Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart

Washington. With the recent appointment of Walter J. Cummings to Chicago, and E. G. Lake, as members of the Federal Reserve Board, the new Federal Reserve Board is now in operation. The new step has been made toward another experiment in national government, namely, the insurance of bank deposits of private individuals and corporations. Nothing like it has ever been attempted on so vast a scale as is now being worked out for the banking act of 1933 was the first national law ever to carry provisions for guaranteeing deposits. Of course, it does not become operative until next January 1, but many tasks remain to be performed before this new piece of federal machinery is ready to run.

Insuring Bank Deposits. The new Federal Reserve Board is now in operation. The new step has been made toward another experiment in national government, namely, the insurance of bank deposits of private individuals and corporations. Nothing like it has ever been attempted on so vast a scale as is now being worked out for the banking act of 1933 was the first national law ever to carry provisions for guaranteeing deposits. Of course, it does not become operative until next January 1, but many tasks remain to be performed before this new piece of federal machinery is ready to run.

Good and Bad Bankers. The insurance of bank deposits is a new thing and because of its complicated character, it seems better to outline again what the deposit insurance proposes to do. After January 1, 1934, each and every deposit amounting to $2,500 or less is automatically insured if the bank in which the money is deposited has complied with the requirements of law. Since these requirements are highly technical and quite complex for a layman to understand, it may suffice to say the law demands that the bank be absolutely sound and that it have sufficient assets that it can pay off its depositors 100 cents for each dollar. If a bank cannot do that, the law authorizes the board of the corporation to refuse to admit that bank to membership and when that happens, it seems to me, the particular bank may well close up shop. Few persons will leave their money with it longer than it takes to withdraw it.

Milk Production. The secretary of the Federal Reserve Board is now talking in terms of a blanket agreement of all dairy farmers to control the milk production of the nation's herds. Such a plan is almost complete. It is about to be adopted by the secretary as the only way to avoid mending tangles over the milk production problem in a thousand milk sheds for as many cities. Ten or fifteen of these agreements, each in character, have been worked out, but the secretary holds them to be mere stopgaps. They are not applicable generally, and if there is to be a solution for the milk problem it must be worked out on a national basis, the experts tell me.

Banks Put Up Money. The law requires that each bank becoming a member of the corporation must pay into the fund an amount equal to one-half of one percent of the deposits that bank has. That will make several hundred million dollars available and the supporters of the insurance plan claim the total will be large enough to last a long time before another assessment will have to be made upon the banks to replenish the fund. That, of course, is open to question. Only time can tell whether the fund is sufficient. Nor can anyone know how many bank failures there will be in the future. If there are few, then the drain on the insurance fund will be small and, conversely, if there should be a surge of failures such as we had in the last several years, anybody's guess is good as to how long $250,000,000 will last in paying off depositors.

Banking Act. The law requires that each bank becoming a member of the corporation must pay into the fund an amount equal to one-half of one percent of the deposits that bank has. That will make several hundred million dollars available and the supporters of the insurance plan claim the total will be large enough to last a long time before another assessment will have to be made upon the banks to replenish the fund. Grau San Martin Tries to Establish Government for Cuba—Four More States for Prohibition Repeal—Blue Eagle Notes.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SITTING precariously on the edge of the Cuban Presidential chair to which he had been elected by the radical junta, Ramon Grau San Martin endeavored earnestly to maintain his balance and to establish a government so solid that it would be given recognition by the United States. On all sides he was beset with difficulties and threats. In the big National Hotel were the deposed army and navy officers, heavily armed and supported by the more conservative factions that favored the return to power of the Céspedes whom the radicals had shoved out. In the harbor of Havana and elsewhere about the island were American warships, embodying the possibility of armed intervention by Uncle Sam if conditions became too chaotic. In the capital city and other centers new political and revolutionary factions formed tightly, and various strikes complicated the situation. Money, food and gasoline for the troops that were supporting Grau San Martin were running low, and merchants were refusing credit.

Nevertheless, the President, who is a more forceful figure than Don Cespedes, carried on bravely and proceeded to select a cabinet. Posting and speaking for the rallies, he declared: "At last Cuba is again free among civilized nations of the world. Cuba now has a stable government, all that we need for prosperity, and we hope that prosperity will come quickly."

WASHINGTON, of course, was watching the developments in Cuba with deep interest, not to any anxiety, but President Roosevelt was determined to avoid intervention if possible. Through Secretary of State Hull he indicated that he would follow a line of strict neutrality among the island's factions and would permit Cuba to solve her own political problems. Mr. Hull's formal statement was: "The government of the United States has no interest in behalf of or prejudice against any political group or independent organization which is today active in the political life of Cuba."

Former President Mario G. Menocal, who returned to Cuba after the ousting of Machado, entered the picture when the military officers backed him to lead their effort to force Grau San Martin out of the Presidency.

FOR several days Spain was without a cabinet, following the ousting of the pro-Socialist government of Premier Manuel Azana, and the situation was chaotic. However, President Zamora called in Alejandro Lerroux, veteran Republican leader, and charged him to form a coalition cabinet based solely on the Radical party and the independent republicans. This move was accomplished with some difficulty, persuading all the minority republican groups to support him, although two of their leaders, Salvador de Madariaga and Felipe Sanchez Roman, had refused to sign up. Lerroux selected a cabinet that was approved by President Zamora. Of its thirteen members, six are members of the Radical party, which is really the most conservative party in the country, so the government has taken a decided turn to the right. Lerroux and his government may have considerable difficulty in the cortex, for the Socialist left and the monarchist right will be strong in opposition.

One thing the Spanish government has to cope with is the great enemy wave that is sweeping over the country. Murders, bombings and incendiary fires have been frequent and the police and civil guards so far have been unable to check the outrages. Many of the crimes are attributed to Communists.

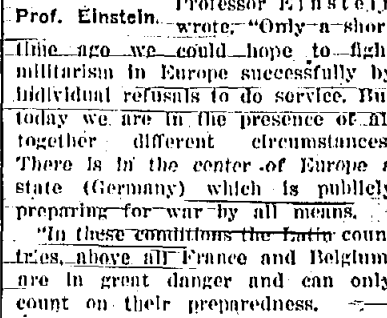

FOUR more states fell into line for repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, making twenty-nine that so far have voted, with nine in opposition. Only seven more are needed for the ratification of the amendment, and now not even the most confirmed prohibitionists believe the wave can be pushed back. It is a moral certainty

PEACE for ten years between Greece and Turkey is assured by the pact which was signed at Ankara by the ministers Tsaldaris and Ismet Pasha. The pact guarantees reciprocal frontier security against aggression from domestic and international quarters and mutual representation at international conferences.

CHANCELLOR HITLER and his Nazis have compelled Prof. Albert Einstein to revise in part his long held pacifist attitude. His altered views appeared in a letter to a Belgian anti-militarist who appealed to him to help two Belgian conscientious objectors to military service who had started a hunger strike.

Prof. Einstein

"You will be very astonished at what I am going to tell you," Prof. Einstein wrote. "Only a short time ago we could hope to fight militarism in Europe successfully by individual refusals to do service. But today we are in the presence of altogether different circumstances. There is in the center of Europe a state (Germany) which is publicly preparing for war by all means."

