Over a period of months this small force sent its airplanes out over the convoy and shipping lanes leading to Europe and North Africa on missions extending as far as 1,200 miles from base and lasting as long as 17 hours. Flying alone and often heavily outnumbered, the 480th Antisubmarine Group's airplanes encountered prowling Ju 88's and FW 200's, and attacked and defeated them in air battles over

The rector's Lenten message this year is "Overcoming Evil with Good." "We attain spiritual mastery only as we learn to overcome evil with good. A direct attack against our own bad habits, or the wrong of the world itself, only half win the battle for the right. Only as we put positive good in the place of wrong have we succeeded in permanently overcoming evil."

stringent laws can never prevent crime. Far more effective is the constructive work of character building agencies. Our best national defense is the constant demonstration that democratic ways of thinking and living are finer and sounder than the forces that oppose them.

"In the handling of our personal problems we can conquer the evils that threaten peace and happiness only as we substitute good in place of evil. Here is the meaning of the Lenten season. For six weeks the church invites us to experience the "expulsive power of a new affection." As Christian soldiers we put ourselves voluntarily under discipline so that we may be better prepared to "fight the good fight" and learn to cast out evil for good in our lives.

"So the Church urges us during this season to be more faithful in attendance at public worship, more regular in partaking of the Sacrament and more Christian in our daily dealings with other people. There is no magic by which Lent can do us good without any effort on our part. But for every person who earnestly desires to lead a better life, these few weeks can be full of spiritual adventure and crowned with the joy of Easter victory."

It's "No Points" or "Low Points" Yet It's Still Mighty Good Food

By MARY W. ARMSTRONG
Home Demonstration Agent

"No points" or "low points" are the starting points for many a good meal these days! For if she takes time to list them, the lady of the house will probably be pleasantly surprised to find how many foods make little or no demand on the family's ration books. Substantial old reliables like fruits and vegetables, for example, and cereals, breads, eggs, fish, legumes, nuts, peanut butter, dehydrated soups, canned green beans, some of the frozen foods, grapefruit juice, and a host of others too numerous to mention. The important fact to keep in mind is that the foods which are plentiful are least in price and should be used often and generously, not only because they prevent any waste of the crop, but because their widespread use is kind to the family food budget. White potatoes are in this category and with long working hours, a common occurrence in most households these war days, a high energy food such as potatoes has a valuable place in the day's meal plan. Bulk carrots, parsnips, and yellow turnips are plentiful in the markets now, too. A steaming bowl of vegetable chowder combining all of these root vegetables, with a bit of onion for flavor accent, is welcome fare at any dinner table of a nippy, late winter evening.

Certain of the green leafy vegetables are coming into many markets in generous quantities. New cabbage, escarole, kale, chervil—these are most reasonable in price, with lettuce, watercress and beet tops in the higher price brackets. This assortment, in addition to canned green beans and those frozen products that are point-free, gives the homemaker who likes little time to prepare meals for her family, or to shop around for her household's plenty of low-way in selecting three servings of vegetables each day without spending too many ration points or too much money. If her canning supplies are still well stocked, she has practically no problem at all.

Use cereal products liberally if you are looking for ways to conserve ration points. Rice, barley, sops, noodles, or spaghetti combine with meat stock and vegetables to make a nourishing soup that needs only bread or rolls and a dessert to make a good lunch. Some of these cereal products can be scalloped or combined in casseroles with milk, eggs, cheese, canned meat, or fish for other tempting and substantial main dishes.

Fish and eggs, both point free, are well worth some study on the part of the homemaker who wants to keep her family well fed. Considering the temperature and the cooking time is the secret of having fish moist when it is served. Dry, insipid, overcooked fish is not palatable, and generally there is no excuse for its being that way if care is taken to prepare it properly. Eggs are plentiful, so use them in a meringue topping for a lemon, butterscotch, or chocolate pie now and then when the dessert is to be the highlight of the meal.

YOUR RED CROSS

Miss Gertrude Neidlinger, a famous satirist and master of monologue, had her auditions at the Legion Hall Monday night, in which she had the floor until long after she had left the hall.

In her characteristic way of impersonating the embarrassing moments of famous people, Miss Neidlinger not only won the love and admiration of her audience, but carried them through twenty minutes of hilarious entertainment. She will long be remembered for her splendid performance.

