UNION COUNTY SHERIFF, Ralph Oriscello (center) gets some facts about the new booklet, "How You Can Help Prevent Narcotics Addiction", which will be a new tool in the county's anti-dope campaign. Giving him the rundown is Lt. Thomas Mueller (left) of the Essex County Sheriff's Office, while Edward Cornwall, Branch Manager of the Union County Motor Club of America, looks on approvingly. Lt. Mueller authored the booklet which was printed and given to Union County as a public service by MCA.

Highway Dept. To Study Freight Movement In NJ

Aims At Tracing State CD Division To Install Direct Weather Teletype

TRENTON—Beginning Monday, approximately 6,000 over-the-road truck drivers will be interviewed as part of the New Jersey Transportation Study to develop a picture of freight movement by truck into and out of the North Jersey metropolitan area.

The New Jersey Transportation Study is being carried out by the New Jersey State Highway Department in conjunction with similar activities in portions of Connecticut and New York. The overall study is basically aimed at tracing the movements of people and goods within an 8,000 square mile area, including portions of Connecticut, New Jersey and New York. Field work has already been completed on home interview, truck and taxi surveys within the three-state region, and roadside interviews of vehicles entering and leaving the region.

The new truck survey will supplement last year's survey of truck movements within the region. Commodity data for trucks were not collected during last year's roadside interviews since it would have caused too much delay to traffic. In combination the two surveys will measure and describe the region's current traffic flow via truck and provide a basis for estimating future demands for highways and other facilities to serve truck transportation.

Interviewing crews will operate at select roadside locations along a corridor across Monmouth, Middlesex, Somerset, Morris, Passaic and Bergen Counties. They will ask a sample of drivers about commodities, the type of commodities, the weight, where picked up and where to be delivered. Total interview time will average five minutes. All of the information will be used for statistical summaries only not otherwise available.

Data obtained by the State

TRENTON—The New Jersey Division of Civil Defense will install in its communications center in West Trenton, a direct weather teletype from the United States Meteorological station in New York. Director Thomas S. Dignan said, the newest facility will enable his organization to issue erratic weather warnings to the CD network in a matter of minutes.

Prompting the installation of this new equipment is the increased frequency of tornadoes in New Jersey. Rapid warning is the only defense against this weather phenomenon, Dignan said. While the type of tornado that New Jerseyans have experienced is less violent and not as persistent as those in the Midwest, New Jersey has had some killers.

Based on a tornado study by Lawrence Raniere of the Department of Meteorology, Rutgers University and the U.S. Weather Bureau, 17 tornadoes have raked New Jersey between 1953 and 1962. The most recent occurred early this spring in Burlington County when a part of a trailer park was reduced to splinters. Last year a new junior high school just north of Trenton was extensively damaged; and two weeks ago, the north and central parts of New Jersey were alerted to tornadoes, but the twisters did not materialize.

According to Raniere's findings, a tornado at New Brunswick in June, 1895, allegedly moved down the Raritan River to the ocean, driving the water out ahead of it into the bay. On August 23, 1895, a tornado killed six persons and caused $500,000 damage in moving from Philadelphia to Camden. Another Pennsylvania-spawned tornado struck Blairstown, N.J., on April 1, 1929, killing three people and damaging $50,000 worth of property. Damages of $1,000,000, but no fatalities, were caused by a tornado in Camden and Burlington counties on May 24, 1933.

Essentially, the new equipment will feed all weather information to the civil defense control center as it develops. Concerning tornadoes, two types of information will be received and released to the public—forecasts and warnings. Tornado forecasts are meant to convey the possibility of the likelihood of one or more tornadoes occurring somewhere within a large geographical area during a given period. Tornado warnings are released to alert the public as to the location and movement of existing tornadoes.

Raniere explains that during forecasts the public should not panic, stop work or take cover but merely stay on the alert for further developments. In the case of a tornado warning, residents in the reported path of the twister should take cover immediately. As a general rule, time will not permit school children or workers to travel to their homes.

Technique Used On Dope Addicts

A relatively new technique designed to prevent drug addiction is currently being employed by the Union County Sheriff's Office under the direction of Sheriff Ralph Oriscello.

