

Democrats Attack High School, Also Recommend Restriction on Junkyards

Look For 40-Point Tax Rate Jump if Project Passes—Annex is Suggested

ASK FOR ORDINANCE ON AUTO GRAVEYARDS

An emphatic appeal to the proposed $300,000 Springfield high school at this time because of the economic depression and the possibility of a high tax rate, was made by the campaign committee of the Springfield Democratic Club Wednesday night at a meeting at the Colonial Inn. Otto F. Heinz, candidate for Township Committeeman, branded the proposed project as ridiculous in view of the present hard times, the fact that Springfield had less than 100 high school students and also because such a building project would mean a forty point increase in the tax rate next year.

Joseph H. Gunn, township candidate for freeholder, pointed out that the proposed high school would probably cost $600,000 before it was completed when furnishings are considered and suggested that with such a small student body it would be more to the interests of the town and to the taxpayers' pocketbooks for the town to build an annex to the present James Caldwell School. Mr. Heinz also favored such a plan and stated that there was sufficient room on the present Caldwell School property to erect a two or four room addition.

At present Springfield high school students attend various nearby schools and it was pointed out that the cost of the teaching staff alone for the proposed school would be adequate to pay tuition for Springfield's present high school student body for at least two years.

Considerable discussion was also given to a plan for a county high school in Springfield or nearby adjoining municipalities and it is possible that such a plan will figure as a major plank in the Democratic platform.

A resolution was also adopted requesting the Township Committee to pass an ordinance to eliminate automobile graveyards. Auto graveyards flourish in the township and in the opinion of W. J. White, a member of the club, who has been one of the prime movers in the fight against what he terms a "town disgrace," there will be many more springing up when the "junkmen" of Newark and other towns learn that Springfield is so lax in enforcing its laws.

IRVINGTON SQUAD TO PLAY AGAINST LOCALS TOMORROW

The Irvington Stanley at present leading the pack in the Lackawanna League, will make their first appearance in Springfield this year, when they oppose the locals at Fiemer Oval tomorrow at 3 o'clock.

Manager Herb Pennoyer may start Bert Garrett, former Rutgers University star, who defeated Chatham last week. George Herscher will be on deck, and Don Pennoyer, who caught against Chatham and Millburn, is most likely to catch on the strength of his four singles last Saturday off Mike Lauer and Colie Veibinger, Chatham hurlers.

The Irvingtonians will use either Cecil Spittler or Art Tauscher. Spittler beat the locals by an overwhelming score earlier in the season at the bumpy Irvington grounds, but with the batting eyes of the locals at their best, as evidenced by their seventeen hits of Chatham, the southpaw may find himself in trouble, unless the Cubs experience a slump.

Springfield's team started poorly, but have shown fancy ball in the last two contests against Chatham and Millburn, and have an excellent chance to finish second or third in the league standing for the first half, with first place almost impossible. The locals have four games left on the schedule, the Irvington game at home tomorrow; at Summit on June 20; at Madison the next week, and a game with Millburn to be replayed the morning of July 4, unless another date is selected.

SHOOTERS PERFECT SCORE IN TRAPS

William J. Gaddis of 23 Brook st., while practicing Sunday at the Climax Gun Club, Plainfield, achieved the ambition of every trap shooter—100 birds out of a possible 100.

Gaddis started with the 100 score, and continued without a miss until he had marked up 147. In finishing 200, his score was 197, considered excellent in trap shooting.

Gaddis is well known among trap enthusiasts in this vicinity, and takes an active part in competitive contests at various places in the county.

Springfield's Junior High School track team traveled to Summit recently and won a meet by the score of 63 to 46. The divisions were as follows: middle, under 100 pounds, 100 to 150 pounds; and senior, over 150 pounds.

The local team won seven first places to their rivals' four. Davis, local star, came in first in the senior 100-yard dash in 10.5 seconds, won the twelve-pound shot, running broad jump, and was a member of the winning senior relay team.

Other places taken by Springfield were as follows: Huescher and Hoagland, first in the middle 75-yard dash and Lott in the junior 100-yard dash, and running broad jump.

SPRINGFIELDER IS IN U. S. ARMY

"Her Honor, the Mayor" Presented Before Large Audience in School

The auditorium of the James Caldwell School, was filled nearly to capacity last Friday evening, where the Springfield Players presented a three-act comedy, "Her Honor, the Mayor."

Mrs. Crowell had the role of Mrs. McNabb, suffragette leader who later becomes a naval officer; and who "falls in love" with the Mayor's brother, Clarence, played by Kenneth Niebuhr.

Most of the action takes place when Eve dreams she has been elected Mayor, and the men are "tamed" into assuming care of the household while the women run things. Immediately after her election, the Mayor is rushed with requests for political plums by her friends in return for putting her in office. When the smoke clears away, the colored cook, Eliza Goobor, played by Mrs. Day, is named Chief of Police; the Mayor's chum, Doris Denton, played by Miss Gross, is chosen Fire Chief; and the original candidate for Mayor, now Eve's husband, Grenville Day is the housekeeper.

POLICE DEPARTMENT WINS FORFEIT MATCH

The First National Bank of Springfield has reduced the rate of interest paid on deposits to 3 1/2 per cent per annum effective July 1. Louis J. Wilman, cashier, announced Wednesday.

The board of directors held a meeting Tuesday night, and approved of the reduction, in addition to setting a rate of 1 per cent to be paid on deposits in checking accounts.

The action was taken in the interest of sound and conservative banking, in view of the prevailing low money rates.

These reductions are in accord with action taken by many banks in this section of the country, and also recently announced by the Newark Clearing House Association, of which all commercial banks in Newark are members.

Claims Wrong License Revoked in Drunken Driving Decision

Richard Hausman, of 209 Park avenue, Orange, appeared in police court Monday night and protested that the driver's license revoked by Recorder Everett T. Spinning a week previous on a charge of drunken driving, was his, and not owned by the other motorist, Fred Caldwell, of the same address, at present serving thirty days in the county jail.

The man arrested by Patrolman Stiles Decoration Day, after a chase of several miles, presented registration cards and driver's license with the name of Richard Hausman on both. However, he told the police, he also went under the name of Fred Caldwell, a theatrical manager.

The driver pleaded guilty, and was fined $200 and costs, and the license in his possession revoked for two years. In default of the fine, he was sentenced to the county jail.

In the present status, Caldwell never possessed a license, and may be charged with being an unlicensed driver, while Hausman is also liable to suspension for allowing an unlicensed driver to operate his car. The local police will press no further charges, but in order to get his license Hausman must secure it from the State Motor Vehicle Department, where it has been delivered.

Another Driver Convicted

Ernest Hult, 27, a chauffeur, of 133 Summit avenue, Summit, was fined $200 and costs Monday night by Recorder Spinning, on a charge of

Will Submit Ordinance Regulating Out of Town Vendors Operating Here

Following a petition by local storekeepers, the Township Committee Tuesday night authorized Charles W. Weeks, township counsel, to prepare an ordinance to regulate out-of-town ice cream vendors who operate in the township, and submit the ordinance at a special meeting next Tuesday night. The counsel was asked to include an annual license fee of $100, as compared to the present rate of $10 per year.

Counsel Authorized By Town Board to Act, Following Merchants' Petition

REVOKE PRESENT PERMITS, REQUEST

The petition protested specifically against a firm selling ice cream from automobiles parked at the curb on highways, soliciting trade from passing motorists. Two permits have been granted, and the license fee of $10 paid, in accord with a present township ordinance.