"In these conditions the peace countries, above all France and Belgium, are in great danger and can only count on their preparedness."

LOUISIANA'S women have no intention of letting up in their fight to obtain the equality of Huey Long and John H. Overton from the United States senate. Their organization, headed by Mrs. Hilda Phelps Hammond, sent a long telegram to Senator Connally of Texas, chairman of the senate investigating committee, demanding that the committee conclude its inquiry into the state election that sent Senator Overton. The telegram said in part:

"The evidence of record that was adduced by a competent counsel and skilled investigators conclusively shows that Overton's election from beginning to end was a gigantic fraud designed and perpetrated by Senator Long, Overton's campaign manager, with the knowledge and consent of Mr. Overton, who is the beneficiary."

BRUISED and footsore after a week of struggling through the forests of Ontario, Ward E. Van Orman and Frank A. Trotter, pilots of a Goodyear balloon in the James Gordon Bennett race from Chicago, were found and brought back to civilization. Caught in a bad squall, they had been forced to land, upside down in dense woods.

JOHN VAN A. MACMURRAY as minister to Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania. They believe this is a step toward recognition and that Mr. MacMurray will be our ambassador at Moscow before very long. He is a college professor, specialist in Russian affairs and history and recently returned from a trip through Russia. In every respect Mr. MacMurray is qualified to represent the United States abroad, for he has held many important posts in the diplomatic service, in Europe and in the Far East. In 1924 he was an assistant secretary of state and soon after was appointed minister to China.

TONY CANZONERI made a gallant effort to regain the lightweight title in New York and failed. For fifteen rounds he battled with Barney Kosow of Chicago, the present champion, but in the end the decision was given the younger man who had conquered Tony last June.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

SEWING

I WISH you would tell me how to teach my daughter to sew. She is now twenty years old and cannot make her own dresses. Maybe I ought not to say that. She does make her dresses when I compel her to do so. But she makes such a fuss and cries, and the dress has to be ripped out and sewed again, and next time it is the same old story. She hates to sew.

"I can sew anything, and my second daughter is a wonderful needlewoman. Why can't I teach my oldest daughter to sew? She has graduated from college and is starting to work in a very nice position, but that means more books. She loves books and nothing else. She reads and she wants to write, and I tell her she must sew evenings instead of reading. She does enough of that daytime. But it is a terrible struggle."

"There is no reason under the sun why this girl should be bothered to death about sewing. Why should she sew? She can't sew. If she could sew, she would without any compulsion. This girl is evidently very different from her sister and her mother. Why not? One good needlewoman is enough for any family. Let the other girl stick to her books. Just because somebody else likes to sew is no reason why another somebody should suffer."

"Sewing is an art once it gets beyond the button sewing and hemming stage. An artist is born with his gift within him, all ready to spring into action at the first hint of welcoming opportunity. No amount of teaching, drill, pressure, will make an artist out of an artisan. This happens often that you think between parents and children. Maybe you are saying, 'But you can't be a bee man. Nobody in our family ever was a bee man. You're positively silly. Whoever heard of making a living by being a bee man? Get this nonsense out of your head. Study your chemistry. I want you to get high marks in chemistry. You can be a chemical engineer. Oh, yes, you can. All you have to do is to put your mind on it. If I could learn chemistry, you can. There's a fine field waiting for you. Now forget this bee man business. Make something out of yourself. All right. You'll do just what I tell you. That's the end of it. Bee man. I'll be man you if I hear another word about it.'"

Maybe he is a bee man. How do you know? What do you know about bees, anyway? If you should stop in your stride toward the laboratory some sunny morning and look into the orchard, you might possibly discover a world, a beautiful world where miracles happen.

THE RUNABOUT CHILD

"MY CHILD was a lovely baby, and as good as an angel, until the past few months. Now it seems that I can do nothing with him. He delights in breaking things. He pulls the table cover off and laughs to hear the crash. He is as destructive as a plague. I don't know what to do with him any more. I've tried everything, spanking him, putting him in bed, scolding him on a chair, all to no good."

Did you give him something to do? Something of his own to be busy with? While a child lies in his crib he gathers some impressions of people and things about him. These impressions are imperfect. He has not touched and weighed and measured the things in the house. When he finds his feet he is off on a tour of inspection. Furniture and rugs and the little odds and ends that have beauty and meaning to their owners must be safeguarded from this rascal. He really does not mean to destroy. He just does not know what he is doing to do so. No more runabout than these new things. He has not seen them all these two years. He was getting ready to see them. It is now when he touches and pushes and pulls and bites into them that he is seeing them.

As soon as a child starts exploring, take him on your shoulder and let him look, touch and learn what he can take and what he will not take. If he has a few such excursions he will not have to go about on his own, and his disastrous mistakes will be lessened. Then keep supplying him with things that teach and satisfy. We take a drawer as a box that the child can reach easily and fill it with odds and ends that interest and amuse him. Put into it balls of varying material, size and color and use; pieces of cloth, varied in texture and color; blocks that fit into each other, lids that can be taken off and put on boxes; metal odds and ends that give him the feeling of weight and temperature in opposition to those of the cloth; a doll in some attractive dress and that offers activity a toy rickshaw.

ROADSIDE MARKETING

By T. J. Delohery

ADVERTISING MOVES SURPLUS

ACTS OF STRAWBERRIES! The best berries at their best, choice sorts from four whole acres will be offered the patrons of Watts Wayside Market, from about June 18 to July 15.

WATTS WAYSIDE MARKET Midway between Altoona and Tyrone. A MONTH before strawberries were ripe for picking, Gilbert A. Watts inserted this display advertising in local newspapers, several times a week. It elicited customers' inquiries about berries, interest gradually working up as picking time approached. Watts sold out without trouble. Advertising made the market.

Realizing that practically all of the things they use on the farm are in their homes are sold through advertising in the papers they read, farmers who sell direct to the consumer have taken a page from the merchandising experience of manufacturers and are buying advertising in local papers.

Publicity in local newspapers has proved itself a paying investment not only in moving berries in season, but in getting rid of surpluses at reasonable prices, building demand before harvest and even starting a direct selling business. A survey of almost 2,000 roadside markets in Ohio indicates that the most successful operators advertised continuously, discovering that constant publicity, even though small copy, was better than spasmodic spurges, unless in the case of a sale.

A Michigan farmer, doubtful about selling a field of beets because of the late season, advertised a week-end sale in his local and adjoining town newspapers. He put the beets up nicely, tipping the colored-rimmed baskets and used big price tags. He sold out within a few hours, people who took advantage of the bargain also buying other products so that he really made a good profit for the day.

The advertising didn't cost him anything. True, he paid out money, but the resulting sales which otherwise might not have been made or priced as well would have to take if he sold wholesale, left him with a substantial margin.

"The advertising, package and price tag," so the pleased farmer said, "did a very good job. It surely lifted a burden off my mind and gave me a real profit."

Timely advertising pays big dividends. It will bring customers out to the roadside market or farm at the opening of the season. It will stimulate appetites for certain crops even when the supply is plentiful and plentiful, because freshly harvested fruits or vegetables always are enticing. Advertising will move surpluses even without price discount; and as Mr. Watts found, will create a demand in advance of picking time.

