimed opera star and Springfield resident.

Senerchia, who will be accompanied by Carl Baccaro, formerly the accompanist to Kathryn Grayson, will sing selections from "Phantom of the Opera," "La Boheme," "Carmen" and "The Merry Widow." She also plans to include a musical tribute to the late Leonard Bernstein in her program.

Senerchia, recently offered the lead in the Broadway production of "Phantom of the Opera," will sing in January at the inauguration of newly-elected Texas Governor Ann Richards. In addition to this honor, Senerchia has received an invitation to sing at the White House on May 3 to commemorate the thirtieth anniversary of the launching of Alan Shepard, the first American in space. The master of ceremonies for the evening will be Bob Hope, and President and Mrs. Bush are expected to attend.

To register for the free Springfield library program, one can call 376-4930 or can sign up in person at the circulation desk of the library at 66 Mountain Avenue.

Classes noted for aerobics

Ski instruction offered

An introductory course in cross country skiing will be offered at Trailside Nature and Science Center, Coles Avenue and New Providence Road, Mountainside, on Saturdays, Jan. 12 and 26, from 10-11:30 a.m. and Feb. 9 and 23 from 10-11:30 a.m.

The course, which is open to adults and children ages 12 and up, will be taught by certified Nordic ski specialists of Pleasant Valley Cycle and Ski Shop, Chatham.

An indoor lecture covering such topics as clothing, equipment and equipment care will be given, regardless of whether or not there is skiable snow. If there is no skiable snow, the award-winning film "If You Can Walk" will also be shown.

The outdoor portion of the program will only be held if there is skiable snow, and one should call ahead at Trailside at 789-3670 if one is unsure about snow conditions for the program.

The program features instruction and demonstration in ski basics, including "correct falling," snow plow stopping/striding and kick turns. Also, telemark turns will be demonstrated if time allows.

Participants must bring their own equipment. One can contact Trailside at 789-3670 for information concerning registration, fees and rentals. Trailside is a facility of the Union County Department of Parks and Recreation.

people in service

Timothy Ross Penna, son of David and Jill Penna of Springfield, recently enlisted in the United States Navy in a two-year enlistment program.

Enlisting under the Delayed Entry Program, Penna will report to Recruit Training Center, San Diego, Calif., in mid-January for active duty, where he will undergo basic training.

Following basic training, Penna will begin four weeks of schooling at San Diego, Calif., in the Seaman Apprentice field. Under the Seaman Apprentice Program, persons who have not chosen a specific career field receive general shipboard and nautical training prior to being assigned to a Navy ship.

Upon completion of Seaman apprenticeship training, Penna's initial obligation will be two years instead of the normal four.

Petty Officer Gregory Newman of Navy Recruiting Station Somerville, Penna's recruiter, stated that if Penna chooses to re-enlist after the initial two years, he is guaranteed a technical school, and upon successful completion, automatic promotion.

Cross stitch scheduled

The Miller-Cory House Museum, 614 Mountain Ave., Westfield, will feature counted cross-stitch on Sunday, Jan. 6, from 2-4 p.m. Trudy Johnson of Westfield will explain this form of needlework whereby the stitches form an "X," while working on a counted cross-stitch sampler.

It was during the harsh winter months that many women living in New Jersey during the 18th and 19th centuries spent time near the fireplace creating needlework designs which reflected their surroundings.

Other aspects of life during the winter months will be highlighted by Eleanor Smith, president of the Museum Volunteers, and other docents in period dress as they guide outdoor visitors through the rooms of the 18th century farmhouse, which was a private home until 1972.

Visitors are also invited to explore the museum's gift shop, filled with educational items, and which will close at 4 p.m. during the months of January and February. For further information about the museum and its programs, one can call the office at 232-1776.

Legion post cites POW/MIAs

American Legion Continental Post 228 of Springfield recently presented a POW-MIA flag to Judith Wickline, principal of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield, during a special ceremony at the high school on Pearl Harbor Day, Dec. 7, which honored all veterans and POW/MIAs.

William Weber of Post 228 presented the flag to Wickline, and he and Joseph Ryback, American Legion Department vice commander of Post 328, Clark, raised the flag with Wickline, as members of the high school Key Club recited the names of 62 POW/MIAs from New Jersey.

Edward Cwirko, Union County American Legion Commander and Robert Wacker of Kenilworth, department president of the Korean Veterans Association were among the other dignitaries who attended, as well as Jonathan Dayton students from Springfield and Mountainside.

The ceremony honored 1st Lt. Robert E. Bennett of the United States Air Force, whose aircraft was downed over South Vietnam on Dec. 13, 1967, and all American veterans who served their country during World Wars I and II, the Korean Conflict and the Vietnam War.

Merck's at work on anti-AIDS drug

By SHARON CATES
Merck & Co. of Rahway has announced that they are involved in the first testing phase of a compound that may be used as a therapy against AIDS.

Merck is working with two closely related compounds as a possible therapy against the AIDS virus.

Both compounds are reverse transcriptase inhibitors — that is, they interfere in the test tube and in cultured human cells with the activity of an enzyme called reverse transcriptase, which is produced by the virus and is necessary for its growth," a company official explained.

The company noted, however, that they are currently testing the compound to see if it is safe.

If the compound is considered safe, Merck will continue testing the compound to see if it is an effective compound to fight AIDS.

Pamela Adkins, a media relations spokeswoman for Merck, emphasized that the compound is still in its beginning stage.

"It is still very, very preliminary," Adkins explained. "First we have to see that it is safe, then we can prove its effectiveness."

"Until Merck has that information — and that will take some time, even under the accelerated development schedule — the company will not be able to determine whether the compounds actually have an antiviral effect on people," the official said.

Living wills to be topic

Overlook Hospital, 99 Beauvoir Ave., Summit, will present a "Living Will ABCs" workshop for the community on Wednesday, Jan. 23, from 7-9 p.m. in the hospital's Center for Community Health.

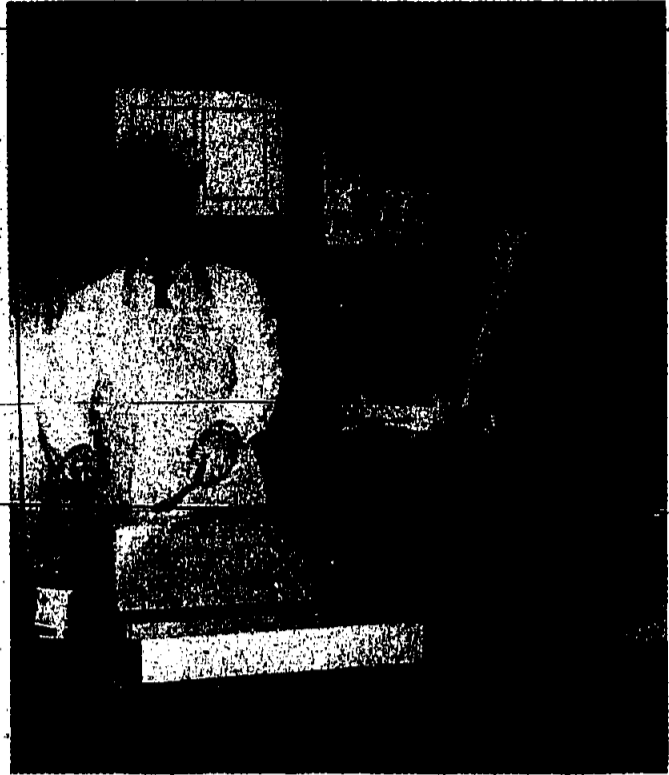

This program is the first in a series of monthly educational workshops sponsored by the hospital's Bioethics Committee, which has been dealing with critical medical/ethical issues since 1984.

In this age of high technology, there are many options available for health care for people who become seriously ill. Because of this, it is important for an individual to state his/her health care wishes in a "clear and convincing" manner, in the event of ever becoming unable to express them.