The petition also asked that the permits be revoked, but Chairman Gabriel Larsen brought out that that was illegal. This was confirmed by the counsel, and the members discussed some means to safeguard the interests of local storekeepers. A suggestion was made that a higher license fee be charged outside vendors.

William Divers, one of the signers, told the board that he had seen five or six wagons selling ice cream last Sunday in various parts of the township.

Later, Police Chief M. Chase Rinyon, informed the governing body.

Supreme Court Bars Reservations to Oath of Allegiance—Economy Plans for Post Office Department Are Announced.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

Justice Sutherland

FIVE Justices of the United States Supreme court have ruled, in the case of Prof. Douglas C. Macintosh of the Yale divinity school, that a foreigner who seeks American citizenship must take the oath with no reservations about taking up arms for the country in time of war. Macintosh refused to swear allegiance without limiting his obligation to bear arms, and therefore he denied the right of naturalization. The same decision was made in the case of Miss Marie Ayeroff from the city of St. Petersburg, Russia, and both saw wartime service in France.

Justice Howard Sutherland, who wrote the majority opinion, held that the cases properly came within the principle laid down in the case of Hoskins Schwimmer, plaintiff, holder, who was denied citizenship on virtually the same grounds. He discussed the broad omnipotent war power granted congress by the Constitution, saying: "From its very nature, the war power, when necessity calls for its exercise, tolerates no qualifications or limitations unless found in the Constitution or in applicable principles of international law."

"The conscientious objector," Justice Sutherland added, "is relieved from the obligation to bear arms in obedience to no constitutional provision, expressed or implied; but because, and only because, it has accorded with the policy of congress thus to relieve him."

Chief Justice Hughes, joined by Justices Holmes, Brandeis and Stone, dissented from the majority opinion.

TWO other decisions of the Supreme court during the week are of great interest. One reversed the judgment of the Circuit Court of Appeals sustaining the patent granted Dr. Irving Langmuir in 1925 on vacuum tubes used in radio and other speech-reproduction processes. The patent is owned by the General Electric company. It was attacked by the De Forest Radio company, which contended that unless the Langmuir patents were set aside General Electric would have a virtual monopoly of the radio tube now in common use.

In the second decision the powers of the federal trade commission to regulate advertising are restricted. The commission had ordered the Halstead company of Detroit to cease advertising an obesity remedy as "safe" unless accompanied by a statement that it should be taken under advice of a physician. The commission held it had the right to protect the public in this way, but the Detroit concern contended that the body was trying to censor advertising. In this contention it was upheld by the court.

PROF. AUGUST PICCARD, Swiss scientist, and his assistant, Charles Kipfer, established a new record by ascending 22,500 feet in a balloon. They are convinced they reached the stratosphere and that their observations will be of considerable value. They started from Augsburg, Bavaria, being homeward bound in an aluminum ball suspended from a large balloon; 18 hours later they landed on a glacier in the Alps of Austria. They nearly suffocated because their supply of oxygen ran short and they suffered from hunger and thirst.

EVERY time President Hoover takes some cabinet member to the Rapidan camp for a week-end, further plans for reducing the government's overhead are concocted. First came the Army and Navy departments, and then it was the turn of the Post Office department.

Postmaster General Walter Brown and his assistants were the guests and the "victims" and after the conference in the woods it was announced that a program had been adopted that would save $28,000,000 in the present fiscal year and that would produce many economies next year. However, it was emphatically stated that efficiency would be increased instead of diminished and that there would be no decrease in personnel.

The statement indicated that the department has felt the depression. It was estimated that due to business conditions revenues to the department this year would be $58,000,000 below the original estimates.

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE Hyde seems to be forestalling these Rapidan camp operations by planning considerable economies in his department expenditures, though this is difficult without curtailing important services. He will be aided during the year by the termination of two emergency items—drought relief and highway construction. These totaled $100,000,000, providing aid for stricken farmers and jobs for the unemployed.

Drought loans will be collected from farmers next fall, when their crops are harvested. States which have borrowed from the $50,000,000 emergency highway fund will repay the money over a five-year period through deductions from their regular shares of federal aid.

After deducting extension service and land grant college funds, between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 remains for the department's actual expenses.

THIS year's Memorial day address by President Hoover was delivered in the memorial park at Valley Forge, Pennsylvania, where George Washington and his ragged troops spent a terrible winter 153 years ago, and where more than 3,000 of those patriots are buried. The exercises of the day were impressive. Two thousand troops acted as escort to President and Mrs. Hoover and a battery from Phoenixville fired the salute. In his address Mr. Hoover reviewed his past policies in international matters and outlined his plans for the future, especially concerning the reduction of armaments.

The night preceding this, the President was the guest of the Union League club of Philadelphia at a banquet where he was presented with an oil portrait of himself.

EXPERTS from many lands were present when the international labor conference opened in Geneva, but the United States was not represented. Secretary of Labor Donak appointed Miss Mary Anderson, chief of the woman's bureau, as the American delegate and she sailed May 12, with the special hope that the conference might adopt an agreement banning night work by women.

But just after Miss Anderson reached Europe Mr. Donak sent her a cable instructing her to stay away from Geneva and giving her other missions for the department.

Making his action public, the labor secretary merely said the State department had declined it "wholly inadvisable" to have any one from the United States government at Geneva, either in official or unofficial capacity.

MRS. HARRY PAYNE WHITE's memorial typifying the heroism of the men who went down with the Titanic in order that women and children might be saved was unveiled on the banks of the Potomac in Washington in the presence of President and Mrs. Hoover; and many other prominent persons. Secretary of State Stimson presided at the ceremony. The statue is the contribution of more than 20,000 American women.

MICHELLE SCHIRER, an Italian born naturalized citizen of the United States, was executed by a firing squad in Rome after being convicted of plotting to kill Mussolini and of other activities against Fascism. Schirer admitted his guilt, but said his plans had been abandoned and he was about to return to America when arrested.

INVESTIGATION of the building material industry, especially those phases of it involved in the letting of contracts for government buildings, has been begun by the federal trade commission. It is hoped that the inquiry will throw a lot of light on the long existing feud between the Indiana limestone men and the granite and marble men of New England. Such, at least, is the hope of Senator Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota, who introduced the resolution calling for the investigation.

The trade commission, announcing that preliminary work already had been started, said:

"In this inquiry the commission will investigate and report facts relating to the letting of contracts for the construction of government buildings, particularly with a view of determining whether or not there are or have been any unfair, unjust or inequitable, understandings or combinations of interests among individuals, partnerships, or corporations engaged in the production, manufacture or sale of building materials with respect to the prices or other terms at or under which such materials will be furnished contractors or bidders for such construction work."

Senator Shipstead said he introduced the resolution because of complaints that such collusion between the purveyors of building materials did exist and because of further complaints, seemingly aimed at the handling of contracts by the government itself, that specifications for buildings were so framed that they unfairly limited the sources from which materials could come.

The limestone-granite-marble controversy falls in the latter category. The charges are that Indiana's advocates have been too influential and have somehow or other put "Indiana limestone" into the specifications for too many government buildings.