Asked for a word of advice, George Sweet is known as the "red-hot king" of roadside marketing. He grows a full line of vegetables and some small fruits. He sells to retailers, but gets profitable prices because he advertises locally and has won a reputation for Sweet's products that makes them in demand regardless of the regular supply. Retailers, as a result, are glad to buy his goods.

Several years ago when he grew a new squash for the first time, the favorable season brought about a bumper yield generally. Sensing low prices, Sweet got busy with his local newspaper advertising and posted a colored sticker on each fruit, which bore this content:

"Cut me in half, serve me well. Bake and serve me in the shell."

SWETT'S HOMEGROWN CARROTS These carrots are sunny and sweet. They contain the valuable mineral salts that are essential to your good health. They are pleasant to eat, either raw or cooked. They are in ample supply at all good grocers and very moderate in price. Request Sweet's Homegrown Carrots at your grocer's.

This copy, several inches deep, suggests several desirable characteristics of the lovely carrot which might not occur to the housewife. It didn't cost much, and it sold carrots. Incidentally Sweet's advertising, while not mentioning retailers, co-operates with them by urging people to trade where they can get Sweet vegetables.

Both display and classified space are used by farmers who sell direct.

SUCH IS LIFE—Pop Gets Gay!

By Charles Sughroe

How I Broke Into The Movies

Copyright by Hal C. Herman

BY ALICE WHITE

STENOGRAPHER, telephone girl, real estate solicitor, script girl—my "breaking into" the movies was a long and devious route.

I was tired from more jobs in Hollywood than most girls who finally crash the studio gates.

But probably it was a good thing. It made me all the more anxious to succeed in pictures, and I tried harder than I would have if the pathway to the screen had been lined with more roses and fewer thorns.

I was going to school in the East, and I became tired of it. So I went to Hollywood, where my grandmother was living.

First I took a secretarial course at Hollywood high school. Then I started on a series of jobs—and such a series! I tried being a secretary to various men, but when their wives took one look at me, out I went!

I tried ringing doorbells for real estate agents. I tried addressing envelopes. I sat at the switchboard in the writer's club for a while.

Then, through the kindness of Roy Neill, the director, I got a job holding script on a picture he was directing.

Finally I went to the Charlie Chaplin studios, where I held script on the picture "A Woman of the Sea," which never was released.

One day the still photographer had a few spare moments, and he suggested that I pose for him—I was wearing a sweater and an old hat, and well I was plump, to say the least.

But he was a good photographer. He made me look like a million dollars.

Alice White.

Mrs. I got my first idea, then, of trying out for pictures.

When a big producing company started to make tests for a college series, I thought it would be a chance to take the plunge. I was tested, along with a crowd of girls—and what a test it proved to be!

I was glad to get another script job with an independent company, where I worked 18 hours a day for $30 a week.

One day Ivan Kahn, the manager, came on the set.

"How would you like to sign a contract with me?" he asked.

"Don't be silly," I replied. "Script girls don't need a manager."

But it seems he had seen my tests, and thought there was a possibility I might get a contract.

I couldn't understand that—in fact, I can't today. I thought they were terrible.

Anyway, I signed a contract and started to starve off the extra weight I was carrying.

Finally we went to First National studios, where I took a final test—and got a contract before I had acted a single scene before a camera.

My first part was with Milton Sills in "The Sea Tiger." After that picture I went with several independent companies. Then I was recalled to First National and entered a new contract.

From that time on it was easy. A starring contract came within a year.

But don't think I haven't worked hard. Singing lessons, dancing lessons, learning dialogue—it's just hard work, and don't let anyone tell you different.

But it's worth while. Anything worth while is worth working for. And the early disappointments help you on your way.

Vivienne Osborne Played in Many Broadway Hits

Vivienne Osborne was born in Des Moines, Iowa. When she was just a baby her family moved to Spokane, Wash.

At the age of four she was placed in a dancing school. A year later she entered the Jesse Shirley Stock company and filled a variety of child parts.

At the age of ten she quit the stage to go to school. When she was sixteen she joined the Thorne Stock company, playing ingenue parts.

Later she appeared on Broadway in "Dollars and Cents," "The Light," "The Whirlwind," "The Silver Fox," with William Faversham; "New Toys," with Ernest Truex; and "The Law Breaker," with Frederic March.

She played the lead in "Alma of the South Seas," and in "The Harem." After a six-months' engagement in London she returned to New York to appear in "Fog" and then with Dennis King in "The Three Musketeers."

She went to Hollywood in the spring of 1931. Since that time she has appeared in such films as "Two Seconds," "The Dark Horse," "Week-End Marriage," "Lips and Lullaby," "The Bachelor Bachelor" and "Life Begins."

Cook Book Menaces Eskimo's Digestion

Modern Recipes to Inject Novelty Into Diet.

Washington.—Dyspepsia and flabby appetites are probably in store for Greenland Eskimos. Late news dispatches from Copenhagen state that a cook book of 450 recipes has been compiled to inject novelty into the simple Eskimo diet. The volume will be translated into the native Greenland dialect.

Igloo cookery presents few problems, according to a bulletin from the National Geographic society. "The Eskimo wife has never known the strivings of her white sister to excel as a 'fancy cook.' Her husband hits never regaled her with tides of the pies his mother used to bake, for he has never tasted pastry or candy of any sort in his life. Meat is his almost unvarying food. The meat of the polar bear, seal, walrus, caribou, white whale, murrelet, and musk oxen, are all palatable to him.

Simple Equipment.

"The average Eskimo bride starting housekeeping in a new igloo needs only four things in the way of furnishings: a meat knife, lamp, cooking pot, and sewing kit. The blubber-burning lamp, which also serves as a stove, is usually near the entrance to the hut. Suspended from the ceiling above it hangs a large soapstone cooking pot from which comes the aroma of boiling seal meat. At the sound of the sleds returning from the day's hunting expedition, the Eskimo wife, crouching over the stove, stirs the pot of shimmering seal meat for her husband's supper.

"Dropping in for an evening meal with an Eskimo family, one would see old and young squatting on their heels, and each ready with a knife. Each member of the group takes a piece of liver, cooked seal or walrus meat in his left hand, shoves it into his mouth, and seizes a strip between his teeth. With a deft stroke of the knife, he cuts off a mouthful, just at the lips. Oftentimes liver and blubber are held in each hand, and eaten alternately. The meat is washed down with draughts of ice-cold water.

No Fruits or Vegetables.

"Fruits and vegetables are unknown items in the diet of the Eskimo. When the meat supply is exhausted, the Greenland Eskimos gather rockweed and kelp, and dig the bark of willow bush out of the frozen soil. This is cooked into a jelly in the soapstone pot. This food, however, is not pleasing to the Eskimo palate, and is eaten only to stave off starvation when more desirable food is unavailable. The nearest approach to ordinary vegetable matter consumed by the Eskimo is the semi-digested moss found in the stomachs of the reindeer. This material becomes the Eskimo's greens.

"Fish eaten either boiled or raw, offer variety to the menu. Clams are also included in the seafood dishes of the Greenland Eskimo. He obtains them via the stomach of some freshly-killed walrus who has just feasted upon the mollusks. Stuffed-head walrus is undoubtedly the subject of at least one of the new recipes designed for the Greenlanders. They are fond of the unadorned head, and could possibly cultivate a taste for an elaborate preparation of it.

