RED CROSS BOARD MEETS WEDNESDAY

Officials Hold Session in Methodist Church

The regular meeting of the Executive Board of the Springfield Red Cross was held Wednesday afternoon in the lecture room of the Methodist Church. Mrs. E. D. Clayton, secretary, in the absence of the treasurer, Miss Julia Weigle.

The report of the nursing committee showed that 96 calls had been made by Miss Orpha Puder, the Red Cross visiting nurse, during February. Of these, 85 were visits to the sick, and 11 were social welfare visits. Of the cases visited in February, 4 were reported by the doctors in charge, 3 by the families; 7 by the life insurance company, and 2 by others. The nurse attended one meeting, and had eight consultations about social welfare cases. Four well-baby clinics were held, with 17 already registered babies attending and 2 new ones.

The speaker told of the many libraries she had aided in starting and declared that while the Springfield library at the start might not possess certain books requested by patrons, it would be possible through the State Library Commission to make all possible effort to secure such books.

The social welfare committee reported that the families of three-exercise men are receiving advice or assistance from the branch. In cooperation with Newark Chapter, one pair of shoes and the re-soleing of four other pairs of shoes were obtained from the Lions Club. For children, a large quantity of clothing was distributed by the nurse during the month. A crib, a baby carriage and a high chair were obtained for babies whose parents were unable to supply these articles.

Miss Askew stressed the point that even if sufficient funds are not realized on a town drive, the library should be started at once and incorporation papers made out. She said that the state fee for incorporation of a library is but a small sum, and that only five persons are required to make application.

A temporary position was found for a woman who was seeking employment. It was voted to send Mrs. Charles D. Horster, chairman of the Branch as a delegate to the annual convention of the American Red Cross, to be held at Washington, D. C., for four days, beginning April 18th. Mrs. Horster will spend two days at the convention. She will be a member of the delegation from Newark Chapter.

Attending the meeting were Mrs. A. Palmer Brill, Mrs. E. D. Clayton, Mrs. Paul Prineas, Mrs. William Cooper, Mrs. C. B. Meeker, Mrs. Cecil Jenkins, Mrs. Charles Phillips, and Mrs. Lewis P. Macartney. Mrs. Horster presided.

Several persons in the audience expressed a desire to give their contributions at that time and they were accepted. The association committee, it is believed, will commence at once to make a thorough drive for funds.

No definite location was announced, although effort is being made to secure quarters at a reasonable rent. "Librarians at the start, Miss Askew said, "should be volunteers, but paid workers will always result in having better efficiency when the librarian realizes her responsibility."

Selections by the school board opened the program, Thomas Cushing leading.

Tax Figures Jump 14 Points; May Reach $4.31 With Fire Rate

BOWLING LEAGUE GETS UNDER WAY

Eight Teams Start Competition in New Circuit Here

Mid pomp ceremonies and new shining pins, Springfield's Municipal Bowling League opened Wednesday at McCarthy of the Union County Coal and Lumber team marked up a "strike" with his first ball.

Springfield's tax rate for 1931 is $4.04 per $100 of valuations, the county Board of Taxation announced this week. The rate last year was $3.90, or fourteen points less.

One of the principal reasons for the increase is in the local school appropriation which is $13,250 more this year. The township taxes to be raised are less than last year, the figures being $61,489.99 in 1931 as compared to $65,298.17.

The decrease this year of $5,325 in the total of taxable property also is also responsible for an increase. The sum is $5,365,219.

The county and state rates are practically the same as last year, but the state institutional half-mill rate is eliminated due to the passage of the $100,000,000 bond issue which abolishes this figure.

The complete analysis of the rate as compared to last year is shown to the box to the left of this column.

FINED $250 ON ALCOHOL CHARGE

Penalized For Transporting Seventy Gallons Here

Emanuel Montalbano, 18, of 12 Hecker street, Belleville, who was arrested by Patrolman Selander in Morris avenue March 3 and arraigned before Recorder Everett T. Spinning for unlawful transportation of liquor, when seventy gallons of alleged alcohol were found in the rear compartment of his coupe, was fined $250 by Judge Alfred E. Stein in Quarter Sessions Court, Elizabeth, Monday.

