EDITORIAL

TOWARD A JOB-RICH SPRINGFIELD Shall we talk a little more about post-war planning for Springfield?

The way we look at it is very simply this: In order to do the best job we can for the men who are going to come back from the war—some of them to take old jobs but some of them to look for their jobs—is to make our town as prosperous and busy a community as possible. The mere thought of a dole, or made-work, or boondoggling, or public works which are entered into chiefly to make jobs depressing. No man wants that kind of a job and every man wants a job doing something which he feels is important, necessary, worth while and exciting.

So, we think the job of those of us who are not on the fighting fronts is to see what we can do about making Springfield a vigorous, successful, active, prosperous community which will be looking for men, not looking for jobs for men. That, we take it, is a big job—a job for all of us. There is not more time than all of us need for such a program. Furthermore, we think the job is big enough to challenge the ablest people we can find amongst us.

While we are on the subject and before we forget to mention this we should say that such a program can have great rewards for everyone in the community. If, for example, Springfield's industrial community is active and prosperous and if its shopping area is drawing large volumes of trade, the tax burden of the community becomes either lighter or easier to bear or the community can afford many more services with the result that Springfield becomes an even better place to live in. The result of such developments is that more people want to move here and values are firm or rise. To the present property owner (who is the principal tax payer) all of these things are an advantage.

But to get back to our planning. It seems to us that the problem is to study, right now when there is time for it, such questions as to the retail trade of Springfield. How much are we doing now? How can we attract more after the war? What kind should we try to get? How much local business is going out of town and why? What might we be able to do to help the merchants to do more business and thus bring more money into Springfield and create more jobs here? It is our guess that once all the facts are gathered the problem will be clear and once the problem is clear the necessary solutions will show themselves. Private citizens and local government working together can probably get the problems solved then.

Regional High Gets Small Oil Allotment

Service Men's Role Stressed By Frost

Greater L. Frost, Republican candidate for Township Committee at the primary election September 21, addressed a group of parents of service men Tuesday night, in which he stressed the part service men will play in the post-war world. He emphasized that 'we must prepare to receive them back.' Frost said, 'Recognizing that the boys now serving in the Armed Forces will constitute 20 per cent of the population, it is only right that every effort should be made now to recognize them when peace is declared. He went on, 'We cannot expect them to return to an ever-increasing debt and the high rate which they will have to pay. Economies must be made now and not tomorrow.'

Ordinance Provides For Planning Body, Argue Membership

Creation of a seven-man Planning Board and Zoning Commission, with provision for a Citizens' Advisory Committee to collaborate with that body, is contained in an ordinance introduced by the Township Committee Wednesday night. The Price Panels, which will administer the price control program and organize the home front fight against inflation in each community, consist of five to seven volunteer members each with from three to ninety volunteer assistants. There are now a total of 284 panel members in the 55 boards, and in addition there are 8700 assistants who perform the essential of distributing informative material to retailers, and act as 'walking information centers' for both dealers and consumers.

Four-Point Program For Price Control

Emphasizing that victory over inflation, the profiteer, and the black market is impossible without the active and earnest cooperation of the consumer, price officials outlined the following four ways in which consumers can help the government and their neighbors who are volunteer their time and effort as Price Panel members and Price Assistants: 1. Watch for top local prices as they apply to your community. 2. Report the violation to the Price Panel of your local rationing board. BETTIQUETTE

SAYS—

Any one who has an accumulation of old, unaged milk bottles, soda drink bottles or beer bottles tucked away in the house should root them out now and return them to the stores. Because the glass industry is now mobilized for war work, new bottles are not being made in the same quantities and re-use of old bottles is essential if familiar beverages are to continue to be plentiful. The return of bottles is both patriotic and practical. Each deposit bottle is worth a few cents in cash which will soon build up into enough dimes and quarters for the purchase of additional war savings stamps.

Lesson-Sermon

"Mind" is the Lesson-Sermon subject for Sunday, August 22, in all Christian Churches and Societies throughout the world.

The Golden Text is: "Great is our Lord and of great power; His understanding is infinite." (Psalms 147:5).

Among the Lesson-Sermon citations is the following from the Bible: "Fear ye not, neither be afraid: have not I told thee from that time, and have declared it? ye are even my witnesses. Is there a God beside me? yea, there is no God: I know not any." (Isaiah 44:8).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God, the divine Principle of man, and man in God's likeness are inseparable, harmonious and eternal." "God and man are not the same, but in the order of divine Science, God and man coexist and are eternal. God is the parent Mind, and man is God's spiritual offspring." (p. 336).

PARACHUTE TRAINING OUTLINED

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles on "Parachutes" by R. J. Caswell of Springfield, assisted by G. H. Fisher, who with Mr. Caswell is an instructor in the Parachute Training School of Newark.