EXILE from Romania and expulsion from the royal family of that country is the fate arranged for Queen Helene, the estranged wife of King Carol. According to Patria, the official organ of the Zaranist party in Bucharest, a decree has been drafted for submission to the new parliament confining Helene's exclusion and declaring that she is no longer entitled to the rights and honors accorded to royalty. Parliament is expected to adopt the measure as soon as it assembles, and Helene will leave the country permanently soon thereafter, terminating her uncertain marital status of more than two years. Observance of the queen's saint day last Thursday was forbidden in an order issued by War Minister Stophanesco and authorized by Premier Jorga.

Helene divorced Carol while he was in exile in 1923 with Magda Lupescu. When he made a dramatic flying return to Bucharest last year she spurned his overtures toward a reconciliation and steadfastly refused to be crowned with him.

REFORM and retrenchment in the army of Japan have been decided upon by War Minister Gen. Hiro Minami, Chief of Staff Gen. Hara Kanaya and Gen. Nobuyoshi Mutō, inspector general of military education. The army personnel will be reduced by 25,000 and the savings will be devoted to making the army the best equipped in the world.

The people had hoped that the money would go toward lightening their tax burdens; but the war minister explains that only $4,000,000 a year will be saved through the readjustments planned, and this amount, while hardly noticeable in any tax reduction program, will greatly aid the nation in placing the army on a level with that of Soviet Russia and other countries which maintain effectively equipped forces.

SPAIN'S new Republican government is far from being stabilized, yet, the troubles, both external and internal, continue to cause some uneasiness. According to the authorities in Ankara, a martial law which was proclaimed there several weeks ago may have to be continued indefinitely because of the turbulence of the Communists. Also, martial law has been reinstated in Elda, Valencia, where there was a violent revolt last December. The army, now under command of Don Francisco Agullera, the new captain general, is kept in readiness to suppress any uprisings anywhere, of either Communists or royalists. Elections in Catalonia resulted in complete victory for Colonel Francisco Macia's party. The assembly therefore will be dominated by those who demand autonomy for Catalonia under the authority of the central government.

The other day the Republican government issued a decree guaranteeing absolute freedom of worship to all religions. The pope regarded this as a clear violation of the concordat still in existence between Spain and the Vatican, and he sent a formal protest to Madrid after a conference with Cardinal Segura, the expelled primate of Spain.

CHINA appears to be on the brink of another civil war. President Chung Kai-shek bitterly denounces the Communist rebels of Kwantung and Kwang provinces and says the Nationalist government is forced to choose between accepting Communists into the party, which it will not do, or resorting to war. Large bodies of troops were reported to be moving toward Canton to attack the insurgents.

HAVING changed his mind about appealing from his conviction and sentence for bribery, Albert H. NEWARK, N. J.—Gangland, which welcomed Adam Dresch when Newark dismissed him from its police force ten years ago, now has ended his career.

Riddled with bullets and bearing evidence of brutal beating and torture, the body of the former patrolman turned gangster and racketeer was fished from the Passaic river at the foot of Commercial street, Newark. Police said he had undoubtedly been taken for a ride.

But so numerous were the rackets in which the former officer had been involved that police admitted there were dozens of gangsters that might have desired his death. They sought to link up his killing with the murder a few hours previous of Phil Rossi, shot to death as he played snailball in his "Hingside A. C." in Belleville, a town near Newark.

The two were believed to be implicated in narcotic traffic. Rossi also said to have been an associate of the gang leader, "Little Angelo" Pisano.

Another theory was that Jersey associates of Dresch had killed him because they feared he was deserting their hi-jacking band to join a Brooklyn group. ### Trying to Save Baby

CHICAGO.—Benjamin Eckley's dog Laddie gave his life in an unsuccessful attempt to save his mistress. Laddie had no pedigree, but the Eckleys did not hesitate to leave their two children, Marjorie, two, and Jackie, six, alone with him when they left late recently. It was growing dusk when Gilbert Bernack, who works in Eckley's tailor shop, heard Laddie barking and clanging at the door of the room where the children and dog had been left. Bernack broke open the door. Jackie stumbled out, unburnt but blinded temporarily by smoke. Bernack tried to enter. Flames drove him back. He called firemen, who extinguished the blaze. They found Laddie dead. Under his body was Marjorie, unconscious. Laddie had dragged her as far as he could, then lay on top of her while flames killed him. Marjorie died an hour later.

"I'll Call Her Old Glory!"

CAPT. DRIVER'S MONUMENT IN OLD CITY CEMETERY, NASHVILLE, TENN.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE American flag, whose birthday we celebrate on June 14, is known by a number of descriptive names. It is probable that it was called "The Red, White and Blue" or "The Stars and Stripes" very soon after the first flag was made in accordance with the resolution passed by the Continental congress on June 14, 1777. "That the flag of the United States be 13 stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be 13 stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

The name "The Star-Spangled Banner" dates from 1814 when Francis Scott Key, watching the British bombardment of Fort Mifflin, was inspired to write the poem which was later set to music and became the official national anthem. But the name "Old Glory" is a more recent one. It was just a hundred years ago that a Yankee skipper had the inspiration which resulted in that affectionate name being bestowed upon our national colors. Here is the story of how "Old Glory" got that name:

From the beginning of New England machinery history the Dyer family of Salem, Mass., had been leaders in the shipbuilding trade, not only as shipbuilders but as owners, captains and sailors of their own vessels. In the year 1831, Capt. William Driver was carrying on the family tradition. As a boy of twelve he had shipped on a sailing vessel for Europe and before he was twenty he was master of the brig, Charles Baggett, one of that innumerable fleet which sailed the Seven Seas and carried the name of Salem to every corner of the earth.

In September of that year Captain Driver was preparing to sail for a trip around the world. Just before leaving a party of his friends gathered to present him with a farewell gift, an American flag, because he was noted for his love for the national colors and what they betokened. Captain Driver was on deck to receive them and a sailor, carrying the flag, folded in triangular form, stepped forward and began a carefully memorized speech.

"In ancient times, when an ocean voyage was looked upon with superstitious dread," he said, "it was the custom on the eve of departing to roll the banner in the form of a tight mat. When ready the priest stepped forward and taking the banner in hand, sprinkled it with consecrated water and dedicated it to God the Father, God the son and God the Holy Ghost, turning the point of the triangle upward in the name of each, thus calling on that unity of Creator, Redeemer and Sanctifier to bless the voyagers and their friends. The flag thus consecrated was then hoisted to the masthead."

He then adjusted the flag to the halgards and hoisted it to its position at the masthead. Captain Driver, overcome with emotion, was silent for a moment. Then as he looked aft and saw the flag which he loved so well floating in the breeze he exclaimed: "I'll call her Old Glory, boys! Old Glory!" And thus was the American flag christened with a new name for he was the first to use that name and by no other did he ever refer to it. The voyage which was thus so appropriately inaugurated carried the original "Old Glory" into many harbors throughout the world and into even more during the next six years while Captain Driver sailed the seas. During one of his voyages into the Orient he had made a campfirewood sea chest, brass-bound and decorated with nailheads, in which he placed the original "Old Glory" when it was not floating at the masthead of his ship. And this flag had an even more thrilling later history than its early one.

In 1837 Captain Driver retired from the sea and went to Nashville, Tenn., to make his home, but when he sold his ship he did not sell "Old Glory." Safe in its campfirewood chest it went to Tennessee with him. On patriotic occasions and on his own birthday—St. Patrick's day, for he was born March 17, 1803—it was taken from the chest and hung to the breeze for all to see and to reverence. And Captain Driver invariably saluted it with these words: "My country, my flag—Old Glory!"