Workshops will be held every month at the following dates and times in the hospital's Center for Community Health:

- Wednesday, Jan. 23, 7-9 p.m.
- Wednesday, Feb. 27, 3-5 p.m.
- Wednesday, March 21, 7-9 p.m.
- Tuesday, April 23, noon-2 p.m.
- Tuesday, May 28, 7-9 p.m.
- Tuesday, June 25, 3-5 p.m.

Members of Overlook Hospital's Bioethics Committee are also available to speak to community groups about "living wills." One can contact Overlook's Speakers Bureau at 522-2963 to arrange for a bioethics speaker for one's organization.

State issues grant for seat belt study

Gov. Jim Florio announced today that the Division of State Police will receive a $101,679 federal grant to conduct a seat belt education program.

According to James A. Arena, director of the state Division of Highway Traffic Safety, the most recent study of seat belt compliance indicates that 44 percent of New Jerseyans use their seat belts.

"The State Police will be able to increase their efforts to educate drivers on seat belt usage," said Gov. Florio. "There is no question that seat belts save lives. If this saves one life, it will be money well spent."

The program, which was first funded in 1989, involves the provision of instruction by State Police personnel to municipal police officers and police recruits about the importance of a seat belt use, Arena said.

The municipal officers in turn conduct presentations for officers from other departments, state and local government personnel, elementary and high school staff and students, and members of private industry and civic groups.

"The case for seat belts is convincing — they increase the chances of surviving a crash by approximately 60 percent," Arena said. He explained that seat belts keep the driver in control of the car during an accident.

Seats belts also prevent occupants from smashing into the steering column, dashboard or windshield, and from being thrown from the car.

"Many motor vehicle deaths could have been prevented if the motorists and their occupants wore seat belts," Arena said. In fact, more than three-quarters of the drivers and front seat passengers killed in New Jersey in recent years weren't wearing seat belts.

The federal funds for this program come from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and will be administered by the Division of Highway Traffic Safety.

Blood donors being sought

In an effort to avoid a life-threatening blood shortage this winter, North Jersey Blood Center is appealing to the community to give blood. NJBC is the state's oldest and largest blood banking facility is the primary blood supplier to over 40 Northern New Jersey Hospitals.

"We need a minimum of 150 blood donations every single day to service patients in local hospitals for platelet needs," states Andrew Skraynaki, Director of Donor Services at the Blood Center.

Platelets, the most fragile part of the blood has an extremely short shelf life — only 5 days. The important role of platelets is to aid the blood in clotting. Platelets are used mostly for accidents victims and leukemia patients. Platelets are also need for people who receive chemotherapy treatments.

The North Jersey Blood Center urges all healthy individuals who are 17 years old and weigh a minimum of 110 lbs. to "Give the Greatest Gift of All — Give Blood."

For more information about blood donations or to find a blood drive location nearest to you, please call the Blood Center at either one of their two facilities: East Orange, (201) 676-4700 or Parsippany (201) 335-6162. This holiday season give the Gift of Life. Please give blood.

Traditional musical

A special "Epiphany Celebration," featuring the music of bell ringers and harpists, will be held Sunday afternoon at 3 in the First Congregational Church, 1340 Burnet Ave., Union. In announcing the event, the Rev. Nancy E. Forsberg, pastor, has extended an invitation to the community to participate.

The program, culminating the "Twelve Days of Christmas," has become a traditional part of the congregation's holiday observances. According to the liturgical calendar, Epiphany marks the visit of the Wise Men to the Christ Child. On the secular calendar, this date is known as Twelfth-night and, especially in England, it is marked by a number of unique customs. Both sacred and secular elements will be reflected in the local festivities," it was reported by Rev. Nancy.

Under the direction of Leone Paulson, founder and instructor of the Paulson Harp Ensemble, carols, folk songs and classical selections will be played by Jill Frigerio, Aileen O'Donnell and Paulson. The group has presented concerts both in this country and abroad.

David Hutchings, director of music ministry for the Morrow Memorial United Methodist Church, Maplewood, will conduct a group of bell ringers from his congregation in seasonal numbers from their repertoire.

The afternoon will conclude with everyone gathered around the Wassail

Bowl for refreshments in Founders Hall. At that time, all will join in singing two fun songs associated with this holiday, "Here We Come A Wassailing" and "The Twelve Days of Christmas."

There is no charge for admission. However, a free will offering will be received during the service, it was announced.

Further information may be obtained by calling the church office at 688-4333.

Nursery School set

Communication will be lecture topic

"Men and Women Communicating: Bridging the Gulf" will be the focus of a lecture by Charlotte Spiegelman, MSW, at the Resource Center for Women in Summit on Thursday, Jan. 10, at 7:30 p.m. Area women and men are invited to attend.

According to Spiegelman, a marriage counselor with a private practice in Springfield and Montclair, women often lament that they can't get men to talk about their feelings. Men, on the other hand, wonder why women want to talk so much, and get angry about it.

The evening will focus on how each gender sees reality, how this differing sense of the world influences the way men and women express themselves, and what can be done to bridge the gap.

"Men's and women's assumptions about the purpose of communication are often so different that what he or she says and what she or he hears may also be very different," said Spiegelman. "That can lead to problems."

The program is free to members of the Resource Center and there is a small fee for non-members. The Resource Center is located in Calvary Episcopal Church, Woodland and DeForest avenues, Summit. For further information, one can call the Resource Center at 273-7253.

Legacies

Last Saturday, Dec. 29, marked the 100th anniversary of the Battle of Wounded Knee. That was the last armed engagement between the U.S. Army and American Indians. It took place in what is now the Pine Ridge Reservation, in the southwestern part of South Dakota, in an army encampment on Wounded Knee Creek.

It was a massacre. The troops were in the process of disarming 350 Sioux, 240 of whom were women and children. The Indians had been fleeing for a safe haven, fearing trouble following the murder, two weeks before, of Sitting Bull by reservation police. Trouble had caught up with them. One of the Sioux refused to give up his rifle. It went off. The troops opened fire. When it was over more than 200 Indians and 25 soldiers were dead in the snow.

This was the sad and shameful culmination of about 150 years of Indian wars. Relations had seldom been good between our European ancestors and the people they encountered in the New World. In this area of New Jersey there were many less than pleasant confrontations between the Dutch and English settlers and native Americans of the Lenni Lenape tribes. Like other Indians, the Lenape were neolithic and semi-nomadic. They had a different way of looking at life and a tremendous disadvantage in weaponry. But they were just as innately intelligent and deserving of respect as any human beings. They lived like the settlers' ancient ancestors had in the forests and on the bison-rich plains of Europe. But the newcomers generally, and soon officially, regarded the Indians as savages and non-persons.

It is always easier to shoot a non-person.

One of the Indian problems in this region related to the way the Lenape regarded land. They had no concept of ownership. They used land seasonally for hunting, fishing, gathering and basic planting. They did not understand written contracts and had no knowledge of real estate deeds. So the chiefs put their marks on pieces of paper, smiled, feasted and took their people west for the winter. When the Lenape returned in the spring, the settlers wouldn't let them use the land for hunting or fishing. The settlers showed them paper and backed it up with muskets. The Indians were driven off, and retreated westward.

Those original inhabitants of New Jersey and Union County are distant ghosts. They seem unreal to us. The landscape has so drastically changed it is difficult to imagine the Lenape thriving in the forest, which is now reduced to a small woods pierced by Route 78. But the Indians have left some of their names behind: Lenape, Warinanco, Rahwak, Watchung, Nomahegan, Kawameeh, Unami, Wewanna. They have also had subtle yet enduring influences on our lives, in diet and clothing and council forms of government.

But it seems that some truly important things the Indians, both here and throughout the country, could have taught us, were lessons we did not think necessary to learn. After all, what did a prosperous, progressive civilization riding the mighty crest of the Industrial Revolution have to learn from half-naked savages?

