Volleyball offered

The Springfield Recreation Department announces that Co-ed Volleyball will again be offered to Springfield residents. It is scheduled to begin on Tuesday, Sept. 13, at the Sandmeier School gym from 7:30-10 p.m. Joyce Palazzi will again supervise the program. Any questions, call the Recreation Department at (201) 912-2227, Monday through Friday from 9 to 4 p.m.

Club changes date

The Springfield Woman's Club is changing the date and time of its regular meeting to the second Monday of the month at 1 p.m. at Sarah Bailey Civic Center.

On Oct. 17, the program will be "Hawaii — Isle of Beauty," presented by Henry M. Bosman. All are invited to attend. Following the meeting, refreshments will be served by Pat Pennington and her committee.

Resident elected

The World Trade Association of New Jersey, at its annual meeting, elected Joan K. Faber of Springfield as its next president.

Faber heads her 14-year-old company, Faber Associates in Springfield, an international marketing and trading firm. She also acts as managing director of the United States branch of Allat & KO, of Latvia, and Baltic Commerce, Germany.

The World Trade Association of New Jersey is one of the oldest organizations in the country devoted exclusively to international business. The nonprofit organization works closely with both private and government agencies to promote world trade and assist New Jersey firms in exporting their products.

School set to start

The Springfield Public Schools announced yesterday the first day of school for students will be Thursday, Sept. 8. School offices will be open for student registration.

School hours are: Elementary — 8:40 a.m.-3 p.m. Middle School — 8:15 a.m.-2:45 p.m. Parents are asked to send children in the elementary schools with a "bag lunch" on the first day of school. Children at the middle school will be able to purchase a hot lunch for $1.85.

The lunch menu for Sept. 8 will be chicken nuggets with favorite sauces, dinner roll and butter, potatoes, hot vegetable, and chilled fruit. The second entrée will be a tuna sandwich.

Parents and guardians with questions about transportation or school procedures should contact their neighborhood school.

Trucking company responds to ordinance

By Mark Devaney
Staff Writer

The introduction of a new ordinance that will disrupt business at the Springfield Truck Center is nothing new, said General Managers Jeff and Bill Briggs. Each year seems to bring yet another restriction to their operations; and each year, they take the blow, stagger a bit, but stay in the ring.

"Everybody we speak to, anything they ask us to do, we've bent over backwards. We've done everything except close the doors," said Bill Briggs.

The latest swing taken at the two brothers comes in the form of an ordinance that reads: "Vehicles over 4 tons are excluded from Keeler Street to the southwest corner at the intersection of Salter Street and Brook, and the entire length of Salter," according to Mayor Marcia Forman.

The Briggses are prepared to accept the punch, but they are getting tired of being the target of new legislation. In fact, they consider the tactics of the Township Committee to be bordering on harassment.

"It's pretty tough to run a business and pay the taxes when you have to constantly protect your investment," said Bill Briggs, who added that "Springfield Truck Center pays roughly 4 percent of the taxes in town."

"There's more no parking signs here than the rest of town. I have 20 some odd tickets that I'm fighting and They can't set a court date for me," said Jeff Briggs.

According to the Briggs brothers, keeping a constant vigil for customers who unknowingly park illegally is extremely inconvenient. To solve the problem they had to hire someone to sit outside the shop and move trucks all day long.

"It's not the prosecutor, it's not the judge, it's not the town administrator. It's someone above them. It's got to be someone on the Township Committee," Jeff Briggs speculated.

"It's a problem. They do have heavy trucks coming in and neighbors have been disturbed," said Forman.

The Township Committee will vote on an ordinance that will ban trucks weighing at least 4 tons from Keeler Street.

"A lot has been taken care of through ordinances and summonses. It's an effort to keep trucks from going through the residential streets," he added.

Bill Briggs noted that his family business has been in Springfield for 65 years. "It's not like we came here and destroyed the area. We live here," he said.

"The people that bought their houses here got a good deal because of this garage and now they want it gone so their property values will go up," said Jeff Briggs.

"Whenever you have a residential area abutting a commercial area, you have problems. Nothing is ever satisfactory," explained Forman. "What you have to do is figure out a way to ameliorate the people involved."

"The majority of residents seem to have no complaint. We're friendly with 85 percent of the neighbors. If they have a complaint, they come to us. It's a one-to-one type of thing."

He then explained that his workers shovel driveways and cut grass for neighbors who have property adjacent to their business.

"You don't know somebody's mad if they don't tell you," said Bill Briggs. "We don't like to make waves. That's how we were brought up."

The ordinance could come into effect at the next Township Committee meeting.

When asked about the truck traffic, Forman replied, "They are a hazard to pedestrians. They are not wide streets. It's a highly developed residential neighborhood. I believe we are handling it responsibly."

Owner of Springfield company indicted on charges of fraud

By Ray Lehmann
Managing Editor

An executive with the Jortis Manufacturing Corp. of Springfield was indicted last Friday on charges that he submitted phony bank documents that allowed Jortis to obtain illegal credit advances.