"In the Greenland spring, the dovekie, or little auk, appears. This means another dietary change for the natives. Through the summer hundreds of these birds are netted and stored for food during the long winter months. The eggs of the elder duck, the brant goose, and the gull are the object of an intense search near the end of June each year. The family egg supply for the coming winter is stored in stone caches, where the eggs become chilled first, and then frozen. They remain in this condition until eaten in the winter. Not all of the eggs collected are stored, however, for the Eskimo wife prepares an egg sausage, sometimes using as many as 300 eggs to one sausage. The eggs are broken and poured into a washed seal intestine, and in this state are eaten from time to time throughout the winter."

Copper Roofs Used

Miami, Ariz.—Roofs of copper sheeting are being built here, formerly the site of some of the state's largest copper-producing mines. The sheets are said to be as durable as any other roofing material.

The Glory of the Commonplace

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

Some one has said, "Genius is nothing else than the power of seeing wonders in common things." The elemental things of life are of the greatest value.

They are the fundamental realities upon which success and contentment ultimately depend. Many of the commonplace things escape our notice because we do not possess that fine inner sense of perception which Tennyson expresses in the lines—"Flower in the crannied wall, I pluck you out of the crannies, If I could understand What you are I would know what God and man is."

"Beauty is not something added to an object from the outside. The power to see beauty must first reside within ourselves. If we would see the glory of the commonplace, there should be cultivated an inner power of observation."

Royal Blue for Fall

Royal blue color, wooden buttons, tubular-shaped, and the pleated flare at the elbow are the outstanding notes in this coat of Adrian design.

"Look at a tree until it appears to you just as it appears to every one else; then look at it until you see what no man has ever seen before."

The glory of the commonplace is also evidenced in the response which is honestly given to the appeal of music when expressed in songs which reach the heart—such as "Home Sweet Home," "Nearer, My God, to Thee," "Last Rose of Summer," "My Old Kentucky Home." The same is true in poetry. The poems which we can recite from memory are those which reflect the common experiences of our daily life. The greatest satisfaction which can come to one is one's ability to get out of elemental things new beauty, power and strength. Helen Keller is quoted as having said, "If I had but three days to see I would stand at a busy corner and merely look at people, trying by sight of them to understand something of their daily lives. I see smiles and I am happy." Edward MacDowell, in his "Ode to an Old Time," writes: "O giant of an ancient race, He stands a stubborn sentinel o'er swaying, gone the forest trees that whisper at his feet."

Science gives first place to the consideration of common things. The smallest particle of matter contains the ultimate truth as evidenced in recent research in the field of atoms, molecules and electrons. Browning writes, "We find great things are made of little things—And little things go lessening till at last comes God behind them." The small becomes the dreadful and immense.

The Household

By Lydia Le Baron Walker

This doorway of an old mansion of Early American architecture should lead to rooms furnished in choice antiques.

Decorative consistency should prevail in the exterior and interior of a house. There should be no clash between the architectural type of a dwelling and its furnishings. The interior decoration does not have to be of the exact period which the outside represents, but it should be in harmony with it. These points should be remembered as fundamental necessities if the house is to be satisfying in character.

Two examples will prove illuminating. One house comes to mind which is a good example of incongruity. The outside is a simple farm house, not an attractive in type. It distinctly calls for simple, inside treatment, low ceilings, plain woodwork, and furniture, quaint in character, which does not, however, prevent its being choice of its kind. On entering one is astounded to find an immense high gartered living room in superb French decoration. The entire second floor of this part of the house has been taken out, except the part left for the gallery. This comes over the chimney and mantlepiece—Opposite it is a large long window, entirely foreign to farm house architecture.

Modernistic Invasion. Another house is recalled. It is a Cape Cod settler's home, one of the really old colonial houses of the early days of English settlers. The inside of the house, instead of being furnished in antiques, is thoroughly modern. There is a riot of color—bright, gaudy, etc., unbecoming colors, and bizarre. The draperies at the windows are in modernistic design. The rooms are thoroughly incongruous with the charming old-time architecture of the house.

Home-makers who delight in conventional or moderate furnishings should hesitate to molest the old American houses. Either they should seek to find the charm which exists in an antique suitable to early American architecture, or else find some house which can be transformed to suit their decorative preferences. The reverse is true. Those who treasure antiques should avoid attempting to fit them into homes of modernistic architecture.

For a Lawn Party. A lawn, even though small, can be made very attractive for an afternoon garden tea. It requires little trouble and the tea-takes on a festive character in such surroundings. Nothing special in the way of garden furnishings has to be bought. If one has just a few lawn chairs, an ordinary table can be covered with a tea cloth for refreshments, and extra chairs can be brought from the kitchen, and dining room to supply such added places to sit as may seem desirable.

The chairs should be wooden, wicker, or cane seated, as anything, in the way of an upholstered chair would be out of place. Wicker chairs often have tufted seats and backs, and sometimes springs, but notwithstanding these notes of upholstery, wicker is such an accepted out-of-door type of furnishing that these do not bar using such chairs for extras at a garden tea.

Centers of decorative attraction should be planned. The spot where a refreshment table is placed will prove a natural center. Unless the lawn is large, it is well to have two or three of these tables in sheltered positions. Under a spreading tree is just the place. © 1933, First National.—W.S.W. Service.

Must Light Up Horses

Channing, Texas.—A horse is a vehicle, according to an old Channing city ordinance. And like other vehicles listed in the ordinance he must wear two lamps in front and two in the rear from 30 minutes before sunset to 30 minutes after sunrise.

Locomotive Loses to the Horse

"Tom Thimble" of the Baltimore & Ohio railway, the first locomotive built in America, now on exhibit at the Century of Progress—World's Fair—in Chicago, is shown being beaten by a horse-drawn coach in a re-enactment of the famous historic race.

Clay Target Champ

Ned Lilly, a seventeen-year-old lad from Stanton, Mich., won the national clay target championship at the thirty-fourth annual grand American trap shooting tournament held at Vandallia, Ohio. Ned, the first junior to capture this title, broke 199 out of 200 targets. He also successfully defended his junior title, won last year.

CHURCH WELL ENDOWED

Had Trinity church kept all of the original Queen Anne farm grant of £705, its holdings in Manhattan would now be worth about $500,000,000. Today the productive fraction of the farm still owned by the parish furnishes an income of more than $1,250,000. The total real estate holdings of the church are assessed at about $70,000,000. The actual value is said to be $25,000,000.

Baby Could Not Sleep—Blisters over Body

Cuticura Healed

"The breaking out on my baby was in watery blisters. It started on her feet and then spread all over her body. It itched and baby scratched causing 'wet, sore' eruptions. She was restless and could not sleep. The trouble lasted about two months. I tried different remedies but they never did any good. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample of each. I purchased more and in about a month she was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Sandy Sovell, Gladys, Va.

THE ARROWS OF TAXATION

It would be interesting to make a list of all the taxes Americans living in one place or another are required to pay...

