New Scoreboard Topples, 2 Boys Suffer Injuries

Prior to the Regional-Somerville football game on Saturday, two youths were injured on the athletic field, when the large scoreboard fell on them. It is believed that the board, which was recently put up by the Booster Club, was blown over from the wind.

Edward Arndt, 16 years old, assistant football manager, of Kenilworth, suffered a fracture of the left arm. Arndt, who was atop the scoreboard awaiting the game to start, felt the board shift, and jumped to the ground.

The other injured youth was Russell Anderson, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Anderson of 137 Tooted avenue. He suffered a compound fracture of the right leg.

Both boys were taken to Overlook Hospital, Summit, in the township ambulance by Patrolman Charles Schiffernoth. Arndt has been released from the hospital, but the Anderson boy will remain there for several weeks.

Patrolman Albert J. Smith and county park police also investigated the accident.

His talk was interesting and instructive, and since the referendum will be voted upon in the November election, it is hoped that as many people as possible can will come to hear him discuss it again.

Taxpayers Group Cites Newspapers For Co-Operation

"New Jersey newspapers are playing an outstanding role in the unrelenting fight for good government," the New Jersey Taxpayers Association said in a statement today, calling attention to National Newspaper Week.

"Through their presentation of important facts, fearless criticism and justified praise we warranted, the newspapers of New Jersey have earned the praise of every citizen and of citizen organizations. Particularly during the past year, the daily and weekly press has played an outstanding part in the efforts to secure and retain good government at all levels of administration," the Taxpayers Association statement declared.

"The New Jersey Press is to be particularly praised for the efficient way in which it has continued to present important home-front facts and editorial comments, while meeting the challenge of 'covering' the biggest news story of all time—the war. With the vital events of World War II filling their columns, the newspapers have done more than their share in presenting facts on government and taxation—which are vital to the citizens of the State."

"The weekly newspapers, as well as the dailies, have met this need for full war-time coverage. The weeklies, featuring war news of home-town men and women, have, like the dailies, found their columns heavily laden with news from the fighting fronts. Like the dailies, the weeklies have carefully maintained the balance of home-front news—particularly important facts on government and taxation."

"Faced by a shortage of newsprint, and by losses in available professional and technical labor, the newspapers have had many troublesome problems to solve during the past year. That they have solved these problems and have continued to present interesting, informative and attractive papers is credit to the newspapers, their publishers, editors and staffs."

"News of taxation has had an important place in the newspapers of New Jersey during the past year. With thousands of new taxpayers entering the ranks of budget scanners and tax-rate observers, the newspapers have recognized the fact that taxation is 'front-page news' today more than ever before."

"In their presentation of news on taxation, the newspapers are playing an important role in the unrelenting fight for good government. The broad field of their news and editorial columns and the day-in-day-out activities of organized taxpayer groups combine to power the drives for improved practices and economy in government operations. By throwing this light on the tax problems of today, the newspapers are ably cooperating with the thousands of citizen-taxpayers who are continually striving to bring better government to the state."

The following men will be inducted into the Armed Forces today: Fred C. Belliveau, 40 Morris avenue; George H. Briggs, 688 Morris avenue; William H. Ford, Jr., 60 Diven street; Francis A. Gall, 328 Third Hills avenue; George L. Van Lear, 53 Colfax road and John C. Yeager, 23 Crescent road.

To Repair Damage

The Board of Freeholders last Thursday appropriated $10,000 to the Union Park Commission and $5,000 to the Union County State Tree Commission for repair of damage in the wake of the September 14 hurricane. The money will be used primarily for clearing away fallen trees and the patching of sidewalks and pavements.

Board Accepts Resignation of Patrolman Lamb

Patrolman Arthur Lamb submitted his resignation to the Township Committee Wednesday night, effective November 1. He wrote the board that an offer, which presented a better financial arrangement, had presented itself and he was obliged to leave the force after having served for about 12 years.

The resignation was accepted. Police Chairman Richard C. Horner pointed out that with two regular policemen in the armed forces and a special officer resigning several weeks ago, the manpower shortage was serious enough to try advertising for replacements.

The committee authorized ads in the SUN and two daily newspapers for special police officers to apply to the Township Clerk by mail. Road Chairman Brown also was authorized to obtain a truck driver for the road department, in the same fashion, to replace Daniel Woodland, who resigned October 3 due to poor health.

