ODDS and ENDS

By RICHARD KLEINER
The re-election of Florence La Guardia proves that here is one little flower that is definitely of the perennial variety.

Recent Nazi propaganda claims that the U. S. is helpless. Nevertheless, we'd hate to meet America in a dark alley.

Stalin, in a recent speech, gave the Nazis only six months to a year before their collapse. It would be reassuring to know if anyone told Hitler.

If the "Big Five," the powerful brotherhood, goes through with its threatened strike in December, it looks like this year Santa Claus will have to use reindeer again.

The glittering opening of New York's annual horse show made it clear that in one respect the cavalry has it over the armored divisions. There is nothing glamorous about a tank crashing through a fence.

Now that the U. S. S. R. is the hope of the democratic world, it would seem that the once-despised Red Star is now as clear and bright as Sirius.

With the arming of American merchantmen and the corresponding demise of the Neutrality Bill, once again it becomes apparent that morning comes after every beautiful dream.

When you come right down to it, there is little difference between Reich and wrong.

'SERGEANT YORK' ON MILLBURN'S SCREEN

What does a young motion picture actress think about during a kiss scene?
"I suppose," answers Joan Leslie, sixteen-year-old Warner Bros. star, "a great deal depends upon who's the other party to the kiss. I was too nervous to think when I played my first kiss scene with Gary Cooper for 'Sergeant York.' The only fragment of thought I can recall is: 'I wonder if I'm photographing as self-conscious as I feel.' During another kiss scene for the same picture the thought popped into my head: 'If Grace could see me now! Grace is a school friend I hadn't thought of in months. Gary Cooper was our favorite screen hero. I really haven't played so many kiss scenes. Perhaps I can give a more comprehensive answer a few pictures from now.'

"Sergeant York" opens a four-day stay at the Millburn Theatre on Wednesday.

BOARD TO MEET
The Township Committee will meet this evening after the regular Board of Health session. Due to the annual P. B. A. dance in Singers Park, the business transacted will be shortened, to allow board members to attend the affair.

NO MAIL TOMORROW
There will be no mail deliveries tomorrow due to the Thanksgiving Day holiday. Postmaster Otto F. Holzn announced this week, and the office will also be closed for the day.

Decision Affects Moving Permits

Speculation has arisen in Springfield as to what action will be taken on the invalidation of the ordinance which requires permits for moving of personal property and household goods. Such an ordinance was held invalid last week in a Supreme Court decision by Justice Bodine in a test case in which the plaintiff was Rookaway Borough. Springfield is one of the 70 municipalities throughout the state which have such an ordinance.

In giving down his decision, Justice Bodine said: "The argument that the governing body has the right to know the residents of the municipality and the increase or decrease of its population... seems fantastic."

"If the citizen cannot have his property moved without permit, presently he will be unable to leave the town without a permit or possibly enter another without permission. Regulations cannot run rampant under the guise of being for the general welfare."

The appeal was taken to the Supreme Court by E. B. Leach, Inc. of Montclair, movers, convicted of violating the ordinance. The defendant contended the ordinance was intended to collect personal property taxes illegally. The borough's reply was that the ordinance was a valid exercise of police power.

Stiles in 15-Mile Chase To Nab Two Escaped Jersey City Bandits

Patrolman Nelson Stiles is the hero of the week, having participated in a 90-mile-a-minute chase up Route 29 early Friday morning to assist in the apprehension of two Jersey City criminals, and having arrested another youth on Sunday on a charge of automobile theft.

Stiles, whom the Jersey City youths, three of whom escaped fifteen miles on Route 29, and finally, with aid from trooper stations at Scotch Plains and Somerville, caught two of them in the home of a Bridgewater Township physician where they had taken refuge after deserting their car. Investigation revealed that all five had been riding in an allegedly stolen car and were escaping from the scene of a store robbery in Jersey City, in which one of them liberated his scalp in jumping through a window.

Stiles first noticed the car at the South-Springfield avenue overpass when it passed a red light and failed to stop at his siren warning. He started in pursuit and fired at the car in order to puncture its tires. The chase led to a ninety-mile-an-hour speed up Route 29 to the Mountain avenue intersection in Bridgewater Township where the youths deserted the car to flee in the woods when the cooling system froze.

Noting that the interior of the car was soaked with blood, Stiles assumed that medical aid would be necessary. Halting a passing motorist, he had summoned from trooper stations at Scotch Plains and Somerville, Corporal Ralph Dowgin and Trooper Carl Mount of

Thanksgiving

By REV. HUGH W. DICKINSON,
Rector, St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Millburn.

The thankful spirit cannot exist unless there is a right sense of proportion of values. The people who are basing their happiness on riches, or talent, or things, are, as a rule, the most discontented people in the world. Such people cannot be thankful; their sense of thankfulness is buried under an exaggerated sense of the value of things.

We in this country have great cause for thankfulness. As a nation we have been specially favored during this present world-wide upheaval. Peoples have been scattered, cities and towns have been reduced to heaps of ruin, destruction has wasted, but it has not come near us. We have practically remained unharmed through it all. Truly, upon many homes the shadow of a great loss has fallen; but, to the majority of us, our part of the world's heavy burden has rested lightly on our shoulders. Therefore we remember the gracious dealings of God to us as a people and give thanks. As we rejoice, let us remember all those who are enduring the horrors of greed, lust and selfishness. It will be a sad day for us when in our prosperity we forget the Giver of every good and perfect gift, and say to ourselves "Our own hand hath saved us."

The spirit of praise should invest our souls as a garment as we acknowledge God in the marching events of time.

Miss Stella O. Kline, executive secretary of the Union County Tuberculosis League, Inc. states that Stephen Dobson, an ex-tuberculosis patient is the artist of the 1941 Christmas Seal. It was while curing at the Trudeau Sanatorium, Saranac Lake, New York, that Mr. Dobson chose the lighthouse as an appropriate symbol, as the protection given by the Tuberculosis program. Miss Kline stated that 80 cents out of every dollar is given for the work in the fight against tuberculosis in Union County.

Local Write-In Will Accept Justice Post

Harold Green of Springfield was among those elected justices of peace in the recent general elections, it was revealed this week by County Clerk Henry G. Nutton.