What the SUN Advocates

- Believing that the following improvements are vital necessities to nourish Springfield's betterment and substantial progress, the SUN advocates:
1. A high school.
2. Removal of dilapidated buildings which are "sore spots."
3. Sidewalks wherever needed.
4. Encouraging clean fuel-oil to increase the rates.
5. An active Board of Trade to stimulate "Buying in Springfield."
6. Post-carrier delivery.
7. Reduced bus-fare within town limits and to Millburn R. R. station.
8. Full time position for the township clerk's office.
9. Set of Building Zones, before township is developed.
10. A county park.

Hawaiian Music at Club Morocco

Glen Leslie's Islanders Play at New Unique Tavern

The Club Morocco, one of the most unique taverns in this section of the State, opened its doors to the public last week in the premises formerly occupied by The Manor in Route 29, Mountainside. C. M. Thaler is owner and J. R. Powers is the manager of the club, which promises to be classed among the most popular "dine and dance" places in this vicinity.

The purpose of the Club Morocco is to conduct an establishment of refined atmosphere at a rate to fit the capacity of the guest's to pay. The Morocco Bar, an attractive feature, is in the process of continual development until the 18th Amendment is repealed.

The management takes pride in predicting that "The Club Morocco will be as famous as Sloppy Joe's, as dignified as Sherry's, as enchanting as Central Park Casino and as economical as Horn and Hardart."

DENTAL HEALTH

MATTER of OPINION

I suppose there is not one of us who does not regret the way we have proceeded in considerable measure upon the way we have to the idiosyncrasies of the individuals who are concerned with or affected by the work we are doing. Unless one understands human nature and is willing to make allowances for the way "people behave" and to exercise tact and patience in our dealings with them...

ACCOUNTS CLOSED IN BLOCK-AID DRIVE

All collections in the Block Aid Campaign for emergency relief have been turned in to date, the committee reported at a meeting this week. Undersheriff Lee S. Rigby, chairman of the drive in the absence of Rev. William J. Reed, former chairman, conducted the meeting. A list of uncollected pledges will be submitted to the treasurer of the campaign, Louis J. Wiman, who in turn will turn a completed audit of the drive over to the Township Committee at its early meeting in October. Any late payments may be made within that time to Mr. Wiman. An excellent record is expected to be revealed when the final report is made.

Michigan's First Bounty Law
 Michigan's first bounty law was on wolves—enacted in 1839, providing for a bounty of $8 for a full grown wolf, or $4 for a wolf's whelp—under three months. This law was amended in 1845, to raise the bounty to $10 and $5 respectively. In 1877, this became $8 and $4. In 1889, up again to $10 and $5; in 1907, up to $15 and $8; in 1908, up some more to $25 and $10; in 1917, to the all-time high of $35 for a full-grown wolf and $15 for each wolf's whelp under six months.

SYNOPSIS

A pretty young woman finds herself in a tangle in New York with a strange man who addresses her as Doris. He leaves her for a moment, and she drives on, for she fears him. She stops at the Biltmore, wondering who she is. Her memory is gone. From the evidence of her clothing and wedding ring she concludes she is married to a wealthy man. The nameless girl meets a young woman who speaks of her desire to go to Rome for a divorce. If she can get the money, the woman wishes to marry the nameless girl's $200. An elderly woman, Mrs. Oscar Du Val, cordially greets the nameless girl, addressing her as "Doris," wife of Mrs. Du Val's son, Rocky. Rocky is abroad, and Doris, bewildered, is taken to the home of Mrs. Du Val and her neighbor, Oscar. Doris falls in love with Rocky's photograph, but cannot remember having married him. Discovering a trademark in her clothing, she writes a note and is astonished when a saleswoman insists she hide from observation. She returns to the Du Val's, more mystified than ever. Oscar returns, to discover the deception. He demands to know who she is and why his wife sent her to his home. She cannot tell him.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

Doris breathed deeply. Was all this finally to end in the police court? His mocking smile came again. "She registers terror!" he said unpleasantly. "Very good. Lifeline. Go to the head of the class." He sat down beside her. "Come on, baby, come clean! What's the story?"

She did not answer. She was thinking suddenly of Mrs. Du Val. "Your mother?" she said anxiously. "What about my mother?" But now his face showed slight signs of sympathy—a sympathy not for her.

"I can't hear to have her know. What will she think?"

"A lot you care," he said bitterly. "Poor mother—"

"I do care—Oh please believe me. I feel terribly about her—"

"You should have thought of that when you were tricking her."

"I didn't trick her."

He meditated. His gray eyes on the pretty carpet. "You've got her d-d fond of you—"

"It's awful," said Doris miserably. He walked up and down, chewing his lip.

"Ackward. Designing little devil!" "Oh, I'm not."

"Shut up."

Doris was angry. "You needn't be so frightfully rude."

"No? Well, it's a pleasure. Shut up while I think what to do."

He walked up and down. Doris sat on the edge of the bed, watching him fitfully.

"I didn't plan this. Truly I didn't."

"No," said Rocky satirically. "I suppose it just happened by accident."

A hot sense of injustice came to Doris. She rose.

"No, really you don't understand. As soon as your mother saw me she took me in her arms. She was glad to see me. She said I was her daughter. I thought—"

She could not go on. Tears were choking her voice.

Rocky said coldly. "You seem very good at falling in someone's arms. So is your friend Doris."

"Twisting her handkerchief reproachfully, she said, "You seem perfectly heartless about Doris. It's a nice way to talk about your wife, I'm sure. And you didn't even write to her while you were away."

He flushed uncomfortably, threw himself down on the couch.

"Look here. It's no good going on fighting like this. At least you're decent about Mother, and she's all I care about. Really—mother and father. I don't get your game exactly, but—"

"It was intolerable," he gave a gasp. "I do rose and went to the street. I don't have to stand being treated like a criminal." She demonstrated her small suit case on the bed. "I'm printing."

He stood up with a roar. "Not by a d-d sight. If you talk you can rope us in like this, you'd better think again."

"I'm going, since I don't belong here." She walked swiftly to her dressing table, gathering up her cold cream, her hair brush.

His lips looked thin. They twisted sarcastically. "What am I supposed to do if you leave?"

"I don't know."

"And you don't care! Well, I'll tell you, Miss. I'm going to go on playing your game. I'm going to go on playing Doris' game." He smiled. "We're married, see?"

"Married?"

"Don't worry. You'll be quite safe from my brutal attacks."

She flushed. "I'm not afraid of you."

"You've got no reason to be."

Suddenly Doris collapsed in a heap of helpless laughter. Rocky looked at her blankly. "What's so funny?"

"What is this all about?"

He sat down smiling ruefully. "I'm sorry, I guess I'm a little excited. My point is simply that I haven't the face to go downstairs and tell my father and mother that I am not married to you. They're crazy about you."

Doris' anger dropped away. "I am sorry. It's a rotten situation."

"Then help me."

"What can I do?"

"Well listen." He walked to the window and looked out. "Doris, it's beautiful out tonight. I don't mind admitting that my family wouldn't have been nearly so pleased if—" he walked restlessly to the dressing table, stared at himself in the mirror. "G-d, I'm a fool." He turned at last to Doris with a smile that was slightly beseeching. "Couldn't you possibly go on pretending for a day or two longer?"

Doris was amazed. "But I'm an impostor."

"Yes, but—"

"But they've got to find out sooner or later."

He nodded gloomily. "I suppose so. The real Doris—"

"What's the real Doris like?"