Scotch Plains resident Richard Polese was indicted on one count of bank fraud and another count of conspiracy by a federal grand jury in Newark.

Polese is the owner and president of Jortis, a metal stamping company which also makes cylinders and fittings.

According to the indictment, when authorities first detected the scheme in January of 1990, Polese had directed his company's bookkeepers to report $700,000 in fictitious accounts by falsifying invoices to Midlantic. The company had received more than $550,000 in fraudulent loans, out of some $4.5 million it had received in revolving credit loans from the bank.

Midlantic has yet to recover its money.

Van Winkle Creek pipe is causing silt problems at Meisel Pond

By Mark Devaney
Staff Writer

It's alive! But it's not quite kicking. Meisel Pond may look like a dead body of water, but if you look beneath the slime, you will notice, of all things, clear water and aquatic life.

Of course, the problem is that slime covering the surface.

Springfield Environmental Commissioner Roy Hirschfeld and Director of Parks Maintenance Bill Gullman inspected Meisel Pond last week and have agreed upon a plan of action to remove the algae and duck weed which make the water look more like pea soup than water.

"It's not a stagnant pond," declared Hirschfeld. "We pushed back some of the duck weed and found that the water was pretty clear."

"If you peel the surface back, there's nice clean water underneath," Gullman concurred. "There are fish in there. There are live species. It's not so polluted that it's killing life in there," added Gullman.

"Years ago, on the south end, there used to be a constant flow and a connecting pipe with Van Winkle Creek. I believe the pipe clogged up," said Gullman.

The connection between Van Winkle Creek gets congested with silt and tree particles, according to Hirschfeld.

Thus their first plan is to flush the outflow pipe. The only problem is the county's sewer jet pump is not working properly. Gullman reported that Springfield has a jet pump of its own and has already generously volunteered it to him.

"I will flush it out, as soon as they give me the OK for the Springfield sewer jet. I'm ready to go," Gullman promised.

However, voiding the connector pipe may not be the solution.

"There's really no heavy flow of water to push the problem out," stated Gullman. "Going back 25-30 years water would flow into the lake constantly."

Gullman speculated that water used to enter Meisel Pond from under-ground springs, yet evidence of such springs is no longer visible. He guessed that the springs may still be there, but concluded that "what happened there, I don't know."

Therefore, simply flushing or even reconstructing the pipe may not do the job, since water must be introduced into Meisel in order to force water into Van Winkle.

The green film on top of Meisel Pond will remain there until this pipe connecting Meisel with Van Winkle Creek is unclogged with a sewer jet pump.

Hirschfeld said he inspected some center systems in Basking Ridge and Nonotog Lake only to report that both bodies of water still had heavy accumulations of duck weed, which leads him to believe that an aerator is not the answer.

"It's a healthy eco-system; it's just not as pretty as we would like it," said Hirschfeld.

"We intend to stay on top of this because it's a major recreational area that the people of Springfield use," Hirschfeld concluded.

Minnesota naturalist addresses deer subcommittee

By Ray Lehman, Managing Editor
The Deer Study Subcommittee of the greater Watchung Reservation Management Committee had its first open session Tuesday, as the group honored a talk by Jay McAninch, senior natural resource specialist for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources. McAninch presented the committee with his recommendations for the proper way to operate a deer management study, a subject he has briefed similar management committees about throughout the country.

The committee was formed in May to study the extent of the suggested deer overpopulation in the Watchung Reservation. The final recommendation of the committee for this year will be presented to the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders by Parks Division Director Dan Bernier at the committee's conclusion.

The purpose of McAninch's first time in the press was invited to attend. In the past, there had been concern that members of the committee might feel uncomfortable or unsure to meet the demands of their constituents if the meeting's discussions were to be a part of the public record.

The purpose of McAninch's talk was primarily to open the flow of communication between the deer management committee, who were fiercely divided along the lines of pro- and anti-hunt advocates.

"From what I can see, from what I've been told about these meetings, there seems to be a general agreement about the problems that your group faces, just a split about the extent of the deer problem," McAninch said.

McAninch was brought to the committee primarily because of the urging of committee member and New Jersey Animal Rights Alliance representative Linda Niedzweska. Prior to the meeting, there was an internal controversy over the fact that McAninch would be paid for his appearance. As a compromise, N.J.A.R.A. concurred that it would split the bill for McAninch's appearance with the county.

McAninch noted that in the 1970s, ecologists first started their research into the importance of green spaces in urban communities, and that aspect of the issue should never be forgotten. "For many people, deer are an asset, an added value to their community. People who have grown up in heavily urban areas can sometimes appreciate deer better because they know what a resource they are to the community," McAninch said.

"There are no answers when it comes to this. It is not a problem that can be truly solved. The best you can hope to do is adjust and evolve," McAninch said. "All I can tell you folks is 'Welcome to the lovely world of deer management.'"

Local counselor lends a hand to patients in a crisis

By Ray Lehman, Managing Editor
Mountainside resident Gary Drake has seen people trying to cope with just about every tragedy you could imagine in his years as a crisis interventionist at Overlook Hospital's Crisis Intervention Unit in Summit, but there is one common thread that seems to link many, if not most, of the patients he sees.