Conservation comes to mind. Indians grew trees to replace the ones they used. Several of our largest timber companies have utilized no such foresight. Even today, the sheer expediency of greed causes tracts of the Northwest forest to be leveled and no seedlings planted. This is ecological idiocy, further endangering the food chain and the atmosphere, not to mention constantly driving up the price of paper.

The Indians' environmental sanity was interknit with a religious respect for nature as both a home and a constant, living companion. Our present society could use some sizeable doses of that attitude, not to revert to animism, but to raise our minds above treating nature like an unlimited dump and sewer. Things that we now must do, like recycling and composting, would come easier if we possessed something of the Indian's respect for nature. Development could proceed more sanely, agribusiness could be stopped short of soil depletion, and acid rain more comprehensively combated, if we better perceived the worth and the beauty and the delicate balances of nature.

It is still possible, at least on an individual basis, to better understand the Indian's relationship with the environment and learn from it. One of the truly positive offerings of our civilization, free public libraries, makes that knowledge accessible. The schools should also strive to relay this valuable knowledge to the citizens of tomorrow. Perhaps, as we struggle to save and clean our environment, we will develop a new, wholesome respect for nature and for the meanly-treated people who lived here before us.

Flaring error

In early November an accident occurred near the corner of Riverside Drive and Meisel Avenue. As a result, numerous flares were put out by police to light the area and warn motorists. This is as it should be. However, little or nothing was done to clean up the large number of plastic caps left by police and emergency personnel. A few days after the accident, I went to the office of our road department and personally spoke with one of the supervisors to inform him of this unsightly mess. Subsequent to this meeting, I called the mayor of Springfield twice and a Republican committee member of the town once. In each case, the response was essentially the same: the situation would be looked into and taken care of. The physical response was also the same with each individual: nothing was done to clean up the mess. Finally, on 24 December (more than six weeks after the accident), I went to the area and picked up over 100 of these plastic caps which, because of their size (approximately 2 inches long and 1 inch in diameter), might well be blown into the nearby ponding area and eventually cause trouble with the pumping station. This is not the first time I have cleaned up debris and trash in town, nor will it be the last, because it is clearly better to clean up a mess than to merely report it. But the lack of appropriate and effective response by town officials seriously questions the willingness, the competence, and the pride of some of those responsible for the welfare of Springfield. Do we in Springfield deserve better? You decide.

Appreciation

We wish to express our sincere appreciation for the many gifts donated to the 12th annual Weichert, Realtors Toy Drive to benefit needy children. The kindhearted generosity of the public this year helped us brighten the holiday season for many underprivileged children and made this year's toy drive the most successful ever! Thousands of toys were collected at our offices and distributed to local charities in New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

We extend our warmest thanks to the people of the greater metropolitan area and your community for their continued support.

State We're In

We need more energy efficiency

New Jersey uses too much energy, as do the other 49 states. There are lots of buildings and lots of automobiles and trucks, especially in crowded New Jersey.

Unfortunately, in this state, as elsewhere in the nation, we're energy-inefficient. Compared with such countries as Japan and what until recently was West Germany, it takes twice as much energy here for each dollar of gross national product.

Half of the energy we use is for light, heat and air conditioning in buildings. Another 30 percent goes to transportation, the rest to industry. Because foreign oil has been cheap, this country has done almost nothing to improve efficiency.

As recent events have demonstrated, we'd better change. That's why a recently released report from state government needs our full attention. It's called the Draft 1990 New Jersey Energy Master Plan.

What the plan does is underscore long-known and too-long ignored ways of saving energy in this sadly self-indulgent country. New Jersey would be a splendid state in which to demonstrate better habits!

One big source of energy that remains untapped is efficiency. To paraphrase Ben Franklin's famous quote, a watt saved is a watt earned. The key to independence from out-of-state and foreign energy sources is making better use of what we've got. The plan outlines a number of ways to build a better state by doing just that.

For one, get us out of single-occupant vehicles. Car and van pools, or public transit are literally the way to go! Shortening the trip miles would make a big difference, too. I know several people who drive cars for four hours a day to and from work. Some of those miles are to reach quality affordable housing. The price is less productivity at work, more air pollution, less leisure time, a much lower-quality family life and social isolation.

More efficient cars, natural gas and electric fuels and high-occupancy vehicle incentives can help. How about bridge, tunnel and road tolls that charge more for single-passenger vehicles? That's being done in New York State at the Tappan Zee Bridge.

We can do much better with buildings, too. Designs should maximize use of sunlight, windows that open, insulation, and more efficient heating and ventilating.

How about more rate-cutting for those who use off-peak electrical energy? Utilities often offer those programs to homes and businesses, but too few take advantage. I had an all-electric home a few years ago, so I tried a computerized electric meter that charges more in the daytime than at night and weekends. It worked for me; I saved almost 15 percent on the energy bill. And with a few more timers and a bit more of a lifestyle shift, I could have done better.

The plan is just full of good ideas and recommendations. Now it's up to state government and the legislature to do something about it. It should be unnecessary for me to point out that the energy we save translates into a saving of our own money.

Stating it as plainly as I can, if New Jersey and other states had moved on such recommendations in the 1970s and '80s, there would be no U.S. troops sitting on Saudi Arabia sand dunes today.

Think About It

New syndrome discovered here!

By JOHN TARTAGLINO

I keep checking my machine for that call from the AMA. I'm not sure what's keeping them. A few weeks ago, I sent them some information on a new disease I've discovered. If they have any integrity at all, they'll have to accept my clinical findings. I also expect them to agree to keep my name for this dread scourge. With all due modesty, I've called it "Tartaglino's Syndrome."

This is a very new, very '90s disorder. Preliminary work suggests that "Tartaglino's Syndrome" strikes parents almost exclusively. The primary carriers appear to be kids who spend days at a time replaying the same movie over and over again on the VCR. In the situation I've focused on here, the movie is "The Little Mermaid," but my research has uncovered chronic cases brought on by massive overdoes of everything from "Batman" to "Care Bears."

Symptoms include: A sharp burning in your stomach whenever you hear the words: "Daddy, can I watch (fill in the blank)?"

The sudden, nearly uncontrollable urge to tear the VCR from the cabinet and hurl it into the street; and

Nightly dreams where erotic trysts are abruptly interrupted by Sebastian the Crab singing "Kiss the Girl."

If you find yourself with any of these symptoms, have a kid over the age of 2, and own a VCR, there's a good chance that you're suffering through the early stages of "Tartaglino's Syndrome." While there is yet no known cure, a therapy that combines aspirin, ear plugs, and a refusal to pay the electric bill for a few months shows real promise.

As research widens, we're beginning to get a handle on the basics. Let's look through our files at the case study of a typical victim. Like many, he fears for his privacy. For the sake of anonymity, therefore, let's simply call him "Mr. John T." In this pitiful case, our records suggest it all starts at about dawn, when a certain unnamed 2-year-old opens her eyes:

"Daddy...Mermaid on?"

This is called the onset of an attack. Experts are divided: Some feel most of the damage done to parents is caused by the actual repeated viewings. Others point to a more insidious side — the waiting, knowing what's to come, but being helpless to prevent it. But I don't care what my wife says — it's hearing and seeing it over and over and over and ...

83 minutes later, as the last mind-numbing strains of music fade with the credits —

"Again, Daddy."

"Sweetheart...why don't you watch something else?" The victim squirms.

"Nooo, Daddy...Mermaid on."

"How about Roger Rabbit?" he pleads.

"Mermaid."

"Cinderella?"

"Mermaid."

"Popeye?...Fraggles?...CNN?"

"Mermaid!...Mermaid!"

At this point I'd...I mean, "Mr. John T." would rather watch three solid hours of Gerald while getting an anesthetic-free root canal from a dental student with the dt's.

The tape rewinds, buying three or four minutes of blessed peace before the next assault. But any relief from "Tartaglino's Syndrome" is shortlived and only serves to intensify the agony of the next attack. Soon the victim sprawls glassy-eyed and slack-jawed, silently mouthing all dialogue, songs and sound effects from memory.

