BETTIQUETTE SAYS

Here we are into Indian summer, with the Fall and its activities beginning. When school begins our town is like a lethargic individual which has received a pep injection—it suddenly becomes a vitally alive community. Our handsome young boys and girls in their attractive sport clothes fill the streets with their healthy, youthful laughter.

School—Church—community—mimicking—all the things our Men and Women are fighting for and giving their lives, so that you and I can continue to live in a happy, free country. We were reading about the excellent work of the Bandage Corps or our local Red Cross. These women deserve credit and cooperation from Springfield. Observe the names of the leaders of this group, and if you will recall, they headed the list of many of the Town's social functions, but with the need for volunteer service, they have submitted these activities and devoted themselves to the great benefactor of this chaotic world, The Red Cross.

As previously written, all events gravitate towards the SUN office, so we come in contact with all our glowing brides in town. These brave young soldiers know their happiness is transitory, but they go on with all the pomp and ceremony of normal times. We admire these young women who have the courage to take life in their hands, take what happiness they can, and face their future with an optimistic view. In the average cases, the young newly married after their brief interlude of happiness, must separate except for few and unattractive trappings. Often the man goes into the active fighting front, and the girl goes on with her job, living with her parents, occasionally pinching herself to make sure her marriage was not just a dream, and often when she is called by her married name failing to respond immediately. But this young lady spends all spare cash either in buying things for her future home or on sending cards and gifts to the man she loves. That is the Life of the War Bride.

We have a lovely motto here which we sell. We think the sentiment is excellent and are passing it on: MY SON Boy of mine, I long for you, I'd like to hear the load for you, I'd like to rout the wrong for you, I'd like to smooth the road for you.

Boy of mine, I pray for you, I'd like to meet your toes for you, I'd like to brave the fray for you, I'd like to strike the blows for you. Boy of mine, I fear for you, I'd like to do and dare for you, But I can only cheer for you, And oh, how greatly, care for you.

LEATHER Leather will look better and last longer if it is kept clean. Most smooth leathers, with few exceptions, are washable; those which are not can be cleaned with dry cleaning solutions. Brush cleaner from center out toward edges, covering every part of the leather. Clean suedes with soft bristle brush, using a circular motion, and after cleaning, smooth the nap in one direction. Saddle soap both cleans and oils washable leather. Stains are difficult to remove and it is advisable to have a professional cleaner, experienced in leather, do this. Some simple stains, however, can be removed with care. For lipstick or rouge, rub stain with a naptha soap with a non-inflammable spot remover. Try remover on a spot that doesn't show first, to be sure it will not remove color. Mildew and mold stains can often be removed with a fairly stiff brush. Fresh paint stains can be removed with turpentine, old paint stains require rubbing with a stiff brush, followed by the use of a liquid paint remover. Mud is easily removed by first brushing dry, then washing with soap and water.

YOUR RED CROSS

One home nursing course graduate in every family is the aim of the Red Cross this coming year. A healthy home is an important wartime responsibility of those on the home front. A course in Red Cross Home Nursing will enable one to maintain such a home and equip her to give simple nursing care, thereby relieving doctors and nurses needed by the armed forces. The course requires not less than twenty-four hours, usually divided into twelve two-hour sessions. Upon completion, students are entitled to wear a Red Cross home nursing pin and are given a certificate in recognition of their interest and effort. The course is not for housewives alone, but also for other groups such as fathers, office workers, teachers and others. There are junior classes for school children. There are no prerequisites for this instruction. Anyone who wants it, may take the course. More than 20,000 trained nurses, at least 80 per cent of them volunteers, are giving this course to thousands of laymen, who are learning to keep themselves, their families, and their communities in good health. Mrs. Morris Lichtenstein, chairman of home nursing in the local chapter, announces that enrollments are being made up now. Anyone wishing to sign up, may do so by calling Red Cross headquarters, Millburn-6-2003, any week-day from 10 A. M. to 4 P. M. They will be notified as soon as it is known when classes will start. Registered nurses may apply to the local chapter for authorization to teach. The surgical dressings workroom is now open two days and two evenings a week—Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9:30 A. M. to 3:30 P. M.—and from 7:30 to 10 P. M. Present quotas of dressings must be filled and ready for shipment by the first of this year. In order to accomplish this, it is imperative that the workroom be well filled with volunteers at each session. It is hoped that the workers who were accustomed to coming out on Thursdays before the summer sched-

It's a mere boast, but we can't pass over the opportunity to show over the fact that if any event of importance slated to take place in Springfield isn't listed in "Coming Events," then there's something wrong. But, if we're wrong, help us with your item. There's no charge for the service and no confusion will arise with other local groups' activities if, as long before the coming event actually takes place, you remember to pass the date along to the SUN, by mail or phone, Millburn-6-1256.

BETTER made! BETTER styled! LOWER priced!

Three phrases, each one important in itself, but all three together describe the policy that has made Fisher the place to buy furniture. Smart women in ever increasing numbers, are choosing Fisher furniture because of its inherent quality... its "rightness" of styling... and because they can see at a glance that Fisher's prices are lower (our location, on the highway, and our low cost of doing business help make that possible).

PARACHUTE TRAINING OUTLINED

By R. J. CASWELL

In the air, he probably will learn the lesson of how to jump just on Parachutes, we have encountered what to do at just the proper time to equate those unfamiliar with when I was getting out of the air-

To date there have been two predominant questions which we have left unanswered as we wished to save them for this, our concluding article.

The first question was: Have we ever jumped from an aircraft in flight? The answer is: Yes, many times, and we are still doing so in the course of our varied attempts to assist in the war effort.

The second question was: How does it feel to jump from an aircraft using a parachute? The answer is: A mixture of feelings concentrated in an unbelievably short space of time.