"Most of them have hit rock bottom when they call," Drake said. "What he is especially proud of is the program's referral process, which he says sets it apart from many other programs of its type."

"I would say that the uniqueness of the program lies in the fact that, while other programs tend to be more specialized, we try to look at the whole picture," Drake said. "We don't just deal with one problem, we deal with all of them. Many times, problems that people have are connected, sometimes with one causing another."

Recently, Drake and project coordinator Veronica Thomas published an article on their referral form process titled "A Link to Wellness" in the Journal of Emergency Medicine and Nursing, a publication distributed to hospitals across the country. The article emphasized the therapeutic aspect of patients taking an active role in the referral process.

"Our experience has been that through the formal process of signing the form, the patient assumes responsibility for follow-up compliance," the article read. "A copy of the form goes to the patient, another goes with the patient's medical records and two copies stay with the crisis center. This, compounded with the form's signing by the crisis counselor, doctor or psychiatrist, and any family members that are present, adds to the process's sense of formality."

Crisis intervention units first became a part of the orthodox medical community in the '60s and by the late '70s had become state mandated. Overlook's program, which has existed for 10 years, has to follow the mandate that requires it to call itself a crisis intervention program, a point which Drake has some contention.

"I fear that people are put off by the title sometimes, and someone with a legitimate problem may not be hooked up with the proper services. Sometimes people see my name tag and see the words 'crisis counselor' and are uneasy because they don't think that they have a 'problem,'" Drake said. "Sometimes it's still this sense of denial and sometimes they are right—they don't have a serious problem. But we tell them that's all right, because we'll help them anyway."

Regional district braces itself for the new year

By Cheryl Hehl, Staff Writer
It's back to school Sept. 8 for 2,209 students in the Union County Region of High School District next Thursday. A year that promises to be "different and challenging."

There have been many changes in the district for the 1994-95 school year, all capable of improving student services, activities and courses. One of the most noticeable changes this year is the reduction in administrative staff. The positions of assistant superintendent, assistant board of education secretary, director of pupil personnel services, assistant for public relations and three directors of guidance are absent from the organizational chart. Some of the duties were absorbed into other positions, eliminated or replaced by lower salaried positions. This saved the district and taxpayers more than $300,000 and left a leaner and trimmer administrative structure, according to Superintendent Donald Merachnik.

"More is being expected from a reduced staff," Merachnik said, adding that restructuring will continue throughout the year. He indicated there are plans to reduce the directors of health, physical education and athletics from 12-month positions to 9-month positions.

Further details may be had at Tuesday's meeting. Members and guests are reminded to enter through the red door at the rear of the building. Seniors are asked to bring a non-perishable food item and/or paper goods items, which will be distributed to the needy.

Meetings are held monthly from September through June on the first Monday of the month, except holidays. Meetings are then on the first Tuesday.

Garage sale to benefit the fund

The Matt Gordon Memorial Fund of the Emmanuel Cancer Foundation will benefit from the fourth annual "More Than a Garage Sale," which will take place Sept. 10 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at 48A Forest Drive, Short Hills Village, Springfield, behind the Chamblee. The sale is Sept. 12. Professional estate-sale liquidators will volunteer their time to collect antiques, furniture, artwork, clothing and collectibles for the sale. Proceeds are used to improve the quality of life of New Jersey families faced with childhood cancer. More than $15,000 has been raised by the event since it began in 1991. Matt Gordon grew up in Summit and graduated from Summit High School in 1988. "The sale" was started after his death from cancer by his friends and family as a way to ensure other young people of the emotional support and material and financial assistance that the Emmanuel Cancer Foundation provided during Matt's illness. ECF was established in 1983 by Matt's parents, Susan and Joseph Viz-zoni, to provide personal, in-home support to New Jersey families who have a child with cancer. Families receive a caseworker who is available 24 hours a day, and a variety of resource supplies by four regional outreach centers. "More Than a Garage Sale" is held not only in memory of Gordon, but in honor of hundreds of other ECG children battling cancer. For further information, contact Emmanuel Cancer Foundation, 346 Park Avenue, Scotch Plains, or call (908) 322-4323.

Lock your homes

"You ought to be locked up..." or at least your home should be, even when you are in it. Many thefts occur from rooms in front of residences when the occupants are outside on the back patio or deck or are working in the yard. A thief seeing that the family is busy in the yard knocks on the front door and enters when no one answers and pilfers the home while the resident is busy outside. Locking the front of the house while you are out back will normally prevent this type of burglary.

Keeping the doors locked while family members are in the house, especially if one member is home alone, will reduce the possibility of an intruder entering the residence and committing a crime against whoever is home.