Some of the justices of the peace throughout the county were elected through regular procedure of filing petitions and obtaining nominations, while others drew a few scattered votes. By such write-in votes, several of the candidates accepted and qualified accordingly.

Justices of the peace, like coroners, have little left to do. Their civil functions have been usurped by District and Small Claims Courts and their criminal jurisdiction by magistrates and Police Court judges.

Thus, few file petitions for nomination and even fewer bother to undergo the expense of qualifying after being elected. They have until May 1 to qualify by getting their commissions and filing a bond. Thus they would be entitled to buy a badge signifying their office.

In Mountainside, Charles A. Dupp, service station proprietor, of Route 29, was nominated and elected at the recent general election. Incidentally, he was successful in one of the few contested races for the office among the county municipalities.

To Reduce Prices Of Pupils' Milk

Arrangements have been made whereby milk may be had by pupils at 2 1/2 cents a bottle, instead of the former 5 cents. It was reported by Supervising Principal Fred J. Hodgson to the Springfield Board of Education at its meeting last night.

The arrangement is part of the State Milk Controller's plan to sell milk to the school children at 2 1/2 cents per pint. The bottle had been costing the pupil 5 cents, because the price to the school was 4 1/2 cents per bottle. Under the new arrangement the pupil now brings a quarter for two weeks' supply instead of the same amount for one week.

Permission was granted by the board to the Methodist Church to make improvements on land adjoining the church which belongs to the school.

Henry C. McMullen was appointed delegate to the State Federation of District Boards of Education meeting at Trenton on December 5. Clarence S. Knowlton was appointed alternate.

Mr. Knowlton and August H. Schmidt were named to represent the board on the central committee for the recreation program which the Lions Club, in conjunction with other organizations of town, is sponsoring.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

Congressional Neutrality Act Revision Permits Armed U. S. Merchant Ships To Sail Through Belligerent Zones; U. S. Faces Serious Labor Situation

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Everyone in Soviet Russia is learning the soldier's trade these days. Even the students in school. Here an instructor is shown teaching secondary school students methods of bayonet fighting. Note that girls as well as boys are present for instruction in this class.

NEUTRALITY: Revision Completed

When the house voted 212 to 194 to permit the arming of U. S. merchant ships and allow them to sail through war zones into ports of nations at war it amounted to a repeal of the neutrality act's main provisions. For a while there were strong indications of a Democratic revolt in the house, as many members were reported to be demanding a former presidential stand on defense strikes in return for "going along" with the Roosevelt foreign policy.

As a vote neared on the measure a warning came from President Roosevelt that its defeat would be evidence to Hitler that "the United States is disunited." For a while there were strong indications of a Democratic revolt in the house, as many members were reported to be demanding a former presidential stand on defense strikes in return for "going along" with the Roosevelt foreign policy.

GERMANS: Fighting Front

Frank admissions from Berlin that the attack on Russia was entirely stalled no longer had been withheld as the Germans were finding it necessary to explain to the people the failure of their armies to capture Leningrad, Moscow or the defenses in the Donetz basin.

German press announcements blamed entirely the weather. It also was claimed that the Russian defenses, especially around Moscow, were based on the knowledge that the German mechanized army could not operate over fields and through woods on a terrain covered with snow and rain.

One communique said: "This has forced us to use roads instead of traveling cross-country, and these roads are literally minefields, especially the southern ones." The defenses around Moscow were described as "extremely powerful and intricate, including subterranean tank garages from which Red tanks would dash directly into battle and then circle and re-enter their 'bunkers' after firing a few shots, and before the German attacking forces could organize their defense.

FINNS: To Continue

Finland, in a lengthy reply to Secretary Hull's message urging withdrawal from the war against Russia, had politely rejected the plea of the United States, and, in effect, said that her objectives were not yet accomplished.

BRITISH: Loss

Loss of the aircraft carrier Ark Royal was admitted by the British who said that the craft (claimed many times as being sunk by the Nazis) had been torpedoed in the Mediterranean east of Gibraltar. The 22,000 ton floating airfield was sunk while in tow after a submarine torpedo had struck her.

STRIKES: Galore

Highlighting the news of a troubled labor situation in the United States was the strike called for December 7, by 350,000 operating employees of the nation's railway systems.

The American Federation of Labor trades in San Diego, 2,000 members of which had walked out, crippling navy and marine defense projects, went back to work. At the same time the C.I.O. chieftains in the coal dispute in the captive mines walked out of the conference, and it began to look as though the army would have to take over and operate the mines.

In the steel-coat-mine strike, however, after a quadruple plea by President Roosevelt to John L. Lewis had temporarily halted the threatened walkout of 53,000 workers and had sent them back to work pending negotiations before the national mediation board, trouble developed as soon as the board decided adversely to the closed-shop demand.

WAR: And Mr. Welles

Administration forces saw the approach of America's entry into actual hostilities as closer, not because of repeal of the neutrality act's main restrictive paragraphs, but as a result of increased pressure on this country by Japan and Germany.

Summer Welles, undersecretary of state, and President Roosevelt himself, in their Armistice day addresses, had issued most solemn warnings. Mr. Welles, in particular, said: "Another war may be forced on the United States at any moment by Japan or Germany."

He said that President Wilson, dying five years after he had laid the groundwork of such co-operative effort, "was laid to rest amid the apathy and the sneers of those of his opponents who had, through appeal to ignorance, to passion and to prejudice, temporarily persuaded the people to reject Wilson's plea that the influence, the resources and the power of the United States be exercised for their own security and their own advantage, through our participation in an association of nations for peace."

Queen's Job

LONDON, ENGLAND.—A queen's job includes many things and here the caperman pictures Queen Elizabeth of England having her shoes "fitted" upon visiting a shell factory. In order to prevent accidents when entering the "danger zone" of the factory special attention must be given to fit and type of shoes worn.

ROME: And Hostages

Italy, by arresting 150 hostages in Yugoslavia as an aftermath of a Serbian uprising in which a large number of Italian soldiers and civilians were slain and wounded, had placed herself in position to go into the hostage-execution business in a similar manner to that of the Nazis in France and other occupied countries.

In the official casualty list in Greece and Yugoslavia issued by the Italians since their armies occupied those countries 179 Italian soldiers had been reported killed, and 128 wounded.