Parachutes may be classified into two distinct groups, those operated by means of a static line, and those that are manually operated by the jumper himself. Each of these particular types of operated parachutes has its distinct advantages, depending on the conditions and as to how the parachute is to be used.

To open the manually operated type parachute, the jumper must reach for and pull the up-cord himself.

The 24-foot diameter, manually operated, circular or umbrella type parachute, in the seat pack or container, we believe, can be credited with the saving of more lives than any other as it is the type most preferred and most commonly used by the majority of pilots as it permits them greater freedom of movement and at the same time acts as a seat cushion.

The static-line operated parachute is opened by means of a line attached from the aircraft to the tip cord of the parachute. When a jumper or cargo is to be dropped from the aircraft, the jumper or cargo, as the case may be, must fall until the length of the static line is reached. The weight of the jumper or cargo then automatically pulls the tip cord and opens the parachute.

The static-line operated parachute has its place but only in time of war for the use of paratroopers in automatically opening their parachutes for them, or the dropping to them of much needed supplies and ammunition, but also has and is being used by our own heroes, the Forest Rangers, who patrol and protect our vast timberlands and National Parks. In times of forest fires due to the almost inaccessible and long tedious trek by means of pack-horse and mule, these intrepid men and their fighting equipment and supplies could not be placed in strategic positions until vast areas of timber had been burned were it not for the parachute, dropping both they themselves and a greater amount of heavier fire fighting equipment than could otherwise be brought by pack-horse or mule.

These "Angels of Mercy," the Red Cross time and again turned to the parachute as the quickest and often the only means of getting medicine and clothing and food to those in the areas where homes have been swept away by flood.

Another little known but interesting role the parachute has played, is that of dropping mail and supplies to those who make the snow-locked country of the Far North their home.

These are but a few of the many things the parachute is called upon to do in our everyday life. During this World-War II, the parachute was not only called upon to bring our fighting men to their designated battle positions, but it had to also deliver them additional ammunition and supplies and in many instances made it possible to reinforce them with the machines of war, such as tanks, jeeps and large troop planes without which the battle could not have been won.

That the parachute, neglected as it has been and as trivial and unimportant as it is sometimes made to appear, has proved itself many times over as an important instrument in both peace and war.

Skidmore Discusses Swimming Pool Issue

To the Editor of the SUN: In the SUN of August 13th, there appeared an article stating that the water on my property was polluted and unfit for swimming or drinking, and that "the public take notice, and refrain from swimming at the pool until another test can be made."

I feel the public, as above mentioned, should be enlightened to the facts as they are, and would request that you publish this letter to that end.

This pool is my personal property, strictly private for friends and neighbors, who have my permission, and the public has never been invited for common use, excepting that the Red Cross Life Saving Courses given by Mr. Bennett on Saturdays from four to six P. M. are free to all who care to take them.

The waters that feed this pool originate in a large and steady flowing spring about one hundred feet above the pool, on the property owned by Mr. George Knoll, and fed from him by Mrs. Robert Zimmerman, and under whose jurisdiction the stated pollution occurs. This flow of water is part of the Rahway water supply, and flows at its source a surveyed and chartered watercourse.

For the past several years I have made repeated requests to the Mountainside Board of Health to have this pollution eliminated. This they have failed to do. In fact the last few weeks the situation has become so bad that I requested Health Officer Wilsey to have an analysis made of the spring flow for me. To date I have not received any report from him on this test, even though the result of this personal request was made public in the SUN.

This analysis was made of the water in the flow of the spring which is separate from the pool. This water in the pool has never been tested by a public analyst, as I have always been sure to keep it sterilized, even to the point of it being boiling.

FELMETH'S SERMON DISTRIBUTED

Address of Former Local Assistant Pastor Proves Popular; 50,000 Copies Going To Soldiers

Lieutenant William H. Felmeth, son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. William G. Felmeth of 539 Riverside drive, Elizabeth, and graduate pastor of the Springfield Presbyterian Church during the summer of 1941, recently delivered an address to his associates in the field artillery at an Alaskan outpost that was so popular that it is being printed into a tract by the Board of National Missions. About 50,000 copies of the address, entitled "What It Takes," will be distributed to servicemen throughout the Nation.

Lieutenant Felmeth, ordained a minister on January 8, 1942, served as an assistant minister at the First Presbyterian Church before being called to active duty later that month. He is a graduate of Phinney School, Harvard University and was awarded a diploma in education from the Princeton Theological Seminary.

Because he had been a member of the field artillery R. O. T. C. at Harvard, Lt. Felmeth was commissioned in that branch of the service instead of becoming a chaplain. Since his entrance into the service, he has served in the Pacific, and was recently sent to Alaska. He has been a first lieutenant since August, 1942.