As the dispute between the North and South became more intense and the Civil war drew nearer and nearer, Captain Driver became increasingly unpopular with his neighbors in Nashville because of his outspoken devotion to his country and his flag. During the Presidential campaign "Old Glory" was displayed on a rope stretched from his home to a tree across the street and the bitterness of that campaign brought to Captain Driver's ears unmistakable hints that his flag might be stolen or destroyed, so he bought another flag for display and retired "Old Glory" once more to its campfirewood chest.

After the secession of Tennessee from the Union, the captain began to fear for the safety of his flag at the hands of the Confederates. So he took it by night to the house of a Union sympathizer named Bailey and asked Mrs. Bailey and her daughters, Mary and Patience, to hide it for him so that it could not be found and destroyed if the Confederates searched his house. At that time Mary and Patience Bailey were making a comfort, padding it heavily with cotton, and thus suggested an ideal hiding place. So Captain Driver folded "Old Glory" in the comfort where the layers of cotton stretched in— and sewed up the outside covering. Again at night Captain Driver took the comfort to his home and placed it in a large iron wash kettle in the attic of his home.

Three "Old Glory" stayed until Union troops occupied Nashville in February, 1862. Immediately thereafter Captain Driver and a group of soldiers slipped open the comfort, took out the flag and hoisted it over the state capitol to the strains of "The Star-Spangled Banner," played by a regimental band. It remained there for hours, but so fearful was Captain Driver that his flag might even then be injured by a hostile hand that he stood guard over it day and night. In the morning "Old Glory" was taken down and replaced with another American flag. By this time it was very old, much worn and the captain feared that a strong wind would whip it to pieces.

After this "Old Glory" was always kept in the captain's house and late in his life he gave it to his daughter, Mrs. M. J. Roland of Nevada, where, so far as is known, it still is. In 1907 the flag had become so worn that Mrs. Roland placed it on a piece of sheeting and stitched it fast to the cloth to preserve it for future generations of the family. Captain Driver died March 2, 1886, and was buried in Old City cemetery in Nashville.

Just as it was a Yankee sea captain which gave to our flag its name of "Old Glory," so it was that another Yankee—a soldier, instead of a sailor, however—who took another "Old Glory" on one of the most romantic expeditions in our history. Bates was his name and he had served as color sergeant in the Twenty-fourth Massachusetts regiment during the Civil war. In 1872 Color Sergeant Bates had an idea which he proceeded to put into effect in a dramatic fashion.

At that time there was much talk in this country of the hostility of Great Britain toward the United States. Determined to find out for himself whether this talk was fostered by politicians for their own selfish ends or was a genuine antipathy, Bates resolved to cross the Atlantic, start from the northern border of England and march to London bearing aloft an unfurled American flag just as he had done on the battlefields of 1861-65. His reception by the people of England would show whether or not there was any foundation for this talk of John Bull's hostility toward Uncle Sam.

Clad in his uniform of blue, Sergeant Bates on November 5—Guy Fawkes' day and the anniversary of the Battle of Inkermann—left Edinburgh for Great Britain. At Sark bridge on the border line between Scotland and England he unfurled "Old Glory" and stood beneath it with uncovered head. Then he started on his march. That evening he tramped into Carlisle where a group of commercial travelers at the Bush hotel gave him a hearty welcome. More than that; they set word on ahead of his strange pilgrimage and when he came to the mining town of Penrith and Sharp, great crowds of miners were on hand to cheer him.

The warm welcome given Bates there was repeated in every place through which he traveled.

The London daily press gave much space to the American soldier on December 2. A dense mass packed the Guildhall yard, where a British regiment was carrying the English standard. Bates was borne on the shoulders of men into the crowded Guildhall, and then back to the carriage, from which he made a speech before retiring his flag.

Bates' reception in London was the crowning touch to his pilgrimage. There was no longer any doubt of John Bull's friendliness toward Uncle Sam, at least so far as the common people of England were concerned.

WORLD WAR YARNS

by Lieut. Frank E. Hagan

"The Rock of the Marne"

The Civil war gave the American army the tradition of the "Rock of Chickamauga" in the person of Gen. George H. Thomas, but the World war gave to it the tradition of the "Rock of the Marne" in the personnel of the Thirty-eighth United States Infantry. For it was this regiment which blocked the "advance to Paris" at the second battle of the Marne on July 14 and 15, 1918, by beating back two German shock divisions and although suffering enormous losses, immortalized itself by a classic example of coolness, courage and tenacity.

The German attacks first hit the platoons of the Thirty-eighth which were dug in along the river bank and as these platoons were wiped out of existence the company commander took forward their supporting platoons for counter-attacks. Time and time again these counter-blows drove the enemy back to the Marne where bitter, bloody, hand-to-hand fighting stemmed the German advance. For sixteen and a half hours the Thirty-eighth held the front entrusted to it and the desperate efforts of two of the best-trained German guard divisions of shock troops failed to budge it.

The commander of the Thirty-eighth on this occasion was Col. Ulysses G. McAlexander, now a retired major-general living in Oregon.

The Widow Poissenot

France's undying love of country, passed down from one generation to another, expressed itself immediately the armistice was signed. Then it was that some member of the French equivalent for Tin Pan Alley published a new martial song, extolling all Frenchmen to "rush to the frontiers—protect our borders with life itself." And it was taught promptly to all the French school children. Perhaps Yve Poissenot—the Widow Poissenot—reflects the age-old French spirit as correctly as anyone.

Widow Poissenot was proprietress of the Cafe de Tabac in the struggling little commune of Champignol, department of the Aube. Right nobly did she care for an American lieutenant and two non-coms, who stayed at her cafe to billet the town for troops. In early 1918, they lacked neither food nor ceremony.

Even the dandelion salad, for which the material was dug from surrounding hillsides, was presented with the grand gesture. "This," the Widow Poissenot would say, "is for the American mission!"

Then the troops came—a battalion of the Sixtieth Infantry. They struggled in from a long hike over the hills from Bar-sur-Aube and pitched pup tents in a meadow beyond the town. Champignol inhabitants, mostly old men, women and children, brought wine for the empty canteens of these, their first American soldiers.

Just at that, Madame Poissenot disappeared from the Cafe de Tabac. When next seen her gaunt little body was in front of an American soldier's tent. She had knelt and was pouring intensely at the equipment tent. After several minutes she arose. "I wish to see everything," Madame Poissenot explained simply. "Everything. So that I can tell the children about it, as soon as they are old enough to understand."

A Fine Advertisement, That Was!

Newspaper men and newspaper readers will be interested in a glimpse at the wartime work of one of the fraternities, Lieut. Philip Harris, editor and one of the principal contributors to Aussie, official publication in France of the Australian soldiers. Brother Harris in early 1918 when the Aussie appeared swathed in a smart cover of silk, glazed paper.

Harris, they learned, had found the stock for his doggy bucket by burrowing beneath the shell-wrecked portion of Armentieres, the place where the mademoiselle of the popular war song came from. It had been preserved in excellent condition because parts and material of the factory building had formed a waterproof covering of protection. A surprised and happy Frenchman lost little time in selling the discovered stock.

Copy for his publication was contributed entirely by men at the front, sketches and stories being received regularly on firm, dirtied paper from Aussies under fire. Before August, 1914, Harris was a newspaper man in Sydney, New South Wales. He published the book in 1914 on a transport bound for France and followed it with the Rising Sun, both predecessors to the Aussie.