MEDITERRANEAN: Battle Report

British warships, under the guns of a highly superior Italian naval force, had engaged a convoy in the Mediterranean, and had sunk several freighters, also three destroyers.

MARSHALL: On Morale

Gen. George C. Marshall, head of the army, declared there was in progress a "sudden and widespread" attempt on the part of the Nazis to "sabotage United States munitions, utility and transportation industries—also the army's morale."

Already, the general revealed, there has been uncovered an Axis propaganda attack designed to disrupt army morale. This campaign, using "clever methods" has succeeded already in upsetting the families of soldiers and has also misled some members of congress.

ELEPHANTS: Circus Tragedy

The sudden death of 10 elephants in the Barnum Bailey circus at Atlanta was followed by a statement from the management that it was clearly a case of "elephant murder."

MISCELLANY:

Berlin: The Germans claim that the British, since they took the air offensive on the west front had lost 1,744 planes from May to October, inclusive, while the German losses were only 376.

Steeds for Manhattan Mounties

Every year the New York police department buys 28 horses to replace that number retired from the four hundred that make up the "cop cavalry." These horses are as nearly alike as the buyer can get them. Age 4 to 8 years; geldings of between 1,000 and 1,250 pounds and between 15.3 and 16.2 hands high. Color must be bay (don't ask why). These photos, made at the remount depot, show principal stages in the training of police horses.

Sergeant Cannon and an assistant are putting the rookie horse through a lesson in control here.

Taking a high barrier all on his own. Riderless horses are put through their paces to accustom them to obey the spoken command.

Sacks of sawdust represent people in a mob. At left a rookie horse is being faced into a "mob." When trained this horse will know how to mudge people out of the way without hurting them. Right: The shrill thrill of a police whistle gives the ordinary horse a turn, but the police horse is taught to disregard it.

Ready for Four Horsemen, this quartet of rookie police horses is near the end of their training grind.

Japan's Problem of 'Saving Face' at Home and Keeping Out of Trouble With U. S. . . . Censorship and Reuben James Incident Discussed.

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON.—Some careful students of the Far Eastern situation are convinced that the real ruler of Japan has decided to provoke a war with the United States, although they—the rulers of Japan—are confident that such a war would result in a Japanese defeat. This extraordinary view becomes easier to understand when it is explained, though there is no thought here of trying to convince anybody that it is an accurate picture of the thinking of the men who are deciding things in Tokyo. No one in Washington pretends really to know about that. We can only speculate on the facts in hand.

Japanese Strategy

Japan has been waiting and hoping for two things—first that Russia would crumble under the Nazi blows, and be able to offer no resistance to Japanese aggression in the maritime provinces of eastern Siberia; and second, that the United States would become so involved in the Atlantic that Japan could risk aggression to the South. Complete defeat of Russia would also mean that Britain would again have to face the light of her life, in North Africa, in the region to the north of Iran, and possibly on her own soil.

She is still waiting, but there is no assurance that Russia will not be able to resist on her Pacific coast no matter what happens in Europe. (Japan probably made her recent border attack to feel out that situation.) And there is every indication that Uncle Sam would get very busy if Japan goes after what she really wants.

Reuben James Incident and Censorship

Censorship is generally exasperatingly stupid. It is the stupidity, far more than that natural desire of any government to cover up its blunders from an inquiring press, which causes newspaper men to worry about it.

Washington, D. C.

BRITISH AND U. S. POLICY U. S. diplomats are not shouting it from the housetops, but there have been two important occasions when the British put a very restraining hand on American foreign policy, and checked major moves in the South Atlantic and the Pacific.

One move was last May when it became conclusively apparent that the Hillyer government was the tool of Hitler and when many U. S. strategists favored the taking of Martinique and the Azores, and perhaps even a landing force at Dakar in French West Africa.

But the Churchill government protested that this would take U. S. ships away from transporting supplies to the Battle of Britain; would focus American attention upon another part of the world. So Roosevelt kept out of the South Atlantic.

The second move was about two weeks ago when Mr. Churchill telephoned the President to advise against any showdown with the Japanese in the Pacific. His advice came shortly after the new pro-Nazi cabinet took office in Tokyo. Churchill urged that the battle in Europe was the main show and the United States should not get absorbed with side-shows.

Rift in Administration

Inside the Roosevelt administration, the men who urge a go-slow policy toward Japan are Admiral Stark, chief of naval operations, and the state department. On the other side are many of the other admirals, including Admiral Ernest King, commander of the Atlantic fleet, who says "he can get along in the Atlantic merely by his present assignment of destroyers and light cruisers, which are all that are needed for convoying."

U. S. DESTROYERS

The submarine situation which forced the Reuben James and now threatens all U. S. destroyers in the North Atlantic, is far different from that of the last war.

Today, German submarines operate in gangs of wolfpacks of three to five, lurking in the path of a convoy, and without putting their periscopes out of the water. They do not even run their engines. They do not even run their engines. They do not even run their engines.

INSTALLMENT SIXTEEN—The Story So Far
Laura Maguire is wife of happy-go-lucky Mike, editor and mayor of Covington, whom banker Mays is trying to ruin for criticizing his banking methods. She is the mother of four children: Tom, whose real estate job prefers out in a bigger city but whose wife, Mary Etta, refuses to give up her secretary job to follow him to the smaller town. Divorce is impending.

"But she can't have gone. I tell you, she has nowhere to go," said Alec, his face very white.

Kathleen shrugged her shoulders. She was the last down to breakfast. She flourished a small folded piece of paper. Alec reached out his hand but Kathleen shook her head. "It's addressed to Laura."

Alec's black eyes watched feverishly while his mother read the lines which Lou had written in a small, cramped, painstaking hand.

"Well?" he demanded sharply.
"She says that she thanks us for all our kindness but she can't impose on us any longer."

Mike swore under his breath. "Poor little devil," he said. "I dare say she felt as uncomfortable as a weed at an orchid show."

His younger son glared at him. "Listen," he cried fiercely, "maybe she never went to finishing school, probably she doesn't always know which fork to use, but she's instinctively a lady, that kid. I've met a raft of girls I'd die before I'd bring home to Mother. But—" his voice broke. "Lou wasn't one of them."

