A HOLIDAY TALE

A Hillside policeman's stolen car, a Thanksgiving eve dance and Turkey Lane—all these events conspire for this holiday aftermath tale.

The policeman in this case is Harold McBride, who was attending the ball given by the Hillside Patrolmen's Benevolent Association in Hillside, Wednesday evening.

When McBride discovered that his Chevrolet coupe was missing, he thought at first that friends were playing a trick on him. Later becoming convinced that the car had been stolen, he reported the matter to the police.

McBride's car was located in the Springfield police department yesterday afternoon. It was stuck in the gutter in Turkey Lane and the motor smashed.

Patrolman Nelson Stiles investigated and found the car in the gutter. The car was slightly damaged.

This was the second stolen car in the area this week.

Who's Who In Springfield

EVERETT T. SPINNING Recorder

"Good evening, Judge." Most of the defendants who appear before Recorder Everett T. Spinning on Police Court in the are usually engaged in their troubles that they do not greet the honor in the approved stage play fashion.

But if they did, we have no doubt that Judge Spinning, who acts the part of a friend to those who are in trouble as well as a staunch judiciary supporter, would give a hearty response and then proceed sensibly to weigh the evidence.

Sitting on the Police Court bench here since June, 1923, Mr. Spinning has fulfilled his post as fully that he

TELLS OF STATE HIGHWAY 29 PLANS

State Engineer Writes of New Traffic Artery

In answer to requests from the SUN from residents in the southern section of Springfield, inquiring as to when State Highway No. 29 will be opened as a traffic artery, the State Engineer publishes a statement from the Highway Department as follows:

TO THE EDITOR OF THE SUN:—

Your letter of the 24th inst. regarding the opening of Route No. 29 through Springfield, My recollection is that the entire alignment of Route No. 29 through Springfield township is completed and in use. It is now being built to the east, through Union Township, and this section will be paved next year. We are now negotiating with the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company as to the Lehigh avenue bridge and the Weonah Park Bridge on this route, but there is no definite settlement or agreement of this matter in view at this time.

The road to the west of Springfield Township is now being worked on and will be paved next year.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) Jacob T. Bauer,
State Highway Engineer.

POLICE FIND CAR STOLEN IN NEWARK

Sedan Driven to Springfield Avenue and Abandoned

Several hours after a report had been sent out from the Newark police department Tuesday midnight that a car owned by Leo M. McElroy of 78 Longfellow avenue, Newark, had been stolen, it was recovered by Patrolmen Harold D. Seales and William C. Sealand of the local force.

Seales was spotted on Longfellow avenue, near Prover's farm, about 2:30 A. M., when he spotted a Nash sedan, with Essex county plates, and the lights turned off. He became suspicious and investigated the matter. He and Sealand who was on duty at the time reported it to headquarters, where it was found the plates corresponded with those of the stolen car, reported from Newark. McElroy was notified and his car was taken away late Tuesday afternoon.

According to McElroy he had let his car parked on Springfield street in Newark, in back of the drug store which he owns at 10th and Springfield streets. At twelve o'clock, when he had closed his store, he noticed his car was not in the lot.

It is believed that the car was taken from the lot and abandoned on the side and abandoned the car when the driver had left the car. Since the car was found in the city was not at all unusual.

If it is found that the car was taken from the lot, the SUN

Evening worship at 8 p. m. The pastor, Rev. William I. Reed, conducted both morning and evening services Sunday. The Mission Study class met in the late afternoon and an Epworth League supper was held in the parsonage.

In the evening service, a dramatic recital, "The Prodigal Son," presented by the pastor and assisted by the Young People's Choir, was well received.

The Union Thanksgiving service was held last night in the First Presbyterian Church. Mr. Reed spoke before congregations of the First Presbyterian Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church of Springfield; and the Millburn Baptist and Wyoming Presbyterian Churches.

An excerpt from an appeal being sent out to members of the church follows:

To Friends and Members, Greetings

"In the years that have followed, when the tumult of the war has ceased, when the shouting has stopped and the parades are over, it becomes easy to forget, and many of us have forgotten.

