Merrill Explains Point Rationing At Luncheon Meeting

At a luncheon Fri. at the Canfield, 333 Springfield ave., Summit, attended by members of the Consumer's Information Committee of the Summit Defense Council, the League of Women Voters and the Red Cross Staff Assistants, Chairman Oliver B. Merrill, of the Summit War Price and Rationing Board, explained the point rationing system, in part, as follows:

Point rationing at first glance looks quite complicated, but as one studies it some of its intricacies vanish and the rest will as we get farther into the plan.

"War Ration Book Two is composed of coupons, some green, some blue—some red. The blue are for processed foods, the red for meat and other things to be rationed later. The coupons on each page have different letters and numbers. The letters designate the period when the coupons are good; for instance, A, B and C are good during the first—March—period, D, E and F are for a later period, and so on.

"When you buy at the stores, you are to figure up the total number of points called for and total up, in the presence of the dealer, the coupons in your book or books that fit up to the total. Thus, if you buy two cans of fruit juice valued at 7 points each, that is, 14 points; five cans of soup at 3 points, that is, 15 points; and two cans of vegetables at 2 points each, that is 4 points; you then have a grand total which will be 33 plus 15 plus 6 points—54 points. You can take all of these points out of one book, or divide them any way you like among the books in your possession.

Chairman Davis emphasized the fact that 65 per cent of the funds required by the national organization had been budgeted for Red Cross services to the armed forces.

New Raid Alarm Initial Test Here Proves Satisfactory

The initial test Thursday night of the new raid alarm routine proved generally satisfactory in Springfield, Friday's checkups with air raid precautions personnel indicated. Defense Council officials said the "which percentage of compliance" with the new procedure, which drastically changes the variety of alarms and signals previously used.

Full moonlight bathed the black-out scene, preventing the signal of other tests and diminishing the effect of the extremely low violations which, on blacker nights, would have seemed like bright "nose thumbs."

Use of radio broadcasts for the "all clear" signal caused some confusion, too. Householders left their radios on and the noise, in some spots drowned out the wail from sirens sounding the "red" and two "blue" signals. In town generally, air raid wardens blew their whistles to indicate the "all clear," approximately a half-hour after the test began at 9:02 p. m.

Nearly all of the city's A. R. P. had been pulled out. There was little surprise when the sirens sounded. Traffic already thin because of wartime restrictions, dwindled still more and there were comparatively few pedestrians.

The air raid personnel had been alerted at four minutes to "black" and all posts were manned when the first "blue" sounded.

Two and a half minutes after the first "blue" came the new "red" alarm, a wailing of intermittent blasts for two minutes. This theoretically indicates the presence of enemy planes in landing range. All traffic, except specifically exempted vehicles, stopped. Pedestrians were herded to shelters, street lights were turned off, as were the lights in war plants working around the clock.

This was one of the major changes from the old system. Houses had to douse lights before the street and war plant illumination was cut off and, for that matter, had to leave lights off until the all-clear signal, although street lights and the war plants started blazing again after the second "blue" signal.

The "red" came at 9:11 p. m. Because of the moonlight, there seemed little change on the streets, despite elimination of the final phases of artificial illumination.

Fashionably, the most unusual story printed in North Jersey in weeks appeared in last week's edition of the Springfield SUN. Story between an announcement of a food demonstration and incidentally school news, the whole story occupied only about three inches of space. Looking Backward

Ten Years Ago

FEBRUARY 26, 1933 The Union County Park Commission, heretofore unwilling to assist in placing unemployed of the county at work in cleaning out the east branch of the Rahway River, had assumed residents of the area which suffers occasional flooding by rain that it would cooperate in relief.

Plans were being made by the Continental Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, for a three act comedy, "The Man From Nowhere" to be shown in the James Caldwell School on March 2.

Two fire calls and an emergency call to rescue a ten-year-old boy who had fallen in the Rahway River kept the fire department busy. The boy, Chester Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Smith of 19 Maple avenue, received nothing more than a dipping and suffered no injury.

At a quantity of Red Cross pajamas which had been transferred to the Army Medical Corps in France just before the Armistice in 1918 was turned over to the French Government by the U. S. War Department when our armies were withdrawing from France after the Armistice. France, in turn, sold them to U. S. merchandisers who offered them for sale in St. Louis and other midwestern cities.

Though appearing off-form, Dayton Regional's rampant quintet continued its winning streak by checking Highland Park 28-18. This was the ninth straight game Regional had won. Members of the team at this time were Cross, Bray, Gardner, Wagner, English, Druzek, Gwynne and Miller.

The first major fire of the year caused damage of $1,000 to a fruit stand on Route 29, adjacent to Rutz and Metz Poultry Farm. An over-heated kerosene heater was claimed to have been the cause of the blaze. The stand was operated by Gilbert Smith.

At the Strand Theatre in Summit, "Risalle" with Nelson, Lady and Eleanor Powell, and "I'll Take My Chance" with Grace Moore, were the two main attractions for the week. At the Lyric Theatre in Summit the three main pictures of the week were "After the Thin Red Line" with William Powell and Myrna Loy, "Mind of Selen" with Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray and "Valiant Is the Word For Courage" with Gladys George.

More than 200 persons thronged

Q. Did the Red Cross sell food to soldiers in 1917-18? A. At the Army's request the Red Cross operated several feeding stations for soldiers on leave in France and England in areas where other suitable eating places were not available.

Q. Did the Government mobilize the Red Cross when war was declared? A. The Red Cross was not mobilized upon the declaration of war since it is always in a state of readiness for disaster through its national Disaster Relief staff and local Chapter Disaster Relief committees. It merely increased the number of its workers and the extent of its activities when war was declared.

Q. Is prisoners-of-war relief available to civilians? A. Prisoners-of-war relief is available through the International Red Cross to only one type of citizen: Enemy aliens interested in recognized camps in belligerent countries.

Q. Do the prisoners know who sends the relief? A. Yes, American Red Cross standing food packages are accompanied by cards having the name and address of the donating individual or organization. These cards are signed by the prisoners and returned to the donor through the American Red Cross. Organizations contributing garments may identify each article with a tag bearing the name of the organization. Purchases by the Red Cross on behalf of donating organizations are identified as to the donors on each of the cases and receipts signed by the homme de confiance are returned to the donating organization.

EVEN THE LIVER OF A PORKER IS RICH IN NUTRITIVE VALUE

By MARY W. ARMSTRONG
That remarkable fellow, the pig, can be utilized from one end to the other—or, more accurately speaking from his snout to the very last curl in his tail. And although pigs' feet, crisply fried bacon, and tender roast pork are good appetite warmers any brisk winter day, it's his liver that has given the pig a place of honor as a distinguished contributor to the cause of good nutrition.

Pork liver contains four and a half times as much iron as its aristocratic competitor, calves' liver, and three times as much iron as beef liver. So if you're out to get the most for your money in nutritive value as well as in weight, you'll find pork liver one of the best buys in the market.