Montalbano, who pleaded non volt before Judge Stein and guilty before Recorder Spinning, was apprehended when Patrolman Selander was bringing the car to the station house, after the driver, stopped for driving with improper lights, could produce neither registration cards nor a driver's license.

The rear of the machine appeared heavy and the springs sagged to a greater extent than the usual car, and the patrolman decided to look into the rear. Here, police report, he discovered fourteen five-gallon drums of alcohol, to be used for making beverages.

THE TOWNSWOMAN SAYS

When We Share With Others, We Are Doubly Blessed
Address all questions to The Townswoman, Care The Springfield Sun.

In these days, when the problems of life are so difficult for a large portion of our people, it has been a matter of congratulation to note the helpfulness and kindness which are everywhere evident. To those who are now experiencing their first taste of "hard times," the difficulties to be faced day by day, are bewildering. A number of newly-born, unable to provide for their first-born the comforts not to say essentials, which every body should have, were made happy by the articles which have passed through the columns of this newspaper, into their homes. Today we have the following letter from a resident:

Do you know of any family who could make use of a black cabinet gas range, with a left hand oven? The range, while in good working order, has been in my cellar for some time, and has rusted somewhat. However, it needs nothing but cleaning, to give satisfactory service. We should like to have it taken away as soon as possible.

Mrs. E. M. C.

It is a commendable thing to offer this piece of household equipment, and we have no doubt that it will soon be set up in some home, to the satisfaction of the housewife.

Seek Scientific Data in North

Two Polar Expeditions Under Mawson and Wilkins Are Ready to Go.

London.—The polar exploration season has opened. Sir Douglas Mawson has one in active execution; so has Sir Hubert Wilkins. Both are expeditions involving tremendous expense and also demanding great organizing ability.

Unlike the explorers of the old days, they need to be fitted with something more than stout hearts and warm clothing. The tales of the tremendous pluck and valor of the intrepid explorers are by far the more thrilling while present-day hard scientific trips are often never divulged upon.

A landing is made on some new piece of territory, the flag is planted, scientific navigating calculations are made, by the ordinary navigators and the rest of the investigators set about their allotted tasks in their own peculiar ways.

The river beds—if any—will be examined by them, samples taken and careful data kept. Samples will be taken with great care for more minute examination by other experts at home.

Mineral Prospects. The mineral prospects and possibilities of the Arctic and the Antarctic are as yet an unknown quantity to the world's scientists.

It is expected that they will begin the national entry as to ownership. Perhaps the League of Nations will appoint a polar land committee to decide some matters.

SUCH IS LIFE--The Good Boy

By Charles Sughroe

Horrors of Russian Prison Camp

Helsingfors.—A young specialist in agricultural science who recently managed to escape from the North Russian timber lands arrived here recently and described conditions there. The prisoners in the camp to which he belonged had to live in a wooden shed, the roof of which consisted of loose pieces of wood covered with mud. When the snow melted, or when there was rain, black, muddy water dripped constantly on the sleeping workers, who then had to get up at 6 a. m. to start their work, soaked to the skin. Their clothing consisted of rags, entirely insufficient to protect them against the cold of a nine-month winter.

Only One-Fourth Criminals. Of the prisoners about one-fourth were criminals and the rest were guilty of political offenses. Almost all of them were forced to work in the forests. The work was set on a task basis, the usual assignment consisting of cutting, trimming and piling 35 logs a day. Strong and well-trained young workers managed to get through their task in 14 hours, but the average time was 18 hours.

In the morning when going to work each man received 800 grams of moist bread, which was almost uneatable, and no other food was issued until the day's task was finished. On returning to their shed the prisoners were given a little soup, made from salt fish, and some hot water to drink.

Almost daily some workers would fall at his task. Such unfortunate were beaten with sticks, or put under arrest in an icy cellar, stripped of all clothing but their shirts. Or else they would get no food at all and be sent out to do the task the next day. Those who were subject to such punishments of course were completely exhausted, but this was not accepted as an excuse for failure. Fresh punishment was applied on the following days, so that these slaves were actually being slowly beaten to death.