"Alec—" began Laura imploringly. But Alec had slammed the door behind him.

"Zowie!" cried Kathleen. "Is our little brother sore, or is he?"
"I must find that child if any of us are to live with Alec," Laura said.

CHAPTER XXIV

The telephone rang eight times before Laura finished the dishes. It was mostly friends and acquaintances calling to tut-tut about Shirley.

About nine Mike rang up. He had learned that a brief memorial service was to be held for Pete Knight at nine-thirty in the old mission church near the railroad shops. Mike himself was in conference and could not attend. But he thought Laura might like to. She did. Lou was certain to be there, no matter where she had taken refuge.

To save time Laura got out the family sedan. But two blocks from the house the old motor wheezed, choked and died. The gas feed was stopped up. Laura wasted precious minutes because sometimes you could unscrow the bottom of the vacuum tank and blow through it and all was well. But not this morning. By the time she gave up the struggle and called a taxi it was a quarter to ten. She had hoped, however, of arriving before the church was quite emptied, and did. But there had been only a handful present and these scattered quickly. Although Laura waited outside she saw nothing of Lou.

Alec did not appear. When Laura called the grocery store she discovered that her son had not shown up for work that day. So much for Alec's glowing promises of the night before. Laura could have wept.

"I must find Lou," Laura told herself.
But she didn't find her, or any trace of her, and Alec did not come home to dinner or telephone.

It grew steadily later, and no Alec. He had never stayed out all night before. But day had broken and a mocking bird was singing outside Laura's window before she heard Alec's step coming on tiptoe up the stairs. Laura got softly out of bed, and met him outside his door.

"Alec, darling, I've been so worried. There were tears in her voice."
"Sorry," he said stiffly.
"I tried to find Lou for you."
He shrugged his shoulders.
"Forget it. She couldn't be happy here. I realize that now."

He turned away and Laura went slowly back down the hall.

On the last Saturday in June Laura Maguire decided to run up to the city for various and sundry reasons, none of them pleasant. It had been a month since Shirley's marriage, the squalliest month Laura had ever experienced. Nothing went right with depressing monotony.

In the first place Mike continued his tirades against Banker Mays and the latter retaliated with telling force. Every time the Clarion published a thrust at the financier both circulation and advertising accounts felt the shock.

Then there was Kathleen. Going everywhere with young Gene Mays and apparently delighted with his pursuit!

About Alec she had even less reason to feel happy. Alec had developed into a deep dark secret and Laura was afraid to probe into the complexities of his behavior. He resolutely kept his own counsel. And for ways that were world he had developed a maddening propensity. He had not stayed out all night again. In fact, he was usually home by nine although he never lingered downstairs to visit with the others, but went straight to his room. He was gone every morning when Laura rose. Without breakfast. He said vaguely that he was dictating to preserve his girlish figure. He also said to expect him at table when they saw him. And that was seldom enough to worry Laura to the point of tears.

But on this sultry June morning it was about Tom Laura's concern. She was chiefly exercised. Tom had been home a month, doggedly working away in Colonel Shoup's office, making progress slowly but steadily and looking more drawn and haggard every day.

Laura had decided to take the bus to the city. It was cheaper than the train and money was becoming distressingly scarce in her establishment, with Mike's business steadily submerging. That was partly Laura's errand in town. She goes in a pinch she took orders from a Woman's Exchange for home canned fruits and vegetables. It didn't pay a lot and was hot tedious work, but Laura had on other difficult occasions collected several odd dollars that helped to turn a hard corner.

On the way out of town the bus passed what had formerly been Joe's place, now christened "The Oak Tree." Laura grinned to herself. Shirley was the only comfortable spot on her mother's horizon. The town had nearly burst its side with derisive laughter when Shirley and Laird took on the hamburger stand. But people who dropped in at "The Oak Tree" to sneer, remained to envy. Curiosity may have accounted for the rush of business she saw him. And that was seldom enough to worry Laura to the point of tears.

"There's no use lying on chains to the corpse of a dead love. I can at least get Tom free."

"And yourself?"
Mary Etta shivered. "I swore no one should ever matter enough to upset my life. I vowed I'd not be submerged as my mother was. But if it's any satisfaction to you, I didn't pull it off. You see, her voice sank, she looked away, "Tom does matter. More than anything on earth. You don't know what it's like like this past month. Wanting him! Missing him! Longing to go down on my knees and beg him to love me again."

Laura glanced at her wrist watch. "Can you be packed and ready to go home with me by six?"
Mary Etta started violently. "Go to Covington?"
Laura nodded. "If your lawyer mailed Tom those divorce papers yesterday, he's got them this morning. And he's been in hell ever since. I'd cut my arm off to spare him that. But I can't. Only you can change Tom's mind to heaven."

Mary Etta's hands clenched. "Tom will be glad to be rid of me," she insisted.
"Tom loves you, Mary Etta. But he believes you're disgusted because he hasn't been a violent financial success like Harvey Leigh. Tom thinks you want a divorce to marry Leigh. And Tom will give you a divorce if you ask for it. But you mustn't. Shirley and I may be his ideal. But you are the woman he loves. You've got to go home with me tonight and tell Tom it's been a nightmare, but it's over."

Mary Etta's thin hands gripped the table tremblingly. "And I thought you hated me."
Laura laid her hand gently on the girl's quivering shoulder. "It doesn't matter about me. I bore Tom. I reared him. I've done everything I could for him. But long ago he passed from my keeping into yours. I don't hate you, Mary Etta. But I am afraid of you. Because you can make or break my son."

Great tears stood in Mary Etta's haggard eyes. "If I could be sure Tom wanted me."
"I am sure."
"Oh, Mother!"
Mary Etta had never called Laura mother before. Laura stooped and kissed her while their tears mingled. She would not come into the house with Laura. She was afraid of a public rebuff at Tom's hands. She asked Laura to call Tom she was waiting outside in the car.

"Come." His voice sounded thin and stretched, and when Laura opened the door he was sitting at the reading table staring straight before him, and the face he had realized that he was alone.

"But where's Alec?" she asked.
"Your father said Alec came in almost an hour ago."
"But Mike didn't see him."
Tom said nothing only his eyes were very sorry for her. And suddenly Laura knew. Maybe she had suspected all along.