Spearheaded by the distribution of over 40,000 booklets entitled "How You Can Help Prevent Narcotics Addiction," the Sheriff's Department is aiming its activity at the problem of drug addiction and use of narcotics. These booklets, compiled and written by Lt. F. Thomas Mueller of the Essex County Sheriff's Office, cover every facet of the subject from recognition of the drugs and symptoms of addiction to causes of the habit and the role of the parent and the school.

The booklets are printed by Motor Club of America and presented to the Union County Sheriff's Office as a public service. According to Edward Cornwall, Manager of the Union MCA Branch Office, the booklets have been used successfully in six counties and requests for them have been coming in from many other areas in New Jersey. Their use both in the home and in the school as an adjunct to Union County's anti-dope campaign, said Cornwall, "will certainly contribute to the progress in eliminating the narcotics problem."

Lt. Mueller pointed out that these booklets combined with the overall educational approach to the problem have been responsible for the passage of New Jersey's anti "good-bell" and Barbiturate bill.

Sheriff Oriscello's office has worked closely in the past with Lt. Mueller and will now begin its own educational program aimed at parents, teachers and school children. Sheriff Oriscello, in accepting the booklets from Mr. Cornwall noted: "The booklet, so generously published by Motor Club of America, will no doubt be a guiding force in our far-reaching program and will spearhead our proposed drive to stamp out the evils of narcotics as they may exist in our country."

Wrigley Calls Mayor A 'Do-Nothing'

At a workers' meeting held at the home of Alexander Wrigley, Republican candidate for Mayor, Wrigley said that the mayor should donate his pay to charity. "Because of his 'do-nothing' lack of cooperation in the City of Linden," on the part of the chief executive, Wrigley charged that the Mayor's failure to fill vacancies as they occurred is a detriment to the municipal government.

Wrigley said that the mayor has not issued any order to enforce the speed limits in this highly built up area of Rt. 1 in Linden.

"There has been a lot of lip service, but no action. If that is the mayor's feelings, it shows that he does not think very highly of the lives of our residents in Linden."

"I personally feel that the strict enforcement and proper warning signs indicating that this is a built up area would reduce or eliminate these senseless murders or killings."

"I dare the mayor to publish a report of the facts of accidents and fatalities that have occurred in the city limits of Linden."

Seek Graduates In Agriculture

College graduates with degrees in the agricultural sciences are being sought by agriculture, reports Norman Gohn, Union County 4-H Club Agent. One West Coast firm is launching a recruiting program to entice young people into following agricultural careers.

This company also encourages students to major in agronomy, entomology, plant pathology, horticulture and related courses by annually offering two scholarships of $800 each to college sophomores who cover the areas of crop production and protection.