Epidemics Kill Thousands. Refusal to work resulted in immediate execution. The same refers to attempts to escape. Once three peasants endeavored to get away. The checklists on skins, followed their tracks, shot them from behind, and brought the bodies back. The three naked and mutilated bodies were deposited for three days outside the threshold of the shed, so that all workers had to step over them.

No wages or other remuneration was paid to these workers. On account of the miserable conditions all kinds of epidemics were raging, killing thousands. If at any time a prisoner survived a three-year term a fresh reason for continued punishment was invented so that hardly any one who had been sent to these slavery districts had a chance of getting out alive.

In the famous Solovjerski district, near the island of that name, there were eight divisions with 50,000 prisoners each. This there were 400,000 slaves in the district, and in the Archangel division the figure was certain to be above this, the escaped prisoner said. Altogether, therefore, there are well over 1,000,000 slaves working in the Soviet lumber camps.

Getting One's Name Into the Paper

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

When I was fourteen or so I became acquainted with the editor of our local newspaper. The editor was a shrewd young fellow who was mainly concerned in increasing his circulation at a minimum cost and in developing an interest in advertising among the local merchants. He thought it might be helpful in the accomplishment of the first purpose if he featured the celebrities and news celebrities in the rural neighborhood from which I came, by inviting me as his weekly correspondent from that community. I was to receive the newspaper free of charge for my services together with a supply of stamped envelopes and print paper upon which to write the romance and tragedy of the locality.

I was a novice in the art of journalism. I knew, of course, that births, marriages, deaths, eclipses, and other disasters of irregular occurrence should be recounted and I was familiar with the conventional phrases in which these stories should be told, but it was a healthy and a quiet community and I knew that these outstanding events would be of comparatively rare occurrence.

"What shall I write about?" I inquired. "Nothing happens very often where we live,"

"What people want most," the editor replied, "is to see their names in the paper. Get in the names. Look around and see what the neighbors are doing, and if possible what they are doing well, and speak about it—but always names correctly spelled and with the right initials. Nobody will forgive you if the name is wrong."

I learned, slowly, I suppose. Horses were being painted and hedges trimmed, and grain harvested, and people coming across the township to spend Sunday with an old neighbor. There were social functions—parties and singing school and spelling bees and occasionally some one would die or get married and give me a chance to spread myself journalistically. It was the names which counted. The editor was right.

NOVELTY EFFECTS IN STRAWS POPULAR FOR SPRING WEAR

ONE CANNOT get away from plaids and stripes and color contrasts and novelty effects of all sorts—they are in the very air, even in the millinery realm where the new and extremely popular straws are as novel as genius can devise them.

The two-or-more color idea, which is being so conspicuously featured in fabrics for the season, is reflected throughout the new straws, whether they be in the form of braids, bandings or bolles. It is possible to get as smooth or as rough a straw as one may wish, and many of the bands and braids used for the initial spring hats have high-lustered cellophane interwoven with them.

Outstanding interest centers about gingham and plaid straw effects with tweedlike versions presenting an arresting theme for the smart suit. Such combinations as navy and white, black and beige, and also red and white, are in the lead.

Ribbon trims have come in to their own again and the use of clever feather novelties is exploited by all the best milliners. The hats in the picture are highly representative of what's what for wear with midday's chic jacket-suit or new spring coat.

The first model is one of the new novelty straws of fine satiny finish in a tweedy patterning. You may vision it in brown and beige, navy and white, or black and white. Its one-side long brim and its ribbon trim in striking two-color contrast are significant as to style trends.

Note the amusing little feathers sprouting out from the center of the crown of the hat to the right at the top. Back-crown trimmings such as this are very smart.

Again, a tweedlike straw for the center hat—this time with a novel arrangement of ribbon the plumed crescent-shaped frill at the back solving the problem of an ungaily hairline at the nape of the neck.

The last model is made of wide banding formed of red and white straw together with black cellophane. This striking color contrast being typical of the effects which prevail both in fabric and in straws.

