Hundreds lobby state's board of review

Board of Education President Ruth Brinen testifies before the state Department of Education's board of review Monday night, assuring board members the Springfield Board of Education will be able to provide students a variety of courses if the regional district is dissolved. The board convened to hear residents of the Regional High School District discuss the merits of allowing a public referendum to settle the fate of the high school district. The board's decision is expected by Wednesday.

Residents of district split according to property taxes

During the board of review hearing convened by the state Department of Education Monday night, hundreds of residents of the Regional High School District's member towns verbally weighed class warfare.

The hearing had been intended only as a forum in which the residents would lobby the board on whether it should allow a public referendum to decide the Regional High School District's fate, but most of the dozens of speakers addressed "deregelionalization" referring to the disparity in tax levies among the six towns.

In the audience, there was no confusion about who supported each side of the argument; those in favor of the referendums wore fluorescent pink badges inscribed with the slogan "Let us vote." Residents opposed to the vote wore stickers with "Deregelionalization" printed in a circle halved by a slash.

The board of review is expected to announce its decision by Wednesday. If the referendum is granted, the voters may have the chance to settle the deregelionalization question by February.

Approximately 600 residents from the constituent municipalities, including the gymnasium of Union County College's Cranford campus. Those from Berkeley Heights, Kenilworth, Mountainside and Springfield asked the board of review to grant the referendum; residents of Clark and Garwood spoke against it.

Other speakers included elected officials from governing bodies and boards of education, and school superintendents. Among the first to speak was Garwood Mayor Michael Cincelli, who told the board of review deregelionalization would be "devastating" to his borough.

"Garwood has been a loyal partner in the regional district for 60 years," he added. "Garwood would lose the money it had invested from the beginning" if the district were dissolved.

Kenilworth Mayor Joseph Rego followed Cincelli, telling the board he thought allowing the vote would be the only way to settle the deregelionalization question fairly.

"Everyone should have the right to choose," he also said. "The democratic way may be the only way possible" to keep the towns together.

Later, Kenilworth Superintendent of Schools Lloyd Leschak outlined his school district's plans for reopening David Bearerly High School.

Referencing the regional High School Board of Education to cut costs, as the "newest and most modern school" with air conditioning and access for the handicapped, he said it would be reopened as a middle school and high school. By moving middle-school students to Bearerly, Kenilworth's Harding School would house grades K-4.

Leschak listed other assets inside the school building, including its library and science facilities, saying the high school also could accommodate students from Garwood, which

Board expected to vote on contract

By Jay Hochberg
Associate Editor

The Board of Health will hold a special meeting Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. and is expected to vote on the proposal to pull the township out of the Summit Regional Department of Health.

The matter almost had come to a vote during the board's Oct. 18 meeting, when board President Patricia Lynn said she was prepared to renew the township's contract with the Summit Regional Department, without first negotiating specific terms.

She was supported by board member Bernard Schwartz, who said he favored keeping Springfield in the regional because it was preferable to contracting the township's health services out to "unknown quantities."

Schwartz was referring to the Westfield and Union departments of health, both of which had bid earlier this year for a contract to provide Springfield's health services.

"Our first priority should be quality of services," he added. "It would be foolhardy to compromise that for a few thousand dollars."

The board agreed to postpone the vote until Wednesday after members of a volunteer committee, convened by the Township Committee to study Springfield's options regarding health services, presented board members' call for the vote.

On April 10, that committee, called the Special Advisory Committee on Establishing a Local Department of Health, released its report, recommending the township leave the Summit department and form its own department of health.

That committee, established by township ordinance last year, spent three months examining the Summit Regional Department and other neighboring towns' departments of health to find alternatives for Springfield.

It recommended withdrawing from the Summit department after finding Springfield had been denied services for which it had been paying for years. According to internal studies conducted by Summit's former health officer, Springfield has benefited less in 10 of the 38 services the regional provides to its four constituent municipalities, and in seven additional areas, Springfield received no service.

Many of the regional's failures in providing services constitute violations of state laws.

Police endorse GOP township candidates

The Springfield Police Officers' Benevolent Association and Superior Officers Association endorsed Republican Township Committee candidates William Ruocco and Judith Diltzer Monday.

In a statement issued by PBA President Mitchell Fenton and SOA President Robert Johnson, the two said the Township Committee under Mayor Marcia Forman has been unresponsive to the safety needs of Springfield residents.

"As police supervisors and officers, we're concerned about our ability to protect people and property," said the two policemen in a prepared statement. "For almost two years, we've requested meetings with Mayor Marcia Forman, to discuss things that keep us from doing our jobs properly. She hasn't even bothered to reply. Her lack of caring hurts everyone."

Since June, Ruocco and Diltzer have been campaigning on a platform that

General Assembly candidates discuss state policies

The four candidates vying for District 21's two seats in the General Assembly met at Caldwell College Friday night to discuss their ideas of state government during a forum hosted by the Montclair-area League of Women Voters.

Incumbent Republican Assemblyman Monroe Lustbader, his running mate, Cedar Grove Republican Mayor Kevin O'Toole, and Democrats Kay Slattery and Springfield Township Committeewoman Roy Ijzchfeld discussed issues facing state government and answered questions posed by the moderator and members of the audience.

Taxation was a subject mentioned several times during the discussion, and the candidates were asked what they had done in their careers in government to reduce or minimize taxes.

Ijzchfeld, looking back on his 10 months on Springfield's governing body, said his role, in the township's budgeting process was limited because taxes had gone up before he had taken office.

On March 28, Hirschfeld and the three other Democrats on the Township Committee voted to pass a $1.3 million increase in Springfield's municipal taxes.