It is also a good idea to determine who is knocking on the front door before you open it. An intercom system or a peephole door viewer should be utilized. At the very least, look out a window to see who is on the porch before opening the door. Many criminals have used a pretext of being a repairman, policeman, salesman or even a clergyman to gain access to a residence to commit a crime. If you are not certain who is at the door, do not open it and admit that person if you are home alone. Do not admit anyone that you are home alone. If necessary, call a neighbor and have them come out on the porch and watch while you open the door and speak to whoever it is on your doorstep. You, of course, should offer to do the same thing for your neighbor. Many times one expects to become the victim of a crime if they go down town shopping or go on a trip. But all too many times people become victims of crimes when they least expect it, when they open their own front door. Lock on to a good idea. Keep doors locked.

If you have any questions, comments or need a home survey, contact the Springfield Crime Prevention Unit of the Springfield Police Department at (201) 912-2243.

Free rentals offered
Read all the latest best sellers? Are they cluttering your home? Springfield Free Public Library patrons who donate a recent hardcover best seller to the library will receive a free video rental from the library's video collection. Books donated under this program should be in good condition so the books may be added to the circulating collection of recent publications. All donations will be evaluated by the adult department.

School plans program
Congregation Israel of Springfield has announced that its Nursery School, under new director Michele Weiss, will begin a "Mommy and Me" program in September, when school resumes for the fall session. Weiss, who will be teaching the class, has many years of experience with this type of program and it is very excited about the prospect of bringing

"Mommy and Me" to Congregation Israel. "Mommy and Me" is designed to allow mothers and fathers with young children, approximately 15 months to 24 months of age, to spend an hour in a classroom setting, to interact with other children and to participate in music, arts and crafts, storytime, and develop gross motor skills. This is a wonderful opportunity for parents to spend time with their children and prepare for the nursery school experience.

For further information about this program as well as the 2-, 3-, or 4-year-old programs at Congregation Israel, contact Weiss at (201) 467-9666.

Grad courses offered
Residents can take advantage of the opportunity to take two three-credit graduate courses right at F.M. Gaudin School in Springfield by simply walking in for on-site registration on the first night of classes. The public school system has become an off-site campus for Kean College Graduate School of Education. The two courses being offered for the fall semester are Cooperative Teaching and Cooperative Learning, taught by Assistant Superintendent Albert La Morges; and Education in New Jersey: Critical Issues, taught by Staff Developer Pamela Gray. The Cooperative Learning course begins on Sept. 14 at 5 p.m. and the Critical Issues course starts on Sept. 12 at the same time. The cost of each course is $501.45 plus a $15 registration fee.

For more information, call Pam Gray at (201) 376-1025, Ext. 219.

Blood needed

The North Jersey Blood Center is asking people to plan a blood donation around Labor Day. A decrease in summer donations has lowered the blood supply inventory.

Also, they must have their iron level, blood pressure, pulse and temperature checked, and, following a medical review with a registered nurse, donate a pint of blood.

Security number and bring a signed form of identification. People who have had dental work should wait 72 hours before donating, and those who have cold or flu symptoms should wait.

Flea market trip

The YM-YWHA of Union County will sponsor a trip to the Chester Flea Market on Sept. 11.

The cost is $10 for members and $12 for non-members. A bus will leave the Y, which is located on Green Lane, at 9:15 a.m. and return by 3 p.m. For more information call 259-8112.

A model contest

The Hobby Center, 1406B Stuyvesant Ave., will hold its first model car contest on Oct. 9. The event is sponsored by Car Modeler magazine.

Revell-Monogram Model Computers Judging will be from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., and be followed by an awards presentation. Entries will be judged based on a point system, on assembly detailing, finish quality and overall appearance in six different classes.

Recycling: as good as they say

In light of recent questions that have been raised regarding the benefits of recycling, I feel it is important that the public fully understand the value — both economically and environmentally — of this critical component of New Jersey's integrated solid waste management strategy.

Seniors can collect and still work full time

Want to "keep on truckin'" and collect Social Security benefits at the same time? You may be able to do it. If you're age 62 or older and still employed, you may be able to collect "partial" Social Security benefits while continuing to work full time.

Partial benefits may be payable when you're employed and also eligible for retirement benefits—the earliest age is 62—or surviving spouse benefits—at age 60 or older—and your earnings don't exceed the annual limit. If your earnings exceed the limit, part of your benefits will be withheld. In 1994, the earnings limit is $8,040 if you're under age 65; for every $2 you earn over that amount, $1 in benefits is withheld. If you're at least 65 but not yet 70, $1 will be withheld for every $3 of earnings that exceed $11,060. And if you're age 70 or older, you can collect full benefits, regardless of your earnings.

If you continue to work, your earnings and the Social Security taxes you pay may increase your benefit amount. Your benefit will be refigured automatically each year that you work to determine if you are entitled to a higher benefit.

To learn more about retirement and widow or widower benefits, call Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, and ask for a copy of Retirement, Publication 05-10035, and How Work Affects Your Social Security Benefits, Publication 05-10069. The hotline is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Oscar Fishman

The Social Security Administration's most popular publications now are available in electronic form to users of online information services. The publications are posted on the Retirement Living Forum On CompServe. The SSA library in the Retirement Living Forum contains about 20 of the most frequently requested titles, including a Spanish-language publication. Social Security produces more than 100 publications in English and Spanish on the retirement, survivors, and disability insurance programs and on the Supplemental Security Income program for persons who are aged, blind or disabled.