One of the advertisements written by Harris discloses a sardonic sense of humor. The Australian soldiers read this in one issue of the Aussie: "Australian Beer for Sale. The Aussie Brewery company is pleased to be able to announce to all members of the A. I. F. in France that the Best Brands of Australian Beer are being landed at all hotels in N. S. W., Victoria, Queensland, S. A., W. A., and Tasmania."

Tells Tale of an Ocean Tragedy

Boy Relates How Marooned Comrades Perished on Island.

Paris.—The transport Clambord of the Messageries Maritimes, plying between islands of the South Seas and Indian ocean, and assigned to carry the Madagascar mail, slipped into Marselles recently with one of the most tragic stories of the sea, a story of seven marooned fisherfolk, one being a woman, who gave birth to an un nourished babe.

Four slow and languishing deaths were caused by starvation and scurvy. The three survivors helplessly awaited the next to go when the long-promised relief ship arrived. The infant that perished counted five in the fatalities.

prostrated. Her baby, born some weeks later, had died quickly. One day the negro, Francois, collapsed on the rocks. Finally Quilleze, a fisherman, endeavoring to catch some meaty fish in an improvised boat, was lost in sight of his comrades, his body, tortured with scurvy and beri-beri, having no resistance.

Three were left—Herledan, Mme. Brunon and Hulebut. Mme. Brunon seemed only to wait to join her husband and child in the grave. The rabbits jumped about, penguins stood mournfully on the rocks and the three survivors moved about and talked like ghosts, fearing to eat that same awful food which brought scurvy. The youth of young Herledan probably kept him the strongest, though the

Youth Tells Story.

The story was told by Le Merdy Herledan, nineteen, a Breton youth from Pont Aven. Three years ago a Parisian firm established a lobster cannery on the tiny island of St. Paul, one of those isolated, lost islands in the middle of the Indian ocean between Australia and Africa. Sturdy fishermen were brought from Pont Aven and Congreac in Brittany.

At the beginning of 1930 hard times hit the cannery and three months later the company decided to withdraw its workmen, leaving seven volunteers to look after the material and to be taken off later by a relief ship. The band included young Herledan, Quilleze, a machinist; M. and Mme. Brunon; Quilleze's wife Hulebut, fisherman, and a negro, Francois.

Life on the island was good enough until spring, when the necessary food was lacking. The land destroyed or soured most of the lined goods. The water condensing apparatus was out of order and scurvy attacked the party, which was existing on penguins' eggs, rabbits, birds, shellfish and rainwater caught in the volcanic craters.

Dies as Comrades Watch.

Quilleze, the machinist, died first from scurvy, and was buried in a shallow grave. Food of rabbit meat and penguins' eggs soon caused the end of M. Brunon, whose wife was tragely showed in his melancholy face.

"What did you do when the relief ship finally came?" he was asked.

"I hardly remember," he said. "Fifty people came ashore. They brought food, supplies and machinery and they are going to rebuild the cannery factory. Hulebut and Mme. Brunon are staying there."

Flaw in Story Convicts Man as Wife Murderer

Wilmington, N. Y.—Convicted of murdering his pretty young wife while their baby daughter lay sleeping in her mother's arms, Thomas Marion, prominent young farmer, of near High Point, must serve twenty to thirty years in the state penitentiary.

Marion's conviction, which came despite his protestations that a negro bullet shot Mrs. Marion to death during a holiday, was attributed by defense attorneys and court attendants to one flaw in the young planter's story.

Marion claimed he had a firm grip on the bullet's pistol when the shot fatal to Mrs. Marion was fired.

This part of Marion's story, the prosecution averred, proved the falsity of his entire account of the tragedy.

The state introduced expert testimony to show that had Marion's hands been gripping the negro's pistol, powder marks would have been visible to those who talked to him a few minutes later.

Wyoming Turtle Death Puzzles U. S. Scientists

Washington.—What hit the turtles is one of the things Smithsonian Institution excavators hope to discover in future examination of fossil fields of the Tuleider Basin, Wyoming.

In its report recently published, the Institution's fossil party describes a vast turtle death spot where one outcrop 50 feet long was composed almost exclusively of turtle shells side by side. What caused this wholesale and obviously sudden annihilation could not be learned.

Charles W. Gilmore, leader of the party, thought it might have been volcanic gas, volcanic ash or perhaps a sudden flow of boiling water—all blating at prehistoric upheavals in the Wyoming bad lands.

Crocullid skulls and an almost complete skeleton of the long extinct Hyrachys, which is similar to a rhinoceros, were among the expedition's finds in Wyoming.

The 50-story skyscraper project, which will be established through the interest of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is expected to be completed by 1934.

Both Jaws Broken by Kicks of Mules

Coneland, Kan.—J. C. Sulzb, Jewell county farmer, had both his jaws cracked by the kicks of different mules.

Smith attempted to remove a nail from a mule's hoof. The mule kicked, the blow breaking the jaw and throwing him backward into the range of the other mule, who likewise let his hind foot fly out, cracking Smith's other jaw.

Justus Gates, Jr., was the druggist. He was the first graduate chemist to arrive in California, his grandson, Gates Hubbard, writes in the American Druggist. After the gold rush had abated a little Gates sold his fruit syrup and cream mixture at the state fair at Sacramento. It created a sensation. Years later the ice cream soda regions, his grandson writes. The "traveling drug stores" were wagons filled with drugs and medicines. There were four of them and a capable apothecary was in charge of each. The wagons covered hundreds of miles of territory. Few doctors in the gold regions were able to compound their own medicines and they came to rely upon the "traveling drug stores."

Some of the mining camps were so inaccessible that doctors rarely visited them. Gates therefore made up a number of family medicine chests which contained remedies for common complaints and directions for use. These the apothecaries left in the camps. Hundreds of sick men thus got medical aid which they would never have received had it not been for Gates' wagons.

Rambling Around Town

HATS OFF TO THE SPRINGFIELD Players, for the sparkling three-act comedy, "Her Honor, the Mayor," presented in the James Caldwell School last Friday evening..... exceptionally funny were Mrs. Howard M. Crowell as Mrs. McNabb, the suffragette and later a naval officer; Mrs. Manning Day, Jr., as the colored Chief of Police, and the three "males" in the play, Grenville Day, Ronald Pannell and Kenneth Niebuhr, as the "tamed" men.....the other characters portrayed by Mrs. Fred R. Morrison and the Misses Alice Reed and Junita Gross also were well suited for their parts, and in all, the comedy was as tickling as any shown here to date, perhaps equal to "Lightnin'" given by the St. James players earlier this year.....a near panic occurred last Saturday at the ball diamond in Chatham, when the Springfield Cubs came from behind on two occasions to win.....the final gesture, scoring five runs in the ninth to forge to the front by one run just about exhausted local fans.....one rooster admitted that although it meant removing false teeth, it was worth the inconvenience, and out went the artificial set of molars.....the encouraging factor in the victory over a team tied for first place, was the pep shown by members of the local nine, although one player could reach his position in the outfield as the pitcher of his team threw the first ball over the plate to start the inning.....fewer players like that, may result in a better type of ball and a greater attendance at local games.....a certain resident here had been working for a number of years at a metropolitan university in an effort to increase his knowledge and amount of learning.....he studied every night two summers for six weeks to complete his course, and in addition to this strain, still occupied his daily position at business.....this year marked the final span to absorb further his knowledge, and he graduated.....his marks indicated as high an average as any student might ask for.....it has been stated this individual was learning his "p's" and "q's" at a correspondence school.....we wonder what the new type of correspondence school is like, for certainly it's no place for the loafer.....