When asked to clarify his statement on keeping taxes down, Hirschfeld said the Township Committee had to raise taxes in order to "clean up the mess" made by the previous Republican administration and that he would not vote to raise taxes again.

In Springfield, the Democratic Party has held the majority on the Township Committee for three years.

Answering the same question, Lustbader told the audience of his votes in the Assembly in support of Gov. Christine Whitman's 20 percent reduction in the state income tax, and his support of the Republican Legislature's cut in the sales tax.

Slattery, who had served 12 years on the Caldwell-West Caldwell Board of Education, told the audience of her efforts to spend that board's surplus funds to prevent tax increases.

O'Toole, who also serves as chief of staff to Essex County Executive James Treffinger, said his efforts to streamline that county's bureaucracy — including privatization of street services — has reduced government spending and is expected to result in a $15 million savings to taxpayers.

The candidates also were asked to define their goals for District 21.

Lustbader said he was committed to property tax relief, in addition to seeing several bills he'd sponsored signed into law. One bill would prohibit

Letters to the editor

Overcrowding: a case in point

To the Editor:
 Oct 27 was School Picture Day at Franklin School. As happens every year, the photographer was at the school all day taking pictures. This year, though, things weren't so simple for him at Franklin.
 In previous years, the photography session took place in the cafeteria. Now with Franklin's increased enrollment - general music, hand and orchestra, as well as lunch, keep the cafeteria filled all day, every day.
 When the annual school pictures canceled?
 Mrs. Gina Kingburg, the Franklin principal, moved out of her office for the day so the pictures could be shot there.
 This is just one small example of overcrowding at our elementary school. But it begs the question: Why are Bob Wolfenbarger and Don Anderson (and their groups, Genesee and the Summit Taxpayers Association) taking issue with the Franklin expansion when it is so obviously needed?
 The lack of space at Franklin is a problem that has been recognized, discussed, dissected and debated since 1991. A town-wide advisory committee studied every possibility, and in April of 1995, recommended expansion as the most economically feasible and educationally sound solution. The Board of Education approved the plan, the Board of School Estimates approved the plan, the Common Council approved the bond ordinance to fund the plan. They took the city to court. Superior Court Judge Beglin ruled unequivocally in favor of the city.
 Bob Wolfenbarger and Don Anderson have just filed an appeal.
 Thousands of taxpayer dollars and untold hours of the school and city administrators went into the defense of the first suit. But Bob Wolfenbarger and Don Anderson didn't agree with the decision of the presiding judge of Union County Superior Court - one of the most respected judges in the state. Now how many more taxpayer dollars will have to be wasted on this frivolous appeal? How Common Council being forced to spend on this appeal? Hours and dollars that could be spent addressing real problems.

 I wish Bob Wolfenbarger and Don Anderson, along with the Summit Taxpayers Association, would use their time and resources wisely to seek real, long-lasting tax relief for our citizens and equitable funding for the public schools of New Jersey. Instead, by their frivolous actions first - in my opinion - personal reasons, they are causing harmful tax relief dollars to be wasted.

Be a First Night Summit booster

To the Editor:
 The place to be this New Year's Eve will once again be at First Night Summit, your non-alcoholic celebration of the arts. So mark your calendar now! More than 80 performances at 15 different downtown locations, all within easy walking distance. This year we will offer an even wider range of artists selected to appeal to all ages and interests. The price of admission is $10, unchanged from last year. And the advance sales period when the price is only $7 will be Dec. 1 until Dec. 27, making First Night badges a super idea for your holiday stocking stuffers.
 But this community celebration of the arts will only be successful with your help. First, please plan on attending First Night Summit and enjoying the events ranging from jazz to classical, from country western to K-pop. There will be a Battle of the Bands for the young adult audience. There are storytellers, comedians and magicians for children of all ages, and a long list of other performers. Programs listing artists, events, and scheduled activities can be obtained when badges are purchased.

 Second, whether or not you can attend on New Year's Eve, please consider making a tax-deductible contribution right now to help First Night Summit long-lasting tax relief for our citizens and equitable funding for the public schools of New Jersey. Instead, by their frivolous actions first - in my opinion - personal reasons, they are causing harmful tax relief dollars to be wasted.

Rajoppi looks to serve at a critical juncture

On Tuesday, Nov. 7, a new Union County clerk will be elected. This is a critical election because the new clerk will not only administer the Office of Clerk but will, most likely, administer my office, the Office of County Register of Deeds. Clearly, this election centers on who is the most qualified to serve.
 I serve as the Union County register of deeds and have been elected by you to this position three times in the past 12 years. I administer, protect and preserve the integrity and security of the title to your home and property throughout the county. I earned a master's degree in public administration and I run an $8 million-a-year department. I'm a businesswoman.
 I've also served as New Jersey's assistant secretary of state, Union County freholder director and mayor of Springfield. My two children and I are lifelong residents of Union County and we live in Union.
 Earlier this year, state legislation was introduced calling for a merger of the register's office and the clerk's office. Let's look at the issue closely. On Jan. 1, the Union County clerk's office lost most of its staff and many of its functions when it was transferred to the state judiciary. The result: An office with fewer than 10 employees and revenue less than $250,000.
 My office, on the other hand, is a $8 million revenue producer, with a staff of 25 and a budget of $10,000,000 annually. My opponents would be hard-pressed to find a recording office of comparable size or efficiency as we are. One of the primary functions of the