HOLIDAY PEARS

By Mary W. Armstrong
County Home Demonstration Agent

With Christmas cards and wrappings already on display, and gifts on their way to service men overseas, it is high time we began visualizing our holiday dinner table. Something red, something green—but let's stop right there!

I'm picturing a luscious green-pear salad beside each place, and that's a course you can make now—believe it or not, so it will be practically ready to put on the table—Christmas Day. Begin by canning a few jars of ripe pears—or Bartlett's if you can still get them. Drops, knocked from the trees in the recent hurricane can be used to excellent advantage, of course.

Prepare the pears for the jars as usual. Peel them, cut in half, core. Then drop them into thin to medium syrup, boiling hot, and just heat them through. Pack the pears into clean, hot jars, and cover them with the syrup to within a half-inch of the top of the jar.

Now here's the trick that turns your pears into holiday fare. After they are in the jars, add just enough green pure-vegetable coloring to give the desired shade, and one-half teaspoon of mint extract. Adjust the lids according to the type of closure you are using, and process in a boiling-water bath for 20 minutes. Remove the jars from the bath, complete the seal on those requiring it, and allow all the jars to cool away from drafts. Label and store in a cool, dark, dry place. You will probably want some plain canned pears, too, but several jars of these minted pears will add flavor and color to your holiday dinner—or buffet supper. Looking still further ahead, they'd be nice for a St. Patrick's supper, too.

Store Some Kieffers
New Jersey-grown Kieffer pears are available now in sufficient quantities for storage as well as for immediate use. They should be stored under the same conditions as apples, and it sound specimens are used they should keep for from six weeks to two months.

Many homemakers are serving Kieffer pears as a breakfast fruit these days, to help tide their families over the season when there are not too many fresh fruits available. As a sauce, pears make a favorite dessert for lunch or supper, too.

Kieffer pears are best for baking, and may be served plain or with interesting "flavor-changers." If they are to be baked plain, line a baking dish with halves of pears—which have been peeled and cored. Sprinkle with sugar, using 1/3 cup to 6 pears. Cover the bottom of the baking dish with boiling water, and bake in a moderate oven until the fruit is soft. (Usually about 1 to 1 1/2 hours.) If you want to discover new excitement in baked pears, try any of the following variations—or make up a new one yourself! Sprinkle brown sugar and 2 teaspoons diced—preserved ginger over the pears before baking. Or perhaps you'll prefer the flavor two teaspoons of lemon juice will give them. Grated lemon rind may also be added, and dots of butter over the top add richness. So there you have pears for a holiday and pears for just any day. We hope you like them.

YOUR RED CROSS

Attention Surgical Dressings Workers!

We have just received a letter from E. Roland Harriman, associate manager of the North Atlantic Area in which he says the following: "The War Department and Red Cross National Headquarters, as well as this office take this opportunity to thank the volunteers in your chapter who have given untiringly of their time and effort during the past two years and two months in providing surgical dressings for the Army. These surgical dressings volunteers have made an outstanding contribution to the war effort, and their help cannot be evaluated in terms of hours or dollars and cents. The total requirements were enormous, far beyond the industrial facilities of this country, and they could not have been met except for the work of these volunteers."

Since our present quota will be finished by October 31, and we have not received any more as yet, the Surgical Dressings Workroom will be closed and no more dressings made until such time as we receive another one.

Next week on Tuesday, October 24, at one o'clock, Mrs. Richard Dunnell will take some colored indoor movies of the workroom and the workers. Everyone who has ever worked on Surgical Dressings, either in the daytime or evening, should come if they can.

On October 31, the surgical-dressings workers will have a Halloween party in the afternoon at the Methodist Church. All workers are cordially invited to attend.

Several hundred magazines were taken up to Lyons Hospital today by the Motor Corps. Among those donated, there was one whole year's issues of "Fortune," and issues for several years back—complete of the National Geographic. We are very much pleased by the response made to our plea for magazines. A great number of these were collected by the Juniors' vigorous efforts.

The Camp Kilmer Card Party will be held tomorrow. If you have not already bought your tickets, you may purchase them at the door. There will be table and door prizes, and refreshments served by the Canteen. Come and bring your friends!