"He's only been pretending to sleep at home?" she whispered.
Tom nodded and Laura staggered a little.
"How so terribly sorry," said Tom, laying his hand on her arm. "You don't deserve such trouble as this."
She came back from a long distance to stare at him blankly and then to remember that after all Tom was also flesh of her flesh and he at least could be snatched from the burning.

"Mary Etta is outside in her car. She thinks you hate her and she's breaking her heart for you."
"You must be mad. She fled suit for divorce yesterday."
"I know. But she doesn't want a divorce. Tom. She wants to be taken into your arms and told you love her. Better than life. Better a thousand times than you have ever loved me or Shirley or any other woman."

"But I do love her like that," said Tom simply. "I always have."
He was gone. Taking the stairs two at a time. He had forgotten his mother and Alec. He had forgotten everything but the woman who was his to have and to hold.

CHAPTER XXV
Laura's visit to the Woman's Exchange did not heatenhearted. It appeared that everybody had the same idea: The market was glutted with the products for which Laura had hoped to receive orders. But she did wangle a small commission. Fifty jars of watermelon preserves on the strength of one of old Aunt Julia's recipes which Laura had brought from her father's plantation.

By then it was almost two and she was hot, tired, drowsed and hungry. She went across the street to a large caterer which at that hour, fortunately, was not crowded, picked out the most economical dishes on the menu and, balancing her tray, made for a table in a secluded corner near a window—only to come face to face with Mary Etta.

Mary Etta had finished her lunch. Her black eyes looked startled when they recognized Laura who had instinctively prattled beside her.

"How are you, Mary Etta?" she asked gently.
"I'm splendid of course," the girl said, as if daring Laura to think otherwise.
"Do you mind if I sit with you?" inquired Laura.

Mary Etta shrugged her sharp shoulders. Laura sat down.
"I'm grooved about you and Tom," said Laura at last.
Mary Etta's lip curled. "Why should you be?" she demanded. "You've got him back, haven't you? Mothers always take their sons away from their wives if they can. And you can. Because he thinks you're perfect."

"You must be mad. She fled suit for divorce yesterday."
"I know. But she doesn't want a divorce. Tom. She wants to be taken into your arms and told you love her. Better than life. Better a thousand times than you have ever loved me or Shirley or any other woman."

"But I do love her like that," said Tom simply. "I always have."
He was gone. Taking the stairs two at a time. He had forgotten his mother and Alec. He had forgotten everything but the woman who was his to have and to hold.

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

The Story Tellers: The Satevpost is publishing so-called humorous stuff from Wodhouse, who wrote it between licks at Nazi boots. Humor that comes out of that form of environment doesn't make you laugh. It makes you shiver. If you want a note of thanks from your mind—let it drink Willkie's smartle in Reader's Digest. It's common-sensational. . . . William Allen White's tug-at-the-hearticle in the same issue is a "must," too. . . . James W. Barrett's exciting book, "Joseph Pulitzer and His World," quotes the great publisher as saying: "Every reporter is a hope, every editor is a disappointment."

The Confession of the Week: H. Allen Smith in the Nov. Cosmopolitan: "And talk about your gossip. Why we've raised gossip to fine art in New York. We put it in the papers, and pay the experts fabulous sums of money. And I love it. I've always loved gossip. So have you. Maybe you won't admit it. Maybe you'll say gossip is not polite, not noble. But don't try to tell me you stop up your ears or run or hide in the cellar when someone begins whispering about the thing Joe Schwegle's wife did at Fred Phibbey's party Saturday night."

It was Friday night.
"Haw! Buddy Clarke of the Park Central's Coconut Grove relays the silly-dilly about the little boy who was run over by a steamroller while playing in the street. He was flattened like a pancake. A passerby picked him up and brought him to the child's mother on the third floor."

"What is it?" she yelled in response to his knock.
"Your son," he replied, "he's been run over by a steamroller—he's all flattened out!"
"Well," the mother grumbled. "I'm not dressed. You'd better slip him under the door."

Man About Town:
New York's Horatio Alger Jr., Marvin Schenck, the talent-scout, likes hamburgers. So the other day, while munching on one in a Sixth Avenue restaurant, he met a youth who impressed him as the "most typical good-looking young American" he had ever seen. . . . The chap's clothes indicated he introduced himself and took him to MGM's Broadway offices, where a producer—glaucated: "That's the handsome guy in New York and Hollywood!"

After an ordinary camera test, it was rushed to the coast. . . . Maguire the Mayor of MGM telephoned and ordered "the new find" rushed West. . . . On Friday, then, Jim Wittig, 6 foot 4 nephew of Uncle Sam (who only the other day was hunting for a job on Sixth Avenue) will be riding in class out to Hollywood with a year's MGM contract. Henny Youngman would have you believe that this happened in Berlin. . . . A storm trooper cutely stepping on the foot of one of Youngman's relatives trapped in Germany was in the car.

"Judge," said the man, "he stepped on my foot, the one with the corn, and it hurt me. I lost my temper and hit him."
"Your friend had a reason," said the judge to the other fellow, "why did you hit this storm trooper?"
"I thought," was the retort, "it was being allowed again."

Then there's the one about the visitor to Berlin who asked a native: "Is it true that Germans are eating horsemeat?"
"Ah," said the Nazi, "those were the good old days!"

Jean Sablon overheard a couple of songwriters on Broadway. . . . "Let's go to Carnegie Hall," said one, "they're playing a Teichow-ski piece nobody's swiped yet!" . . . Wool and Fur Combinations Make Stunning New Outfits

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WITH surpassing artistry and craftsmanship American designers are setting a new high in costume design. Especially are our American style creators doing themselves proud in the campus, town and country ensembles, which they create of gorgeous colorful wool and stunning fur.

Not only do the costumes pictured redound to the glory of American designers but there is fascination and patriotic thrill in the thought that the fur, American opussum, which is combined with the beautiful wools of these stunning costumes, is itself decidedly all-American.

The possibilities presented in this new alliance of wool with opussum are endless. Not only is opussum a flattering young fur when used for general utility costumes, but through scientific skill it has also been made available for dressy daytime-and-evening wear as well as for all-purpose wear.