Griffith running in protest of bossism

Editor's note: This page contains statements submitted by the three candidates running for county clerk in Tuesday's election. Joanne Rajoppi is a Democrat, Bob Griffith is an Independent, and Paul O'Keefe is a Republican. Voters may choose one.
 My name is Bob Griffith. I need your help. This is how I, an independent candidate for county clerk, have been greeting the voters of Union County for the past four weeks. My political opponents are so worried about my aggressive style of campaigning that they are pulling down my signs, giving me parking tickets, and even having me arrested.
 State Sen. Raymond Lesniak and Elizabeth Mayor Curtis Bollwage consider me the enemy because I dared to run against their handpicked candidate for county clerk, Joanne Rajoppi. My response to the senator and the mayor is simply that a party that does not allow the committee people to pick their own candidates is no longer Democratic. I run in strong protest to the bossism in the Union County Democratic Party.
 I am the former president of the Elizabeth City Council on which I served for 18 years. I also chaired the Elizabeth Insurance Commission for 13 years and was a member of the Alcohol Beverage Control Board and the Planning Board, as well as being picked by former Elizabeth Mayor Tom Duna to serve on the mayor's Economic Advisory Council. I was

O'Keefe plans to follow in footsteps of Halpin

The Union County clerk's office is a constitutional office that by law has to be nonpolitical and administrative in nature. The office represents the federal, state and county governments in a variety of legal transactions. The county clerk for 29 years was Walter Halpin, who earned a reputation for fairness, impartiality and excellence. It is that tradition that I will keep in dealing with the people of Union County.
 I served as deputy county clerk and my government experience includes two terms (eight years) as the deputy elected mayor of Plainfield and two terms on the Union County Freeholder Board.
 The background that has served me the best in the clerk's office has been my business experience. The management principles of cost containment, increased customer service and employee satisfaction have been important to the efficiency of the office. When comparing the responsibilities of the office to the private undefeated in five council elections in Elizabeth, often winning by large pluralities.

 I am president of the O'Donnell Agency, which was founded in Elizabeth in 1880. I am married to the former Mary Byrne Griffin, and have six children. Some of my activities in Elizabeth include chairman of the Cancer Drive and the March of Dimes, coach of St. Genevieve's grammar school basketball team and baseball coach in the Elmira Little League.
 I have operated a good size insurance business for 35 years, meeting a hefty payroll each week which I believe is a good indication of my administrative ability. I also ran the Elizabeth City Council as its president. The City of Elizabeth has over 110,000 people and a municipal budget of over $100,000,000. I graduated from college with a bachelor of arts degree in business and have taken numerous business courses at Rutgers University.
 I was born in Elizabeth 58 years ago and I intend to die here. It is not permissible for Lesniak or Bollwage to destroy the City of Elizabeth or the Union County Democratic Party. They have just begun to see this Irish man fight, and there are more joining this noble effort every day. So well known is my candidacy that voters in Elizabeth and other cities are now calling me by my often-advertised lever position on the ballot, C-4.

An accomplished officer, Nevargic aims for sheriff

Editor's note: This page contains statements submitted by the two candidates seeking the sheriff's post in Tuesday's election. Ralph Froehlich is a Democrat and Pete Nevargic is a Republican.

I can be most accurately described as a cop and a man dedicated to his family and friends. A little more than 31 years ago, I made the decision to be a police officer. After serving my country in the Submarine Fleet during the height of the Cold War, I joined the Newark Police Force in 1964.

Pete Nevargic

I decided that I wanted a career that would have a positive impact on people's lives. Now, 31 years later, I'm proud that I have dedicated my life to fighting crime and protecting the people of Newark.

As a resident of Clark Township for the past 27 years, I am challenging incumbent Ralph Froehlich for the position of Union County sheriff in the Nov. 7 election.

It's time for a change for the better. I'm running for Union County sheriff because I want to make the department a viable law enforcement agency. There is no place in Union County government for patronage positions and the reversion of personal favors.

I've been talking to people during the past several months and have been shocked to discover how unsafe they feel right here at home. I think it's shameful that seniors do not feel safe in communities when they visit loved ones who have passed on.

While a newcomer to the political arena and not a career politician, I have received the Class A Medal of Honor for Bravery Under Fire, which is the Police Department's highest commendation. In addition, I have received three medals of merit for bravery, six medals of excellence and 26 command citations.

In 1968, I was selected by the Federal Bureau of Investigation to be trained at its academy in Quantico in a new program for special weapons and tactics. My ability did not go unnoticed. During the 1970s, I was promoted to detective sergeant and became field supervisor for the Narcotics Bureau. During my tenure, the bureau was responsible for over 1,000 drug arrests. I was personally involved with almost 200 of the arrests.

Froehlich looks 'to serve the people'

The incumbency of Ralph Froehlich as Union County sheriff is best characterized by two words, success and progress. I am a career law enforcement officer with 38 years service and the recipient of many awards including the valor award for saving three children in 1963.

Ralph Froehlich

My office has been successful in achieving our operational mandate. In this just term, the sheriff's office provided a court security system to the courts that has become the model for all other agencies in the state.

Statements are easy but figures support these assertions. During the past three years over one million visitors and employees have passed through the courthouse complex. One thousand five hundred weapons have been confiscated. Sheriff's officers have successfully completed over 60,000 prisoner escorts without an escape.

The sheriff's Fugitive Unit is averaging 1,400 arrests yearly while the Domestic Violence Unit has served 1,300 restraining orders each year. The sheriff's Business Officers produced $663,000 in revenue in 1994 while the Search and Rescue Unit is responsible for the detection of a significant volume of narcotics and has received $119,000 in "confiscated funds" from the Drug Enforcement Agency in recognition of their efforts in 1994.