"Through all this time the churches have carried on; there has always been the undaunted few who have kept the church to the forefront. To do this has not been always an easy task. The regular subscriptions, while generous, have been limited by the size of membership.

"In the envelope being sent out with this letter, we ask you to put your special contribution. Please place it on the plate Sunday, which means that you will be present. If this is impossible, kindly send it through the mail in the address city envelope, accompanying this letter.

"With best Thanksgiving wishes,
Sincerely yours,
Thanksgiving Committee,
Springfield Methodist Episcopal Church.

THE IDEAL CITIZEN

The quest for an ideal is often illusory. Few men reach the end of life satisfied that they have extracted from it all that it holds for them. Emerson advised that we hitch our wagons to the stars, meaning we should aim higher than we expect to reach, and thus go further than by fixing on an attainable objective. We reconcile ourselves to a rule of living whereby we strive for more than we can get, and knowing it, nevertheless persevere.

So though in citizenship, as in everything else, the ideal eludes our realization, nevertheless it is stimulating to formulate an ideal, and set it for an example.

What qualities would enter into the making of Springfield's ideal citizen?

First of all he must be a worker, a producer. The drones have no place. Productive effort is the foundation on which all else rests. Springfield's ideal citizen needs to be at a job to be occupied in some useful effort, out of which the necessities of his family and himself are supplied, and from which he can make contribution for his share of communal living.

Springfield's ideal citizen must be neighborly. He cannot live unto himself. He must step outside his own close circle, be interested in others, and without being gabby or intrusive, he should be all that is implied in the word neighborly.

Next, our ideal citizen would make wider contacts, be a member of his local improvement association, be connected with a fraternal organization that may attract him, and be a member of the church of his belief.

Our ideal citizen needs to expand his association further. He needs to be civic minded, to demonstrate interest in township affairs, in its schools, its government, perhaps run for office himself, winning without vain-glory, and losing without getting sore. He needs also to be state-conscious and national conscious, and even to have a touch of internationalism. But these are beyond the scope of present discussion.

Springfield's ideal citizen conforms to the majority. He obeys the law. He does not necessarily sink his individuality, become a pattern out of a mould. He urges his opinions, he ideas, his desires, fights for them, fights hard, but fairly and according to the rules, and if the final count is against him he takes it like a sport rather than like a sorehead.

The ingredients that go to make up Springfield's Mr. Ideal Citizen, serve also for Mrs. and Miss Ideal Citizen. And probably they would serve tolerably not only in Springfield, but in Albuquerque, or in Chin Foo. For the differences in the world are not profound, but chiefly local, and human nature is pretty much alike under the skin.

Rambling Around SPRINGFIELD

Parents at this time of the year are feeling in good spirits, and why not? Although we call it Thanksgiving season, to some it means more. Sons and daughters are home from schools and colleges for the week-end, and acquaintances revived and wild stories of activities away from home told.

The necessity of having a woman's club in Springfield is rapidly emerging to the surface. Rumors have been heard about town that a woman's organization will be formed soon—very soon.

The Junior Guild of the St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, in Millburn, including several local residents as members, will take a one-day trip to New York City a week from Tuesday, December 10, and visit famous places of interest in the metropolis. As is the custom, no plans are made until the party, numbering nearly twenty, reaches its destination, and then—all cliff-dwellers of New York City had better look out. (Nuff said.)

The post office is now equipped with a mail box to handle deliveries when the office is closed, from 6 o'clock in the evening till 6:30 in the morning. In answer to a request made as to why the box is placed against the building of the post office, instead of against the curb, your correspondent was informed that there are persons existing in Springfield who would mistake the box for a receptacle for the disposal of garbage and paper.

One is reminded in to place mail in the box during hours the office is open, since it will be collected but once a day, about 5:30 o'clock in the evening.