In later stages, the victim finds himself spending entire days with the soundsack of the offending movie running through his head at all times. To illustrate, our case study was discovered on line in the post office half singing, half mumbling the words to "Under the Sea," oblivious to his surroundings, while those around him looked on in horror.

Some sufferers have been known to "accidentally" drop tapes in trash-mashers, swimming pools and dish washers. One unconfirmed report mentioned a riding mower, but again, that is unconfirmed. Regardless, these feeble attempts are doomed to ultimate failure.

First, destruction of a given tape may merely force carriers of the disorder to lock in on another movie, thereby sowing the seeds for the next go-round.

Secondly, chances are someone (like grandparents) will probably leap to replace the executed cassette with the newly released "DELUXE" version that not only includes scenes originally cut out, but also the making of the film, and a "follow the bouncing ball" sing-along segment.

Since this is such a new disorder, much of what we know is conjecture. However, there IS hope. Some suggest that "Tartaglino's Syndrome" is a temporary condition. Many predict that if a parent can hold on to a small shred of sanity, children will eventually move from the VCR stage to the Walkman stage.

That point, where you can't hear what they're listening to, and they can't hear you at all seems the most satisfying to all concerned.

Tartaglino, a resident of Highland Park, is an occasional contributor to Worrall Community Newspapers.

N.J. is trailing in fight vs. a type of heart disease

New Jersey trails the national average in reducing deaths from a major form of heart disease, report scientists at the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey (UMDNJ).

Consequently, New Jersey's statewide death rate from ischemic heart disease (IHD) is 29 percent higher than the national rate. The New Jersey rate is 168.5 deaths per 100,000 population, compared with 139.3 nationally.

IHD is synonymous with coronary heart disease or heart attack.

According to a study at the UMDNJ-New Jersey Medical School, Newark, IHD death rates in 18 of New Jersey's 21 counties exceeded the national average by as much as 56 percent.

IHD results when blood supply to the heart is slowed or stopped by an obstructed or constricted blood vessel.

The study was conducted by Dr. G. Reza Najem, professor of preventive medicine and community health at the medical school and published in the International Journal of Epidemiology.

Dr. Najem attributed the state's IHD death rate to its extensive urbanization, industrialization and population density.

Dr. Najem compared national and New Jersey statistics on deaths caused by IHD for the period 1968 to 1982 and found:

- While deaths from IHD nationally declined 47 percent over the past 15 years, New Jersey's statewide decline was only 38 percent.
- IHD death rates in New Jersey's

21 counties ranged from 4 to 56 percent higher than the national average.

- Hudson County's IHD death rate is 56 percent higher than the national rate and was the highest of New Jersey's 21 counties. The next highest counties were Passaic (35 percent), Ocean (31 percent), Middlesex (28 percent) and Atlantic (25 percent). Union County ranks 12 on this list.
- Cape May, Camden and Gloucester Counties were the only New Jersey counties whose rate of decline in IHD deaths was better than the national rate. Their rates of decline were, respectively, 51, 50 and 48 percent, compared with the national rate of 47 percent.

"Based on this study, low-income people and those living in highly urbanized and industrialized communities appear to have a life-style pattern that predisposes them to heart attack deaths," Dr. Najem said. "Elevated blood pressure, high cholesterol and smoking are the major risk factors for heart attack."

Other possible contributors to heart attack are heredity, personality factors, such as hostility and inward-directed anger, inadequate physical activity and excessive body weight, said Dr. Najem, who added: "It's reasonable to assume that some of these heart-attack deaths among urban dwellers and low-income groups are due to inadequate medical care."

New Jersey is the nation's fifth smallest state, but it is the most densely populated. The state is also ranked first in population density per square mile. It ranks seventh in manufacturing. Eighty-nine percent of the state is urbanized and about 85 percent of its residents live in cities compared with 61 percent nationally. Statewide, 16 counties are 70 to 100 percent urbanized.

Dr. Najem noted that New Jersey's 14 most industrialized and densely populated counties also had the state's highest number of heart attack death rates. Hudson County, which leads the state in IHD deaths, is the state's most crowded county with nearly 13,000 people per square mile and is 100 percent urbanized.

He added that Passaic and Middlesex Counties, which also have relatively high IHD death rates, are highly industrialized and urbanized and that Atlantic County is quickly joining the ranks of high-density counties with the proliferation of casinos and related industries.

"Excessive heart attack mortality in New Jersey's high-risk counties," Dr. Najem said, "warrants further investigation of the specific risk factors and the establishment of an effective preventive program to reduce the risk factors."

UCC offering PC classes for beginners

A wide variety of non-credit computer courses for novices as well as those more proficient in computer usage will be offered this spring by Union County College's Department of Continuing Education.

Classes, all providing hands-on instruction, are held on the Cranford, Scotch Plains, and Plainfield Campuses during weekday, weeknight, and weekend hour for participants' convenience.

Newly introduced for the Spring Semester is "PFS First Choice: The Choice of First-Time Computer Users." This course exposes the student to a simple, integrated software package designed especially for persons who are new to computer usage.

Other new courses are the "Lotus Series," combining beginning, intermediate, and advanced elements of Lotus 1-2-3 instruction. "Intermediate Paradox" provides students such as making Paradox 3 database features as making graphs, automatic cross-tabulations, sophisticated data validation, building forms that show multiple tables and multiple records on one screen. Students also will learn to use query by example (QBE) to locate records based on values of groups of other records.

Also new this semester is the "Multimedia Series," a word processing course covering beginning techniques of this package, such as creating and editing text to more sophisticated topics, such as library functions, importing and exporting, and advanced printing techniques and line draw.

Another new course, "Pagemaker Desktop Publishing-Macintosh," exposes student to Macintosh computers and desktop publishing using Pagemaker. Student will learn the basics, and also pick up a few tips and techniques. "Designing with Pagemaker/Macintosh" helps students work at their own pace on a project of their choice, with instructor consultation and guidance.

Also new is "Introduction to Microsoft Works on the Mac," dealing with the power of a Macintosh computer in a spreadsheet, database, word processing program, and Microsoft Works as a fully integrated package. Beginners are welcome. "Pagemaker 4.0/New Features" also is new this semester.

Among other computer courses available are: "Introduction to Computers: Using a PC," "The DOS Operating System," "Advanced DOS Techniques," "Public Domain and Inexpensive Software for the IBM-PC," "Clones," "Introduction to Lotus 1-2-3," "Introduction to dBase IV," "Introduction to Paradox 3," "Application in Lotus 1-2-3," "Application in DOS," "Applications in Word Processing," "Applications Using Database," "Word Perfect 5 Style Sheets and Word Publishing," and computer desktop publishing courses in Macintosh, Pagemaker/Macintosh package, Ventura desktop publishing, and a Ventura desktop publishing series.

Lady Tigers win twice

By SUSAN KRKAOWIECKI
The Lady Tigers of Linden High School didn't get invited to a holiday tournament this year. The team was not invited back to defend its title in the Spartan Classic tournament of Immaculata.

"We defeated the host team in the finals last season," Linden head coach Andy Eng said. "When we called them in October to see about scheduling the tournament this year, they told us they had found another team to replace us. I guess they were kind of upset with us for beating them."
So the Lady Tigers just had to content themselves with overwhelming two regular-season opponents last week in improving their record to a perfect 7-0.

Linden came out firing in its Dec. 27 contest with Delaware Valley. The Lady Tigers streaked to a 35-9 first-quarter lead and never looked back, cruising to an 84-35 victory.

"We were able to move out to such a big early lead because of our defense," Eng said. "We put pressure on them and that resulted in a lot of turnovers. We finished with 20 steals in the game."

The Lady Tigers benefited from balanced scoring. Sharmene Koonce scored a team-high 22 points. Tamecka Dixon finished with 12 points. Simone Gilliam, Erica Reed and Joann Hall each added 10 points. Gilliam also had eight assists, and Hall had five. Caryn Flowers scored four points and added 14 rebounds.