As you can see by the appeal on the front page of this paper, the registrations for the Blood Bank Carol of 26 Bryant avenue are visiting at the home of the former's parents in St. George, Del. They will return home Sunday.

are not coming in any too well. There are 15 registrations already in, but the Mobile Unit is interested in how many will be there on THAT day. Our quota is 250. The Blood Bank day, Wednesday, October 25, is only five days off, and somehow we must find 100 more donors. If you have already sent in your blank, ask everyone you see if he or she has. New people are very welcome. So let's all get busy and spread the word, and fill our quota. We have had a fine record every other time the Mobile Unit has come here—we want to have as good a one this time.

YOUR VICTORY GARDEN

FALL DIGGING

By Fred D. Osman
Union County Agricultural Agent

The Victory Gardening season is about over, and preparations should now be made for next year. It has been suggested that every gardener prepare a compost pile and plant a cover crop or dig his garden this fall so that the soil will be properly conditioned for the planting of the 1945 crop.

A compost pile will enable you to conserve plant refuse so that the resulting manure-like material may be returned to the soil. This will give you a supply of organic matter which is usually lacking in garden soils. Those gardens which were amply supplied with manure this year came through the drought much better than those which were deficient in this material. It is not too late to start a compost pile, and in that way make use not only of plant remains from the garden but also the leaves that fall from the trees. Making a compost pile is a simple process. In an out-of-the-way place, pile up these plant residues and tread them down in layers six inches deep. If you use cornstalks, chop them up so they will pack better. Then put on a sprinkling of lime and Victory Garden fertilizer, and a thin layer of soil. Repeat this procedure with every six inch layer. Keep the top level or slightly dish'd to hold water. Moisten it down and keep it wet. The mass will be partly decayed by spring and may be in condition to dig under. If it is not properly decayed by that time it can be used for mulching later in the season or kept until the following spring.

Cover Crop Most Beneficial

Besides the compost pile, it is suggested that the home gardener plant a cover crop. This will prevent soil erosion, will catch and hold fertilizing materials, and supply organic matter when dug under in the spring. It is not too late to sow a cover crop, although the bulk of growth to dig under will not be as great as if it had been sown earlier. Rye or wheat, one quart to about 600 square feet is suitable. Rye grass, Italian or domestic, may be used at the rate of one pound to about 400 square feet.

A third method of caring for the garden soil over winter is full-digging. Where no cover crop has been sown, full digging this year will be of particular advantage. The very dry summer has resulted in a serious depletion of soil moisture. If the surface soil has not been kept loose, a crust will have formed and this will prevent water from penetrating easily. Under drought, the soil lower down may have hardened, especially if the soil is of a heavy nature. Fall plowing or digging will loosen the soil up to the winter, and permit more rain to penetrate down and make contact with the ground water.

If the source of organic matter available is not well rotted, as straw, manure or partly decayed be had by the plants grown next spring. In turning under sod or leaves, add a little fertilizer to help speed decay.

Another important result of digging in the fall of a very clayey or heavy soil is the improvement of the soil structure. Also if it contains pieces of shale, these will break down more readily. Have the soil tested to see if lime is needed. If it is, spread the lime on the surface before digging.

If there is any slope to the ground, dig across the slope. If you dig with the slope, water will form channels and will run off, carrying with it fertilizer, and valuable topsoil. By digging across the slope, this cannot happen so easily.

After digging, do not rake. Leave the soil rough, so that it will catch and hold all the water possible.

Another advantage to having the surface rough is that it will dry out rapidly in the spring. As a result of this fall preparation, the soil can be put into shape for planting in the spring by merely raking the surface. In this way, planting can often be done two or three weeks earlier than if we wait to dig in the spring.

During the fall and winter, lay plans for next year's garden. Planning is wise. By proper planning, a much more economical and efficient use of the garden area is possible.

Now, nothing remains but for those who have conserved food to take advantage of their summer's work and to make preparations for next year.

Experiences In Normandy Told by Pvt. Pittenger

MOUNTAINSIDE—It was D. Gilbert E. Pittenger, 23-year-old rifleman from the borough, who was lying wounded a few hundred yards inland from the beach. He had been hit on D-day and again on June 7. Now he had been lying along with another wounded Yank for over a day, waiting to be evacuated.

"A soldier from a Signal Corps outfit came by and the other fellow asked him for a cigarette," Pittenger, now a patient at the Army's England General and Convalescent Hospital, Atlantic City, related. "I looked up and there was a fellow I had known all my life, but had seen but once since we were inducted together in February, 1943. It was Corporal Tom Edge of Westfield."