He looked at her skeptically. "You still maintain that you don't know. Well maybe you don't. But I'll say this much that when Mother wrote how much she liked my—my wife, I was never more surprised in my life."

Doris stood with averted head. "What will your wife say when she finds out about me?"

Rocky looked at her sharply. "Let's not discuss her right now. The point is, I'm due to walk downstairs with you on my arm. If it guessed the truth there would be a most unholy bust-up."

Doris shivered. "I can't go through with it."

Rocky said, "Well then, I think it's the best plan to go on pretending."

"It isn't very easy."

"Well, we might as well be friends."

Rocky smiled. His face—so like that pictured friend of hers—lighted up. His white even teeth were a surprise. As he spoke he put his arm around Doris and lifted her to her feet.

Anger shook her. She jerked away. "Is that your idea of being friends?"

He put his hand across his mouth, patted his lips mockingly. Then he pretended to cough respectfully.

"My mistake."

"I don't like."

"I know, I know."

Doris glared at him. "You know what?"

"What you don't like."

"What's that, then."

"My attitude."

"I wasn't going to say that at all."

She caught a glimpse of herself in the mirror. She flushed her hair slightly disheveled, but that dress—the dress—did make her look nice. It steadied her to see herself in it.

"I was going to say that I don't like to go down to dinner with a man who has got all over his nose."

"You win. It's agreed, then, that we're not going to give each other away."

"Not tonight anyway."

"They went down into the dining room. The candles on the tables burned brightly. Mr. and Mrs. Du Val were full of a secret elation that showed in the burning of Oscar's dark eyes, and in the curve of Mrs. Du Val's happy lips.

"Ah now, this is something," said Oscar Du Val with satisfaction. He slipped behind Doris' chair with an air of gay rivalry. Rocky held out his mother's chair gallantly.

The women seated themselves.

"Such soup," sighed Rocky. "I haven't tasted anything as good as this for years."

"You haven't been home for years," said Oscar Du Val. "You are a bad son."

"Now that he is married it will be different. Ah yes, Doris will see that he comes home regularly, as a good boy should."

Doris did not dare to look up from her soup.

Rocky changed the subject. "How's the Memorial coming on, Dad?"

Oscar made an impolite noise. "Do not switch the talk like that, my boy. What do you care about the Memorial? You talk silly. Tonight we want to hear where you and Doris plan to live. I do not approve of New York. It is too noisy. The dust is bad for the children. I am right, am I not, Adorée?"

His wife was looking at him reproachfully. "It was evident that she considered Oscar was being far from delicate in alluding to the unborn children. Doris was so sensitive she had never once mentioned the child to her mother-in-law."

"Oh out, you are always right," said Mrs. Du Val disgustedly. She caught Doris' embarrassed eye, and laughed slightly. "You should not live in New York."

"No, no," said Rocky loudly. "Don't want to live in New York." His raised voice gave such an odd effect that both his parents stared at him in astonishment. His face was red with the effort he was making to keep up his end of the conversation. "In fact, we've just about settled to live in Larchmont, haven't we, Doris?"

"Larchmont?" echoed Doris in astonishment.

"Why saw such a dear little house there," said Rocky, "porched on the edge of the Sound. There were roses growing round the door."

"I should think the suit water would ruin them," said Oscar sardonically.

Doris laughed hysterically. The fish was brought in and handed round.

"Ah," said Rocky. "I don't know when I've eaten such fish."

"The last time you were home, perhaps?" suggested Oscar.

"Ah Doris, protect him," said Mrs. Du Val. "His father will spoil the beautiful homecoming with all this sarcasm about how long it has been since we have seen Rocky."

"He deserves it," said Doris sincerely.

"Of course he deserves it. He runs away and marries a beautiful wife and does not even tell his father know," said Oscar morosely. "Then he telephones and says, 'Oh, by the way, I have a wife. Take care of her while I go to Europe. She is a wild one—that wife, so do not let her get away—she might go down to the village and get drunk if you don't watch her very carefully.' Bah! Such talk I tell you there is something wrong with that boy Rocky to say such things about a beautiful young girl like Doris."

Mrs. Du Val's voice mourned: "Doris is a beautiful young girl."

She looked a sly and secret tenderness at Doris. "So you have found a house—a nice little house in Larchmont. You did not tell me, Doris."

"No—I did not tell you."

Rocky spoke. "It's on the Sound. It has gardens at the back."

"It sounds expensive," said Oscar Du Val. "Your business is looking up, isn't it?" His eyes glinted maliciously.

"It is too expensive for us, of course," said Rocky. "It's just one of our dreams, isn't it, Doris?"

"I'm not Doris."

"It is such a pity," said Mrs. Du Val.

"What is such a pity?"

"That Doris should set her heart on this nice little house, and she shouldn't have it."

Doris' eyes were large with embarrassment. "No, that isn't it at all."

Mrs. Du Val's colorful voice sounded a diatribe of sad tones: "Of course, Oscar. Now she is afraid that you are going to give her that nice little house. The little house they have picked out together. Isn't it true?"

"I had in hand," said Rocky. "Please don't say that."

"Doris," said Rocky, "was especially crazy about the cupids on the bathroom ceiling, weren't you, Doris?"

"Of course I wasn't."

"Oh—he tries to tease. But all the same he wants that little house, Oscar, you must give them that house for a wedding present."

Rocky knocked over a glass of water. "Just to put us all at our ease, Mother," he explained.

"What is that?"

"Nothing. It's a stupid joke. But to change the subject," he went on, mopping up the water with his napkin. "I can't tell you how good those warm socks you knit me felt, crossing the ocean."

Mrs. Du Val's face opened in a wide smile. "You were them."

"Naturally. What do you take me for?"

Having diverted the conversation Rocky tried to keep it away from himself and his supposed wife. He talked about his trip, and business conditions in France. He told anecdotes and stories feverishly.

Doris' cheeks were hot. Her eyes felt strained and anxious. Where could all this folly end? Why had she promised to go on? Her hand shook as she reached for the salt. Surely the Du Val's must see through this. Could they be blind?

"Oh—oh Doris. You have spilled salt. That is bad luck," wailed Mrs. Du Val. "Throw some over your left shoulder. That will ward off the bad luck."

Doris shrugged.

Oscar Du Val said. "Her bad luck is over, since her husband has returned. Isn't that so, Doris?"

Doris was hating Rocky so violently at that moment that she found it difficult to answer. Why couldn't he have introduced his wife to his family instead of treating them as if he were in the Biltmore in the best way? God and purpose was God's glory.

Second—The Summary Method.

The aim here is to state the leading fact and principal teaching of the general lessons. The following suggestions are made:

Lesson for July 2. Joshua's faith in the promises of God and obedience to the divine command enabled him to carry forward to success the work begun by Moses.

Lesson for July 3. Because Caleb wholly followed the Lord, his strength was preserved.

Lesson for July 10. It was out of the ordinary for God to call a woman to a place of national leadership. Deborah had the good judgment to urge Barak to war.

Lesson for July 23. Drunkenness and other sins caused Israel's ruin.

Lesson for July 30. Gideon, with a small band of men, pointed and destroyed the Midianites because he trusted and obeyed God.