Since there is no chaplain in his Alaskan outpost, Felmeth has been conducting weekly services there for men of all sects, including Protestants, Christians and Jews. The text of "What It Takes" is as follows:

"Every soldier is glad when he can say to himself: 'I have what it takes.' To get that way we had stiff training. Through our basic training, in the morning setting up, on the obstacle course, on the field marches with full pack, we were told that we would need every ounce of man in us to meet the demands of the front. Today, we know that 'old Sam' was right. In the heat and sand of North Africa, in the sweaty jungles of New Guinea, in the 'williwaw' and ice of the Aleutians and in a score of other tough spots at sea and in the air we have proved to ourselves and to others that we have—'What

It Takes.'"

"Strong Inner Man Needed—" But we have also found that the front makes other demands. We have seen hungry, muscular fellows fold up while little runt stand the gaff. Then we discovered that hard muscles are not all that a man needs in a hot spot. He needs a strong inner man—a quality of soul that holds him up to life—that meets loneliness, discouragement, heartbreaking odds, the sweep of panic and temptations and does not break. The little fellow met the same hardships as the big fellow, but he met them in a different way. He had something within to back up his hard muscles. Some of us know that we don't have that. At home we never felt any need for inner reserves. We were young, traveled light, had few worries, no responsibilities, no fears; and temptations meant little to us. We didn't see much need for training the inner man; but now, when the test comes, some of us know we are unready. Loneliness gets us down. Anxieties harass us. Fear besets us. Temptation to throw everything to the winds does us. Resisting these is not a joke, but a grim disturbing business. We wish that we had what it takes to meet these inner battles.

"We can have it. The Apostle Paul, a great old fighter, who had faced just these things, wrote to some friends, 'I can do all things through Christ who strengthened me.' To another friend on a hot spot, whose letters gave signs that he was weakening, he wrote, 'Thou, therefore, endure hardness, as a good soldier.' Paul admired the steady way in which a well-trained soldier faced his battles. Therefore, he advised 'Timothy' to imitate him as a good soldier of Jesus Christ."

"Says Training Gives 'Confidence'—" What is it that strengthens and steadies a good soldier when the going is hard, and keeps him from turning tail? It is his training, his confidence in his commanding officer, his pride in himself, and his loyalty to the cause. Summoning all these the good soldier is able to stand in many a hard place. So look the soldier of Jesus Christ in his inner warfare.

"A man, therefore, ought to put himself in spiritual training and build up his inner resources. Even a few minutes a day in quiet prayer, a brief reading of the New Testament, a brief period of worship when opportunity offers will quiet the heart and put him in touch with power."

"Many a man has found that these things built upon faith in Jesus Christ give rest and serenity and confidence and trust so that he can say, 'Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee.'"

"Is there some trouble bothering you? Jesus says, 'Learn of me . . . and ye shall find rest unto your souls. Are you perplexed about the future? He says, 'He that followeth me shall not walk in darkness. Are you troubled about injuries, or possible death in battle? He says, 'Let not your heart be troubled.' Unknown grim duties, anything, all things can be borne successfully through Jesus Christ who strengthens us."

"I do not say that these simple things are a cure-all for all troubles. Do not mean to say that faith frees a man from hardship or temptations. What I do say is that men have found that real faith issues in a trust that enables a man to say, 'The Lord is the strength of

SAYS THE GIRL WHO WORKS AT WESTON'S

Mrs. Walter Milos, Elizabeth, N. J.

"WE WERE MARRIED on Tuesday — on Friday Walt was due back at camp. So we've had just three days of married life. But during those three days I showed I'd do anything under the sun to bring Walt back safe—and bring him back quick. And I'm doing it—at Weston's."

"SO FIRST AND FOREMOST I'M HELPING TO MAKE WEAPONS that Walt and 11,000,000 other 'Walt's' will need to smash the Axis—to hasten the day they'll march through Rome, through Tokyo and through Berlin. That's my job at Weston's, and I'm proud of it."