Some Novelty Straws

fastening and the belt which styles this short jacket, for they are details of outstanding importance. For frocks as well as coats, jackets and the blouse, diagonal effects are being played up in every conceivable way. The same may be said in regard to the big square lapels which register full on the new style program.

Referring again to the color question, while there is no doubt that the present mood is for vivid effects which have to do with startling contrasts, at the same time there is no lack of interest in carefully conceived combinations which artfully blend related tones and shades.

The program for spring records such unusual color alliances as navy, white and gray, or brown, pistachio, green and yellow, also black, white and red, white-brown, turquoise and pale beige is quoted as one of the most successful tricolor effects of the season.

Trimming the smart woollens with plaid or stripe is also made a feature of the new modes. Usually it is a novel scarf which says "It" loudly with color, with the jacket lining and other details uniting in a chorus of plaids or stripes or whatever the motif may be. Perhaps the message of color contrast is most frequently relayed in the costume with a jacket of an entirely different color.

This vogue is smartly expressed in terms of plaid for the skirt topped with a jacket in solid tone, either black, navy, red, dark green or brown. Quite unusual, brown for spring, but Paris designers are exploiting it.

Burglar Insurance

When the Grand Duchess Marie of Russia, now in business, arrived in the United States, her baggage consisted mainly of a guitar and a Russian typewriter. Some friends, who were away from the city, had arranged to give her the temporary use of their eleven room Park avenue apartment, which was furnished, but destitute of servants. The first morning after friends sent a maid around to cook her breakfast, but the second morning she had to do it herself. This was well enough, except for the fact that she had never before seen a gas stove or coffee percolator. She got the elevator boy to light the gas stove, but the coffee was a failure. After that, they got her a maid recently landed from Finland. The grand duchess could speak seven languages, but Finnish was not one of them. The maid could speak one language, and that was Finnish. The maid had a husband who spoke English, so when the Grand Duchess wished to communicate with her, she wrote a note to the husband and the maid took it home to have it translated.

"I certainly do," said the spectator, "and you should know, too. There is another just like it on the bottom of that deck." And it was true. The deck contained two jacks of spades.

Battling Disease Among Eskimos

Sydney, N. S.—The Eskimos of the Canadian Arctic are today resolutely immune from the threat of racial extinction, which has confronted them in recent years.

Originally a hardy race, the Eskimos' health deteriorated rapidly after their first contacts with white civilization, due to their adoption of the softer foods used by the whites.

Medical experts of the Canadian government spent most of last year in the Far North, however, and now on their return announce that the health of the natives has been reasonably safeguarded since then.

An outbreak of influenza took a heavy toll of life in several Eskimo settlements last summer, but blood tests, taken by the medical men, resulted finally in checking the ravages of the plague.

Dr. L. D. Livingstone, chief medical health officer for the Canadian department of the interior, on the return of the government patrol ship Beothic, after a 9,000-mile voyage through Arctic wastes, tells a stirring story of life in the land of the midnight sun, and of the task of safeguarding the health of both the natives and of the Royal Canadian mounted police detachments.

Doctor Hugh A. Stewart, another member of the expedition, tells of making a 150-mile journey by dog team to Pond's Inlet, a trip which took 52 days, and which has only twice been accomplished by an unaccompanied white man. A week after starting on his trek he was forced to return to his starting point when his foot was torn to ribbons in a lizzard, and for two nights his only shelter was the rugs of the tent.

At the present time points as far north as Pond's Inlet are in perpetual darkness, Doctor Stewart states. The sun just shows as a red rim above the horizon, creating a twilight effect similar to that of the dawn hour; and then sinks again.

Dressing Up The Town

THE March wind doth blow but nevertheless it is now time for local residents to be aboath their planting. We have two endearing traits as a residential center. One is the fine healthy atmosphere as compared with the damp, odoriferous air of Elizabeth and the other is the beauty of many of the flower-planted yards even among the newest sections.

APRIL FOOLISHNESS

(Copyright, W. N. U.)

The first of April, some do say, is not apart for April Fool's Day. But why the people call it so, I do not know. But on this day are people sent on purpose for pure amusement. But 'tis a thing to be despised, which is the greatest fool reputed. The man that innocently went to be that him deservingly sent. —1602 Robert's Almanack, 1760.