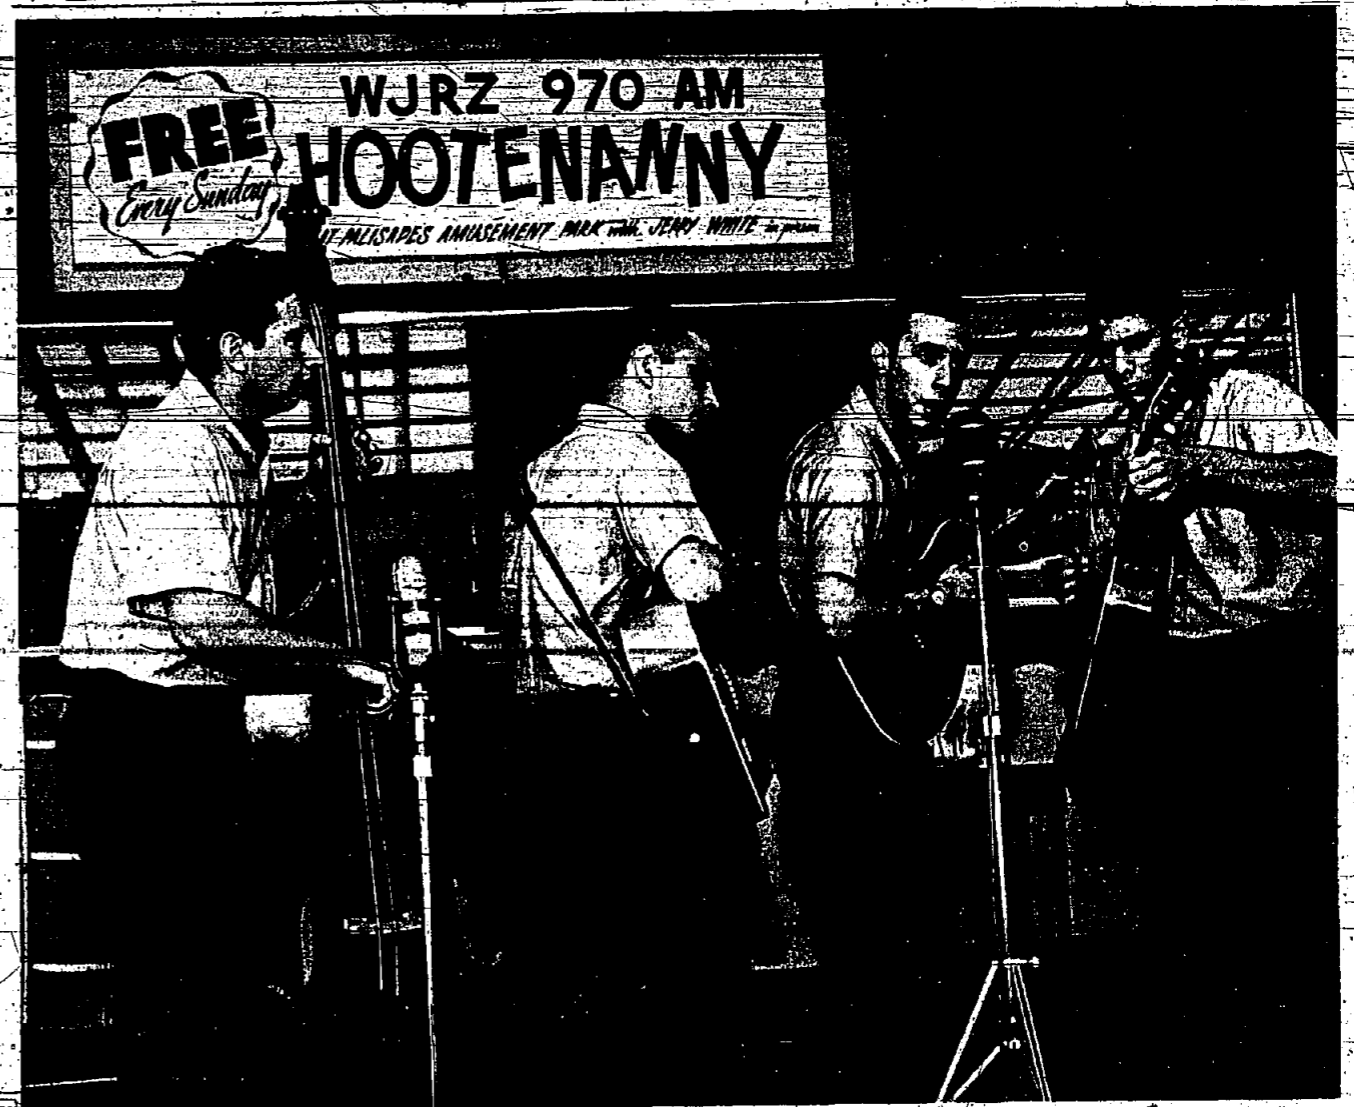

One of the qualifications for the grant is that the young man or woman must have been a 4-H Club member for at least three years. The scholarship donor is California Chemical Company, Ortho Division of San Francisco. "Talented young people will be needed in increasing numbers," said Dr. M. H. McVickar, California Chemical's manager of agronomy, "so we may continue to enjoy the prosperity which starts with economic food production."

An East coast manufacturer is equally interested in attracting young people to agricultural careers. Homeite, a Division of Textron, Inc., Port Chester, New York, offers four scholarships of $1,600 each to former 4-H members who will major in forestry. These scholarships are available to college freshmen.