My fiscal policy demonstrates conservative financial management. The demands placed upon the Sheriff's Office have grown significantly due to the warfare in crime, criminal and civil litigation, increase in domestic violence and proliferation of new state mandates. Nevertheless, I, along with my subordinates, have managed these new responsibilities while keeping within the budget and experiencing no staff increases than other county agencies.

Success describes achievement of expectations. Progress indicates growth and innovation. The Sheriff's Office has taken the initiative in areas of crime prevention, community service and assistance to other law enforcement agencies. During the past three years, we have produced three community service videos, "Be Smart, Play It Safe," "Get Away and Get a Groovy Up," and "Teens and Guns, An American Tragedy." We also have published three booklets for senior citizens, "Domestic Violence: What You Need to Know," "Domestic Violence: What You Need to Do," and "Domestic Violence: What You Need to Avoid."

In 1998, we will be celebrating the 100th anniversary of the Sheriff's Office. It is my goal to make this anniversary a time of reflection and achievement for the public. I am your sheriff. I have always made myself available to you and will continue to do so in recognition of my primary mandate: "To Serve the People!"

Hospital educates about vaccine

Many people are not aware that this year pneumonia will strike approximately 3.5 million people, and that pneumococcal pneumonia will take 40,000 lives. Nor do they know that there is an effective preventive measure against pneumococcal pneumonia: a vaccine. Overlook Hospital is offering an ongoing educational program on pneumococcal pneumonia so people can learn more about pneumonia and how to protect themselves.

development of antibiotics. But despite medical advances in its treatment, pneumonia — combined with the flu — is now the sixth leading cause of death in the United States.

Pneumococcal pneumonia is a acute infection of the lungs caused by a bacterium called streptococcus pneumoniae that works its way into the lungs. The disease is treated with antibiotics. Although many people recover, a significant number do not. Pneumococcal pneumonia can strike anyone at any age, but it is a very serious threat to people over 65. Of the 40,000 deaths each year from pneumococcal pneumonia, 85 percent are in the 65 and older age group. One study reports that the death rate from pneumococcal pneumonia is 2.5 times higher for people age 65 to 74 than for the general population. Over 75, the death rate is 10 times higher.

Also at increased risk of pneumococcal pneumonia are those with chronic conditions, such as heart, kidney, diabetes or lung disease; nursing home residents; and those with a weakened immune system.

Although it is the only vaccine available for any type of pneumonia, the pneumococcal vaccine has been greatly underutilized.

Overlook is one of many health-care institutions joining forces to fight the disease through "Pneumonia Prevention," a national pneumococcal pneumonia education and immunization program. "Of those at high risk for pneumococcal pneumonia, only 14 percent receive the vaccine," said Joyce Jukofsky, community outreach coordinator at Overlook Hospital. "One of the reasons so few people are immunized is a lack of public awareness. Overlook is offering this educational program to meet this critical health care need in our county."

On the No. 1 cause of death in the United States, pneumonia was brought under control in 1936 by the Highly-talented artists from throughout New Jersey and beyond will make their work available when the Union County Vocational-Technical Schools hold its fourth annual fundraising Arts and Crafts Holiday Boutique at the Raritan Road campus. Dazzling CRYSTAL exhibits will be the beneficiaries of the event; jobs will be held indoors on Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

All proceeds will be distributed by the sponsoring Awards Committee during the annual Awards Night ceremony held prior to graduation in June.

Bill Evans and the ABC-TV All Stars, featuring Ross Layton of "One Life to Live," will play a benefit basketball game against the Nu Delta Phi Fraternity of Kean College on Saturday at 7 p.m. The game will be played in the O'Leary Gymnasium on the college campus at 1500 Morris Ave., Union.

Here, youngsters will explore flight technology by using a flight simulator and testing various wingtip designs in a wind tunnel. Learn weather patterns and forecast weather conditions from on-site weather stations, calculate the aerodynamic lift of a wing, and then synthesize it to test its strength.

Midge Guenther, host of the Emmy Award-winning children's show "Arvind and About New Jersey," will be presenting "Whispering Waters," an interactive workshop on the Leni Lenape Nation for first- and second-grade students. The workshop will be held at the Donald B. Palmer Museum on the Springfield Public Library on Nov. 10 from 10:15-11:15 a.m. Guenther will be joined by Janet Cantow Watson, director of Arts Education at the Villagers' Theatre and an original member of the Shodorring.

Playwright Guenther will weave a Native American tale that deals with New Jersey's first people. The workshop begins with each participant using sea shells and feathers to decorate their own costume. The children will then be taught a riddle and integrate it into a fabric. This provides a way to discover more about the people who lived in this state long ago. The workshop is limited to 30 children and pre-registration is required. Each child must bring a brown paper bag and should wear music, wall murals, the latest in computer and telecommunications equipment, including CD-ROM and interactive videodiscs, plus hands-on activities. Superintendent Gary Friedland and Assistant Superintendent Judy Zimmerman will be joined by Rhonda Dean, director of Communications of Synergistic Systems, and students for the program. Synergistic Systems, a subsidiary of Pitco, Inc. of Overburg, Kansas, provides an innovative curriculum to more than 900 middle schools in the country.

FDA expands eligibility list for implant recipients

Cochlear implants, sometimes known as "bionic ears," are surgically implanted devices which have allowed profoundly deaf adults and children to regain hearing ability. Until recently, only two categories of patients qualified to become candidates for cochlear implants: pediatric or adult patients who became deaf after acquiring speech and were unable to receive any benefit from conventional hearing aids, or children who were born deaf or became deaf at an early age before speech was acquired and who did not receive any benefit from conventional hearing aids.