BY ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ONE of the most famous warnings of all history was that uttered to Julius Caesar—"Beware the Ides of March!" But the Ides of March, however fatal they may have been to the great Roman, are of little concern to us of modern times. Another day which will soon be long is the one when we do most of our "bawling." That's the first of April and unless we're very alert some one is sure to make an April Fool of us.

The practical joker is with us always, but April 1 is the day when he is at his best. We may ignore the hat lying on the sidewalk (with the brick concealed under it) or the pocketbook (either pulled down or attached to a hidden string which whisks it from under our hands as we stoop down to pick it up) and then unsuspectingly accept an explosive cigar which a friend hands us or bite into a tempting chocolate cream and find it filled with cayenne pepper. We may avoid all of these familiar pitfalls for the journey and then be "taken in" by a fake telephone call. "Mr. Lyon wants you to call him," they tell us. "Or it may be Mr. Wolf or Miss Ella (Phant)." But when we call the number and ask for that person, a disgusted voice at the other end of the wire tells us "This is the zoo." Or it may be "Mr. Fish" whose telephone number turns out to be the aquarist or "Mr. Snow" at the weather bureau or "Mr. Cullin" at some undertaking establishment.

Some of the foolery, however, is on the decline. Large candy factories report that they no longer make April Fool's candy. Not that one cannot buy cotton balls disguised as sweetmeats; the obscure shops still supply them. The bigger dealers, however, say that not only are calls growing fewer for such tricks, but that they themselves run into the foreign substitution law. "Today, as every one knows, candy must pass a certain test. The pure food law has sounded the death-knell of the china baby doll dipped in bitter-sweet chocolate.

Where did this April Foolishness originate, anyway? The answer to that question is necessarily a difficult one, for this custom, like so many others, goes back so far and has developed in so many different forms in so many different countries that it is impossible to ascribe it to any one period or any one nation. There is evidence that the custom was prevalent in Asia in ancient times, tracing back to the celebration with festival rites of the period of the vernal equinox in Persia. It was the day when the Persian New Year began and was very close to the old English New Year's day of March 25. The sun was then entering into the sign of frisky Aries and on that day "the season of ritual spirits and vermal delights" began.

In India the Huli festival on March 31 for centuries has been a general holiday and time for jest. One of the favorite diversions consisted of sending people on long errands of malicious import. Colonel Lawrence, a British army officer and writer of a century ago, says: "I'll be and low lay in it. The late Sarah Dowling, I am told, was very fond of making Huli fools, though he was a Mississippian, of the highest rank. They were the jobs so far as to send letters making appointments in the name of persons who must be absent from their houses at the time fixed upon; and the laugh is always in proportion to the trouble given.

From the Orient the custom came into western Europe many centuries ago. The ancient Romans took delight in many sorts of practical jokes in connection with their Feast of the Saturnalia and there are those who declare that the first April Fool joke was that one which Romulus and his "early settlers" in Rome played upon the Sabines by inviting them to the regular April First celebration in honor of Neptune and then carrying off by force the Sabine women.

For centuries the French have held a Festival of Fools on April 1, in which "every kind of absurdity and indecency was committed." Their term for April Fool is "poisson d'Avril," a term which means, according to one explanation, a young fish and therefore a fish easily caught. When Napoleon married Maria Louisa, Archduchess of Austria, on April 1, 1810, it gave the wags of Paris an excellent chance to whisper among themselves that he was "un poisson d'Avril." But the classic French April Fool story is that of a young woman who stole a gold watch from the house of one friend and hid it in the house of another friend. She then turned the case over to the police. But they were sully licking in the imagination necessary to appreciate this joke. She was arrested for the theft and the judge, sentencing her to jail for a year with the remark that she be discharged on April 1 the next year, said "un poisson d'Avril!" Another French classic is the escape on April 1, 1700, from prison by the duke of Lorraine and his wife, who shouted back to their guards the French equivalent of "April Fool!"