In pointing up the need for continuing to develop agricultural sciences, Dr. Daniel C. Aldrich, internationally known agriculturist and educator at the University of California, said: "If this well fed continent were called on to support its people with the tools of a century ago, we could very well rival India and China in poverty and human suffering."

Be Careful Where You Hang That Picture — A Gusher Could Start!

You want to hang a picture. Sounds simple, but in some of our homes this act of decoration could drawing and make sure where the pipe to be a costly stroke with a hammer. The path, for instance, might puncture a thin-wall piping that is not cast iron, care should be taken as to where nails are, and your imagination can tell you what the results would be. According to the Cast Iron Soil Pipe Institute, quite a few homeowners have found a nasty result when they drove a nail through the wall construction of their house. Plumbing contractors, too, have reported that in many instances after installing thin-wall piping it was not uncommon for the carpenter to unknowingly drive nails through this easy-puncture piping.

New Standards Set for Lumber

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's lumber manufacturers hope to save homeowners up to $100 million annually — and give them a better product to boot. Mortimer B. Doyle, executive vice president of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, says the industry has proposed to lumber producers and users new size and quality standards which could achieve these ends. Among other things, he says the new standards would require that all lumber, whether green or dry, conform to specified sizes when it is installed in a structure. At present, a nominal 2 x 10 can vary as much as 1/4 inch in one dimension and 1/32nd inch in the other, depending on moisture content — whether it is kiln-dried, air-dried or shipped in the "green" condition.

PHOTOGRAPHY

By BART KINCH
United Press International

About sixteen years ago artist Albert Dorne set up the first of his famous schools. This was the Famous Artists School in Westport, Conn. The school was conceived and established to fill a need in the fields of commercial and fine art. It was predicated on the premise that "it takes success to teach success. Or, it takes a pro to teach a pro." The school was an immediate success and soon was followed by the Famous Writers School. The writers school had the same foundation and the same goal — to teach young and aspiring writers how to produce work of professional quality that will sell. You can't be a professional unless someone buys your work. You can't sell your work unless it is of professional caliber. The "Famous" schools help in attaining this professional. This year the Famous Writers School was followed by the latest Dorne entry into the home study field — the Famous Photographers School. The basic teaching method is the same in all three schools — a guiding faculty of top men in their field, textbooks prepared by these same experts, assignments designed to test the resources of the student, and instructors to check your work that are professional in their fields. These instructors correct your assignments, make usual recommendations to improve your skill as a photographer and send a commentary explaining in detail where you have gone astray and where you are on the right track. Briefly, here's the way it works: You receive a set of textbooks and work assignment books. The photographic assignments can be done in and around your home. When a lesson is completed, you drop it in a mailbox (you set your own rate of speed, one week, two weeks, whatever you need). At Westport, your assignment is sent to an instructor who is an expert in that particular lesson. Each instructor has his own private office in which he goes over your assignment. He shows your weaknesses and how to correct them. He may make suggestions on form, color or composition — wherever he feels you are the least bit weak. Next your instructor will dictate a letter telling you, step by step, the things you need to know to take better pictures. A stenographer will type the letter and it will be forwarded to you with your corrected assignment. The guiding faculty meets regularly on a rotating schedule with the instructional staff to discuss specific problems of criticism and student assignments. In the case of the Famous Photographers School, the guiding faculty includes: Richard Avedon, Bert Stern, Irving Penn, Philippe Halsman, Alfred Eisenstadt, Ezra Stoller, Richard Beattie, Harry Garfield, Arthur d'Arzlen and Joseph Costa. The man in charge and who actually takes care of the day to day operation of the school is Victor Keppler, the director. Vic is an old pro and one of the best. His career spans more than 35 years as a professional photographer and his accounts have totaled more than $5 million. Vic agreed to shut down his profitable New York studio to devote his full energies to the school. He has very strong convictions about the future of photography in the world of business, mass communication and art. "All you need to start your own career as a photographer," Keppler believes, "is a normal amount of talent and imagination. If you have these, and if you have the drive, the determination, and the self-discipline to study and practice, then I think that we at the Famous Photographers School can help you toward that goal."