"The kids played very unselfishly," Eng said. "They're beginning to gel as a team. They feel more comfortable looking for each other on the court and that shows in the balanced scoring we're getting."

Two days later, the Lady Tigers scored an even more one-sided victory over Marist. The final damage read 77-17 in favor of Linden.

This time, the Lady Tigers outscored their opponents 39-9 in the first half. "We got off to such a good start again because of our defense," Eng said. "We ran a variety of defenses and put a lot of pressure on them, creating a lot of turnovers."

Scoring again was balanced. This time Reed and Hall led the way, with 16 points each. Koonce added 11 points. Gilliam scored four points and added six assists.

Rebounding was yet another strong point in the Lady Tigers' game. Raqia Johnson and Flowers each had nine to lead the team.

"I am very pleased with the way the girls have been playing so far," Eng said. "I especially like the way we've been scoring. It's been very balanced, with no one dominant scorer. We don't need to depend on one girl all the time. Someone is always there to pick things up if one girl isn't shooting well or isn't getting the chances."

Backing Eng's comment is the fact that Linden's top five scorers are separated by about four points. Reed leads the Lady Tigers with a 12.5 points per game average. Hall is next, with a 12.1 average. Then comes Koonce, scoring 11.2 points per game. Dixon is averaging 9.5 points per game, and Gilliam has an 8.6

points per game average. "With so many people able to score, it really opens up our offense," Eng said. "We have so many different avenues of scoring that it's going to be tough to shut us down."

The Lady Tigers' next home contest will be tomorrow afternoon at 2 p.m. against Summit.

A 'DAWG' EFFORT — Ryan Huber of the Dayton Regional High boys' basketball team battles his way forward to sink a short basket during last Thursday night's opener with Cranford in the Cranford Holiday Tournament. Dayton won handily, 55-31, to claim its first victory of the season, then lost to North Brunswick, 47-45, the following night for a second-place finish.

Park second in tourney

By MARK YABLONSKY

The Roselle Park High wrestling team ended 1990 on a positive note by placing second in the Westfield Tournament last Saturday, with three team members — Mike DiMaio, John Ranieri and Dave Patterson — winning championships. The match took place one day later than scheduled due to Friday's snowstorm.

Park took second with 164 points, beating out third-place Piscataway (144½ pounds) but placing behind first-place Howell (185½).

DiMaio, a sophomore 103-pounder who entered as the top seed, won his weight class by defeating Mike Bellomo of Morristown, 5-4. Ranieri won three bouts to capture the 152-pound title, as well as the tournament's outstanding wrestler award. The hard-working senior pinned both Kurt Duchek of Westfield and Andre Epeut of Morristown, then outpointed Piscataway's John Kays, 10-3.

Patterson also won three bouts, sandwiching pins of Westfield's Paul Baly and Doyce's Bruce Ryans around a 5-0 decision over Matt Curran of Princeton.

Finishing second was Mike KJog, who, because of the depleted 103-pound field, wrestled two bouts and won them both, pinning Doug Kane of Dover and outpointing George Lasky of Westfield, 13-5.

Placing third for Park, which will wrestle at home against Union tomorrow night at 7 p.m., were senior Bob McCafferty at 119 pounds, senior John Petrosky at 130 pounds, sophomore Pat McCafferty at 135 pounds, and senior Chris Powers at 145.

'Dawgs win first; finish second

By MARK YABLONSKY

Like last season, the Dayton Regional High boys' basketball team holds a 1-4 record five games into the season. But this time around, the Bulldogs are a stronger 1-4, as evidenced by their hard-fought, second-place showing in last week's Cranford tournament.

Dayton, which had lost to St. Mary's and Cranford in last year's tournament, defeated the host team, 55-31, last Thursday night — their first win of the season — before taking a tough 47-45 setback to North Brunswick the following night.

And in fact, all of Dayton's defeats to date — 52-43 to Ridge, 54-48 to North Plainfield, 52-47 to Roselle Catholic, and the loss to North Brunswick — have been close ballgames. "I'm not pleased with the record," said first-year coach John Theis, whose team was scheduled to begin January with a home game against Roselle yesterday in Springfield. "But I'm pleased with the work ethic in the games."

"We can't be satisfied with progress... hopefully, we're going to progress to the point where we're going to win some games."

In the meantime, Dayton's win over Cranford was impressive. In the opening quarter, junior center/forward Courtney Benjamin scored all eight of his points, while Craig Hauelsen had five more as Dayton raced to a 14-4 advantage. In the second period when the 'Dawgs outscored the Cougars, 14-9, to grab a commanding 15-point lead at the half, Jason Mullman dropped in six of his 10 points.

And in the fourth period, Andy Huber scored six of the seven points he finished the night with. Benjamin, the team's leading scorer with 55 points and a dead-even 11.0 average, also pulled down 13 rebounds — and yes, Benjamin, who has 44 caroms thus far, is the team leader there, too.

The following night, Andy Huber led Dayton with 14 points, while three others — Benjamin, Mullman and Justin Petino — all had six. Joe Perez capped off Dayton's balanced-scoring attack with seven points, but North Brunswick held on to win by two points.

Huber had four points for Dayton in the first quarter, followed by six more in the fourth, four of which came at the foul line. Petino sank three field goals to net all six of his points in the second quarter when Dayton had a 12-10 advantage to grab a 24-22 lead at the half.

Dayton — Benjamin 8, Prezimirski 6, R. Huber 11, Perez 3, Young 0, Hauelsen 6, Petino 4, Mullman 10, A. Huber 7.

Cranford — Cassidy 11, Lightcap 0, Flattery 2, Majors 5, Penillo 4, Polito 4, Bender 5.

UP FOR TWO — Despite the presence of three defenders, Linden's Wally Dixon launches a successful short jumper during the Tigers' battle with Seton Hall Prep in the semifinal round of the Hillside Holiday Tournament last Friday night. Dixon netted 22 points, but Linden lost, 71-54.

Winfield to visit Park

Former New York Yankee outfielder Dave Winfield is expected to visit Roselle Park High School this morning sometime between 8:30 and 9:30 a.m., schools superintendent Ernest Fjinizio said on Wednesday morning. Winfield, after visiting the high school, will then continue on to the borough's three elementary schools.

Lady Rams drop three

By SUSAN KRAKOWIECKI
The Abraham Clark High School girls' basketball team has a 1-3 record so far this season, but head coach Bob Giannotti says that the Lady Rams have played much better than the record indicates.

"I think we're a better team than a 1-3 record would lead people to believe," Giannotti said. "We played harder and the games were closer than the scores of our three losses would indicate."

The Lady Rams won their opening game, 33-28, over Newark Central, and then dropped their next three contests. The slump started when Roselle lost 42-33 to crosstown rival Roselle Catholic on December 19.

"We had a two-point lead going into the fourth quarter against R.C., but then one of our starters had to leave," Giannotti said. "And then we played poorly in the final period. They outscored us 18-7 and got the win."

Tahisa Palin was the leading scorer for the Lady Rams with 15 points, including three three-pointers. "Tahisa is our leading scorer and shooter," said Giannotti. "She's especially effective from three-point range."

The next afternoon, the Lady Rams went up against Governor Livingston, one of the higher-ranked teams in the area, and held them to 37 points. But Roselle still came out on the short end of a 37-30 game.

Palin again was the key to the Roselle offense, scoring a team-high 14 points, including two three-pointers. Shawanna Felton added seven points for the Lady Rams.

On December 28, Roselle played without two starters and suffered a 46-27 loss to David Brearley High School, although, Giannotti said, "the game was closer than the score indicated. We played them close in the first, third and fourth quarters. But we played a lousy second quarter, and they outscored us 10-3 in that period and that was the game. It's hard to win when you're short-handed like we were. We need to work on our consistency and putting four good quarters together."