Now, the United States Food and Drug Administration has expanded the use of cochlear implants to two new populations: severe to profound hearing-impaired adults who use hearing aids but get little benefit and adults who became deaf before or around the time that speech was developing.

The FDA, an arm of the Department of Health and Human Services, announced that the new eligibility criteria will be applied to patients in the hearing-impaired adult track in the nationwide hearing-aid trials.

Sheriff receives requests for videotape

By Jake Ullick
Staff Writer

The hottest video in town can't be found at Blockbuster, and it wasn't made by Disney.

Appropriately enough, this "most wanted" video, "Be Smart, Play It Safe," came from the Union County Sheriff's Office — and that may be the problem. With the ability to make only one copy at a time, the office can't keep up with tremendous demand for this cassette that teaches youngsters how to avoid potentially dangerous situations.

The Sheriff's Office may be a lot of things to a lot of people, but a video production studio it is not.

"No way did I ever expect the number of calls that have come in," said Sheriff Ralph Froehlich, who conceived the video.

In the 17-minute tape, actual members of Union County Sheriff's Office play both the parents who teach and the strangers who tempt. The kids, who in real life are students at Victor H. School 21, show how to respond to advances by potentially dangerous adults.

Five hundred requests for "Be Smart, Play It Safe" have come in since the video's debut last week, Froehlich said.

Why has this video taken off? During an interview in his office this week, Froehlich said these days protecting children from strangers is the most concern to parents.

"We are presenting a subject that parents are frightened about," Froehlich said. "Every time you pick up a newspaper, you read of one of these frightening incidents."

"It's the issue of the day," said Lieutenant Vincent De Troilo, who did some of the video's directing work. "People are worried about their kids."

"Be Smart, Play It Safe" is dedicated to the girl who has become the state's most well-known victim of abuse at the hands of adults: seven-year-old Megan Kanka. The Hamilton Township girl was killed last year by a convicted sex offender.

But unlike the subsequently created Megan's Law requiring community notification when a sex offender moves into the area, "Be Smart, Play It Safe" takes a purely educational approach to child safety, reinforcing the message "don't talk to strangers."

In sequence after sequence, kids in the video are shown how to politely but firmly walk away from entreaties from strangers. In one scene, a child walking home from school is beckoned by a man carrying leaves on his front lawn.

"Join me for some pizza," he says. Rebuffed, he then offers to show the child a movie.

"I don't know you," the child responds. "I've got to go now."

Some scenarios become more complicated. In one, a girl is left home alone and a stranger calls asking for her mom. "Is your mom home, I need to speak with her. It's an emergency," the stranger persists.

Unshaken, the girl says her mother is busy, please leave a message. The message here, of course, is don't call strangers you are home alone.

Just like learning to obey traffic signals or fire drills, kids should know the sights and sounds of potential dangers coming from unknown adults, the video states.

"We all know that there are people in the streets who hurt little children," Froehlich says in the video. "Sometimes you are very trusting and sometimes you can't do that."

But it's a limit to how cautious a child should be?

Possibly, the sheriff said. "Can we make children too paranoid? The answer is yes," he said.

But, Froehlich said, protecting someone from a tragedy that can haunt an entire lifetime is worth it.

"I'm confident that we have already saved some children from a horrible experience," he said.

Anyone wanting a copy of "Be Smart, Play It Safe" is asked to call their local elementary school.

The American Cancer Society's annual Great American Smokeyout will be held on Nov. 16. All smokers are asked to quit for 24 hours in hopes they will quit for good. This is why we have suggested that the elementary schools in Union County organize a Smokeyout, where all students go outside at 1 p.m. on Nov. 16 and scream out against smoking.

Celebrating its 19th year, the Great American Smokeyout has helped thousands of people to stop smoking. For more information, call the Union County Unit of the American Cancer Society at (908) 354-7373.

Challenger to shoot it out for sheriff

By Chris Gatto
Regional Editor

Two long-time law-enforcement officers will be shooting it out with one another during Tuesday's election to decide who will serve as the county's sheriff.

The showdown will feature incumbent Sheriff Ralph Froehlich, an 18-year veteran of the office, and Newark Police Capt. Pete Nevargic, a Clerk resident, who will like to reform the Office of the Sheriff if voters provide him with an opportunity to accomplish such a task. Also, he envisions something regarding control of the jail.

Froehlich, whose focus has had much to do with attempting to steer children away from gangs as well as addressing matters of domestic violence, is known by residents as an all-around likable guy.

But, Nevargic says that's about as far as going to be a politician because the officers were not sufficiently trained. If he knew there would be a runoff, he would have run for the Union County position before-hand to build a name for himself.

Also, Nevargic said the sheriff would need to be able to handle the jail, but he would not want to be a "jail warden" before heading to implement a court security system in Union County.

Whether it be proactive or reactive, Froehlich notes that more than 1,500 apprehensions have been made from various to county courthouses in the past three years.

Nevargic joined the Newark Police Department in 1964, after serving his military duty in Vietnam. He was promoted to sergeant in 1992, and subsequently was appointed by the city's police director as chief administrative officer. In that position, he supervised all personnel matters for nearly 1,500 police and civilian personnel.

Nevargic claims Froehlich's office is mired with political enemies — many Civil Service employees — and that he would like to see the sheriff's office reorganized. He has a goal of $200,000 annually, and has two annual salaries, $55,000 for the winter appointee and $72,000 for the summer appointee. He has two second-in-command. It is the candidates that are all of the work and Froehlich's "frustration" from the violence, said Nevargic.