"Talk about coincidences," he went on, "I had known Tom since I was so high."

Pittenger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert E. Pittenger of Central avenue, landed on one of the hottest strips of Normandy beachhead with the first wave of the 29th Infantry Division. "The Germans had pill boxes on a hill overlooking the water," he said, "and they started the beach continuously."

Pittenger's unit was pinned down by Nazi fire and while the Mountainside infantryman was firing on the pill boxes an artillery shell hit nearby. A shell fragment caught him in the back of the right knee.

"But I kept going," he said. "We had to get inland and off that beach or get killed all together. When I finally got up on that hill it was pretty dark and guns were going all over the place. I was lying down when I got hit again."

One bullet struck Pittenger in the right knee and two others hit him in the back. "All I remember is that it was pretty hot," he said. "I lay there for over-a-day-waiting," he went on. "And one medic did stop by and give me some pills and put antiseptic powder on my back."

After being hospitalized in England for several months, Pittenger started for the United States

foundland, then to Mitchell Field, N. Y., and finally to Atlantic City. Pvt. Pittenger took his basic infantry training at Camp Wheeler, Ga., before going overseas in July, 1943. Among his awards are the Purple Heart and the Distinguished Unit Badge which was recently awarded by Col. Sidney L. Chappell, commanding officer of England General and Convalescent Hospital.

Prior to entering the service, Pvt. Pittenger was employed by the Star Electric Motor Co., of Bloomfield and was a part-time riding instructor at Winkler's Lake Surprise Riding Club in Mountainside.

Service Notes

MOUNTAINSIDE—Ensign Arthur Goodall has been transferred from Klamath Field, Oregon, to Holtville, which is on the border of California and Mexico.

Pvt. Herbert Bahr is stationed at Fort Blending, Fla., with the Infantry.

Pvt. William Boynton received a Certified Disability Discharge from the Army last Saturday. He is the son of William Boynton of Summit road and the late Mrs. Boynton.

Pvt. Boynton had been in the service 22 months. He received training in camps Swift, Hood and Bowie, in Texas for one year before going overseas. He was attached to a tank outfit. Pvt. Boynton was in England and on the coast of France. He spent three months in a hospital in England before he returned to the States, where he was sent to Holleran Hospital, then to Atlantic City and later to North Carolina.

His wife, the former Nancy Flood, and two children, Harold and Sandra are living in Westfield with Mrs. Boynton's parents.

Fund Reaches $2,268 Total

MOUNTAINSIDE—Totals in the Mountainside Community Association drive for funds reached $2,268 by Wednesday night. Chairman Theodore V. Mundy reported. This is about two-thirds of the $3,264 quota. The campaign officially closes Wednesday, October 25.

Girl Scouts Elect Slate of Officers

MOUNTAINSIDE—Girl Scout Troop 54 of the Mountainside School have elected officers as follows: Secretary, Lorraine Sovole; treasurer, Joan Potter; leader of Panther Patrol, Kay Hanecker; leader of Eagle Patrol, Barbara Patton.

Changes Made In Ordinance On Licenses

MOUNTAINSIDE—An ordinance to amend legislation limiting liquor licenses was introduced by the Borough Council, Tuesday of last week. It will prohibit issuance of any licenses in excess of 10 taverns, five stores and three limited retail licenses. Public hearing will be held November 14. Existing ordinance permits 11 taverns, which would be reduced by one.

The resignation of F. E. Robinson was accepted from the Planning Board and Mrs. Marvin Payton of Greenwood road was named to fill the vacancy. Mr. Robinson is moving out of the borough.

John Ferguson was appointed as civilian member of the Police Pension Commission, succeeding Richard Whitcomb, who had resigned.

Mayor John Moxon, referring to the proposal to plant dogwood trees on Route 29 and designate it as a Blue Star memorial project, suggested that the Planning Board should study the plan to have local policies conform with the tentative arrangements.

Eric Soriba's appointment as a volunteer fireman was confirmed. It was pointed out that A. C. Rader, original developer of Evergreen court, has applied for permit from the Planning Board to open up more land for dwelling purposes. Mayor Moxon pointed out that the Planning Board was concerned about a paved exit to New Providence road where it is now a dirt road, a portion of which is borough-owned and the larger portion owned by Mr. Rader.