As a further service to members of the Retirement Living Forum, Social Security will provide a speaker at online conferences at least once each calendar quarter and will post general replies to frequently asked questions in a "FAQ" question-and-answer library file. All these activities reflect the government-wide effort to make more information and services available to the public through electronic means.

Social Security continues to maintain its toll-free telephone number, 1-800-772-1213, to respond to inquiries about Social Security benefits and services. The toll-free lines are busiest early in the week and early in the month so, if your business can wait, it's best to call at other times. Some telephone services—including ordering publications—are available at night and on weekends and holidays for customers who use touchtone phones.

Union Hospital's Vice President of Marketing Susan R. Barrett, a resident of Westfield, has been appointed to the Union County Senior Citizen and Disabled Resident Transportation Advisory Board Chairperson Shirley Reagan.

Barrett's 2 1/2 year term became effective in June. The function of the 15-member advisory board is to act as liaison to the Union County Board of Chosen Freelancers on transportation issues which affect senior citizens and persons with disabilities. The board also provides oversight on the services offered through the Union County Paratransit System and other special-transportation concerns of the community.

Since 1984, the Union County Senior Citizen and Disabled Resident Transportation Advisory Board has expanded its services to accommodate the elderly and disabled in need of transportation throughout Union County for the purpose of education, employment, medical, social and recreation. It also assists the economically disadvantaged, SSI eligible and Medicaid recipients. The county operates 60 vehicles for this purpose.

The advisory board is comprised of 51 percent senior citizens and disabled persons while the remaining 49 percent represent funding sources and

County senior citizens offered outreach services

The Psychiatric Outreach Service of Visiting Nurse Affiliate is offering a service to senior citizens in Union County.

The Senior Psychiatric Outreach Program is for individuals who are at least 60 years of age and may be having emotional stressors for which counseling may be indicated.

The primary goal of SPOOP is to improve the quality of life for individuals enrolled in the program. If requested, a nurse from the program will come to the home and speak with the person and his or her family for an initial assessment.

Together, a treatment plan can be developed in accordance with the particular needs of the individual.

Available services include in-home counseling and referral to social work and mental health services. Hours of operation are Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Anyone can make a referral by calling (908) 352-5694 for residents of Union County. There is no fee for services provided by SPOOP, however, private insurance and Medicare will be billed when appropriate.

SPOOP accepts donations, gifts and bequests.

Visiting Nurse Affiliate, a subsidiary of Visiting Nurse and Health Services, is a voluntary nonprofit home health care agency providing quality home and community services to the communities of Union County since 1911. VNA is a United Way Agency.

Medicare remains a concern

Contrary to all the talk and publicity one might hear, see or read about these days, the majority of seniors as a whole — at least the ones that I have been in contact with — will state they are generally pleased with their access to health care as well as the quality of care they presently receive.

But wherever they go this year, one thing will be different. Loreta Mason, a long-time member and the group's piano player for the last two years, will not be going with them. The 87-year-old Mason has decided to do the door. Reservations are to be made with the Telephone Committee caller. If for some reason you are not contacted, call Alice Simpson at 233-1812 because a count for the number of those attending is necessary.

On behalf of the seniors and their concerns as Medicare beneficiaries, I have compiled a list of five proposals they would like to see considered in the near future.

• Universal acceptance of Medicare assignment in every state.

• Optional prescription and long term care coverage offered at an additional reasonable premium cost.

• Assurance that seniors will continue to have access to Medicare as we know it today, no matter what type of changes take place with health care reform.

Finally, I would like to remind all seniors that you possess two important assets that can be used to make a difference when it comes to your concerns regarding Medicare and related health care issues. They are your "voice" and your "vote."

Take advantage of this and use them both. For information or help call, Sam Vitale at Senior Health Program; Union Hospital, 964-0444 for appointment. Send all questions to the Leader.

Senior Lifestyles

Former piano player taking a break from senior club

By Ray Lehmann Managing Editor

After parting ways for a summer of relaxing poolside with cold drinks in hand, the Springfield Senior Citizens soon will resume their activities at the Sarah Bailey Civic Center at the Church Mall in Springfield.

As part of the new slate of activities, the "Young at Heart Singers," a group of some 30 or so troubadours with a penchant for the oldies, are planning possible dates for performances at local nursing homes, senior centers or anywhere else they are invited.

But wherever they go this year, one thing will be different. Loreta Mason, a long-time member and the group's piano player for the last two years, will not be going with them. Spotlight On Seniors

By Sam Vitale

However, we seniors are becoming increasingly concerned over the adverse effect health care reform will have on the present Medicare program as it exists today.

It is already becoming jeopardized as government continues to draw money from Medicare each year to be used for other purposes.

Fifty-six billion dollars was cut from the program in 1993 and again, this year, the legislators are contemplating cutting still another $40 billion. This can only help to weaken the Medicare program, creating a major concern for the entire senior population.