April Fooling has been prevalent in Great Britain for centuries. There it mostly took the form of sending innocents upon "sleeveless errands." A boy might be sent to the cobbler's for "a pennyworth of his best strap oil" and then be mightily amazed when the angry shoemaker applied this "oil" to his back. Or he might be dispatched to the milk-vendor for "half a pint of pigeon's milk" to the bookseller's for "The Life and Adventures of Eve's Mother," to the butcher shop for a "haunt sausage" or to the bakery for "a pie-stretcher."

In northern England and Scotland this practice was called "Hunting the Gawk." An old custom says: "On the first day of April Hunt the Gawk another mile." The word "gawk" in reality means a cuckoo and was used metaphorically for fool, which undoubtedly is the origin of the modern slang phrase: "To knock a man cuckoo." There are plenty of connecting threads among all these words. "Gawker" in "gawking" is a fool, whence we get our word gawky, and "gaw" in old Saxon was a cuckoo, whence is derived "gawk," meaning one easily imposed upon. Remember the words of Malvolio to Olivia:

Who have you suffered me to be imposed on and made the most notorious "gawk" and that 'er invention played on?

Although April Fool's day appears to have ceased to challenge literary wits, there was a time in England when it brought forth observations from such scholars as Joseph Addison and that prolific and satiric writer Jonathan Swift. Swift seems to have entered into the spirit of the day and to have enjoyed the liberties granted to the practical joker on April first. He writes to Stella under date of March 31, 1713, about a jolly evening spent with two good friends "in contriving a lie for the morrow."

One of the commonest forms of April Fool jokes during past years in this country was the practice by newspapers of printing on April 1 some exciting story of an event which never happened and not revealing the fact until the reader came to the end of the yarn. There have been innumerable variations of this stunt, ranging from "scurrilous" stories about the blowing up of the city hall and the assassination of city officials or the escape of all the animals in the zoo to more innocent stories about the discovery of buried treasure or the exhibition of some marvelous and seemingly impossible feat of skill or strength.

Some 40 years ago a Cincinnati newspaper printed a big story regarding a monster of fiendish aspect and unknown species which had been found inhabiting a cave in the hills east of the city, which had already carried off several children in its slaving jaws and had spread terror in the neighborhood. There was even a picture of the thing, drawn from the descriptions of the two or three persons who had seen it clearly, and for malign and hideousness of aspect, that monster made all Callibans, dragons, Hurlergrubs, demons and octopt look tame.

Finally, down at the latter end of the story in very small type, so small that many readers overlooked it, was set the legend, "April 1, 1888." Even some who noticed that date didn't grasp its significance, but continued to shudder with fear at the thought of meeting the monster.

Some Philadelphians still remember the story about the big iceberg that was "being towed up the river." Thousands went to the river front to see the spectacle and then denied that they had been taken in.

A quite modern hoax is told as follows by one who was in Ireland when it "happened":

Peace, of a kind, reigned in Dublin on March 31, 1922. There was tension in the air for the Irreconcilables, who refused to recognize the truce with England, had taken over the Four Courts and were known to be preparing resistance to the terms which Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith had signed. Anything was likely to happen.