A beautifully cut coat is shown to the left in the group. The exquisitely colorful wool stripe of which it is made speaks for itself. Now that fashion is advocating color, women are going in wholeheartedly for coats that add a bold dash of color glory to the winter landscape. The soft front fullness achieved by skillful manipulation of the stripes is decidedly effective.

The wide notched collar and cuffs of natural American opussum are perfect with the subtle blue, lavender and pink in the tweed.

When one invests in a three-piece outfit as perfectly ensembled as the handsome model shown to the right, she has underwritten for herself a feeling that wherever she goes she is sure to be among the best dressed. This important ensemble for town carries an air of matchless distinction. The suit is a masterpiece of fine tailoring. The three-quarter length cape of American opussum with striped tweed to match the suit will carry through triumphantly as a wrap to wear through the winter with daytime frocks and party dress as well. A sure, safe, sound and sane investment, this that will pay big dividends in chic, charm and self-gratification.

Centered in the picture is another example of the intrigue and glamour expressed in the alliance of bright wool with smart fur. The coat is lined with a plaid wool in glowing high color to match the hood and blouse. When thrown back, the hood forms a colorfully lined collar. The jacket and skirt pick up two of the colors in the plaid. Mittens too, if you please, of matching fur!

If your new wool ensemble happens to be of wool in the now-fashionable magenta color, and if it is without fur, you will look very smart if you carry with it a stunning huge muff of opussum, and, of course, there must be a hat of the same fur to wear with it. The hat and muff twosome is an accessory combination especially cited among top-notch fashions.

Colors highlighted in wools this season especially stress browns and dark greens. The new bright blue is the talk of the town. With furs it is outstanding in any fashionable gathering. Amethyst tones and purples also are being played up to heights of distinction in wools, their beauty accentuated with handsome amethyst jewelry and sumptuous furs.

Crocheting Has a Gay Fashion Role

Crocheters, now is your big moment. Crocheting is rising to dizzy heights of style prestige this season. It is nothing less than astonishing to see what novel and interesting costume accents can be achieved with crocheting. This new enthusiasm for crocheting is "going big" with leading designers everywhere who are bringing new artistry and imagination into the field of crochet design.

One of the most fascinating gestures noted this season is that the new longer length heralded for the smartest vividly colorful suede or fabric gloves is being achieved by either gannet or mosquitoire tops done in simple crocheting decorated with tiny crocheted flowers or tiny ruffles that finish the top edge and then go meandering down the glove.

Wool suits and dresses are cunningly detailed with pockets crocheted of yarn in either a matching or a contrasting color. A crocheted patch pocket embroidered in your monogram will add a thrilling touch to your long midday-like jersey sweater.

Other ideas include a border of crocheting that widens the brim of your gay colored felt hat. Add a bag and belt with related crocheted detail. Cover big button molds with plain crocheting adorned with an applique of crocheted flowers. Designers are also bringing genius to play in the crocheting of scarfs and triangular head coverings. In fact, there is no end to the charming and unique uses now being made of crocheting.

Here is a perfectly charming dinner gown made of silk jersey that combines sun tan beige for the blouse with black jersey for the skirt. The skirt is subtly draped in the new long sleek lines so popular this season. Note the new, long dolman sleeves. A wonderful black cire felt turban has superfluous sheer black lace veiling arranged over its crown, the ends brought down and fastened under her chin. Gold buttons adorn the blouse.

UNWARRANTED STRIKES

The President's address to the International Labor Organization, which was attended by 250 delegates from some 35 nations, was not as direct and as aggressive as some had hoped. In language very similar to that he has used in the past, he again condemned what he termed the misguided few in the ranks of industry and labor "who place personal advantage above the welfare of the nation." Perhaps the most telling sentence was that in which he spoke of those who use their power "to force acceptance of their demands, rather than use the established machinery for the mediation of industrial disputes." That certainly fits a good many labor leaders these days.

A great many authorities are convinced that labor is this country's Number 1 defense problem now. Cases where industry has refused to cooperate with the government and accept the findings of arbitration boards, are few and minor. Cases where labor has taken that attitude are many and major. It is probably true that the bulk of workers are willing and eager to do their share and accept arbitration. But the fact remains that a number of labor leaders in key positions are working on the "whole hog or none" principle and seem to think nothing of virtually defying the government unless they get their own way. These leaders are in a position to call strikes which could bring the defense program to an absolute stop.

It should be kept in mind that the majority of recent important labor disputes have not concerned questions of wages, working hours or working conditions. In some instances they have simply been disputes between the two major labor unions—A. F. of L. carpenters, as a theoretical example, may refuse to handle lumber cut by C. I. O. workers, and vice versa. The strike which delayed production for some time in a factory making transmissions for tanks, trucks and other military vehicles, was of this character.

Other strikes have resolved around the closed shop issue. There is no question but what the big labor leaders have as their goal a 100 per cent union shop—a shop where no man can hold a job unless he joins and pays dues to a union. Strikes have been called or threatened in plants which pay the union scale or better, simply because non-union men were employed along with union men. All available evidence indicates that the public is overwhelmingly opposed to a closed shop—the latest Gallup poll, for instance, showed that those queried were more than 70 per cent against it—but the union drive to achieve it goes steadily on.

For long-lasting personal charm... Budget your time to include daily Baths

First rule for personal charm is the daily bath, says America's beauty experts. Here's why: Your bath provides a welcome break in the day's routine... relaxes nerve tension, helps restore energy. And a fast, finishing shower adds zestful stimulation. But you can't enjoy lasting benefits from just one bath. Or from occasional baths, either. Had your beauty bath yet today?

Daily baths make you feel better—and others notice it, admiringly! COMMONWEALTH WATER CO. SUMMIT, N. J.

Every afternoon, 2:30 to 5. Mon. and Fri. evenings from 7:30 to 9. Among the new books in the library are:

THE HEART REMEMBERS by Faith Baldwin. Life behind the scenes of a great New York publishing house forms the background of this exciting story.

What would you do if, after ten years of divorce, you were suddenly confronted with the fact that your ex-wife had just been made a member of the firm you were in? That's what happened to Andrew Morgan, chief editor of the firm of Maynard & Hall, when he returned to the office from a vacation and was introduced to the new publicity director, his former wife.