This generation of seniors would like to receive some kind of assurance that they will continue to have access to Medicare in the future, no matter what happens with the final outcome of health care reform.

Medicare must be compartmentalized to be used to bankroll health care reform.

Authority seeks waste flow control law

Without the landfills that had become something of an entrenched standard in the field of New Jersey Solid Waste disposal, a crisis occurred that took more than a decade to resolve.

By Andrew J. Stewart Managing Editor Union County Utilities Authority commissioners have asked municipal officials throughout the county to urge support of legislation now before Congress that would authorize state and local governments to direct the flow of municipal solid waste.

Officials from the UCUA met with Union County mayors and other local officials last week. The authority outlined the potential implications of a court test now being conducted to determine the right of local authorities to control solid waste flow.

Fall semester begins at vocational school

The Union County Vocational-Technical Schools offer 124 full and part-time, day and evening courses at the Scotch Plains campus.

Festival on the Green celebrates 21st year with new entertainment

By Bea Smith
Lifestyle Editor

One of the reasons the Festival on the Green in Union has been so successful in the past 21 years and has drawn so many people from surrounding areas is because of the efficiency and devotion of those people in charge.

The Festival, which this year will be held Sept. 17 in Fibarger Park, and which is sponsored by the Union Township Chamber of Commerce, will feature new, live entertainment, a juried art show, prizes and a variety of foods.

"Twenty-one years ago, we started small," said James Schaefer, president of the Chamber of Commerce, who visited the office of this newspaper the other afternoon with co-chairman of the festival, Sharon Patel of Patel Printing Plus, and Frank Polodnik of Realty World. "Now," Schaefer explained, "there are 8,000 to 10,000 people attending. We have 40 or 50 artists and photographers, in addition to a great deal of entertainment and a number of clubs and organizations participating."

"Actually," he said enthusiastically, "it's a major event for Union."

"It's something that keeps improving year after year," added Patel. "It's come a long way."

"We have some new entertainment," Polodnik. "Something for everyone, including face painting for children."

Patel, who said that she has been on the committee for the past five years, mentioned that the "new entertainment includes various ethnic dances featuring Portuguese, Greek, Indian groups. We have a Scottish bagpiper, Nicholson Gregg, whose wife, an artist, has participated in the festival for many years."

"We also have a group of conditions," chuckled Polodnik, "from the Young Artists Theater Workshop, who will stroll the grounds doing Marx Brothers comedy routines. They also will perform on stage. They are from Union High School."

Patel explained that "we have the Municipal Band and the Aerobic Dance Group from the YMCA at Five Points, both of which entertained last year. So, doesn't that sound like fun?"

Schaefer said the "festivities will be going on all day long with ongoing entertainment starting at 10 a.m. and clubs and organizations will be preparing foods and soft drinks."

"I think we're very lucky," said Patel, "because we're going to have more artists and crafters than in previous years."

"Yes," said Polodnik, "we're bringing young people on the committee to serve with the seasoned people, and as a result, we're getting some new ideas. We have about 15 to 16 on the arts and photography, in addition to a great deal of entertainment and a number of clubs and organizations participating."

"Everyone has been working hard to make this event a success," explained Polodnik. "But I dare anyone to keep up with Jim Schaefer for two days. They'll run out of energy before he does."

Schaefer grinned. "We can't do without our supporting groups."

"It's a team effort," said Patel. "We, the chamber," added Schaefer,

"are putting on a major cultural event for the residential community. It is our way of showing our gratitude to the community."

"It's a front door opportunity for our community to be able to get an original piece of art for their home — and they can get it right here in Union," explained Polodnik. "Artists, photographers and crafters are coming from all over New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and New York — and they're bringing their art work to us."

"More than 21 years ago," recalled Schaefer, "Grace Lane had an idea about a festival and got together with the town officials and others who liked the idea and decided to put it up together. Some of the other founders are Les Malamut and Iv Rosenberg with unanimous sponsorship by the Chamber of Commerce. And we've always looking for improvement."

"That's when the arts community and the business community came together," said Patel. "And they combine their energies to create a very special day."

"Hopefully," said Polodnik, "it will be a sunny day on Sept. 17. We do have a rain date for Sept. 18."

Schaefer smiled confidently. "We only had two events in 21 years when it rained."

"It won't rain," Patel also smiled. "Somebody up there is looking down upon us with kindness."

DINING REVIEW

MARIO'S TRATTORIA

Some of the best fine Italian cuisine in Union.

Mario's Trattoria, located at 495 Chestnut St., in Union.

On a recent trip, my friend and I were seated at a candlelit table. We hardly had time to soak in the relaxed family atmosphere before being greeted with a complimentary basket of fresh bread and bruschetta — garlic toast smothered with fresh plum tomatoes, red onions, olive oil and garlic checks.

We sampled several appetizers including tender mussels marinated and sauteed with our favorite, the stuffed mushrooms. The "hoity-toity" shrimp has a bit of a kick, the eggplant rollatini is stuffed with fluffy ricotta cheese, and the mozzarella a carozza, with a light pastry coating, is more than typical fried cheese.