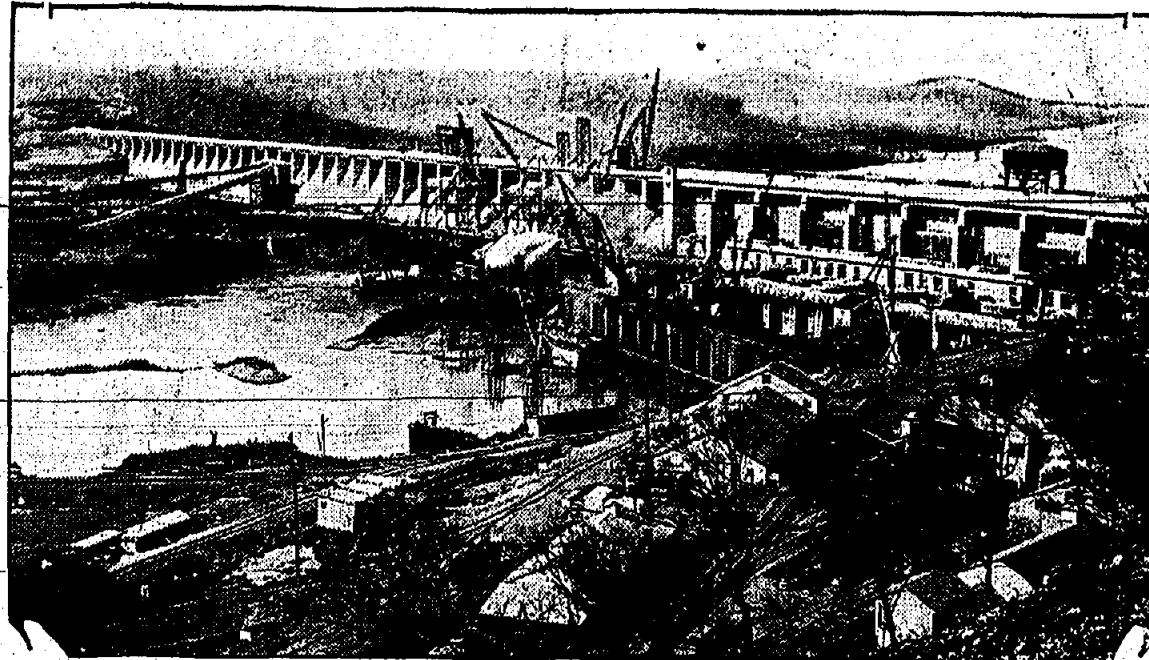

About 1 o'clock on the morning of April 1 the Morning Post of London, the paper which reflected the views of those who thought that any truce with the Irish was a betrayal of Great Britain, received a telegram from Dublin stating that the Kildara street club had been seized by the Irreconcilables; that the members residing there had been driven into the streets in their pajamas and that this social stronghold of British aristocracy in the Irish capital had been transformed into a stronghold of the enemy.

With due solemnity and with headlines that had not been surpassed since the declaration of the Armistice with Germany the telegram was published. And that night Dublin was flooded with correspondents—American, English and French—all prepared to cover the new "war." The British cabinet was called to Downing street for breakfast, and the world sighed in dismay and mourned that the Irish, when peace seemed in sight, were at it again.

Only a few know the true story behind the April fool telegram that started this furore. There was in Dublin at the time a Major Clarke who had served with distinction during the World war, but who had never been the same since his experiences in Flanders. They had developed in him a "sense of humor" that was peculiar. On one occasion he collected all the boots left to be cleaned outside, the bedroom doors of the largest hotel in Dublin and dropped them down the elevator shaft.

He was barred from the same hotel for throwing cream-filled eggs at the guests during dinner. And it was he who sent the telegram. He was tired of peace and he thought it would be a good joke to start the Anglo-Irish struggle again. And strange to say, he nearly accomplished his object, for the suspicious Irreconcilables thought the wire had been sent by the Free State government as a bait, but they were not yet prepared. The break did not come for almost three months. (© by Western Newspaper Union.)

WORLD WAR YARNS

by Lieut. Frank E. Hagan

The Original "Doughnut Girl"

Today she is known as Mrs. Robert E. Walbridge, wife of a Peterboro, N. H. business man who served as a Lieutenant in the One Hundred and Third Machine Gun Battalion, and in 1928, when she and her husband went to the American Legion convention in Paris, she was known as the president of the American Legion Auxiliary. But back in 1918 thousands of American soldiers who enjoyed the doughnuts, pies and coffee which she handed out to them knew her as Miss Irene McIntyre, one of the "Salles." For she was the original "doughnut girl" of the A. E. F.

As one of the two daughters of Colonel McIntyre, once a Salvation Army commander in New England, she and her sister, Gladys, were among the first contingent of "Salles" to join the American army in France. In March, 1918, the girls set up their field kitchen back of Ansoville in an old mill that the doughboys helped them repair and there day after day they made and served coffee by the gallon, pies by the hundred and doughnuts by the thousand. In June their canteen was at Roulecourt and at the end of that month they were moved to the Chateau Thierry sector and later toward the Swiss frontier.