Hoffman Explains Financial Responsibility Legislation

State Commissioner of Motor Vehicles and to the extent of $10,000 for injury to more than one person in one accident, and to the extent of $1,000 for damages to property in one accident, will be deemed satisfaction of such judgment only insofar as the act is concerned with regard to establishing financial responsibility and being permitted to operate or register a motor vehicle. Failure to pay judgment will result in the revocation of the driver's license and registration of the vehicle owned by the judgment debtor.

The act provides that the judgment debtor may apply to the court for the privilege of paying judgment in installments in amounts to be fixed by the court. While the judgment debtor continues his payments the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles may, in his discretion restore or refrain from suspending the driver's license or registration certificates.

Proof of ability to respond in damages for future accidents as is required by the act, may be evidenced by a policy of insurance for claims arising out of one accident in the amount of $5,000 for one person injured, $10,000 for two or more persons injured; $1,000 for property damages. Such proof may also be bond of a surety company, or a bond with individual surety owning real estate in New Jersey, or by a deposit with the Commissioner of $11,000.

Should the person who has become subject to the act fail to comply with its requirements, it is mandated that the Commissioner revoke his operator's license and registration on each vehicle owned or registered by him in New Jersey. If he is not a resident, the privilege to operate, or have his motor vehicle operated in New Jersey will be withdrawn.

Suspension of certificates under the act continues until the law has been complied with, and proof of financial responsibility must be maintained for three years. At the end of the three year period, the requirement ceases, provided that during those three years the person required to furnish such proof has not violated any sections of the motor vehicle or traffic laws set out in the act, and has not been concerned in any accident which would come within the requirements of the act and has no unsatisfied judgment or suit pending against him, arising from an automobile accident.

Capital Rat Catcher Gives Up Job

Washington.—The Pied Piper has quit. A lifetime consisting of nothing more inspiring than luring rats to that bourne whence no traveler returns holds no charms for A. Gentry, rat catcher in ordinary of the National Capital. Gentry's soul cherishes loftier ambitions.

"Rats!" he said, in commenting on his resignation. "Big rats, little rats, fat rats, scrawny rats—they're all just rats to me."

"And after you have succeeded in trapping them what have you to show for your pains. Just rats and 40 cents an hour. I tell you, sir, a man's life is too important to be frittered away in that fashion.

"You may well say that catching federal rats is a public service, and many and boy, I've caught some big ones in my time, but I have been forced reluctantly to the conclusion that rat trapping is not my métier. There's no future in it. A long vista of deceased rodents—nothing more."

Gentry's nightly feud with the federal rats is fought out on a field of rats' own choosing—the old Center market district. It was here a short time ago that two young ladies from Virginia—students of heraldry—were frightened out of several years' growth by a platoon of the pests encircling their car and defying them to enter. It took the authority of a policeman to persuade them to disperse.

So A. Gentry, fifty, champion prairie dog killer of Wyoming, was looked up. "Will you rid us of our rats?" "Pleasure."

"Hired."

Six rats a night for several nights convinced the Pied Piper that other fields beckoned. Just where they are he would not state for publication. Enough that he is through as a harrier of rodents. "Prairie dogs, then rats! Enough is enough."

France to Honor Mother of Martyr

A monument is to be erected in France to the memory of Isabel Romee, mother of Jean of Arc. Both French and American mothers will carry to the base of the hill at Haut de Sures the clay model, shown above, of the memorial which is to be erected later. There is a movement on foot in France to name Mother's day after Madame Romee.

WHITE ACCESSORIES TO BE WORN WITH EVERYTHING THIS SEASON

ACCORDING to the latest dictate of the mode, we are to wear white accessories with everything this summer. What's more, the white sponsored is the whitest white ever—"chalk white," to speak correctly. It has already proved a vogue of irresistible appeal to women throughout the length and breadth of fashiondom. It is with daring originality that these smart white accents are being added to the dark costume. For instance, with the black, navy or brown frock we are expected to wear a white jacket (satin, crepe, velvet, plique or any preferred material). The hat of pretty clothes when they failed to recognize in velvet an all-the-year-round material. Be it said in their defense, however, that it was through no lack of appreciation on their part that they failed to regard velvet as an every-day-in-the-year proposition. Had we of this day and generation at our disposal only such velvets as were as compared with the velvets as are, we ourselves would undoubtedly have done as they did—confine the season for velvet to a few brief fall and winter months. However it is our good fortune to live in an age when wonders in way of discoveries and invention never cease, one of which is velvet which is textured so delightfully lightsome and sheer as any dainty fabric one might mention. Wherefore velvet takes its place in the list of summer materials for now, hereafter and forevermore.

More intriguing things are being done with velvet nowadays than have been done so far as history relates. In all the years that are past, even bathing suits are being made of velvet—but that is another story. What we started out to tell about is the stunning sports coats, which are being fashioned of velvet.

of starched and stitched linen or eye-letted plique as of straw, either bleached or lignin, which is ultra chic, or Milan or any of the popular rough straws. The one essential is that it be white.

When it comes to other accessory items, the mode calls for chalk white belts, pocketbooks, gloves and footwear.

The latest kerchiefs are of white tulle. You tie them in a slightly butterfly bow. See one of these swanky new scarves as it is worn with the sailor hat in the picture.

Would Enlarge Yellowstone Park

New York.—A territory of 52,490 acres will be added to the Yellowstone National park if the recommendations of the Yellowstone park boundary commission, appointed by President Hoover, are adopted by congress. This is revealed in the commission's report of 184 pages, which has just been issued by the government printing office.

Other recommendations of the commission include the retention of 40 square miles of ridges and valleys along the Snake river, which it had been proposed to congress should be eliminated from the park. The report also recommends that Idaho reclamation interests be denied their request for a reservoir site of 17,280 acres in the Bechler river basin of the park.

This commission, appointed by the President pursuant to a resolution of congress approved February 28, 1920, consists of Dr. E. E. Brownell of California; Dr. Arthur E. Morgan of Ohio; Dr. T. Gilbert Pearson of New York; Charles H. Ramsdell of Minnesota; and Arthur Ringland of Washington, D. C.

In a statement made by Commissioner Pearson, president of the National Association of Audubon Societies, he laid emphasis on the importance of adding to the park the Bridger lake and Upper Yellowstone River region. He pointed out that this is the heart of the Shiras moose country.

KNOWING HOW TO STOP

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois

In old Norse mythology there is the story of a poor man who through bargaining with the devil came into possession of a quern, which is a sort of ancient coffee mill. This quern was capable of grinding out anything that it was told to grind—and eat and drink and dainties of all sorts. It would grind lights and cutlery and tablecloths and gold even if we were told to do so.

The poor man had a rich brother who, when he saw the luxuries with which the once indigent member of the family was now surrounded, became envious and envious.

"Whence in it—its name have you got all this wealth?" he asked, and so persistent was he in his inquiries that he finally wormed from his brother the secret of the quern. Soaring its possibilities he was not satisfied until he had possessed himself of it, which he did upon the payment of a large sum of money.

It was evening when the rich brother got the quern home, and next morning, it being the time of hay harvest, he sent his wife out into the hay field to turn over the hay which was being cut that it might be more quickly dry, and he agreed to stay at home and get the dinner. When dinner time came he put the quern upon the table and said:

"Grind herrings and broth and grind them good and fast."