A family-style house salad with house vinaigrette dressing followed. We thoughtfully then were able to relax with the orange sorbet intermezzo because we had quite a feast ahead.

A unique egree special, recommended to us by manager Barbara Mezzo, was the chicken pecan. For $14.95 you'll get the most interesting chicken dish you've ever had. The strips of chicken coated in finely ground pecans and are served with a honey-mustard sauce. It's rich, and it's a great taste. Another entree, the veal angelina, was tender and moist, served with mushrooms, tomatoes, macaroni and a light brown gravy.

If your outer a pasta dish like the linguine malfamante — another special we tried — don't be ashamed to ask for a doggy bag, because you'll have a rough time finishing it. Our dish was pasta in white clam sauce with fresh shrimp, clams, scallops and 1/2 of a lobster mix. When the clams in a dish like

Initial concert set

The Philharmonic Orchestra of New Jersey, under the direction of Music Director George M. Maul, will present its first concert of the season Sept. 17 at 8 p.m. in the Edward Nash Theater at Rutgers Valley Community College in North Branch. The performance, with an orchestra of 85 musicians, will feature Mendelssohn's Overture and Incidental Music from "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and Dvorak's Symphony No. 9 in E Minor from the New World.

Two social events will precede the concert, the patrons' dinner and a single pre-concert dinner. A pre-concert lecture, given by Maul, will be held Sept. 12 at the Far Hills Country Day School from 7:30 to 9 p.m. The lecture will include musical excerpts and concert information. All tickets can be purchased by writing or calling the Philharmonic Orchestra of New Jersey, P.O. Box 4064, Warren, N.J. 07059, (908) 356-6165.

Additional information can be obtained by calling (908) 356-6165.

horoscope

September 4-10

ARIES — March 21/April 20
Family issues will be a concern at the beginning of the week. You may have to play the role of mediator between two estranged loved ones. For an unbiased and diplomatic opinion who asked about sensitive issues. A misplaced trust will show up in an old place.

Taurus — April 21/May 21
Career oriented. Encourages will be faced with an important decision this week. Be sure to carefully weigh the pros and cons before making any changes. Your feelings of resentment towards a family member may be unreciprocated. Look within to better understand your motivations.

GEMINI — May 22/June 21
Even if you feel comfortable with a new situation, don't take a big step. Be alert and open to new ideas and concepts. A relationship that seemed hopeless takes a step in a positive direction. Wednesday and Thursday are good days for signing contracts or approvals.

CANCER — June 22/July 22
Just when you thought you were an expert in your field, a colleague shows you a new and improved way of doing something. You'll feel inspired and amazed at the same time. A feeling of déjà vu will give you a peculiar feeling on Sunday. Good news comes in the mail.

LEO — July 23/August 23
You'll have to people a multitude of tasks this week. At work and at home. Being organized is the key to success in this situation. Avoid spending money owed to you until the debt is paid. A new romance is possible with another Leo.

VIRGO — Aug 24/Sept 23
You'll have to people a multitude of tasks this week. At work and at home. Being organized is the key to success in this situation. Avoid spending money owed to you until the debt is paid. A new romance is possible with another Leo.

LIBRA — Sept 24/Oct 23
You'll find recent events were unreciprocated. Now you can tie up loose ends and settle into a new environment. A new sense of freedom gives you a feeling of euphoria. A good time to find bargains on home hold items. Earned love beauty and those who are into an collection will find something special.

All That Dance geared for new season

Geared for another exciting season, All That Dance, 505-517 Morris Ave., in Elizabeth, is busy working on several new projects in the dance world. "Our school makes a difference. Our fun yet professional atmosphere along with talented, dedicated and certified instructors offers you the finest in quality dance education," said Michele Selvanto-Kowalski, the school's director. "Our modern studio is equipped with two large dance rooms with floating oak wood flooring, large waiting room, dressing rooms, lockers, dancewear boutique, air conditioning and on site parking. We offer a complete curriculum ranging in courses for the preschool student through the advanced professional. Classes include ballet, tap, jazz, acrobatics, lyrical, pointe, aerobic fitness, creative movement for tots, hip hop and the new Flamenco Class," she said. All That Dance has won a number of national and regional awards. Most recently, its A.T.D. dancers' senior and presenior companies traveled to St. Petersburg, Russia, to perform in the opening ceremonies of the 1994 Goodwill Games. They were invited by the organizers of the Goodwill Games and the U.S. Association of Independent Gymnastics Clubs to participate in the event. "It truly was an exciting experience dancing and meeting people from different countries around the world," Selvanto-Kowalski said. "Besides the honor and thrill of performing at Kirov Stadium, the beautiful architecture, our Russian ballet classes, the famous Kirov Ballet and learning so much about the Russian culture, the most exciting memory was teaching Russian children our American hip hop moves with the art of dance being our only means of communication — a memory of a lifetime and an opportunity given to students of All That Dance."