They saw service with the Thirty-seventh, Forty-second and Seventy-seventh divisions. They were in the Argonne and at Thincourt when that village was destroyed by shell fire. A shell wrecked their canteen hut and for days they lived in a cellar. As a result of their service on every front that saw an American division, they were cited in army orders and recommended for the D. S. O. by General Pershing himself. Returning to America in 1919 they marched in the place of honor just behind Gen. Clarence R. Edwards in the parade of the Yankee division and in a ceremony on Boston common the general cited them for bravery in continuing their work under fire at the front.

Irony of War

Four stalwart sons of an elderly French couple who lived in a province of France adjacent to both Belgium and Luxembourg, were called to the colors by French authorities at the outbreak of the World war. For four years not a word was heard of any son by the parents. Their property had been occupied by the Germans after the first big push. Then came the Armistice.

Two of the sons, survivors of four years of fighting, were granted immediate leave by the French because they had been occupied in territory that had been occupied. They started at once for home. At the same time the other two sons, who had been made prisoners in their first battle, were liberated from a German prison camp and began the journey to northern France.

The four boys arrived home the same day for a joyful reunion with their aged parents. Two of the boys had been through four years of almost continual battle; the other pair had survived the lack of nourishment, inevitable to prison life. Yet, despite the vicissitudes they had borne, each of the four was square of shoulder, clear of eye. Each appeared fit to resume his life where he had laid it down in 1914.

And it is one of the horrible ironies of war that on the same day her four boys returned, scoured but whole from their adventures, the old mother was taken away. For suddenly, with the remnant at its height, she had gone raving mad.

Compensation

His experiences under shell fire transformed Fred R. Weiss of Chicago from a $250 per week water to an individual inventor and manufacturer. Weiss left a hash-slinging job and little else to enlist in the Twenty-first Field artillery. His brother, back in Germany, served as an officer in the German army. But that didn't prevent Weiss from winning a D. S. O. for devotion to duty and bravery under fire. Boxes of burning powder were shooting skyward from the dump when Weiss' captain, W. C. Duncickel, attracted his attention to a pile of TNT high explosive toward which the flames were spreading. His arm had been injured. But Weiss dragged the remaining powder boxes, one by one, from the vicinity of the TNT. Then he faint.

When the war ended, Weiss was given vocational training. He chose a four-year electrical engineering course at Lewis Institute, Chicago. Shortly after graduation, the former $250 per week water invented a device for detecting defective wiring. A company of which he, himself, is the head, markets this product—and Weiss has definitely emerged from the $250 class of wage earners.

"First Aid—Home Remedy Week" Coming

Chicago—First Aid-Home Remedy Week, Sterling Products' "hotter merchandising and greater advertising baby," celebrates its tenth anniversary March 15-21. Druggists everywhere will cooperate. "Fill That Medicine Chest Now!" is the slogan of action. The National Association of Retail Druggists sponsored the event in 1922, and with the National Wholesale Druggists' Association and National Association of Retail Drug Clerks have, with other organizations, massed their energies for success of this movement for the abolition of much needless suffering and often the salvage of life.

Dr. W. E. Weiss was first to okay the idea as a splendid aid to preparedness for unexpected illness or accident. This is stressed as sensible insurance for immediate relief. The every-spring festival of sales is a fixture of housecleaning time. Sterling Products is giving a tenth anniversary surprise party to every druggist in America for the domination as well as the States' endorsement this idea of a more intensive advertising effort in Druggism. Its placing the old streamers there has been adopted a colorful poster representing a filled medicine chest displaying the slogan of each past success: "Fill That Medicine Chest Now."

Prize and Luck

The Grand Duke Boris said in an interview on his arrival in New York: "We Russians, when we consider Russia's plight, have to be as plucky as the street musician." "A street musician was cheerfully blowing 'Christmas Awake' on his cornet on Christmas day in a driving snowstorm. "The snow fell fast and furious, a bitter wind blew, and as the musician tooted away a pretty girl passed. "The musician looked down at his feet, buried in the snow to the ankles, and then he quit to himself. "Oh, thank heaven for this deep snow! My shoes are split and full of holes, but she can't see them!"