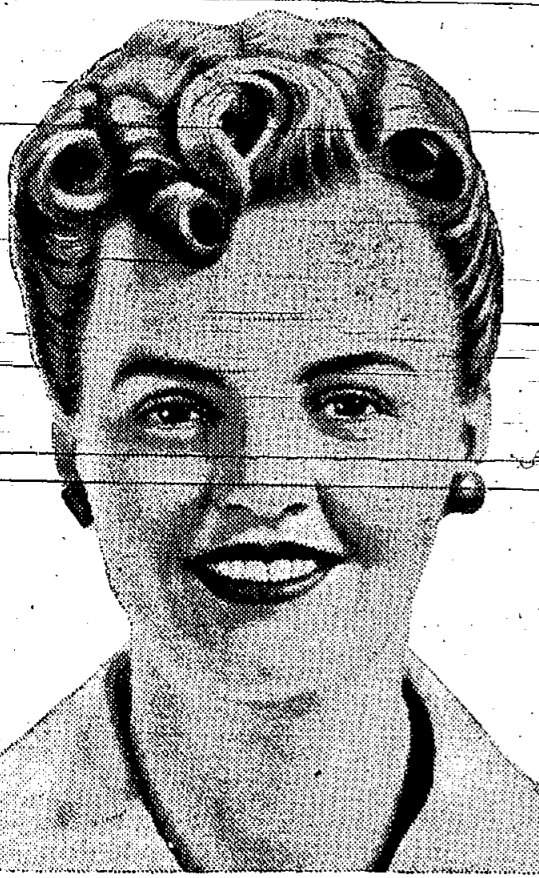

"THEN, SECOND, I'M BUYING BONDS from the money I earn at Weston's—bonds to buy more planes, more guns, more tanks, more of everything Walt's going to need before this war is won. That's my duty, and again I'm proud to do it."

"THIRD, I'M SAVING MONEY. Yes, over and above taxes. When Walt comes home for keeps, we're going to need plenty for the things we're going to buy to furnish the home we're going to have. And we'll have it—thank to my job at Weston's."

"It's fun to work at Weston's!"

Your job is waiting at Weston—a big job in terms of what it will accomplish in helping to win this war—but an easy job in actual working terms. Our plant is light, clean and airy. GOING UP!

Yes, our circulation among Mountainside readers is going up, higher and higher.

IT'S 200 PER CENT OVER

THE FIGURES LAST YEAR

There's a reason why the SUN has the largest gain in the number of readers in Mountainside, far in excess of any other weekly or daily newspaper in the borough.

More and more, Mountainside readers know they can rely upon the SUN each week for ALL their local news and pictures aplenty of people they know.

If you are not getting the SUN regularly, you're missing what so many others have already learned is the best value for Mountainside readers.

WAR WORKERS—BOTH

He puts in strenuous hours on the production line—she is busy with her regular housekeeping and with all the extra duties that fall to the homemaker in war time. This year she is proudly exhibiting her cunning. Her pantry shelves are lined with jars of fruits and vegetables she has canned.

When the government issued its request that we do home canning, we asked our Home Economics Department to compile a booklet. We wanted reliable and up-to-date canning methods made available to New Jersey homemakers. We have given away thousands of copies of "Can It". Be sure to get a copy. It is given away at our Nutrition and Conservation centers.

Drafting of fathers with children
born before September 15, 1942, will begin at approximately the same time throughout the Nation,
the Selective Service Bureau of WAC said recently.

The following comment on the August crop report was made recently by Marvin Jones, War Food Administrator: "The July crop report made it clear that farmers had substantially met—and in some cases exceeded—the crop average goals. During July, growing conditions were favorable and current indications are that yields per acre in 1943 will be the second largest on record. The progress of the year's production so far is gratifying. The hard work and the determination of farmers have placed us in a position to meet essential food needs, given average weather from now on.

"However, the crops are still to be harvested, marketed, and processed, and, in the case of the food crops, fed to livestock. Farmers will need additional workers for harvest, and food processing industries are short-handed. The war-time food problem is not solved though present production prospects are encouraging."

Blank forms are available to all officers and enlisted men of the Army to enable them to apply for war ballots for elections to be held this year, the War Department reports. Public Law 712 requires these forms to be available in years
when officers of the National Government are elected. The forms will also enable legally qualified soldier voters to participate in State elections.

Civilians will receive approximately 6 1/2 million more cases of canned apples, fruit cocktail, beans,
sweet corn, pumpkin or squash,
lima beans, and tomato puree under an amendment to Director Food Distribution Order 22.4 which reduces the quantity that canners

are required to set aside from 1943
production to meet Government requirements.

Thousands of Americans, in addition to paying taxes and investing in War Bonds, have given several million dollars in cash to the government and many other gifts.
The Treasury to date has completed more than 20,000 transactions in connection with contributions ranging, in cash, from one cent to several hundred thousand dollars, and in gifts, from tin foil to Rolls Royces. Cash donations total about $4,423,000.

Members of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, as soon as they take the oath as members of the Women's Army Corps, become eligible for National Service Life Insurance and the free mail privilege.
Furthermore, a member of the WAC who is married to a service man is eligible to receive the usual family allowance for soldiers' wives.

Mail and wholesale eating prices for women's girls' children's, and toddlers' fall and winter dresses, suits, coats, houses, and other outer clothing have been provided by OPA at levels equal to or lower than those of last fall. In Amendment No. 1 to Maximum Price Regulation 230.