The quern began to grind until the table was covered and the kitchen floor, and he was forced to open the door to let the flood of herrings and broth out. He had learned how to start the machine but he had neglected to discover how it could be stopped and the yard and the streets and the fields were in danger of being covered with herrings and broth like a great lava stream. It was only when he rushed frantically to his brother that the quern was stopped.

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

By WALTER TRUMBULL

I had never seen a planetarium, and except for my wife's insistence probably would not have seen one yet. In fact, in preliminary conversation on the subject, I inadvertently referred to it as a solarium, despite the fact that the difference is as that between day and night. It does, to be sure, show the sun as well as the stars in their courses, but it is a dimpled sun, which permits observation of the shining of the lesser lights. In ordinary study of astronomy you look outdoors up into what Omar Khayyam designated as "that inverted bowl they call the sky." In a planetarium, they bring the sky indoors.

Whoever created that weird and wonderful machine, which looks like some nightmarish visitor from Mars, is to my mind entitled to rank with Merlin and all the ancient magicians, although all complicated mechanical invention is just so much mystery to one who considers the proper threading of a film in a movie camera an achievement. It not only shows the entire solar system in movement through its countless fields of stars, but can make thousands of years race in either direction in the space of a few minutes. In other words, this device can show you the moving heavens as they looked to Anthony and Cleopatra floating down the Nile on some clear Egyptian night. Or it can show you the sun, moon, stars and planets in the position they will occupy 10,000 years from now, something which, even as an optimist, I never expected to see. In that space of time, I understand, the constellations will be distorted; the big dipper will look as if it had been through the war; Cassiopeia's chair will look like a hammock.

As you gaze up at the interior of the dome, upon which synchronized and moving objects of light are cast, you have no feeling of being under a roof. It gives you the feeling of looking at the true sky. When the machine is run at speed, you feel decided apprehension for Venus, desperately trying to keep ahead of the sun, and considerable sympathy for little Mercury, trying just as desperately to catch up. Saturn, a lonesome planet, nods eagerly to Venus as she flashes by, but, contrary to any mythological scandal, she neither pauses nor notices him. Jupiter and Mars must be tired business men. They stay out all night. Betelgeuse is apparently a cop on fixed post.

One reason I never had seen a planetarium is that the only one in the United States is the gift of Max Adler to the city of Chicago. It stands on a little island in the lake, near the Field museum, and has the general form of an observatory. I believe there are several planetariums in Germany, and there is soon to be one in Philadelphia in spite of the cost, which they tell me is considerable. I can't see why there is not a planetarium in every large city in the country. It is one of the greatest educational factors I ever saw. The institution in Chicago is constantly a place of pilgrimage for school children, as well as adults, and teaches them more about astronomy in an hour than they would learn from any ordinary course in months. It is an impressive demonstration, making an indelible impression. Never was a scientific lesson more skillfully sugar-coated. Why so rich a city as New York hasn't a planetarium, I can't imagine.

The head of the Chicago planetarium is Doctor Fox, but frequently there are visiting lecturers. Doctor Baker, professor of astronomy at the University of Illinois, lectured the day I was present. He showed me a board, which had more galaxies on it than the entire board of an airplane, and told me that the speaker regulated the artificial heavens to suit himself by means of rows of what seemed to be electric buttons and switches. Apparently, the manipulator can place himself on any portion of the earth's surface he desires, looking at the sky from a northern, southern or equatorial angle. As I left, Doctor Baker was preparing to take a couple of his students on a trip South, showing them the Southern Cross. I once had to take a trip to South America to see that.

Policemen and Escapes
With Money.

Hastings, Neb. - Thirteen clerks were tied up, eleven policemen ambushed, and a large amount of cash stolen by a gang of three men, one woman, and a baby that figured in a near perfect bank holdup here.

In a Hastings hospital the other day, where he is recovering from the effects of a policeman's bullet, James O. (Big Jim) Thomas, who hails from Amarillo, Texas, expressed satisfaction with the job.

"Do bulls did chase all over the state, I'm telling ya. An' we had 'em foxed, see? You're lookin' at a guy who knows how to crack a bank, savvy?"

Neighbors Suspicious.

Their plot did almost work. If neighbors had been a little less prone to suspicion, the entire gang might now be free. As it is, Big Jim, the leader, will probably go to prison for a long term. His confederates, Jimmy Creighton and Brazo Bill, will probably join him.

The woman was the wife of Creighton, and the child was their son. The fate of mother and son is still undecided.

A month before the actual robbery Big Bill and Mrs. Creighton arrived in Hastings. They rented a trim little bungalow on a quiet residential street. Two young men were seen to visit the couple several times. Everyone believed them just an ordinary family.

That was Big Bill's intention.

Threaten Officers With Death.

Then one morning the three broke into the bank and overpowered the watchmen. As the clerks came to work, they were tied up one by one and herded in the cellar. Then the cashier was forced to open the safe. The trio fled.

As Big Bill had planned, the authorities were on the alert all over the state. No one thought that the gang would be living within a mile of the scene, but the suspicions of neighbors were aroused. A crew of eleven policemen surrounded the house. Three who entered the house were made captive and threatened with death unless the others outside came in and surrendered. In that way the gang escaped, but they were later caught.

Job at Least Spared Affliction of Bunions

Job, of course, did have bolls. But Job had no bunions. Having no bunions, he—like many of us—lived and died without knowing how lucky he was. Added to these bolls of his, one good averaged-sized bunion would have forced Job to abandon his job—of—stet—neutrality—course—God—and die.

It is next to impossible to stand a bunion—and utterly impossible to stand upon a bunion—when that constitutes the only bodily affliction of the moment. No man could tolerate one on top of a bunch of bolls.

The word bunion is a perfectly legitimate derivative of "onion," meaning to weep. The "b" was prefixed to supply the sting—and how!

For downright, 100 per cent sting, a bunion has the ordinary or garden variety of honey boulder backed off the big toe. Which, by the way, is a mighty good place to look if you are hunting bunions. It may not be found right on the toe, but you may be sure it is not far away.

A bunion is a vain sort of thing, this being the reason for its rigid insistence upon the big (or larger) toe. The little toe, for instance, would never do it. Oh, dear, no—it isn't done, my dear! A bunion demands to be the whole works. And it is—

Electric Phenomenon

A recently observed electrical phenomenon that sweeps the entire world at the same instant between 9 and 8 p. m. eastern time, is described to the American Geophysical union by Dr. O. H. Gish, of the Carnegie Institution.

It is a change connected with the earth's electrical charge. This charge, says Doctor Gish, tends to acquire a high value during the hours named. The cause is not definitely known, but is ascribed to some still "elusive, unknown" factor that maintains the earth charge.

Existence of the charge is shown by study of atmospheric electricity. The same studies show that the charge fluctuates and have given some indication of the universal time schedule of these changes.

Twenty thousand daffodils, three thousand tulips to match and hundreds of white crocuses and lilies of the valley were used in the decoration of St. Catharine's church, Cambridge, England, recently for the wedding of Miss Angela Scott-Nicholson and Thomas Strong. The floral color scheme was reflected in the bridal gown, the wedding gown being in panna of a new shade called honey, while the bridesmaid's dresses, also of panna, were pale topaz.

St. Johns, N. F.—Activities of a sixteen-year-old jail inmate who used his cell as an operations base for a series of robberies were disclosed here.