WHO'S ON FIRST?

This week's question:

Oh, the weather outside is frightful, which inspires us to pose another ice hockey question. Who was the first player in the history of the National Hockey League to score 50 goals in one season?

Last week's answer: The record for most goals scored in a National Hockey League All-Star game, four, is shared by two of the greatest players the game has ever seen.

Wayne Gretzky, then of the Edmonton Oilers, scored four goals in the 1983 All-Star game played at the Nassau Veterans Memorial Coliseum in Uniondale, Long Island. All of Gretzky's goals came in the third period.

Gretzky broke a record that had stood for more than 30 years, set when Ted Lindsay of the Detroit Red Wings scored three goals in the 1950 NHL All-Star game.

Gretzky's record was equalled in the 1990 All-Star game by Mario Lemieux of the Pittsburgh Penguins. It was the first All-Star game played at the Pittsburgh Civic Arena, and Lemieux put on a show for the hometown fans, winning the game's Most Valuable Player award.

This week, Henry Hascup of Lodi submitted a correct answer. Please have your responses in our Union offices — at 1291 Stuyvesant Ave. — by no later than noon each Monday.

UP, UP AND AWAY — Linden's Rodney Zamor goes up over two Seton Hall Prep defenders for two of his eight points in the semi-final game of the Hillside Boys' Basketball Holiday Tournament played December 28 at Hillside High School. The Pony Pirates defeated the Tigers 71-54, and then captured the tournament championship with a 66-51 victory over Hillside on December 31.

Johnson wrestlers capture fourth

By SUSAN KRAKOWIECKI
The Arthur L. Johnson High School wrestling team was one of 12 teams that participated in the annual Woodbridge Tournament on December 28. The Crusaders placed fourth overall in the tournament.

Head coach Richard McSorley was pleased with the Crusaders' performance.

"Last season we had only three wrestlers that placed in the top four, this year we had eight," he said. "Last year, only one of our guys made it to the final round, this year we had two. Overall, I'd say the guys doubled, even tripled, their performance from last year."

Individually for the Crusaders, Joe

Lucariello placed third at 112 pounds, Craig Mahon placed fourth at 119 pounds, Tim Hoerle placed fourth at 125 pounds, Gil Viruccio placed third at 130 pounds, Andy Troczynski placed second at 135 pounds, Taso Lyrystis placed fourth at 140 pounds, Lenny Rothbard won the 145-pound class, and Justin LaSala finished fourth at 171 pounds.

Baldwin earns Mention

Roselle resident Scott Baldwin, a former standout running back for Abraham Clark High School who now plays for the University of Nebraska, was an Honorable Mention selection to the 1990 All-Big Eight Conference football team.

Baldwin, a sophomore, this year gained a net total of 579 yards in 92 carries for the Cornhuskers, scoring five touchdowns, and caught two passes for 33 yards. He finished the regular season as NU's second-leading rusher.

Top titles at Video Captain

If you're looking for the latest full-length movie releases on video, look no further — The Video Captain Inc. has them all.

John T. DeLuca Jr., the owner and proprietor of The Video Captain Inc., located at 265 Mountain Ave., Springfield, offers his customers one of the widest selections of videos on the market today. Video Captain carries over 4,500 tapes, including movies, games and instructional videos.

"We have over 200 Nintendo video games available and literally thousands of top line movie titles," says DeLuca. "And our prices vary from day to day, ranging from 50 cents to $2.95, depending on which nightly special we're offering."

Unlike most other video stores, The Video Captain offers many different specials during the week. Monday is ladies' night, and ladies are offered special discount rates. On Tuesdays, members can rent videos for 99 cents. Wednesdays are for kids, and children can get videos at special rates. Similarly, men are offered special rates on Thursdays, and everyone gets free popcorn on Saturdays. To cap off the week, a special two-for-one deal is offered on Sundays.

But special deals on videos are not the only great feature of The Video Captain. The Video Captain also offers free membership, 24-hour tape drop service, tape reservation services, film-to-video transfers, VCR repairs, tape machine rentals, and even offers free lending machines for extended VCR repairs. Plenty of free parking is also available.

"With about 750 square feet of space, we're one of the biggest video stores in the area," DeLuca says. "We're also the only video store in Union County that displays our tapes in unique European-style display racks which hang from the walls and make finding a video much easier than conventional display racks."

All new releases and "coming soon" attractions are advertised about a month ahead of their release. The Video Captain also puts out a newsletter for club members which tells them what is coming and gives their ratings.

"We like to think of this store as a store with a personal touch," DeLuca says. "I know almost everyone who comes in here by name, and I usually know what kinds of movies they like to watch. Many times, a customer will say, 'Pick something out for me,' and I'll be able to give them something they'll enjoy because I know what they like."

Husband-wife artists create with harmony

By BEA SMITH

One afternoon not too long ago, Joseph N. Meyers of Union was sitting near a lake in Ridgewood painting scenery and ducks. He was unaware of the fact that his wife, Tobia L. Meyers, was sitting farther back, painting her husband painting ducks.

Both find the incident amusing, and that is what a husband and wife relationship is all about — especially when they are both artists.

"When we work together," says Tobia Meyers, who, accompanied by her husband, visited this office the other day, "which is usually on weekends, holidays and vacations, we manage just fine." And even though artists are reputed to be temperamental, she declares, "we never fight. We just discuss loudly. He does his painting, and I paint mine."

"And it works out well for both of us," Meyers agrees.

The husband and wife artists will be featured for the first time at the Les Malamut Art Gallery in the Union Public Library on Morris Avenue on Jan. 13. Their work will be exhibited for a month and will be the 22nd exhibition since the gallery opened in February 1988.

"We wouldn't call ourselves a team," he says. "We do our own paintings. She's a professional artist..."

"All my life," his wife agrees.

"Thirty years ago," he recalls, "I became interested in art, and I took courses in Newark Arts High School and the New Jersey School of Visual Arts in Summit. I also was graduated from the Hillside High School. We lived in Hillside for 16 years before moving to Summit. I have been interested in art all my life. I remember, when I was 5 years old, I drew a picture of a horse, and my mother kept it. As a child, I was constantly drawing dogs — I loved dogs then; I love them now — and I wanted to become a veterinarian. But back in 1948, a veterinarian said to me, 'It's hard enough to get into veterinarian school for a man; a woman can't get in at all.' So, I decided on the next thing. I decided to draw them. My love for animals developed into painting Pet Portraits in oils, watercolors and sometimes air brush. Of course, these are done from photographs. My clients are delighted with the results and so am I."

"I have also been commissioned to paint scenes from favorite snapshots," she adds.

Tobia, who was graduated from Jamesie Franklin School of Art, New York City, also attended Ringling School of Art in Sarasota, Fla., and had taken courses at the Dynamic Graphics Educational Foundation in Illinois and the New Jersey School of Visual Arts in Summit.

"I took all kinds of art courses, commercial art and fashion design." I did very little painting in those years," Tobia recalls. After I was married and for the next 18 years, I did free-lance work and raised my family."

"Our family," says her husband with pride, "includes a son and two daughters. And they were all graduated from Union High School. There's Hal, a professional musician, who also is interested in music, and who became a father in November. We are the proud grandparents of Jordan Wesley Meyers. Our daughter Wendy Sciera, who lives in Fanwood, works for Xerox and is very artistic; and Pam Meyers lives in the Boston area and is attending Emerson College for a master's degree in communications. She also reads palms."

ship and day camp director of the Washington Rock Girl Scouts Council.

"Still," she sighs, "I missed my job. I was very depressed, and I went out to paint. A woman passed me with a dog, an English setter, and I said, 'I'd love to paint your dog,' and gave her my telephone number. A year later, she called me, and I've been painting dogs ever since. The reason she waited so long," says Tobia amusedly, "was because she misplaced my number."

Meyers recalls that "we had three dogs when we were first married, Tab, Crystal and T.J. And most of the pets she paints are so realistic that when you walk across a room their eyes seem to follow you."