Lesson for August 6. Because Ruth chose to identify herself with the people of God she was abundantly blessed.

Lesson for August 13. Hannah stands out as the ideal godly mother.

Lesson for August 20. Samuel heard the call of God while serving in the capacity in which his mother dedicated him.

Lesson for August 27. Saul shamefully failed because he disobeyed God.

Lesson for September 3. Because David was a man after God's own heart, God used him and blessed him in spite of his sins.

Lesson for September 10. Jonathan is an example of a true friend.

Lesson for September 17. Solomon chose wisdom rather than honor and riches. Because of this God was able to give riches and honor.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for September 24
REVIEW: SOME EARLY LEADERS OF ISRAEL

GOLDEN TEXT—Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might, Ephesians 6:10.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Friends From God's Book.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Some Heroes of God's Book.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Lessons From Great Leaders.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Makes a Great Leader?

For senior and adult classes, two methods are suggested.

First—The grouping of the men and women as leaders.

The material of this lesson is adapted from the Lutheran lesson commentary.

The Military Leaders (Lessons 1, 2 and 5).

1. Joshua (Lesson 1). He was skilled in military tactics as well as organization. He possessed natural gifts, but his success was due mainly to his obedience to God.

2. Caleb (Lesson 2). As one of the twelve spies, he insisted that by God's help they could possess Canaan.

3. Gideon (Lesson 5). He obeyed God's strange command to reduce his army to 300 men. With them he routed the host of Midian, and made Israel free for about forty years.

4. Women (Lessons 3, 6, and 7).

1. Deborah (Lesson 3). She was called in an emergency and led the people forward to victory.

2. Ruth (Lesson 6). She adopted a new people, a new God, and a new country, with no thought of personal gain. She became the ancestress of David and thus of Christ.

3. Hannah (Lesson 7). In Hannah's heart lay the ideal motherhood.

III. Prophets (Lessons 4 and 8).

1. Isaiah (Lesson 4). He has the place of first rank among the prophets. He denounced the sins of Israel. Drunkenness was one of the sins which destroyed Israel.

2. Samuel (Lesson 8). He was director-general of Israel while serving as a prophet of God.

IV. Royalty (Lessons 9, 10, 11 and 12).

1. Saul (Lesson 9). He had the anointing of God and the approval of the people. His days were filled with blunders, largely because he trusted and exalted himself rather than God.

2. David (Lesson 10). David came into prominence unexpectedly. He had the inner qualities that God could use for a true king. He brought the scattered tribes under one government, bound together with the bond of one religion.

3. Jonathan (Lesson 11). He is noted for his friendship for David. He was legal heir to the throne, but renounced his right in favor of David.

4. Solomon (Lesson 12). He came to the throne welcomed by a united nation. The idea of building the temple as well as much material for its erection came to him from his father. He built the temple and dedicated it to God, setting forth that its supreme purpose was God's glory.

Second—The Summary Method.

The aim here is to state the leading fact and principal teaching of the general lessons. The following suggestions are made:

Missives That Have Charm

Letters Preserved From a More Leisurely Age Make Delightful Reading, With Their Chronicles of Life's Daily Happenings.

Long ago we used to go a-visiting taking our embroidery, knitting or darning, and settle down to spend the day. In these hurried-days such things seem to be impossible, so we gradually grow away from our close friends, and seeing them for a few seconds at a tea or club, we lose much that seemed worth while in those days of leisure. If we tried hard enough we might keep in touch with those we love best by writing letters. Surely we might spare a few minutes from each busy day for something that will bring joy to another. Who does not love to receive a letter, especially if it is an unexpected message from a friend? Then write your letter to the one who brings out the best that is in you. A distinguished Frenchman, writing about the art of thinking, said that "letters" gives us a unique chance of expressing ourselves; nobody is reading over our shoulders and nobody is expected to criticize it after it is written; we are at our best to express what we know best, and this ought to result in naturalness, which is literature.

The best time to answer a letter is just after you have read it. You are then in rapport with the writer, and your own reply will come straight from the heart. But alas for the writer and his discharged obligations! To be truly thoughtful, you should at least give him time to catch up with the rest of his correspondence. So you wait and lose the first ebullient enthusiasm and consequent cordiality aroused by the letter. Your first spontaneous and sincere expression fades as the days pass and other things come in between. I'm so busy with so wild a gal that soon the distance between you and your friend feels the atmosphere, and you lose by your own neglect one of the sweetest things in life, a sincere friendship. How often have you picked up a letter which had slipped under your arm and found to your utter amazement that it is dated a year back!

A whole year! In its brief course what may not have happened to either or both of you? With what sorrows have you failed to sympathize and what joys have you missed sampling? How shall you gather up the friends and what excuse have you to offer for neglect?

We do put off letter-writing from day to day, and with all the needed equipment close at hand. What if we had to sharpen a quill, fill up the sand box and find the ink slab and the water and brush with which to moisten it, before we could begin, and then wait for days to find some one to frank our letter? Before blotting paper was invented sand from the box had to be sprinkled upon the written page to dry the ink. Quill pens were made from the feathers of the swan, duck or goose, and whittled with a knife to a proper point, and thus the ordinary pocket knife rose to the dignity of pen-knife. Charles Lamb, answering the pretty little letter of Lucy Barton, asked if her pens were made from the plumes of a small wren or a robin, to make such letters.

Some of the most delightful reading is in the form of letters. What more charming than the letters of Celia Thaxter, living alone on the Isles of Shoals, writing about her flowers, the books she is reading, the music she loves to hear, the letters she receives and all the little daily happenings which meant so much to her? In a letter to Bradford Torrey, she said that if all the books in the world had to go, she would snatch the little volume of Shakespeare's sonnets to live with gratefully the rest of her life.

Among recent letters none are more fascinating than those between Ellen Terry and George Howard Shaw. Love and intimate correspondence can only occur between people who have never met one another, says Shaw. Swift's journal to Stella would not have been written if they had met every day, as Ellen Terry

Point of Importance
The prince of Wales should be interested in the story of the Indian prince who asked his secretary to prepare a note of sympathy for Lord Kitchener who had sustained minor injuries from a fall while he was horseback riding. The secretary expressed regret that his excellency had been injured in falling from his horse.

"No, no," said the prince. "Falling with his horse. No gentleman falls from his horse."

Try It Anyway
Think twice before you speak and see if you can't astonish people with your common sense.

Science says Today use a LIQUID Laxative

1. Control intestinal action exactly—no "purging"
 2. Measure to suit your individual needs to the drop
 3. Banish Bowel Fatigue and the laxative habit
- Here's Why:
- Any hospital offers evidence of the harm done by harsh laxatives that drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and in some cases even affect the liver and kidneys.
- A doctor will tell you that the unwise choice of laxatives is a common cause of chronic constipation.
- Fortunately, the public is fast returning to the use of laxatives in liquid form.
- A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to take "a double dose" a day or two later.
- In buying any laxative, always read the label. Not the claims, but the contents. If it contains one doubtful drug, don't take it.
- Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescriptive preparation in which there are no mineral drugs. Its ingredients are on the label. By using if you avoid danger of bowel strain. You can keep the bowels regular, and comfortable; you can make constipated spells as rare as colds.

The liquid test:

This test has proved to many men and women that their trouble was not "weak bowels", but strong cathartics.

First. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Take the dose you find is suited to your system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until bowels are moving regularly without any need of stimulation.

Syrup pepsin has the highest standing among liquid laxatives, and is the one generally used. It contains senna, a natural laxative which is perfectly safe for the youngest child. Your druggist has Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN DOES NOT HARM THE HEART

Because of a unique process in manufacture, Genuine Bayer Aspirin Tablets are made to disintegrate INSTANTLY you take them. This they start to work instantly. Start "taking hold" of even a severe headache; neuralgia, neuritis or rheumatic pain a few minutes after taking. And they provide SAFE relief for Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN or package.

Does not harm the heart. So if you want QUICK and SAFE relief, see that you get the real Bayer article. Always look for the Bayer cross on every tablet as illustrated above, and for the words GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN on every bottle or package.

I'm a bride 23 years old and when I go to bridge parties and dances I want my hands to look soft and white—even if I do my own wash and housework. That's why I think the world of Fels-Naptha Soap—because while it gets everything clean so quickly, it's gentle as a lamb to my hands and clothes.

Quickly but gently—that's how Fels-Naptha loosens dirt. Its two safe, lively cleansers—good golden soap and plenty of naphtha do a beautiful wash with less work. Thanks to this extra help, your hands are out of water sooner. And did you know, there's soothing glycerine in every bar of Fels-Naptha?

NOT SO POETICAL

Owen was a poet, and, like poets of the younger school, was in argers with his rent. However, he had promised to pay up as soon as his masterpiece was completed.

FORGOT THE EXCUSE

On little James' first day at school he was given a card on which his mother was to write the date of his birth. The following day he arrived late, and without the card.

All out of breath the next day, James rushed in holding a note from his mother. "Teacher," he gasped, "I brought the one about being late but I forgot the excuse for being born."

Editor—Then, my dear sir, allow me to return the compliment.—London Passing Show.

His Destination

Spectator—I shall be very surprised if that referee doesn't get into hot water after the match.

Ardent Supporter—Then you'll be surprised. 'E's gone in the 'orse-trough.—London Answers.

Attention, Golfers

Friend—Is it spelled "p-u-t" or "p-u-t-t"?
Golfer—"P-u-t-t." "Put" means to place a thing where you want it; "putt" mean a vain attempt to do the same.

FINANCIAL COUP

"I saved twenty dollars this afternoon."
"How was that?"
"James wanted to borrow twenty-five and I lent him only five."

Words Are Cheap

"Yes, my dear, the woman called yesterday, and I said to her: 'You're nothing but a stupid, mean-faced, stick-up swindler, madam.' I said, 'Get out!'"
"You called her 'madam'?"
"Oh, well, politeness costs nothing."—Frankfurter Illustration.

SPAGHETTI FEATURED AT THE ROYAL GARDEN

Featuring real imported Italian spaghetti, the Royal Garden in Mountain Avenue, Springfield, off State Highway Route 29, offers a treat for lovers of the popular dish. It is served with genuine Italian sauce and cheese and Anthony Parrini, owner of the Royal Garden, takes pride in having one of the few beer gardens in this vicinity to specialize in real Italian spaghetti.

Free spaghetti is served every Saturday night. Free picnic grounds for basket parties accommodating up to 1,000 persons are available to those seeking such a service. Mr. Parrini formerly operated the Villegiant Inn, Morris Avenue, Springfield, where he gained the patronage of many friends in both that community and Union. The slogan of the Royal Garden is "Quality and Quantity."

OUR LIBRARY

Monday, 7:30 to 9:30 P. M.
Wednesday, 2:30 to 5 P. M.
Friday, 7:30 to 9:30 P. M.

Five new books have arrived for the pay shelf and of the many being brought out for public reading at this time these are of the most popular according to current book reviews.

"Vanessa" by Hugh Walpole is the last of the Herries series thereby bringing to a conclusion an account of a family through several generations.

Paul Morgan has written "The Fault of the Angels." Wit and satire have been combined for the entertainment of any who may be fortunate enough to read the book. This novel is the winner of the 1933-34 Harper Prize Novel Contest.

One of our most distinguished authors portraying American life is Louis Bromfield. His work is true to the subject handled and can be considered a valuable portrayal. "The Farm" carries true and with the Bromfield skill of making interesting and entertaining whatever subject is taken.

"Two Black Sheep" by Warwick Deopling is another of his powerful works. Probably no other author has just the touch of Deopling for understanding real values of love and sorrow. This is said to be his most moving novel.

For the admirers of Joseph Lincoln we have "Back Numbers." Here he has caught the old Cape Cod life before it became modernized. It is a record of a fast disappearing race of hardy sailors and fishermen.

We have added to the free shelf "A Lantern in Her Hand" by Boss Streeter Aldrich and "A White Bird Flying." Both of these books are recent publications and still among the much-read novels. In addition, there have been also moved from the pay shelf some six or eight of the newer books.—F. P. L.

AT THE MILLBURN

"Moonlight and Precious" with eight stars and fifty Broadway handles, will be screened at the Millburn Theatre tomorrow and Saturday.

Green Nissen in "Life in the Raw" is the associate feature.

SCOUT NEWS

BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA

Due to bad weather the "Know Your Town" contest and the camping trip were postponed last week. The contest will take place Friday evening and the camping trip Saturday and Sunday. Many Scouts were surprised when Star Scout Robert Kohler was put in the "rookies" drill squad. The Scouts of higher rank don't take drill seriously enough; hence Patrol Leader Kohler is disgraced. If the fellows aren't careful we'll have an entire meeting of drill.

Scouts from Springfield, Vaux Hall and Union were present at a Banquet of the Monday night. Patrol Leader Russell Frost of Springfield was especially congratulated for his merit badge. Central Patrol, Russ; it's a merit badge who should know better than the NEWS SCOUTS.

Norman Ott of Union, Scoutmaster Edward Hoagland of Springfield, Deputy Commissioner Greenville A. Day, Mr. G. H. M. W. and Mr. Crino were among the examiners.

Deavor Patrol is bubbling over with some surprises that we promise we wouldn't announce. Take it from us; this surprise is worth waiting for. Oh, it's no use questioning Deavors, they won't tell.

Let's see if we can't make the attendance at the meeting Friday night 100 per cent. Patrol leaders, get your fellows out "en masse" and boost your points. The NEWS SCOUT wishes to take this time to say that he has an assistant who, when the NEWS SCOUT is absent, writes a letter, reporting the events of the week. Who is he? Tell us at the scout meeting Friday! THE NEWS SCOUT

PRESBYTERIAN NOTES

The Sunday School will hold a teachers meeting in the chapel Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

The Christian Endeavor Society social will be held in the chapel tomorrow night at 8. Everyone is invited to attend.

The society will meet Sunday at 7:30 in the chapel. The topic to be discussed will be "How May We Know When We Really Are Christians?" Mrs. Perry will lead the meeting. Bible baseball opens at the close of the service. The first game will be played by the "Giants" captained by Robert Hoernig against the "Senators" captained by Bernard Schumann. The pitcher will be Mrs. Walter Schramm and Dr. Biggett, pastor, will be the umpire. The chapters from which the questions will be selected are I Samuel, Chapter 16 and 17.