The Red Cross headquarters on Morris Avenue, under the supervision of Mrs. Robert D. Treat, has become a very popular spot. Each day finds many new faces and many new names on the registers. Due to the hard work and splendid arrangements of Mrs. Donald Wolf, the display at headquarters is well worth any one's time to see. If you haven't as yet paid your visit to Red Cross headquarters, do so now because it is here you will see many activities of the Springfield Chapter and it is here you will be able to learn of the many duties of this great humanitarian organization—the Red Cross.

The busiest people are always the ones who find time to do more. Most of the women serving as volunteer First Aid Nurses Aides are women already working eight hours a day, six days a week. Today our hospitals are desperate for aides to serve on week-day mornings. How about you? Won't you give four hours a week to your community and country? For information, phone Mrs. Herald A. Jones, chairman of Nurses Aides, at Millburn 6-0372-W.

Consumer Unit To Renew Work

The Consumer Information Committee of the Springfield Defense Council is making renewed efforts at helping the housewife to make her points go as far as possible—and her money too. In order to do this the committee feels that it is absolutely essential that every person who has the responsibility of buying food, know exactly how much both in money and points the article she is buying should cost. Mrs. Ronald Nye, chairman of this committee reports: "The price situation in our community is not good, and plans are being made to remedy the condition, however, un-

PLANNING SPRINGFIELD

Editor's Note—This is one of a series of articles prepared by the Springfield Planning Board to acquaint readers with its purposes, functions and goals.

THE PROBLEM
The responsibility of planning the future of a community is a trust of deep significance. If performed properly, the community will continue to expand and prosper. If the responsibility is taken lightly or the job not carried forward, a mediocre city will result.

Springfield is a large semi-rural territory, destined to be a large residential area before many years roll by. Springfield stands at the crossroads and the right route must be selected now. To determine its course, certain fundamentals must be decided upon. The following are examples:

1. Growth must be stabilized so that bubble bursting booms do not result.
2. Expenditures for capital improvements must be on a sound basis founded on the ability of the community to pay.
3. Services and other improvements must be controlled so as not to increase the tax burden out of proportion to the increase in population.
4. The mistakes of other communities should be analyzed and measures taken to prevent repetition, if possible.

Springfield has been for many years a rural area with a certain proportion of purely residential localities. The rural aspect of the community is gradually being replaced by increased residential activity.

As a residential area Springfield should offer home facilities for all types of residents. By neither catering exclusively to any particular group, a diversified population containing representatives of all population groups would be developed which will make for a most effective and stable community.

There are several types of residents of which Springfield should and could have a greater population. A few of these are discussed below:

1. Estate—This type of resident has a large home built on a large plot. It is properly landscaped and cared for by workers employed for that purpose. The economic status of such a resident is high. Small services from the community is the way of improvements are required. The children, are, in many cases, educated in private schools at no expense to the township. The return to the municipality exceeds the expense by a large margin. Such residents are interested in security and protection and desire to live on a high plane.

2. Country Life—This type of resident is in the same economic status as the Estate type. He is interested in pets, gardens, and outdoor attractions. Horseback riding would probably be one of his interests, especially in a region so close to the Park Reservations. This type of resident would be the typical country gentleman.

Both the estate and country life type of residents would be especially desirable. They have leisure time and the funds to utilize it.

3. Suburban—This type of resident is in the middle income. He is regularly employed at a gainful occupation for which he receives a good income. He is desirous of raising his family in a manner better than his lot. He wants a good home and a fair sized plot of ground, usually no more or no less than he can care for himself. Sends children to local schools and he is usually interested in the school program and the school standing. His investment in the community is great enough to return to the local treasury an excess over the expense he creates.

Still the greatest mother in the world!

EVERY year you have given to the Red Cross... willingly and with a free heart. You helped us help millions of people... when the floods struck... when the earthquakes came... when famine devastated some far-off land. It was your habit to give... the great proud habit of thirty million American families... proud that they could give... proud of the great Red Cross, that made the giving worthwhile.

But this year it is going to be different. When you dig into your pockets and purses it won't be just your "regular" contribution. For this year of global war the need is greater than it's ever been before.

And this year it is your own boys the Red Cross serves... Eleven million of them in every land from Sicily to Chungking... on every ocean and in every sky.

This year, when you cannot be near your sons, you will give generously and be glad that the Red Cross—your Red Cross—is still the greatest mother in the world.

This year, when the need is greater than ever before—this year you will want to give more... to give freely to your own Red Cross... to your own sons in the service.