STARS IN YOUR EYES by Emilie Loring. The Mexican officer who acted as master of ceremonies at the mock wedding had an evil glint in his eye... or was it a mock wedding?

Kay had never seen Drexel Hamilton before a blow out led her to a border dive where he too was trapped. Kay had come to Mexico to help her brother, a member of the consular service, craving adventure, and now she was a bride, married to a man she knew nothing of... Or was she?

BIG FAMILY by Bellamy Partridge is in its third printing and among the first ten best sellers in non-fiction.

THE HILL OF DOVES by Stuart Cloete is a story of the first Boer War of 1880, and of the never ending struggle between love and war by a man who is both a poet and a soldier.

DEFENSE BOND Quiz

Q. Who said: "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country?"
A. Nathan Hale, who gave his life for America, like great numbers of his fellow countrymen. We are only asked to lend our dollars for Defense Bonds and Stamps to defend the liberty for which they died.

Q. Where I work there is no payroll allotment plan for the buying of Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps. How can I get one started?
A. This depends on your position, and the kind of organization in which you are employed. Generally speaking, your immediate superior would be the proper person to receive your suggestion that you would like to have a voluntary payroll allotment plan introduced. The firm's bank can supply information about such a plan.

NOTE—To purchase defense bonds and stamps, go to the nearest post office or First National Bank of Springfield, or write for information to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington.

Panholders Make Interesting News

PANHOLDER time is here as transfer 29364 illustrates. Two cute kittens with perky bows, a sunbonnet girl and her straw hat playmate, two cages holding applique birds, and a demure maiden with full panholder skirts—these are for kitchen decoration and your protection. The old-fashioned girl holder is cut from wood and painted, and two panholders hang from a hook at the waist to form her skirts.

How To Relieve Bronchitis

Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

First Virtue I think the first virtue is to restrain the tongue; he approaches nearest to the gods who knows how to be silent.—Cato.

INDIGESTION

Can you excite the heart action? At the first sign of indigestion, take a few drops of the liquid. It is the most effective relief of gastric hyperacidity. If the bottle is for use, receive DOUBLE Money Back.

Sleep Heals The long sleep of death closes our scars, and the short sleep of life our wounds.—Jean Paul Richter.

MODERNIZE

Whether you're planning a party or remodeling a room you should follow the advertisements... to learn what's new... and cheaper... and better. And the place to find out about new things is right here in this newspaper. Its columns are filled with important messages which you should read regularly.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Help Middle-Aged Women Learn to Earn (Hill Syndicate—WNU Service.)

An elderly woman, who is now rich because of a certain pickle she put on the market, took a cook's job at $35 a month nineteen years ago. At 43 she went humbly into a younger woman's household and experimented in canning and pickling.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS WHY doesn't someone open a school for middle-aged women? Women who want to earn money or who are forced by circumstances to support themselves, and have no idea how to go about it.

In any sizable city such a school probably would enroll 200 students on the first day. Classes would be in simple bookkeeping and budgeting, cooking, housekeeping, personal appearance and cleanliness, order, sewing, selling in shops, serving in tea rooms and beauty shops and dentists' offices and a score of other lines that would help women to become useful and self-supporting—and incidentally infinitely happier citizens.

Hard Test of Character. But women of 40 and older, essaying real work for the first time, after 20 or more years of being their own mistresses and arranging their own hours, are not often ready to take jobs on terms equal to those girls get. Girls are brisk, smart, modern, clean. Yes, clean.

A woman employer of hundreds of women told me that one great trouble with older women is that they don't observe personal hygiene, which, in plain English, is that they don't bathe daily. Their clothing isn't fresh and dainty.

Then they are apt to be sensitive, suspicious and resentful. To be ordered, at 55, by a girl exactly half one's age, is a hard test of character. But many a woman, if she could have met that test with sweetness and amiability, would be in a good job today.

Complaining at great length of the change in her fortunes, and going over the head of the office manager with complaints to the higher boss, are only two of the things that make the employment of older women risky. Higher bosses haven't time today to listen while the widow of some old friend, coming smilingly into the office, proceeds to tear the entire organization to the mail order department to pieces.

A Pickle Made Her Rich. One woman, who is now rich because of a certain pickle she put on the market, took a cook's job at $35 a month 17 years ago. At 43 she went humbly into a younger woman's household, experimented in canning and pickling for the benefit of the family, sold a few jars of this and that to friends, found her market, and won success. She says that she went to work to save a devoted son and his burdened wife and small family the extra care of "Ma." It is a satisfaction to her now to be putting the two older sons of that son through college.

And there are hundreds of such women, retelling in proud tones, glowing in their work, forgetting that they are getting old and that the children have flown away to live their own lives. One woman developed—from one 45-cent apron—a great factory that makes hundreds of aprons every year.

Chicken a la King for Fifty (See Recipes Below.)

Church Supper Ideas What is so gay as a grand, big get-together full of informal fun, the hum of pleasant conversation and plenty of good food thrown into the bargain? A church supper, of course!

THEY CAN BE USEFUL They can be useful and, being useful, they can be happy. They are usually more reliable than younger girls, whose minds are still on the fun they are going to have after working hours. They often make fine saleswomen, tearoom managers, and one woman, who visits the patients in a large hospital, is so valuable that she has been unable to resign, although she now has an independent income.

THIS WEEK'S MENU *Chicken a la King *Scalloped Potatoes *Sunset Salad Bread and Butter Assorted Cakes *Coffee *Recipe given

Mix just until the dough holds together. Divide dough into fourths and make 1/4 at a time. Roll on a floured board, pat to 1/2 inch thickness, cut and place on baking sheet. Bake 12 to 15 minutes in a hot (450 degree) oven until golden brown. *Scalloped Potatoes. (Serves 50) 10 pounds (6 quarts) sliced potatoes 2 quarts hot milk 1/2 cup flour 1 1/2 cups butter 3 tablespoons salt 1 tablespoon pepper

Smoky Furnace. Question: A piped hot air furnace admits soot to the rooms, in spite of a recent cleaning. What treatment should it have? Answer: Soot and soot are escaping from the firebox into the air passages through open joints between the furnace sections, due to the giving out of the cement with which they were packed. The best remedy is to renew the cement, which should be of a variety made for the purpose and resistance to heat. Even with the best cement, the job usually gives out in five years or so.