GOP looks to up numbers on board

By Chris Gatto
Regional Editor

Republicans will be seeking to increase their majority on the Board of Chosen Freeholders when voters go to the polls Tuesday.

GOP freeholders, who will maintain majority on the board of at least 5 to 4 no matter what happens next week, would take overwhelming control of the board if they sweep the three slots up for election.

Seeking the nomination as Republicans are Rahway Councilman James Fulcomer, Roselle Mayor Joseph Safaryn and Nick Giuditta of Cranford. Democrats, who hope to maintain a voice on the board, are incumbent Daniel Sullivan, Carl Cohen of Woodside and Walter McNeil of Plainfield.

These in favor of bipartisan government are also three slots up for election this year must be retained by Democrats, or it would throw the board's balance out of whack. But, voters say a greater majority on the board would provide the best chance of the board's ability to address the county's needs.

Three candidates seek post of retired county clerk

By Chris Gatto
Regional Editor

One thing's for sure in this year's county clerk race: An incumbent will not get the nod.

With the retirement of Walter Halpin as Union County clerk, the field is wide open for the three candidates seeking the post.

Acting County Clerk Paul O'Keefe, county Register of Deeds and Mortgages James Rajoppi and former Elizabeth Councilman Bob Griffith are competing for the post.

Griffith on Tuesday will be asked to go to the polls and choose who they would best be able to protect their personal and property records.

Griffith is president of O'Donnell Agency, Inc., a family-owned insurance company in Elizabeth, and served six council terms in that city.

The 58-year-old city native said his management style is one that puts the customer first, something he says he believes will rub off on his staff if he is elected.

Griffith says he is optimistic about his chances even as he discovered that 42 percent of registered voters in Union County consider themselves to be Independent.

A former president of the County Officers Association of New Jersey, Rajoppi has served as county register for 12 years. He is the former mayor of Springfield as well as a former assistant secretary of state for New Jersey.

O'Keefe, a lifelong Plainfield resident, is a veteran of the United States Navy and that city's former mayor. He is a graduate of Holy Cross College in Worcester, Mass., and served as a senior assistant executive for Mortgage Guaranty Insurance Company in Philadelphia.

As acting clerk, O'Keefe has been instrumental in expanding the size of the clerk's Westfield office by 20 percent in an additional $200,000, while increasing responsibility for the office. He says this was done in an effort to make it more convenient for residents who can't make it to the clerk's office during regular business hours.

He also plans to bring the clerk's office to the county's new headquarters in Springfield, which would require the construction of a new building.

It is expected that the winner will be the candidate who is most qualified for the position, which would require overseeing the $8 million a year generated by the register's office in addition to that which is produced by the clerk's office.

All candidates say a savings can be made if the clerk's office is merged with the register's office, although they would not agree on how the merger would be implemented.

Rajoppi has made the idea of merging the two offices an important part of his campaign, arguing that the GOP-controlled Freeholder Board has proposed the merger as a means of saving the county money.

O'Keefe, a freeholder from 1984-89, is seeking the post as a Republican, while Griffith, a Democrat, is running as an Independent.

With the state takeover of the county, a light about 40 employees on the clerk's office, something which O'Keefe would like to see done in the next few weeks, he said. He has been an officer for 29 years, but earned an annual salary of $27,000. The clerk's office has a budget of $1.5 million.

Griffith, who would actually take a pay cut if he were to be elected county clerk, said that he has a goal of $200,000 annually, and has two annual salaries, $55,000 for the winter appointee and $72,000 for the summer appointee. He has two second-in-command. It is the candidates that are all of the work and Froehlich's "frustration" from the violence, said Nevargic.

Cohen will strive to get things accomplished

Editor's note: This page includes statements prepared by three of the six candidates seeking election to the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders on Tuesday. Statements of the remaining candidates are on the opposite page. Republicans are Nick Giuditta, James Fulcomer and Joseph Safaryn. Democrats include Carol Cohen, Walter McNeil and Daniel Sullivan. Voters may choose three.

My experience in county government began as an attorney for the Union County Board of Social Services. There I helped enforce child support obligations of delinquent parents. From there I moved on to assist county government. In that role, I was able to recover over $2.5 million in forfeited bail bonds for the taxpayers of Union County.

I have been a resident of Westfield for 25 years. I raised my two sons here and have my law practice in town. Prior to being admitted to the bar, I was a school teacher and worked as a supervisor of adoption for the Division of Youth and Family Services. I am particularly concerned about

Carol Cohen

Continued progress is called for by Giuditta

I want to be a Union County freeholder because I feel it rewarding to serve in positions where I can shape public policies that have a beneficial impact on people's lives. I was born and raised in Westfield where my family has lived since the dawn of the 20th century. My grandmother, an Italian immigrant, was one of the first women to own a business in town. Union County has many similar success stories which make us all proud.

Presently, I reside in Cranford with my wife, Francine. I firmly believe that our best days are ahead of us and that Union County can remain an outstanding place for young families and businesses to establish themselves. This vision of what our county's future can be has inspired me to seek public office as your county representative.