"Dogs are my specialty," says his wife, "but I paint everything."

The two, who have lived in Union since 1960, enjoy traveling and painting together and have had some wonderful experiences. They recently returned from a painting trip to Holland.

"We had a wonderful experience there," says Meyers. "My wife and I were sitting in the countryside near a small village in Holland. My wife was painting the back of a church, and some of the villagers were watching her. Apparently, she'd left a clothesline out, and one of the villagers said, 'You forgot to paint the minister's drawers.'"

"So," laughs Tobia, "I put the laundry back in the picture."

"At the same time," her husband adds, "I was painting the little hotel we were staying at in Wyk En Zee, on the coast about 35 miles from Amsterdam."

"Once," laughs Tobia, "we were in Charleston, S.C., at the Magnolia Garden Plantation."

"Yes," he adds, "and we were setting up our paint equipment under a big lime oak tree. We began painting many houses. It was very hot that afternoon and some huge geese, the size of St. Bernards, came by. I sprayed the geese with water from my air brush, and they enjoyed it. Suddenly, they all came by to be sprayed."

Tobia, who has received numerous first prizes, a second prize and an honorable mention on her watercolor paintings and air brush paintings, is a member of the Kenilworth Art Association and the Westfield Art Association. Among her first prizes was one for a professional watercolor from the Festival on the Green in Union. She and her husband have displayed their work at outdoor shows in Union, Kenilworth, Millburn, South Orange, Roselle Park, Edison, Summit, Westfield, Glen Ridge, Cape May and at the Children's Specialized Hospital, Mountainside.

"An artist," says Meyers, "is never satisfied with what he does. We take pictures sometimes of what we want to paint, and this way, we can work at home. I find painting, although very frustrating at times, extremely stimu-

Wiesel is guest at Kean college

The 1991 United Campaign of the Jewish Federation of Central New Jersey will feature Nobel Peace Prize winner Elie Wiesel as guest of the Central New Jersey Jewish community Jan. 20 at the Wilkins Theater on the campus of Kean College of New Jersey, Union. He will appear as part of a three-tier program beginning at 3 p.m. with a reception for "major givers" followed by a buffet dinner reception at 5 p.m. and concluding with a communitywide address as part of Super Spectacular at 8 p.m.

Chairmen are Alfred Gelfond, Pacesetter; Mindy Leibowitz, buffet dinner reception; and Isabel Fenichel and Judy Gottlieb, who is from Clark, Super Spectacular.

A Nobel laureate and Boston University professor, Wiesel has worked on behalf of the Jewish people and oppressed persons for much of his adult life. His first-hand witnessing of the Holocaust has led him to use his talents as author and teacher to defend human rights and peace throughout the world.

His efforts have earned him the United States Congressional Gold Medal of Achievement and the Medal of Liberty, and in 1986, the Nobel Peace Prize.

His more than 30 books have won such awards as the Prix Medicis for "A Beggar in Jerusalem," the Prix Livre Inter for "The Testament," and the Grand Prize for Literature from the City of Paris for "The Fifth Son." His recent novel, "Twilight," was a best seller when published in Paris in 1987, and his newest novel, "L'Oblique," also was on the best seller list in Paris when it appeared last fall.

Born in Signet, Transylvania, Romania, Wiesel and his family were deported by the Nazis to Auschwitz when he was 15 years old. His mother and younger sister perished at that camp. Wiesel and his father were later transported to Buchenwald, where his father died before the camp was liberated by the Allies in 1945.

After the war, Wiesel became a journalist and writer in Paris. During an interview with the French writer, Francois Mauriac, Wiesel was persuaded to write "Night," an account of his experience during the Holocaust.

As a spokesman, Wiesel has worked on behalf of Soviet Jews and has helped the relatives of "the disappeared" in Argentina. He has spoken out for victims of famine in Ethiopia, for the Cambodian refugees, against apartheid in South Africa and in support of peace and human rights in China, El Salvador and Israel.

Three months after receiving the lating. Some of my favorite paintings have been done from photos I took while in the Navy in Europe in 1954. I did receive an award for water media," he says proudly.

"My love for animals developed into painting," says his wife. "Pet Portraits in oils, watercolors and sometimes air brush are done from photographs. I must say, my clients are delighted with the results. I also have been commissioned to paint scenes from favorite snapshots."

ELIE WIESEL

Nobel Peace Prize, Wiesel established the Elie Wiesel Foundation for Humanity. Its mission is to advance the cause of human rights and peace throughout the world by creating a new forum for the discussion of "urgent ethical and moral issues confronting humankind."

Wiesel has taught at the City University of New York and Yale University; he has been the Andrew W. Mellon Professor in the Humanities at Boston University since 1976.

"This unique three-tier program provides an opportunity for everyone in the Jewish community to meet such a distinguished person and at the same time show their support for the State of Israel and the local and worldwide Jewish community," said Sam Halpern of Hillside and Alan Rubin of Rahway, general campaign co-chairmen.

The Jewish Federation of Central New Jersey is the central fund-raising community planning and budgeting and community relations agency for the 32,000 members of the Jewish communities of Clark, Hillside, Kenilworth, Linden, Mountainside, Rahway, Roselle, Roselle Park, South Springfield, Springfield, Union, Basking Ridge, Bedminster, Bernardsville, Cranford, Elizabeth, Fanwood, Garwood, Gillette, Green Brook, Martinsville, Millington, North Plainfield, Plainfield, Tewksbury, Warren, Watchung and Westfield.

The federation's primary function, through beneficiary agencies, "is to provide social services for Jews in Israel, overseas and the local community."

For further information and reservations concerning Jan. 20, members of the community can call Howard Gases, campaign director, at the federation, 351-5060.

"And," she adds, "what I like most is to paint strawberries. Really," Tobia grins, "I love the way the strawberries look. My business card has a painted strawberry on it, my kitchen has strawberries and is done in red and white. I have strawberries painted on my crystal, my dishes, cups and saucers...I have a real strawberry collection."

"No, I don't like to eat them. They're too sour."

"I just love to look at them!"

Young Playwrights

The New Jersey Young Playwrights Program, a project of the New Jersey State Teen Arts Program in association with the Playwrights Theater of New Jersey in Madison, has announced the opening of the program's eighth annual playwriting season. Since 1983, Young Playwrights has been teaching students the art of playwriting and producing student-written scripts in professional theaters.

Two- to six-day residencies are led by professional playwrights who instruct students and faculty members in the art of script-writing for the theater. Completing the residency, students are required to submit their original scripts for written evaluations. Student scripts may be submitted for further evaluation as part of the Young Playwrights Festival.

The Young Playwrights Festival, the culminating event of the year-long program, is held annually in the spring. Teens from all 21 New Jersey counties, whether or not they have participated in a residency, "are encouraged to submit original, unpublished plays to be judged by the panel of professional writers." Fifteen student writers are selected from the entries to participate in the rehearsal and staging of scripts, often working for the first time with directors, theater technicians and actors.

From among the 15 scripts, four to six are selected for a public play-reading staged by professionals in a major New Jersey theater. The authors of the winning plays will have an opportunity to see their play on stage at the eighth annual Young Playwrights Festival, which will be held May 23 at the State Theater, New Brunswick.

It was announced that teachers and school administrators interested in Young Playwrights "can take advantage of a limited number of New Jersey State Council on the Arts matching grants for funding four-day playwriting residencies." For additional information, one can contact Julia Craven or Jim Piskin at Playwrights Theater of New Jersey or by calling 514-1787.

All New Jersey residents, ages 13 to 19 years old, are invited to submit their original, one-act plays in the eighth annual New Jersey Young Playwrights Festival. The deadline is Feb. 1.