All That Dance's junior and presenior companies recently returned from the Star Power National Talent Competition in Ocean City, Md., after receiving one gold and three high honors for their four dance routines. Former students receiving dance positions include Laura LaGroca of The Moving Company based in Towson, Md., and Tim Williams of the Alvin Ailey Dance School in New York. Selvanto-Kowalski said, "I am dedicated to the art of dance and see that my students are given every opportunity available to excel. We are always on top of things and that is why we have the largest enrollment in the area. I have been asked to choreograph a half-time production at the Glass game on Nov. 13 involving dance and aerobics students from the tri-state area to benefit the New Jersey Lung Association and to produce and choreograph a one-hour show involving my students to be performed several times in Italy this summer. I not only teach your children — but care about them and open the doors to their success. That's what makes All That Dance different and special."

Kathleen Louis dance school excels

At The Kathleen Louis School of Dance in Springfield, children, teens and adults experience the joy of dance while reaping the accompanying physical and developmental benefits of line quality dance instruction. The Kathleen Louis School of Dance is located in Echo Plaza, Route 22 West. They can be reached at (201) 376-2111. Accommodating to beginners through professionals, the school offers extensive, versatile programs in various forms of dance and movement. Classes are offered in acrobatics, ballet, pointe, modern dance, jazz and tap. In a truly fun, yet professional environment, students acquire grace, poise and coordination. They gain good posture, rhythm, correct body placement and self confidence — valuable traits that carry on to other aspects of life. Small class sizes, especially for little ones, allow for individualized attention and facilitate learning. The spacious and airy facility, complete with raised wooden floors and on site parking, is open six days a week with the fall season beginning Sept. 8. The school's owner and director, Julie Gedrowicz, brings with her years of professional training and experience. She holds a bachelor of fine arts degree in dance from Montclair State University and is certified by the United States Gymnastics Federation. She is accompanied by a staff of talented and dedicated certified teachers. Let your child's artistic, development and creative growth soar at the Kathleen Louis School of Dance.

Registration will take place Aug. 25 and 26 from 4 to 8 p.m. and Aug. 27 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and Aug. 30, 31 and Sept. 1 from 4 to 8 p.m. Classes begin Sept. 6. For more information or a free brochure, call (908) 353-4118.

Block courses to begin

Thousands of people enjoy part-time employment and earn money each year as income tax preparers. Many receive their training in the income tax course taught by H&R Block. Block offers the Income Tax Course starting the week of September. Students can choose from morning, afternoon, evening or weekend classes located throughout Union County. Students receive hands-on experience in preparing individual tax returns, working with increasingly complex tax situations as the term progresses. The course is ideal for anyone who wants to increase his or her tax knowledge. Registration forms and brochures can be obtained by contacting H&R Block.

Consider the potential when buying a home

When making a home purchase decision, home buyers should look beyond their current personal, financial requirements and consider the property's long-term investment potential. Results value and potential appreciation are just as important as amenities and price as decision making criteria.

Several factors should be considered when evaluating a home's investment potential:

Is it in a good neighborhood? — The area of the community in which a house is located is most often a strong indicator of its present and future value. Low crime rates, quality schools and convenient access to desirable locations — such as shopping malls, grocery stores and restaurants — substantially increase home values, while proximity to airports, traffic, noisy nightclubs, poorly maintained streets and boring homes and low-quality street surfaces lower the investment potential of an otherwise suitable residence. Homes located on quiet tree-lined streets usually sell faster than those near busy intersections or highways.

Does the house have an attached garage? — An attached garage increases the attractiveness of a home and provides protection for your automobile and other vehicles, as well as additional storage space. Home buyers also should consider the size of the garage and driveway, as well as the availability of street parking for visitors, when assessing a home's potential investment value.

Has the home been maintained by previous owners? — The overall appearance of a home is crucial to its investment potential. Homes that are diligently cared for in a regular basis appear more presentable and require less drastic repairs and improvements over a long-term period. Buyers should examine the interior and exterior paint, landscaping and yard maintenance, quality and condition of carpet and tile, and the general cleanliness of the house when making a purchase decision. Check whether the home has passed inspection of has been professionally tested for termites and other insects to learn if it is structurally sound. A home with a newly-renovated kitchen featuring spacious counter tops, extensive cabinet space and windows for ventilation and natural light will be especially attractive to prospective buyers.

Next week we will continue with additional hints that you should know when evaluating a home's investment potential.

Easy Video signs lease

Weichert Commercial Realtors signed Easy Video to a long term lease for a 2,500 square foot retail site in Clark. The video store celebrated its grand opening in August, announced Weichert Commercial President Robert M. Madri. Madri, Dechtler and Vice President Rita M. Ulant of Weichert Commercial represented the landlord and tenant in the transaction. Dechtler and Ulant were hired by the landlord, Felix Fox, as exclusive brokers to lease the space, a task that required a discreet search for the proper tenant, they said. Weichert Commercial has arranged leases for Easy Video in the past, and Dechtler and Ulant approached the video store chain with a proposal for the Clark building. Due to the site's excellent location, easy access and