Government needs problem solvers who can interact with diverse individuals and arrive at solutions which are in the best interests of their constituents. As an attorney, I routinely deal with people from all walks of life. I help them confront difficult problems and find workable solutions by listening closely to their concerns. ## Fulcomer envisions jobs coming with Metro Mall

James J. Fulcomer was a freeholder from 1986-88, when he proposed a county property tax cut, opposed freeholder salary raises, helped to build a new county jail to ease dangerous overcrowding, built a new Runnells medical facility to save tax dollars on operating expenses, created the county improvement authority to raise tax dollars and never missed a freeholder meeting. Freeholder candidate Fulcomer is finishing up his fourth term as a Rahway councilman. He was the first chairman of the Union County Utilities Authority and the first chairman of the County Environmental Health Advisory Board. An Elizabeth High School graduate, he received his master of arts degree in political science from New York University. His bachelor of arts degree in education from Kean College, and his high school diploma from Union High School in Union Township, Union County. He is a lifelong Union County resident.

can freeholders over Democrat opposition, already have started for the county clerk's office, would bring their pay down closer to a department head's lower pay, rather than the higher county manager's salary. This offers a potential savings of $30,000 next year.

I oppose the over $15 million of unnecessary taxation that separates my running mates and me from my Democrat opponents. We cannot afford the over $11 million in new taxes the county would have to raise for bonds because of the $7.2 million give-away program proposed by my opponents. We should investigate the $2.2 million lost by the Democrat utilities authority in the purchase of Bedle Place, Linden, and get laws adopted to prevent the possibility of such future losses. We need to consolidate the register and clerk's office to save $1.4 million during a register's roving duty county manager job for a savings of over $300,000 during a freeholder's term, an initiative which the Republican freeholders are working to achieve. We need to cut the starting salaries of all new constitutional county officers. This is an issue which the Republican freeholders are working to achieve.

We need to build on the present Republican freeholder success in lowering tax increases, in drastically lowering spending increases, and in promoting employment. We need to promote Republican Senate President Donald DiFrancesco's plan to dredge the Elizabeth Port area and we need to help the downtown business districts of our county grow. The Republican freeholders success in getting the state legislation needed for the new Metro Mall in Elizabeth is just the start of aggressive action that will help to energize our county economy. We need to develop a demomanufacturing industry to recycle machinery and create new jobs. These initiatives plus the needed improvement of our county transportation system would enhance greatly the growth of our county economy and create new jobs.

Interviews slated at rape crisis center

The Union County Rape Crisis Center is interviewing for the following groups:

- a group for adult female survivors of rape
- a group for young adult survivors ages 19 to 30 addressing different kinds of sexual assault.

Safaryn wants to make county better

Four years ago, I entered politics to make a positive difference in the community of Roselle, and now I want to become a freeholder so that I can make a positive difference in Union County.

I would bring to the freeholder position strong academic credentials as well as business and governmental experience that would enable me to be an effective freeholder. I have a bachelor of science degree from St. Peter's College, a master of business administration degree from New York University, a law degree from Seton Hall University Law School, and for over 40 years I have been associated with the pharmaceutical industry. At the end of December, I plan to retire and devote myself full time to improving our county.

Joseph Safaryn

As a resident of Union County for over 30 years, I am well aware of the problems and challenges we face as we prepare to enter the 21st century. We need to redevelop our blighted areas bringing new retail and service businesses into replace the manufacturing plants which have closed. We need to aggressively pursue the immediate dredging of Port Elizabeth before our economy suffers irreparable damage. We need to continue to fight property tax increases, but make sure we do not sacrifice essential services.

Privatization, economy on top of Sullivan's list

When I was selected to serve an unexpired term on the Board of Freeholders, it gave me the opportunity to start to address some of the needs of Union County residents.

One of the first battles I faced was my opposition to the decision of the Republican majority to keep $7 million, a one-time shot used to court settlement. It was obvious to me that the money should have gone back directly to the residents. To keep that money, and attempt to budget time to say that taxes were being lowered was a sham and hoax on the people of Union County.

I am convinced that tax relief and growth in Union County can be achieved. The recent Kapkowski Road project in Elizabeth and private growth expansion at a U.S. refinery in Linden, both point to the potential that exists.

At this point, however, it is still just potential. A key element of the growth of Union County is a revitalization of Elizabeth as a transit hub, and more simply providing alternatives to the private auto for the residents of Union County. The $200 million potential for the Morris Avenue Transitway Station, the South Avenue corridor project offer exciting new vistas to provide jobs access and a spirit of growth in Union County.

As a freeholder, we not only have to be advocates for growth, we must be more aggressive as a forum for fighting those plans which decrease the quality of life in our county.

We face the attempt of the Port Authority to raise a new level on the Goethals Bridge, and the pressing of Mayor Giuliani to raise the PATH fare for New Jersey riders. The Goethals Bridge addition would be devastating for the Route 1 corridor. At the very time we face clean air compliance, this project would play havoc with traffic and pollute even more air.

The PATH fare increase has been of special concern. While we're promoting mass transit, along comes this absurd attempt to raise fares. Let me tell you about a young commuter I met at the Roselle Park rail station. She was from Springfield, and each morning she drives around in Connecticut.

Democrats, in turn, lashed out at Republican freeholder candidates for costing taxpayers more than $500,000 as a result of a meeting with the UCUA's public relations company. Republicans said they were unaware at the time that a bill would be submitted to the authority as a result of their meeting with Coleman & Pellet.

As for the county's growing deer population, all candidates say they believe measures must be taken to address the situation. The majority of the candidates favored using sharpshooters due to its cost-effectiveness and safety factors, but would opt for a more "humane" approach were it to be affordable and proven to be effective.

McNeil said trapping and transporting deer would have been the route he'd have taken.

McNeil ready to make hard choices

Recently, while out on the campaign trail, one of the residents of the Union County would be in the bad straits we are in today? What I think he meant was that our parents saw Union County as a place of opportunity. It was a mix of jobs, good housing and above all, a time of optimism. Our parents believed that our generation would continue to prosper and grow in Union County.