For information on entering a script, one can write to Playwrights Theater of New Jersey, Young Playwrights Program, 33 Green Village Road, Madison, 07940.

horoscope

For week of Jan. 6-Jan. 12

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) This is a good time to make a career move. You might tactfully suggest to your boss that you could handle more responsibility. If he turns you down, don't let it get to you — just start considering that other attractive opportunity.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) Somebody who has been bothering you needs to be told off. Disregard your friends' advice, and let the jerk have it. You won't be sorry.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Someone you've trusted a long time is about to let you down. Be ready for it. This is also the time to be more cautious, particularly regarding long-term financial investments. Try to save a little more than usual.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A secret admirer is about to come forward. But play it coy. There could be pitfalls in this relationship you won't recognize immediately. But it's OK — your admirer is more patient than you might think.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Brush up on your neglected talents this week.

You're about to get a golden opportunity from an unexpected source. Think about registering for a course or renewing an old friendship with an acquaintance who enjoys similar interests.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You may be getting bored, and planning for a long trip now will help lift you out of the doldrums. Also, look for new community activities to augment that humdrum routine. You could meet someone who will become a close friend.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) Debts are starting to accumulate, but a surprise source of income is looming, so don't get overly concerned about your creditors. Take a chance, even if people think you're being foolhardy. You'll have the last laugh.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) If you have children, they need a lot of communication from you now. Teach them to have greater respect for each other's differences, and try to do this by using your reasoning ability. They will understand, and the family will experience a newfound harmony.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You're neglecting too many small projects. Finish that book you're reading, organize your desk, do some cleaning, and don't forget to make those phone calls you've been procrastinating on. A little more organization will go a long way this week.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Everyone thinks you're happy, but in reality something is eating at you. Get it off your chest. Your associates will be much more sympathetic than you might think, and your fears of negative consequences will prove to be unfounded.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Your intuition has served you well lately, but don't rely on it. Make a cold, hard decision that you know is the right one.

Chorus to meet

The Jerseyaires Chorus of the Rahway Valley Chapter of the Barber-shop Harmony Society, SPEBSQSA, will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the First Baptist Church, 170 Elm St., Westfield. Male singers of all ages are invited, it was announced.

Restaurant review

The Cedars

By DEBBI AGINS

I was looking forward to eating at The Cedars in Elizabeth because it boasts the biggest salad bar in Union County. I thought I could stay on my diet while still enjoying a fine meal out.

Well, it didn't work out that way. While thumbing through the extensive menu, I realized there was no way I could only eat a salad. Very rarely have I seen a menu that offers such a variety of dishes. Not only does one have a choice of seafood, veal, pasta, poultry and beef, but also house seafood specials, a mesquite grill, combination specials and nightly specials. After each entree, the menu suggests a fine wine that would accent the food.

Not willing to give up my quest for a good salad, I was delighted when our waitress informed us that the all-you-can-eat salad bar was included with our meal.

Cedars advertises that they have "The Largest Salad Bar Selection in Union County," and I was not disappointed. The salad bar contained an abundant selection of chilled greens, vegetables, garnishes and prepared salads. It also had peel-and-eat shrimp and a choice of two homemade soups.

Our helpful waitress recommended a hot appetizer of stuffed mushrooms. In addition, we ordered Clams Casino. The mushrooms were generous in size and the half-dozen clams were baked to perfection with bacon pieces. If the meal had ended there, we would have been satisfied.

Before our entrees arrived, we were amused by a large party celebrating a birthday. The waiters and waitresses presented a cake and discreetly but enthusiastically sang "Happy Birthday." This was the first time I did not feel sorry for the guest of honor. He didn't seem embarrassed either.

The setting at The Cedars is intimate, but at the same time spacious. I liked the fact that the tables are not crowded; conversations from other tables never intruded on our enjoyment. The tasteful decor of Cedars also contributes to the relaxing atmosphere.

Service at The Cedars is excellent. Our entrees arrived promptly after the appetizers. My meal, from the mesquite grill, Cajun Red Snapper, was superb. The fish was cooked perfectly and the spices gave it a nice zing. I must say, The Cedars definitely shatters the myth that seafood entrees are skimpy. On the side, a nice-sized baked potato and broccoli were served.

My friend ordered the Chicken Primavera. It was loaded with tender vegetables, chicken fillets and pasta.

After dinner we indulged in chocolate cake, cheese cake, cappuccino and tea, a definite departure from my diet but well worth it.

Over all, my comments on The Cedars are only favorable. My companion and I were pleased with the service and the cleanliness. Our meal was not rushed; we were given an ideal amount of time to enjoy it. If you are looking for a pleasurable dining experience, with entrees averaging $13, The Cedars, at 1200 North Ave., Elizabeth, is the place to go.

Devlin display set

An exhibition of works by Harry Devlin of Mountainside will be shown at the Morris Museum, Morristown, Saturday through March 3, with a reception on Saturday for members of the museum and invited guests from 6 to 9 p.m.

Devlin's career began more than 50 years ago as an illustrator in New York City during World War II, responsible for all aircraft identification art for the Office of Naval Intelligence. The artist went on to have approximately four or five careers.

He has created imaginative illustrations for children's books, the first of which was entitled, "The Wonderful Tree House." Twenty additional children's books followed, most written in collaboration with his wife, Wende. Devlin's portfolio also contains political cartoons, advertising and architectural portraits, many of which are contained in his book on "American Romantic" architecture.

A symposium, "Nineteenth Century Residential Architecture in N.J. Our Heritage and Its Future," will be presented Feb. 9 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the museum in conjunction with the exhibition. The lectures will feature Devlin, among others, with his topic of discussion, "Victorian Architecture: A Personal History." The exhibition will be accompanied by a fully illustrated 68-page catalogue written by the guest curator, Barbara J. Mitnick.

Sponsors are Chemical Bank New Jersey/Princeton Bank and Trust, the Friends of Harry Devlin, the New Jersey State Council on the Arts/Department of State and the Friends of the Morris Museum.

New deadline listed for pageant

New album is emotional

By MILT HAMMER
Pick of the LPs: "Rumor Has It." In good voice is Reba McEntire on her new album on the MCA Records label.

Reba's emotional, honest, gut music has brought her seven gold albums, a platinum album, five Country Music Association awards, five Academy of Country Music awards, six Music City News awards, four American Music awards, a Grammy... The list goes on and on.

Yet, with all her success, she finds herself working harder now than ever before. "I think I've been putting twice as much energy into my career because I have twice as much to sing for and work for," she explains. "I'm happier now than I've ever been in my life, with Shelby and Narvel."

Narvel is Reba's husband and manager, Narvel Blackstock, whom she married in 1989. Shelby is their baby boy, born Feb. 23, 1990. Shelby was exerting a positive influence on Reba's career even before he was born. Confined to her bed through some of her pregnancy, she was able to spend more time listening to songs for "Rumor Has It." Consequently, the album is powerfully consistent from beginning to end.

Ironically, although she was in a state of happiness and there were "tons" of baby songs pitched to her, the songs that she chose deal not so much with joy, but with strength and determination. "Climb That Mountain High," which Reba co-wrote with Don Schlitz, opens the album with a rousing, positive message. The drive to succeed takes story form in Reba's version of the Bobbie Gentry classic, "Fancy," about a poor girl whose ambition will not be denied. In "That's All She Wrote," the strength is in the big shuffle beat as Reba advises the victim to let go of the past. Even in pain, an emotion that Reba's voice has often personified, she finds disc 'n' data

strength — strength to confront an unfaithful lover in "You Lie (til you can find a way to say goodbye)," strength to call it quits in "Falling Out of Love." In "Waitin' for the Deal to Go Down," she's hurt and she's mad and it's a good bet she won't be sitting alone feeling sorry for herself.

No one matches Reba when it comes to pure emotion, and she pours plenty of it into the new album. In "Rumor Has It," her heartbreaking delivery conveys the feelings of a woman who now finds herself on the outside of a relationship. The same sense of loss flows forth in "Now You Tell Me," and "This Picture." Her restraint makes a reunion all that much more emotional in Jesse Winchester's delicate, touching ballad, "You Remember Me."