The boy, named Callahan, has been serving three months for a daylight robbery at Cornbrook. He removed one bar from his cell window, which allowed him to go and return at will.

A new necktie dangling from Callahan's pocket as he moved about his cell attracted an officer's attention. Then a considerable sum of money was found under the mattress.

The boy confessed to a series of burglaries. He said he was in the habit of leaving his cell after midnight and returning before daylight.

By scoring five runs in the ninth inning, the Springfield Cubs won their second game of the season at Chatham last Saturday, rising out of the league-leading Howitzers, 12 to 11, and forcing the losers to drop a notch in the league standing as Irvington, with whom they had been previously tied, defeated Madison.

The Cubs displayed their full batting strength, collecting seventeen hits to their opponent's eleven. Five doubles didn't prove harmful to the cause, which were credited to Cashman, Bert Garrett took up the reins on the mound in the first inning after George Herscher was knocked out after yielding four runs and three hits, with two away. For the remainder of the game, Garrett allowed eight hits and struck out seven men, although costly errors at third base, aided the Chatham team to score five runs in the sixth.

Colie Velbinger started for Chatham, and for the first few innings, things looked gloomy for Springfield. He was knocked out of the box in the sixth and gave way to Mike Lauer.

The locals picked up a run in the third inning on an error by Nudzaki, Chatham third baseman, as Don Pennoyer got his first of four hits. Doubles by Cashman and Don Pennoyer resulted in another run in the next inning.

The fifth opened with another error by Nudzaki, and Manager Herb Pennoyer reached first. Knapp walked and Herb scored on Brause's hit. Don Pennoyer's third single scored Knapp. The locals got three runs in the eventful sixth, as Cashman's double scored Mike Georges and Manager Pennoyer. Cashman scored when Mink singled.

The ninth inning found Mink singling to center and coming home on a sharp double by Garrett. The latter scored as Don Pennoyer got his fourth hit and Ernie Pennoyer singled but Don was out, stretching his base running to third. With one out, Ernie Pennoyer scored as Georges smashed a hit through Nudzaki's legs, but the former was forced out as Herb Pennoyer hit to Mullins. The latter came home with the tying run at Matto singled over first.

The winning run was made when Cashman sent a long double into right field, and Matto scampered home from first base. Brause ended the inning, being put out at first.

WHOLESOME DISHES

THE coarser foods and fibrous vegetables are quite necessary in our diet and should be freely given at all times of the year. The soft, smooth foods which have no roughage do not excite the peristaltic action in the intestines and when one is inclined to constipation such food only increases the trouble.

Puree of Peas.
Cook a pint of fresh green peas and put through a sieve, add a tablespoonful of butter with two of flour well blended, salt and pepper to taste. Cook together until the starch in the flour is well cooked, then add a cupful of rich milk and whip with a droyer egg beater until light. Using fresh peas makes a most tasty dish, but of course the canned peas will do; adding a bit of sugar also improves the puree. The addition of more milk if the amount is wished increased will not spoil the flavor.

Hominy Pecan Croquettes.
Cook one-half cupful of hominy with a half teaspoonful of salt in two cups of water for five minutes, then cook in a double boiler two hours. Add two tablespoonfuls of shortening, one-half cupful of chopped pecans and a teaspoonful of scraped onion. Cool and shape in cylinders. Beat one egg slightly, add two tablespoonfuls of cold water, roll the croquettes in crumbs and egg, then again in crumbs and fry in deep fat.

Scotch Oat Crackers.
Put two cupfuls of rolled oats through the meat grinder, add one-fourth of a cupful each of milk and molasses, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of fat, one-fourth teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of salt and one-fourth of a cupful of raisins or nuts. Mix well, roll very thin and cut into fancy shapes. Bake twenty minutes in a moderate oven.

More Than Million in Twenty States Fed by Red Cross Volunteers

Hot School Lunches and Balanced Rations Given to Drought Victims—Seed Programs Instituted on Wide Scale

More than 1,000,000 persons in 882 drought-stricken counties of 20 States came under the care of the American Red Cross in what developed into the most extensive relief operations in half a century of ministering to stricken humanity.

Monitors to lessen the severity of the blow inflicted by drought were taken as early as last September, when seed was distributed to more than 58,000 families for the planting of rye and other pastures, and to more than 27,000 families for the planting of kitchen gardens. The expenditure for this purpose amounted to $326,800. Green vegetables were made available up to the first of January.

Early in February another Red Cross garden program got under way and 697,000 packages of seed were distributed in 16 states. Quarter-acre plots were planted to beans, beets, cabbage, carrots, collard, sweet corn, kale, lettuce, mustard, peas, onions, peas, spinach, squash, tomatoes and turnips. Once again were farm families given the opportunity to participate in their own salvation.

Balanced Meals Served
Red Cross feeding was aimed at adequacy and scientific correctness, as well as simple economy. In large numbers of schools, where children were found to be attending with little or nothing in their lunch boxes, hot meals were served at noon. A typical menu consisted of vegetable soup and bread one day; thick beef soup or stew with vegetables another day; cocoa or milk and cheese, peanut butter, or jam sandwiches, a third day.

Test for Drugs
Blasasays are tests of the potency of drugs conducted upon intact living animals or upon surviving isolated tissues.

collected extra staples for school lunches including peanut butter, raisins, peaches and tomatoes. Red Cross nutritionists instructed mothers in the preparation of lunches.

County health officers and private physicians commended the adequacy of rations prepared on orders issued by Red Cross chapters, which were filled at local stores. Besides the usual staples, such as corn meal, flour, lard, meat, beans and potatoes, such items as canned salmon, cabbage, tomatoes, vegetables and milk were provided, each order being adapted to the special needs of the family for whom it was issued. Where pellagra threatened, eggs, yeast and other preventives were given.

Thousands of Volunteer Workers
Many thousands of volunteers, through their local Red Cross chapters, gave freely of their time, experience and efforts, as in other Red Cross disaster operations. They searched out needy cases in their communities, many persons being restrained from asking assistance because of pride. Chapter committees investigated circumstances, distributed food and clothing.

More than 500 carloads of foodstuffs were contributed. These were given free haulage by railroads. Farmers of more fortunate sections embraced the opportunity to help their pastoral cousins of the affected area. Shipments ranged from live poultry to fish, from grain to grapefruit. Carloads of flour, eggs, beans, vegetables, onions, rice, corn and mixed vegetables were included.

As the result of co-ordinated Red Cross chapter efficiency, not one unattended case of starvation as a result of drought has been uncovered. Large quantities of new and used clothing were distributed.

SAVING THINGS
THERE is something of the nomad and something of the permanent settler in most of us. The nomad in us bids us discard unnecessary possessions while the permanent settler bids us hoard and save and accumulate. Some women give the nomad the upper hand and save too little, while others save all sorts of junk that had far better be thrown away.

If there had never been any savers we should have no antiques, no curios, no visible records of the life of our ancestors—or at least only such things as had accidentally managed to escape the general weeding-out process.

One should discard with judgment and save with understanding—and this is precisely what some women never do. They never throw away a receipted bill, a cancelled check or a bank statement and yet never think of saving the revealing first letter written by a son or a daughter in college, which will prove entertaining in years to come.

Every one in the course of a lifetime receives a score or more of letters that ought to be saved—clever letters, amusing letters, letters that will be priceless records of family life in years to come, and yet letters of this sort are so seldom saved that they are priceless family treasures when we come across them among old papers.