So give—for this is the year when giving really hits home. Give for the boy who longs to be with you—give to your Red Cross which will teach him for you.

This time dig deep—deeper than ever before. Dig deep and be glad that you can.

Yes, give generously and be glad that Red Cross—your Red Cross—is still the greatest mother in the world and that wherever in the world your boy is

Coast Guard Wife Plans Savings for Future Home

When friends at the RCA radio tube factory in Harrison asked Mae Mielowicz about her plans after she was married five months ago, she was ready with both a good answer and a good reason: "I'm staying right here at my job, because I don't want to produce at RCA my wedding presents away until my husband returns. We expect to establish our home with my savings from my war work. And the radio tubes I'm helping to produce at RCA will help bring him back sooner."

"Of course I miss him," she added, "but my job helps the time to pass more quickly."

According to the RCA employment office, more women and girls are needed (full or part-time) at the RCA Harrison plant to make vital radio tubes. You can apply at the RCA employment office, Sussex and Fifth Streets, Harrison, weekdays between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

This means that on weekday evenings, Night Rates now start at 6 instead of 7 o'clock, continuing until 4:30 the next morning. The rates apply on calls of about 50 miles and over, and also are in effect all of Sunday.

Because of the tremendous volume of calls now on the lines, please continue to use Long Distance only when urgent. Every unnecessary call that is avoided helps to make room on the lines for calls that need to go through promptly.

THE OIL CHOKE

America's shortage of gasoline for civilian use is becoming acute, especially in the East where light fuel for oil-heated homes is a serious problem also. War's motor fuel demands are increasing, and the only apparent way to meet them is by deeper cuts into uses at home. In 1943, oil fields of the United States yielded 1.5 billion barrels of crude oil, and new fields discovered will furnish only about one-sixth that much. No relief is in sight; 350,000 barrels daily came out of storage tanks in January. Oil producers started more than two years ago to warn government authorities of just what is happening now. At that time the calamity could have been avoided with a fair increase in the crude oil price, but it was not allowed. Here is the rub: When oil prices were frozen in 1941, the national average was $17 a barrel, and now it is $120. Books Show Red Counting all puny, scattered price advances in two years, the gain has amounted to a barrel while costs to get oil are up 60¢ a barrel. The country needed oil even in 1941. #### Grateful For Work On Fourth War Loan

To the Editor of the SUN:

The Springfield Defense Council wishes to make known to all those who recently worked on the 4th War Loan Drive that it is very grateful for their efforts in making this the most successful and outstanding War Loan Drive ever conducted in Springfield. The Council is especially grateful to Jack Price, War Savings Chairman, and the Air Raid Wardens who did a fine job on covering every home in our town. Our sincere thanks to you all. W. W. HALSEY, Vice Chairman.

should have been drilled — new fields found. But men can't spend more than they receive. Owners of small wells could have boosted their output with sound engineering methods, but the money was lacking. Many wells have been shut down.

The argument offered against a higher oil price—calling is that it would make car owners pay more for gasoline. They would gladly pay more, however, if they could get it. Meanwhile old oil fields are dying by inches. More than 13,000 little oil wells were junked last year because they couldn't be made to pay; 10,000 the year before. This should never happen when our flyers need oil.

We Fight Success It probably delights our enemies to see small, successful, private enterprisers squeezed out of the oil business while the government buys into it with taxpayers' money, but it is a trend fundamentally wrong and right now dangerous. Up near the Arctic Circle, on Canadian soil, our government has put 135 million dollars in a pipeline and refinery within the last two years. Its practicability is now gravely questioned, and some say work on it has been abandoned.

The latest government mirage of far-flung oil wealth is on the sands of Arabia. People in a position to know estimate its cost at 150 million dollars. Two years may see it finished. Two years will see the European war over, experts believe, so the Arabian pipeline is no part of the war effort.

On the Air Congressman H. L. Gavin of Pennsylvania, ably and eloquently told this story in a radio talk on February 14. He had his facts and figures straight. I agree with him that there is probably plenty of oil still under ground in America. I'd like to see oil fields developed at home, near to our aching need for gasoline and heating oil. Legislation in this effort should be enacted by Congress if action is not obtained otherwise.

American planes in all branches of service, trucks and tanks and open craft are looking to America for fuel; not to the frozen North nor the arid East. Surely most of the big money spent by our government now should be hastening victory and peace, not fortifying government in business to cramp and impoverish future generations.