Well, the 7 percent unemployment rate, higher than the state average, the abandoned manufacturing plants, the failure to get our ports dredged, the runaway costs of the utilities authority, all point to a county government that is not cutting the mustard.

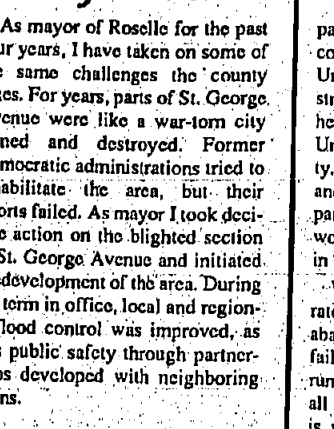

As freeholder, I will do more than point to the problem. I will work to implement a plan to solve the problems in our county. If the banks don't share our optimism for the future they don't deserve our money.

What I want is a Board of Freeholders which is active in the 21st century. A subject of real concern is the Union County Utilities Authority. Now, this is an example of a public agency run amok. In less than two years, it has abandoned properties back on the tax rolls as productive real estate and a source of new jobs. I am interested in the new initiative in the state Senate to waive county and local taxes in exchange for the funds going directly into cleanup costs.

Another aspect of my economic development plan is to develop an intermodal transit plan. We face serious congestion problems, for example, in Berkeley Heights and New Providence because of the planned Council Development. We must develop transit links from the Berkeley Heights and New Providence train stations to prevent gridlock.

As a county, we must also come to grips with the Community Reinvestment Act. Union County should not be some well publicized, if limited, attempt at privatization. There is universal agreement that market competition, cost efficiency and stimulus quality. Local, county and state spending has doubled over the past eight years. A plan which includes some privatization, and economic growth for Union County and, of course, new transit initiatives is the path I want to pursue and which I seek election to the Board of Freeholders.

McNeil ready to make hard choices

Regal enhances strong reputation

Buick's 1996 Regal features an updated standard V-6 engine, a new, more powerful optional V-6 and numerous other features to enhance its reputation as a premium American midsize car.

Regal, offered in Custom and Gran Sport, coupe and sedan and Limited, sedan models, continues to provide such standard safety and security features as dual air bags, anti-lock brakes and a PASS-Key II theft-deterrent system.

"Regal provides comfort, performance and security in a premium midsize car," said Buick General Manager Edward H. Metz. "Regal's contemporary styling, comfortable interior and acclaimed Buick quality make it a strong competitor for import and domestic sedans."

Regal's quality was recently acknowledged when J.D. Power and

Buick continues to equip Regal with a full range of comfort and convenience features. Standard for 1996 are cruise control, power windows, power mirrors, automatic power door locks and an AM-FM radio with a cassette player.

Associates, an independent customer research firm, listed Regal first in the midsize coupe category in its 1995 Initial Quality Study, based on fewest customer-reported problems.

Standard equipment on the Regal Custom, a 160-horsepower 3100 V-6. This engine receives numerous updates for 1996, making it smoother and more efficient.

Optional on the Regal Custom, and standard on the Limited and Gran Sport, is the 205-horsepower 3800 Series II V-6, introduced on the 1995 Riviera.

Regal's standard dual Comfort-Temp climate controls allow the driver and front seat passenger to independently adjust the temperature in each area of the car.

A new low-torque-axis engine mount system reduces engine noise and vibration at idle to an almost imperceptible level. A new, quieter starter motor and added engine compartment insulation further reduce engine noise.

An electronically controlled four-speed automatic transmission is again standard on all Regals. Also standard are four-wheel independent suspension, four-wheel anti-lock disc brakes, and dual air bags.

Buick continues to equip Regal with a full range of comfort and convenience features. Standard for 1996 are cruise control, power windows, power mirrors, automatic power door locks and an AM-FM radio with a cassette player.

Like other 1996 Buicks, Regal uses a new onboard diagnostic system called OBD II that can exhaust emissions before they cause emissions to rise.

New 16-inch aluminum wheels are optional on Gran Sport.

The 3.1-liter 3100 V-6, standard on Regal Custom, benefits from a number of improvements for 1996, including a low-friction valvetrain for improved efficiency, and an improved engine management system.

The 3100 V-6 is rated at 160 horsepower and 185 lb-ft of torque, matching the performance of more complex multi-valve engines. EPA fuel economy ratings are also excellent, at 20 miles per gallon city, 29 mpg highway.

New for 1996 are roller rocker arms. These reduce friction for improved performance, efficiency and fuel economy, and also make the engine quieter. Engine noise is further reduced by an improved intake manifold.

Horsemanship of the 3800 Series II is rated at 205 at 5200 rpm, a 35-horsepower increase over the previous 3800. This power increase was achieved without any loss of the low- and mid-range torque so important for stop-and-go driving. In fact, the Series II generates 230 lb-ft of torque, 3 lb-ft more than the previous 3800.

Fuel efficiency is also excellent. EPA ratings for the Regal equipped with the 3800 Series II are 19 mpg city, 30 mpg highway.

Though it shares basic dimensions with the 3800, the Series II is essentially an all-new engine, with significant updates in almost every area.

The new cast-iron block has a lower deck height, further reducing the size and weight of the already compact engine. Cross-bolted main bearings cap stiffen the bottom end, reducing noise and improving durability.

New cylinder heads with symmetrical combustion chambers provide a smoother idle and lower exhaust emissions.

Larger valves and more efficient ports improve flow through the engine. The valves, springs and cups are lighter. Combined with a new camshaft and revised valvetrain parts, this helps extend the power band higher into the rpm range.