Woody's Smell. Question: About a month ago I was given a bedroom suit of maple furniture. I do not like to put any of my things in the chest of drawers because of the very strong "woody" smell inside. Airing does not seem to help. Is there any way to get rid of this odor? Answer: "Paradi" (moth) crystals make an excellent deodorizer. Put a generous amount of the crystals in each drawer and allow to remain for several days.

Faded Veneer. Question: A damp towel was carelessly left on brown walnut veneer, and made a grayish cloudy stain. How can this be restored? Answer: The damage is probably only in the finish. Try the effect of scraping it off with a razor blade. If this also removes the color apply successive thin coats of oil stain of the proper shade; get a color sample card at a paint store. Finish with a thin coat of varnish.

Noty Flush Tank. Question: What is the cause of the continual noise in my flush tank? Answer: The washer of the intake valve is probably worn, so that the water does not shut off. Replacing the washer should end the trouble.

FIRST-AID to the AILING HOUSE

Removing Dents in Wood. WHEN a table top is dented by the dropping of a candlestick or other heavy object, the dent can usually be taken out by a process that will swell the fibers of the wood. For this the finish around the dent should be scraped off so that bare wood is exposed. The dent is then covered by a cloth damped with warm water, which is pressed by a warm—not hot—iron. The steam produced will be absorbed by the dented fibers, which will then swell, and return to their original positions.

Thermometer Setting. One of my correspondents describes a very interesting experience with a thermostat. He could not understand why the house felt so cold with the thermostat thermometer standing at 70 degrees.

Avoiding Greasy Hands. When a dirty or greasy job is to be done, time will be saved by first coating the hands with something that will keep the dirt from working into the pores of the skin.

Meat Loaf. 10 pounds ground round steak 2 pounds ground pork or salt pork 4 eggs 1/2 pound bread crumbs 2 onions 2 tablespoons salt 2 teaspoons pepper 1 quart cold mashed potatoes 1 quart milk or canned tomatoes

Boiled Coffee. 1 1/2 pounds coffee (6 1/2 cups) 2 1/2 gallons water 2 eggs Mix shells, whole eggs and 1 additional cup of cold water with coffee. When the water comes to a boil, add the coffee egg mixture which has been tied in a bag, to the boiling water, and boil for 3 to 5 minutes. Test for strength. When ready, remove bag, let coffee stand 10 to 15 minutes before serving.

The Florida Trek. It is only a matter of a few weeks now before golf's landing stars will be moving into Florida to open another 10,000-mile campaign. The first big show comes off at Miami in December, with $10,000 on tap for the money finishers, and from there swings to California and back via Arizona, Texas and Louisiana.

Hank will be 31 years old this impending January, and his army release means his return to a baseball career well in the next spring training season.

The Hot Stove. Even the loud noises that rise from so many packed football stands can't quite drown out early gossip around the Old Stove at the edge of the winter league.

Winter Golf Training. Northern golfers are wondering about the best methods of building up a better game for next year, since hope still springs eternal in the golfing breast.

EXPLAINING THE PRICE RISES

Customer—How much are fresh eggs today?

Retailer—Sixty-five cents a dozen.

Customer—I said a dozen, not two dozen.

Retailer—I heard you. Sixty-five cents a dozen. Five cents extra if I make an explanation.

Customer—How about storage eggs?

Retailer—Forty-two cents, and I'll make my explanation a cent cheaper.

Customer—Give me twenty cents' worth of eggs and one cent's worth of explanation. Why should eggs be up?

Retailer—It's the defense program.

Customer—Are we sending eggs to Russia?

Retailer—No, but Europe is getting a lot of our hens. And you know about the straw shortage, don't you?

Customer—No.

Retailer—All the straw is being used for Gallup straw votes. And with so little straw in their nests the hens won't lay. Is it clear?

Customer—No. I'll take a loaf of bread.

Retailer—Yes, and I'll explain that. The country is short of dough.

Customer—If it ain't it soon will be. How about baloney? There is no shortage of that, is there?

Retailer—No, but it's gone up in sympathy. Baloney is one of our most sympathetic products. And don't forget we are sending a tremendous amount of baloney to Europe.

Customer—This is the first time I've heard anybody admit it.

SCENE II—A HABERDASHERY

Customer—How much are $2 shirts today?

Retailer—Three dollars and fifty cents. And I'll throw in a full explanation.

Customer—Shirts aren't necessary to the defense, are they?

Retailer—Of course they are. Would you defend the American way without a shirt?

Customer—I may have to!

Retailer—Could you use some socks? They've only gone up fifteen cents a pair.

Customer—Is there a sock shortage?

Retailer—No, but it's harder for me to explain why they should cost more, so I charge extra.

SCENE III—A RESTAURANT

Customer—What would you suggest?

Waiter—Our $5-cent order of goulash is very good at $1.25 a plate.

Customer—Good heavens! Why should goulash be up?

Waiter—It's the OCCG. Office for the Control and Co-ordination of Goulash.

Customer—Must there be a federal board to control goulash?

Waiter—Sir, today there must be a federal board to control everything.

Customer—Bring me a ham sandwich. With mustard and a complete explanation why it should cost more.

Waiter—I'll be glad to explain everything. Do you understand inflation at all?

Customer—Not at all.

Waiter—Good! I'll explain it then.

Uncle Sam has cracked down on an aluminum company which he says diverted metal needed for defense, to companies using it for ornamental work on slot machines, pin ball games and juke boxes. There are times when some of our biggest industries don't seem to be any more appreciative of the crisis than the average man.

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

NOT content with having a very promising film career, Susan Hayward has turned actors' agent. Dining at a New Orleans hotel, she was impressed by the young singer and trumpet player with Chuck Foster's band; he stopped the show at every performance. So when he was brought over to meet her she questioned him. Why wasn't he in films? Nobody'd asked him to be. Where did he come from? Los Angeles, but he'd never been able to get near a film studio there!

So Susan placed him under contract, and arranged for his Hollywood debut at a cafe there. His name? Ray Robbins, professional; in real life, it's Foster.

A new romantic duo makes its debut in RKO's comedy, "Obliging Young Lady," in the persons of Edmond O'Brien and Ruth Warrick.