Did you know that—
The First Presbyterian Church has church records of American history, dating back to the days of the Revolution, and that requests from all over the country are sent here for information as to colonial days.

Springfield at one time consisted of what is now New Providence, Summit, Millburn and present Springfield.

That Manning Day, Jr., of the police department, was once a correspondent for an Elizabeth daily—and Manning's a good golfer, too.

That the Rev. William T. Reed, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, was once a publicity campaigner, years ago, in Maine.

That there is another newspaper, the SPRINGFIELD SUN, in Springfield, Ohio.

That Director of Union County Board of Freeholders Peter H. Meisel will resign his position January 1, to assume the newly created job of purchasing agent for Union County, and that the Township Committee must elect his successor the first of the year.

That Arthur H. Leino, surveyor and registered engineer, of Elmer avenue, was at one time on the working force of Jacob L. Bauer, New Jersey State Highway Engineer.

That Mrs. Belle Smith, pianist, was formerly connected with the Millburn post office here some six years ago.

That certain persons in Springfield are ignorant of the fact that Springfield is listed separately in the Telephone Directory.

That it's time for lunch and you can't find any...

The New Jersey Street and Highway Conference, held in Newark last week, recommended that mandatory jail terms be given all drunken drivers, regardless of whether or not it was the first offense. Prologue

Jack Lord, played by William Drew, a Yale graduate, is presented with a $75,000 check by his father as a graduation gift, on the condition that he enter the business world and attain the goal his father had reached. Jack is not interested in business but has a desire for music. He does not wish to be engaged in the commercial field. He makes the acquaintance of Betty Vaughn, a chorus girl, played by Helen Marzak. He falls in love with her. She persuades him to invest his $75,000 in a night club. This would satisfy his wish to become a musician and at the same time, enable his sweetheart, Betty, to begin her career as a Broadway night club star. As the curtain rises for the opening scene, we see all preparations completed for opening night of Jack's night club.

William Drew, who plays the leading man in the revue, wrote the play and has been a leading member and writer of several productions the society has presented.

The committee arranging for receiving the guests consists of Vincent Shea, chairman; Jane Tansy, George E. Heim, and

HONESTY WON REWARD of $5,000 for Frank de Luca, taxi driver, of Brooklyn, N. Y., when he returned $50,000 pearls to Mrs. S. Claude McGuffee. Check was presented by Commissioner Whalen (left) of the New York Police Department, directly to De Luca (second from left). He gave $500 each to Gabriel Fuentes and Abraham Liebman (right), who were first to tell him gems he found were valuable, after De Luca's children had been playing with them under belief they were of the "8 and 10" variety.

Who's Who Springfield

 has received commendation from state and county officials on the efficient way in which he handles his department.

And the strange thing about it all is that Judge Spinning is not a lawyer, although he has delved into his Blackstone quite frequently.

The honesty and non-partisanship of this local official has greatly enhanced his reputation. Judge Spinning has to axe to grind to any clique or organization and has steadfastly refused to be swayed from his chosen path of rendering decisions solely on the case itself without any outside influence.

Mr. Spinning is a descendant of an old family of this section, the Taylors. He was born in Millburn and has resided in Springfield for 26 years, being educated in a private school conducted by Susan Stiles on Morrison road and Morris avenue 44 years ago.

Mr. Spinning was treasurer of the committee which succeeded after much effort to have a tablet placed on the Municipal Building seven years ago in memory of the Springfield men who fought in the World War and commemorating those who were killed while in the service.

The recorder is a member and past grand master of Capital Lodge 250, Independent Order of Foresters of America, and a Past Councilor of Springfield Camp, Woodmen of America.

He is now associated with Eggen, C. Pierson's real estate and insurance office in Summit, being interested in the insurance phase of the business.

Mr. Spinning was once a candidate for the Board of Education and for Tax Assessor. He was appointed to the recordership by the Township Committee on June 11, 1923, although at first he was reluctant to accept the position, finally acquiescing after persuasion. Mr. Spinning succeeded Kelsey R. Hastings.
